"In the use of the water and the blood." How? In the baptismal-rite and in the shedding of the blood for the purposes of redemption. What purpose or purposes do they subserve? The purposes of testimony. Testimony to what? To the righteousness of God and his judgments on man. What is the end in view? To reveal and teach the love of God as a creator and governor of the universe. What is the office of the Spirit as here stated? To testify also. To what? To this same general purpose. How does the Spirit perform its official work? By appealing to the conscious knowledge of men. Is the conscience so-called anything more or less than this conscious knowledge in us? No. Are there spiritual instincts in the person begotten of God? There are. Do they correspond to the natural instincts in humanity? They do. Are their operations similar? They are. Are there instinctive ties and relations established between parents and children by the fact of generation? There are. Are there similar ties and relations established by the fact of generation spiritual between God the Father and his spiritual offspring? There are. Are these instinctive? They must be during the germinal period. What is the germinal period? The period beginning with regeneration or the "begetting from above" of what Christ tells Nickodemus, and ending with "the resurrection" or "the birth from among the dead" or the birth from the grave or the spiritual carrying period of our mother earth. Is reason predominant in this period? It cannot be from the very nature of things any more than it is in the natural generative state. Are the natural and spiritual states anything more than analogous? Probably not. Do we reason spiritually while in the flesh after regeneration? To some extent. Can we trust the conclusions of reason in matters spiritual to the same extent that we do now in things temporal or natural? No. Why not? For the same reason that a child's reasoning in the natural state is not to be fully trusted as later in adult age. Is every Christian of whatever age male or female a child while in the flesh? Yes. Is there anything spiritual in a high and refined state of intellectual development? There is not unless regeneration has taken place. Such conditions are nothing more than natural phenomena. "The natural man cannot apprehend spiritual things." What is the first relation established between God and man by spiritual regeneration? A relation of life. What next? The regenerative instincts that inhere in this new spiritual life. What are some of these instincts? Hunger, thirst, desire, like and dislike, joy, sorrow, affection, love. Can these be brought into subjection to the will? They can. How? Through the enlightened reason. Does this take place in the flesh. The process begins in the flesh and is perfected in spirit, and this is the philosophy of "the fiery trial that tries every man's soul." This is why "the Lord chasteneth every son whom he accepteth." This is the discipline of our heavenly Father to develop our spiritual growth in character through the strengthening of our will and the enlargement by our spiritual reasoning powers. When does the child of faith reach "the full measure of the adult-age in Christ Jesous?" At the resurrection, when we receive our spiritual organism or body, which is the first organic perfection in righteousness. We then have an instrumentality in which we can be actually righteous. Until then righteousness is imputed to us, or we are justified merely, or "clothed with righteousness." Can we safely infer that all our powers are enlarged with this birth into the spirit life? We can. Is it this dual soul and spirit life in the body that Paul is reasoning about in Romans, where he says that "when I would do good evil is present with me?" It is. How does he explain his justification there? By locating his true "ego" in the spiritual germinal life begun within him, and stating that the "old man" of his soul-nature is not "accounted" or is accounted "dead"—not really dead though, or there would be no struggle and variance between the two. The difference between Paul and John is this, John merely states the phenomena resulting from this process going on and draws the proper conclusions, while Paul gives the rationale of the process as clearly as it can be stated to our finite comprehension. But both have been very sadly misapprehended. The Scriptures do state that the regenerated person is "a new creature in Christ Jesous," but in a new creative process. Even Christ himself was subjected to this process like us "though without sin." For instance it is stated that he was "perfected in suffering." He experienced "the fiery trial" which is incident to the struggle between the lower soul-life and the higher spirit-life in him- the dual existence; but did not yield a single point. We all yield at many points, because of our weak wills. Therefore the necessity of "God in us to will and to do." In fact "of ourselves" we are nothing. Therefore is it "grace" and not "works." Christ performed the "works" and gives us the "grace." But he expects grace in return or "grace for grace." Therefore our highest toward perfection in the flesh is to exemplify the grace we have experienced. We are not capable of "judging" absolutely now as we will be later when "we have been perfected." We have had our sins remitted in grace. Therefore we are told in the Lord's prayer to-day that "we remit the obligations men owe us," "because God hath remitted the obligations we owe him." For unless we do our Father in heaven will not remit (that is continue to remit ours). Showing that the remission is also a process going on from day to day in all our lives, and explains such passages as this "who ever liveth to intercede, etc."

The rationale of what I have been saying is that every "sect" teaches some sort of "perfection" in the flesh, the tendency of which is to beget pride instead of humility. For instance every sect speaks of the convert being "born again" at conversion. Think of it with all the absurdities that follow in the wake of this unscriptural assumption. Then think of the crude ideas extant in all the churches of Spirit and spiritual things. Think of reading in one verse of Scripture, "Now God is a spirit and those who worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth," and then reading in another verse that God's spirit is a "Ghost." Is God a ghost? Is there no distinction in our language between ghost and spirit? There certainly is in the original text. "Ghost" embodies and expresses the heathen idea of spirit in all the past ages, and in one word is the embodiment of all superstition. We might just as appropriately use interchangeably with "spirit" such other heathen words as "wraith," "bogie," "fairy," etc. The general term in the Scripture for these concepts of a perverted imagination is — φαντασμα — or "phantom," a delusive appearance in other words, while spirit in the teachings of Scripture is invariably real, far more real than the realities in which we can by nature apprehend and fully account for. Again we have positively no evidence in the Scriptures that evil spirits have the power, or if they have the power, are allowed to manifest themselves to the sight of human beings, while good spirits or "the angels" we are told have often been seen of men in the past. Therefore their (the demons) great power to deceive, and therefore we are told specifically to apply other tests than sight. Heathendom and superstition have always asserted that evil spirits as well as the good have been seen and are constantly being seen by humanity. "Modern spiritualism" moreover calls this phenomenon "materialization." In John's day "Demoniac-possession" prevailed and evil spirits or demons spoke and acted through human agency, counterfeiting true spirit-possession as manifest in all the extraordinary phenomena of the apostolic spiritual gifts, and we have also the fact of angelical appearances during this period recorded for our instruction; but no record of a demon being seen by any one. This makes the subtility of the danger all the more to be feared. While tampering with our curiosity to see a ghost or yielding to our inordinate superstitious fears our weak wills may be laid hold of by these intangible evil agencies and we unconsciously be made subservient to their wicked purposes. Do you believe in the existence of demoniac-possession now-a-days? I do. I think it has always existed since the days of Adam. Christ himself teaches it clearly I think. "Ye are children of your father the Diabolos." I think this accounts for much so-called insanity and much that receives the milder name of "strong delusion." Even Paul says, "I verily thought, etc." Many will some day discover that what they verily thought was true piety even was a delusion of Satan. John saw this subtile danger coming; and the object of this epistle was to warn the church of this hidden danger. Be sure you get your testimony from God and beware of terminology of mere men however learned they may seem to be.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Life or Death.

"For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can it be." Rom. viii. 6, 7.

The dictionary defines carnal to mean, pertaining to the flesh, sensual, lustful. Spiritual to mean, pure, holy.

An examination of these two verses and their immediate connections will show that Paul is comparing the final results of living with the mind led by sensual and lustful influences, with the results of being led by pure and holy influences. One leads to death, the other to life.

To be carnally minded is to yield the mind to fleshly impulses and ambitions, and refuse obedience to God's requirements. "For it (the carnal mind,) is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." Why not? Because to be subject to God's law a mind must be Spiritual, holy, and pure. For the law is spiritual. Rom. vii. 14.

And when a person is in subjection to such a law he ceaseth to be carnally minded, but has become spiritually minded and has the promise of eternal life through faith in Christ. But the mind that refuses to be subject to God's law is carnal, and "to be carnally minded is death."

"For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord, (Rom. vi. 23) and sin is the transgression of the law, (1 John iii. 4,) and "where no law is, there is no transgression." Rom. iv. 15.

We learn then that God has a law that leads its subjects to live spiritual, holy, pure lives, and the gift of God for patient continuance in well doing is eternal life.

But to refuse to be subject to that law and transgress it is sin, and the wages of sin is death.

Life and death are set before us. Life for faith and obedience. Death for rebellion and sin.

S. S. DAVISON.

"Well," said a rich man to a good woman who was going around soliciting aid for the poor, "I would do more but it is not appreciated. I see neither improvement nor gratitude." This excuse is very common, but it is not sufficient. If charity fails in such cases it is not alone, for other things fail also. Guthrie says the sun shines on many a flower that never gives us fruit. Education (both literary and moral) fails. Many a father has well raised his son, but at last his gray hairs have been brought with sorrow to the grave. But the thing that binds us is duty; God attends to results.

If we should treat our friends as shabbily as we treat the Lord, we would soon have no friends.

Selected.

Steady.

Many a battle has been lost when troops have wavered, faltered, and been thrown in confusion. Many a battle has been won in its critical hour by the steadfastness of a well-trained regiment or division. So in the fight of faith, there are times when every thing seems muddled; when men hardly know friend from foe; when Satan sows dissension among the soldiers of the Lord, and turns them to fight each other, or confuses and discourages them till they forsake their posts and flee; and then how often are the fortunes of the day saved by the persistence of calm, faithful, steady souls, who know no fear, and will not falter or flee.

In critical hours of human experience much depends upon steadiness. When men are assailed, persecuted, and cast out: when evil men work ruin, and good men are deluded, are made accomplices in the crime; when Pilate, Herod, Annas, Caiphas, and all their host array themselves against the right and the truth, it may be only for an hour or a day, but that brief period may be filled with shipwreck and ruin, if men fear, and tremble, and flee. But if in such hours of trial men stand fast and hold fast; if they are "steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord;" if they maintain their integrity, and hold fast the profession of their faith without wavering; if they bear good testimony to the grace of God, and anchor their souls in the Rock of Ages; in a little while the storms will blow over, the foaming waves subside; the wrath of man will be turned to praise, and God's blessing will be on the steadfast, the tried and the true.

O man of God! be steadfast for the right, and valiant for the truth. Enemies may assail, may flatter, threaten or frown, but resist them, steadfast in the faith. Let others be beguiled or frightened, but do you cleave unto the Lord, and in the end he shall honor your fidelity; shall make you a pillar in the temple of God to go no more out forever, and shall give to you the crown of glory that fadeth not away.—Christian.

Judge Not.

Some people have a famous faculty for finding out other people's duties before they do their own. They have, in their own estimation, got other folks all consecrated to the work they have selected for them, and it is a subject of frequent remark by them why in the world they do not attend to it. But they are in no hurry to consecrate themselves to the work that lies at their own doors. Like Peter of old, before making a move themselves their bosoms heave with the anxious query, "Lord, and what shall this man do?" And the Lord's answer to Peter is just as pertinent in their case, "What is that to thee? Follow thou me." They put in much time and effort in spying out jobs for another fellow and shouting, "Here he is, Lord, send him," instead of saying, "Here am I, Lord, send me."

Now a man may possibly not do a certain work that others have picked out for him, because the Lord has not called or asked him to do it, and does not wish him to do it on account of other work which he has given him to do. He used to give "to every man his work," and probably he has not resigned this important office yet. He was appointed by the Father to be "a leader and commander of his people," and probably knows about as well as anybody else what this man or that man is fit for and what to set them to do. And the fellow who waits on the Lord at headquarters, and gets his orders there, and understands them before he starts, will not run long on Tom Fool's errand nor waste much energy in so doing. "He knoweth our frame." He knows what a man can do, and be made to do, provided he wants him. He needeth not to be told what is in man, for he knows. All are transparent to that infinite eye. He can tell at once, before the start, whether a man had better do this or that. You cannot. With you it is all a matter of conjecture or opinion, unless you are out of your place and in the Judge's stand.

"Judge not." You may plead, but after all your pleading, to his own Master a man must stand or fall. Folks not only select a man's duties for him, but they think they discover the reason why he does not do them—there is something in his eye. "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, and considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" Some of the blindest people that I ever knew are those who are blind to their own faults, and there are plenty of them around town. They have microscopic eyesight toward the faults of others, but they seem to be benumbed with blissful ignorance and innocence that there is anything the matter with them. Of course, because there is a stick of timber in the eye that looks at self, and a microscope to the eye directed at others. Brother, take that probe that you have about put your brother's eye out with, in vainly scouring about to find something, and dig the lumber out of your own eye, "And then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote that is in thy brother's eye." But probably in that condition you will not see any at all. What would you think of a blind man coming to your town and opening a place and putting out a sign as a professional occulist?—Chas. E. Copp.

An Untruth.

Two young masons were building a brick wall - the front wall of a high house. One of them in placing a brick discovered that it was a little thicker on one side than on the other. His companion advised him to throw it out. "It will make your wall untrue, Ben" he said. "Pooh!" answered Ben, "what difference will such a trifle as that make? You are too particular." "My mother," replied he, "taught me that truth is truth, and ever so little an untruth is a lie, and a lie is no trifle." "O," said Ben, that's very well; but I am not lying." "Very true; but you make your wall tell a lie, and I have read that a lie in one's work is like a lie in his character—it will show itself sooner or later, and bring harm, if not corrected to ruin." "I'll risk it in this case," answered Ben, and he worked away, laying more bricks and carrying the wall up higher, till the close of the day, when they quitted work and went home.

The next morning they went to resume their work, when, behold the lie had wrought out the results of all lies. The wall, getting a little slant from the untrue brick, had got more and more untrue as it got higher, and at last in the night had toppled over again. Just so with ever so little an untruth in your character; it grows more and more untrue, if you permit it to remain, till it brings sorrow and ruin. Tell, act, and live the exact truth always.

It is the privilege of every believer to live a pure and holy life. The Scriptures so teach, hence it is not only a privilege but a duty.

A frank, open mind will be always ready to listen, to consider, and, if truth permits, to be convinced.

[illegible]

[illegible] of the O. P. Association.

[illegible], Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 12, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

THERE are those who maintain that a correct theory will insure a a correct practice; and if every i be dotted and every t crossed the practice will be perfect. Alas, this is not true. Faith and love together will produce obedience, nothing else will. And nothing short of obedience will bring the reward. •

THE subtile intelligence of "Will power" is in operation in the most infinitesimal object of life as well as in the accountable being man. Wherever there is life there is the power to go and do, etc. Yes: life and intelligence go together. Life can only be manifested in an organized body, and there is no intelligence where there is no life. "The dead know not anything." •

IMMORTAL-soulism is a dogma that proves fatal to fundamental Bible truth. It robs Christ of his glory as the Giver of life to men. If anything is plainly taught us of his work in coming into the world, it is, that he might give, not happiness, merely to immortal beings, but life itself, in an endless degree, to mortals. The Redeemed will owe EVERYTHING to Christ, because their very existence depends upon him. Until he comes their life is hid with Christ in God; and when he who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in Glory. Col. iii. 3, 4. •

IF we have correctly read the finger posts on the coast of time, there is no time for dallying, and those who have the Banner of Light must hold it aloft. The trumpet must be given a certain sound. Those who have God's truth must speak it faithfully, those who have not, cannot. The privileges of God's saints even in the vale of tears are great, but their responsibilities are great also. They are expected to do the Lord's business here while he is serving their interests at the court of heaven. Yes; "be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life" is the way he speaks to them. Brethren and sisters, all, ever keep the prize in view. •

IN Isaiah xliii. 3, we read: "For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy one of Israel, thy Savior. I gave Egypt for thy ransom, Ethiopia and Seba for thee." England is in possession of Egypt, and it would seem that this has been divinely brought about, so as to further the re-settlement of Palestine with the Seed of Abraham. If that be the case no power on earth will be able to dislodge her before that purpose is accomplished. It will be remembered that Gladstone when in power before was in favor of evacuating Egypt; and the world was not a little surprised to learn on his resumption of authority that he has now no idea of evacuating it. Verses 4, 5 and 6 prove that the ransom referred to, relates to the final gathering of the now scattered people. •

A WRITER in England says on the Abomination of Desolation, "It seems most systematic that as the Papal power has been extinguished after a period of 1260 years, with three terminal periods, the Mohammedan power should also be broken after a similar period, especially seeing that the two earlier dates have been marked by significant events. What shall be the exact nature of the events of 1897, or thereabouts, cannot be definitely stated, but there is good ground for anticipation that that year will see, at least, the termination of Mohammedan power, and a great step towards Israel's Restoration." The present signs are deeply interesting to the prophetic student; for, although they appear insignificant and the forces quiescent, the under-currents are strong, and all working in the direction of consummation. God speed the day when the Redeemer shall come to Zion and turn ungodliness from Jacob,—when he thus comes may he find writer and readers ready to co-operate with him in blessing all the families of the earth. Amen and amen. •

Man in Death.

We squarely, fairly and boldly maintain that death to the personality of man means the cessation of all life, the destruction of all mental powers and the cessation of all self-consciousness. We take this position because Psalm vi. 5, says. "For in death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave, who shall give thee thanks;" and because Psa. xxx. 9 says, "Shall the dust praise thee? shall it declare thy truth?" And because Psa. lxxxviii. 11, 12, says, "Shall thy loving-kindness be declared in the grave? or thy faithfulness in destruction? Shall thy wonders be known in the dark? And thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?" And because Psa. cxv. 17 says, "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." And because Psa. cxlvi. 4 says, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, and in that very day his thoughts perish." And because Eccl. ix. 5, 10 says, "The dead know not anything, neither have they any more a reward. . . . Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol) whither thou goest." All the twisting and turning of all the theologians are not able to move one who stands upon these words of the Spirit. No breath—no thought in the divine teaching; no life,—no remembrance of God,—no praise to him;—no life, no knowledge or wisdom.

The illustrations of these truths are numerous; take for instance the little daughter of Jairus the ruler, who was raised to life, and the son of the widow of Nain, and Lazarus, of Bethany, not one of whom had a word to say of any experience or consciousness while dead.

No matter what the schools may say to the contrary, the Bible, as a rule, makes future life dependent upon a resurrection from the dead. When summoned forth from the land of silence and forgetfulness by the voice of the Son of Man it is the man who responds in his own proper person. Proofs of this are abundant, but we suggest to young defenders Dan. xii. 2—"Many of them that sleep in the dust shall awake;" and John v. 28, 29; vi. 40, 54—"raise him up;" and 1 Cor. xv. The dead are perished if there is no resurrection; and there's no advantage in suffering for Christ if the dead rise not. 1 Thess. iv. 16. Acts ii. 29 shows David was in his grave and not in heaven after being dead a thousand years; and Acts xiii. 36, informs us that he "fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers." This is God's truth on the subject. •

Bishop Lowth's Translation of Is. xxiv.

We never tire of Israel's sublime prophet Isaiah, in the common translation, but we are more than pleased with the rendering of Bishop Lowth; a different word meaning the same thing will often give a new streak of light because of its association and usages. This is the way our chapter reads:

1. "Behold, Jehovah emptieth the land (instead of earth) and maketh it waste; He even turneth it upside down and scattereth abroad the inhabitants.

2. And it shall be as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant so with the Master; as with the handmaid so with the mistress; as with the buyer so with the seller; as with the borrower, so with the lender; as with the usurer so with the giver of usury.

3. The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled, for Jehovah has spoken this Word."

There can be no doubt that the land spoken of is the land of Israel. This is seen by what is said concerning its inhabitants in verses 5 and 6. "They have transgressed the law, they have changed the decree. They have broken the everlasting covenant, therefore hath a curse devoured the land, because they are guilty that dwell in her." Here the reference is clearly to a people who had been in covenant relationship with God, and are placed under certain decrees and laws by Him. No other nation occupied this position. Israel alone were the people in direct relationship to Jehovah and his laws. About 2500 years have passed since Isaiah wrote these words, and repeatedly have they been confirmed by historical facts. Judah was carried captive into Babylon about a hundred years later; and although at the expiration of 70 years they were permitted to return, they have been subjected to further punishments until they were finally driven out by the Romans, and in the language of Keith, "Imperial decrees followed hard on each other, prohibiting the Jews from entering the land of their fathers, or daring to draw near to look upon the place where Jerusalem had stood."

Volney in his "Ruins of Empires" remarks concerning his wandering over the country: "I enumerated the Kingdoms of Damascus and Idumea, of Jerusalem and Samaria. This Syria, said I to myself, now almost depopulated, then contained a hundred flourishing cities and abounded with towns, villages and hamlets." And again, he says, "Within 2300 years we may reckon ten invasions, which have introduced into Syria a succession of foreign nations." Truly the Great God has emptied the land and scattered its inhabitants, making no exceptions in favor of priest or people, servant or master: they had all alike broken the covenant.

V. 13 reads: "Yea, thus shall it be in the very centre of the land, in the midst of the people, as the shaking of the olive, as the gleaning when the vintage is finished;" indicating that just a remnant should be spared. For instance v. 9 of chapter 1 reads: "Had not Jehovah, God of Hosts left us a remnant, we had soon become as Sodom; we had been like unto Gomorrah." And v. 13 of chapter 6, after describing the desolation which would come upon the land, the prophet says:—and though there be a tenth part remaining in it, even this shall undergo a repeated destruction; yet, as the ilex and the oak, though cut down hath its stock remaining, a holy seed shall be the stock of the nation." This faithful few, then, must be referred to as the gleaning, concerning whom the prophet proceeds.

"These shall lift up their voice, they shall sing; the waters shall resound with the exaltation of Jehovah."

In v. 16 a contrast is presented between the condition of the faithful ones and the greater portion of the nation on whose behalf the prophet speaks:—"From the uttermost part of the land we have heard songs, Glory to the Righteous." That is songs exalting the name of Jehovah the Righteous One. But speaking as the representative of the disobedient, the prophet continues,

"But I said, alas! My wretchedness! My wretchedness! Woe is me! The plunder's plunder." And then taking up his parable against them, says in response, "Yea, the plunderers still continue their cruel depredations,—the terror, the pit, and the snare are upon thee, oh, inhabitant of the land."

To the end of the 20th verse the progress of their calamities is described until the climax of their iniquity would be reached and their downfall would come like the wrecking of a house built upon the sand.

Jesus declared in Matt. xxiii. 35, that the measure of their iniquity reached its fulness in that generation, and that upon them should be visited all the righteous blood which had been shed from Abel's time onward. Their rejection of Him resulted in a raging tempest —an overwhelming flood overtook them, and the ruin was great.

But there is light ahead. A brighter day is coming, and the dawn has just begun. The beginning of the end is upon us. A few more lashes and then the scene will change,—they look upon him whom they pierced. •

Revelations xiii. 17.

Revelation xiii. 17, reads thus: "And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark or the name of the beast or the number of his name;" and the following decree passed in the year 1163 at a council held at Tours, under the presidency of Pope Alexander III. seems to illustrate it. It is quoted in Dr. Rule's "History of the inquisition," the council being called on account of a great religious awakening which had taken place in the South of France and the North of Spain. It will be seen that force is the weapon of Popery whenever it has the power. Suppression is its policy. Free inquiry is not tolerated. Delinquents must be ostracised, and deprived of the comforts of life. Doors must be closed against them, and no dealings must be had with them: —extermination must be the aim. Such is the spirit of the Apostate Mother—it is antichristian always. But to the decree: it is as follows: —"A damnable heresy has broken out of late in the parts of Toulouse, spreading itself by degrees, like a cancer into neighboring places, and now infests great numbers in Gascony and other provinces, wherefore we command the bishops and all the Lord's priests dwelling in those parts, to keep watch, and under pain of anathema, to prohibit that where followers of that heresy are known any one in the country shall dare to afford them shelter, or lend them aid. Neither shall there be any dealings with such persons in buying or selling; that all solace of humanity being utterly lost to them, they may be compelled to forsake the error of their life. And whosoever shall attempt to contravene this order, shall be smitten with anathema as a partaker of their iniquity. But they, if they be taken, shall be thrown into prison by Catholic princes, and be deprived of all their goods. And inasmuch as they frequently assemble together from various parts into one hiding place, and have no reason why they should be together, except their consent in error, and yet dwell in the same abode, let such conventicles be closely searched, and if the persons be found guilty let them be restrained with canonical severity." •

Selected.

Will Christ Return? If so, for what Purpose?

Strange though it be, yet it is nevertheless true, that amongst the so-called Christian sects there is a wide difference of opinion regarding the solution of the above questions. While some claim a literal and visible appearance of Christ, others contend for a merely spiritual return. Some declare that his mission will be to condemn the wicked (amongst which they include all not righteous) to eternal torments, and then return to his Father's right hand, accompanied by myriads of justified ones, whilst this beautiful earth, deprived of its inhabitants, will be left behind a desolate smoking ruin.

Another class say he will never return, and there will be no resurrection of the dead, or judgment, as every one is judged at death.

With such a Babel of beliefs presented for credence, is it to be wondered at, that thousands of honest, inquiring minds are turned entirely away from the word of life, not having the key to unlock its mysteries, and being too honest to receive doctrines which their reason cannot credit?

Without further preface, however, we will see what reply the Scriptures make to the questions proposed, for our Lord himself said, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." John v. 39.

First, then, will Christ return? If we can credit the testimony of angelic messengers, we answer emphatically in the affirmative, for they were present when he ascended in a cloud, and testified to those who were gazing into heaven, that "this same Jesus which is taken from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as you have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 2.

This ought to satisfy every one, without further proof; but to place the matter beyond dispute, we will quote our Lord's own words to his disciples.

Their minds were distressed, because he had announced the fact that he was going to leave them, but he bids them to not let their hearts be troubled, for, says he, "Although I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to myself, that where I am, ye also may be." John xiv. 3.

After these positive statements from our Lord and the heavenly messengers, what honest mind can for a moment doubt that the same Jesus who was received in a cloud from the gaze of attending witnesses, will personally return to our earth.

Having produced undoubted proof of this Scripture truth, we will examine the testimony concerning his mission. On this point there is such an abundance of evidence that we are compelled to make a brief selection, and urge the inquirer to examine for himself, Moses and the Prophets, in connection with the New Testament record.

The Apostle Paul in writing to the Galatians (ch. iii. 16) recognizes Christ as the one seed promised to Abraham, and as such he will bless all nations, yes, all families of the earth. Gen. xii. 2; xxviii. 14.

God has promised that he will give him the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for a possession, and that he shall break his enemies in pieces, as an earthen vessel. Psa. ii.

David predicts the dominion of the Messiah to the ends of the earth, the submission of all kings to him, and that all nations should serve him. He announces that the Messiah shall break in pieces the oppressor, and shall judge with righteousness the poor and the needy. That he shall redeem their souls from deceit and violence, and that their blood (lives) should be precious in his sight. "His name shall endure for ever; his name shall be continued as long as the sun, and men shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed." Psa. lxxii.

"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth, even forever." Isa. ix. 7.

"He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Luke i. 32, 33.

He is also constituted a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedeck. Psa. cx.

The prophet Jeremiah, referring to Christ, says, "a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely." ch. xxiii. 5.

Daniel also predicts that the God of heaven shall establish a government in the earth (that of the Messiah) "which shall never be destroyed, but shall break in pieces, and consume all contemporary kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." chap. ii. 44.

The apostle Paul declares, (1 Thess. iv. 16, 17.) that the Lord shall descend, and the dead in in Christ shall rise, "then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air."

From the small amount of testimony produced, no mind, unspoiled by vain philosophy, can fail to see the fallacy of the doctrine of Christ's return to burn up our world. So far from this being the truth, it is plainly declared that he will make it his future dwelling place, and reign personally over the whole earth, subduing the sin power, and causing righteousness and peace to prevail. Correct judgment will be administered to all, and the poor and despised of earth will exult to see their cruel tyrant vanquished by this mighty hero.

Judah and Israel shall no more be wanderers in a strange land; but under his kind protection they will dwell safely forever more.

There will be such a joyful season of peace and plenty—and the government will be so perfect and righteous, that all will love their great king; and "all nations of the earth will call him blessed."

At his advent in the clouds of heaven, all those who have died in him, will spring from their tombs crowned with immortal youth, and his living followers will be instantly transformed, that both may share with him the glories of his reign.

What a joyous reality, and happy belief that this wicked world, now filled with every manner of deceit and corruption, is to be renewed by that man Christ Jesus, and that there is to be a passing away of the state that now obtains, and a new and heavenly one to succeed.

The coming of our Lord, then, is a matter of no small importance. It is a time, for which the poor and those in distress may long; but tyrants and wicked men may dread its approach.

The prophet Malachi seemed to foresee the latter, when he asks, "Who may abide the day of his coming, and who shall stand when he appeareth, for he is like a refiner's fire and like the fuller's soap."

Let those who scoff at these Scripture truths, and turn a deaf ear to the warning voice therein given, beware lest that day find them in their sins, and they become subjects of that judgment of "wrath and fiery indignation which awaits the adversaries."—Gospel Banner.

Our Duty in Reference to Knowledge.

Our duty in reference to knowledge in general is to observe facts, rather than to form hypotheses; to go on, as Bacon teaches, "in the modest accumulation of positive data, aware that there are eternal truths, whatever may come of your opinions. Yet to the diligent inquirer into nature, some law or ultimate rule will usually make itself apparent, and then mystery, which was truth seen in fragments, is perceived to cohere and to be as beautiful as it is simple. The comet at first not only astonished but affrighted mankind, and still remained inexplicable till the law of a body moving in an hyperbola was ascertained. How wise and needful also the long induction, until at length the truth on which the universe depends, of the attraction of bodies varying inversely as the square of their distance, poured like a flood of light upon the reflecting mind of Newton. Mariners have used the compass for ages, and yet the proper theory of mineral magnetism remains to be solved, and even the place of the central abode of the force is but just ascertained. And thus in all subjects, facts are to be considered, compared, received. We must not expect an over-near approach to the causes of things connected with our primary being, yet something may be said; and if in modesty and caution, the thoughts may offer at least a step in the right direction; and, at all events, may suffice to prevent a priori objections to the whole subject, whatever it may be.

A few Thoughts.

Jesus says: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent," hence the importance of studying the holy Scriptures, and the contemplation of the divine character. There should be a constant and unceasing effort to make our calling and election sure. The apostle Peter urges this in his second epistle, that giving all diligence the brethren should add to their faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness and brotherly kindness, and have all these abounding in them, and thus they would make their calling and election sure. This is a great and glorious thought. It leads to an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. The apostle Paul expresses the same idea in another form of words: whom he foreknew, he predestinated, that is marked out beforehand by their being conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Let us habitually study the holy Scriptures. Paul says to his beloved Timothy, "From a child thou hast known the holy Scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished unto all good works." The Bible is a life-time book, suited to the morning and the noon and the evening of our short life.—L. B. Chamberlin.

The only way to escape the deluge was Noah's ark, or rather God's ark, which Noah built according to divine direction. Noah did not own a slab of it, or even his own body. And the only way to escape the fiery deluge which is coming is God's way; and that way is Christ. "I am the way, the truth, and the life," said he, while here.

Temperance in the Bible.

Who was the first drunkard? Gen. 9: 20, 21.

Who took the first temperance pledge? Judges 15: 13-15.

Did anyone mentioned in the Bible ever take a pledge of his own accord? Dan. 1: 8.

Was he any healthier and wiser in consequence? Dan. 1: 15, 17.

Ought kings to drink wine? Prov. 31: 4.

Ought we to make companions of drunkards? 1 Cor. 5, 11.

Can any drunkard enter the kingdom of heaven? 1 Cor. 6, 9, 10.

Does God pronounce woe upon drunkards? Isaiah 5: 11, 22.

Why has he promised this woe? Isaiah 28: 6, 8.

Are drunkards likely to get rich? Prov. 21: 18.

What are the consequences of drinking? Prov. 23: 29, 30.

How may these consequences be avoided? Prov. 32: 31.

What will be the result if we disregard this? Prov. 23: 21.

Is it wise to tamper with strong drink? Prov. 20: 1.

Where was the first temperance society? Jer. 30: 5, 6.

What blessing did God pronounce upon the first temperance society? Jer. 35: 17, 18.

Is temperance a vice? Gal. 5: 23.

Tobacco and opium were not known when the Bible was written, so they are not mentioned by any name in the Bible: but is there anything in the Bible that governs all temperance habits? Rom. 14: 21.

The Bible.

The Bible is for plain people. It is not made only for scholars: if it were so, it would be of but little use. It is a plain book; written in plain words. The teachings of our Lord were addressed to common people, in language which they could understand. Indeed, one chief beauty of the Scriptures is their marvelous simplicity. Especially in all that pertains to life and salvation the path is made so plain that the wayfaring man need not err. From this it follows that in most cases the obvious meaning is the true meaning. We do not underrate the learning of scholars, nor the advantage of being able to read the Scriptures in the original tongues, but that is by no means necessary. The common English Bible, in the grand old King James' Version, is good enough. Let a man of ordinary intelligence read it every morning and evening, not trying to twist this and that passage into a particular significance, in order to support some preconceived theory; but an open mind and honest heart, desiring only to find out what the author of the Bible intended; and he will grow day by day into a knowledge of the truth which is to the saving of the soul.

That is often the worst form of criminality which is too subtle and too vague to be catalogued as a crime. A man is sometimes a greater agent for evil in showing sympathy with an evil-doer than is the evil-doer himself merely by his own evil deeds. The author of a corrupt "society novel" is a would-be corrupter of men and women. But his power as a pernicious agency depends largely upon the sympathy which his work receives from those who are less corrupt or less bold than he in showing their corruption. Young men and women who indulge in discussions of such books as their sense of decency warns them to touch with reserve, only give to a book its real power for evil by showing their sympathy with that which their very manner of allusion to its contents stigmatizes and condemns. You may not be the writer of a pernicious book, but you will take the responsibility of increasing the bad influence of the book by showing that it was for you, and such as you, that the book was written.

One day an Indian asked Bishop Whipple to give him two one-dollar bills for a two dollar note. The Bishop asked: "Why?" He said: "One dollar for me to give to Jesus and one dollar for my wife to give." The Bishop asked him if it was all the money he had. He said: "Yes." The Bishop was about to tell him: "It is too much," when an Indian clergyman who was standing by whispered, "it might be too much for a white man to give, but not too much for an Indian who has this year heard for the first time of the love of Jesus."

Poetry.

At Close of Day.

If we sit down at set of sun
And count the acts that you have done,
And, counting, find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard,
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went—
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day,
You've cheered no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
You've nothing done that you can trace,
That brought the sunshine to one face;
No act most small,
That helped some soul and nothing cost—
Then count that day as worse than lost.

Selected.

The Thinkers, The Sayers, and The Doers.

The world of man may be divided into three classes, the Thinkers, the Sayers, and the Doers.

The first class, small in number but powerful in influence, comprises the real sovereigns of the world.

By the silent and irresistible might of ideas, of which they are the earthly source, they conquer men and render them submissive and obedient, turning them which way they will. They speak, and listening multitudes obey: for they speak with authority—the effectual authority of truth. To this class belong the philosopher, the seer, the sage, or whoever distinguished by whatever title, extends the limited boundaries of knowledge or of truth, whether in ethics or in physics.

The Thinker imparts into the world new ideas, brings forward new matter for thought, produces more food to nourish and strengthen the soul. In its presentation, there may be much dross mixed with the pure metal: but the gold will eventually be recognized, separated from the dross, and carefully preserved. A great work, requiring the untiring devotion of great and rare abilities, is that of the Thinker.

This work becomes to him his world. Men and their affairs are naught to him, for he is far above them, out of sight and hearing of their endless tumults and jargons. His attention is so fixed that nothing however pleasing, nothing even of pretended or real importance, can distract or divert it. Nothing is of importance to him but his work. All things else utterly fail to awaken in him an interest real and permanent. With an earnestness, the depth and strength of which no one besides himself has guessed, he devotes himself to the solution of those problems which are the great realities of his life.

Because of this unwearied application the work is done; but others must now take it up. The Sayers are, from the nature of their function, more numerous; and though of a secondary, are yet of essential importance. Their function is to present to the world the work wrought out by the Thinkers. The great world of men do not understand the language of the Thinkers. To them there is no meaning in it.

But this work was not wrought out with so much toil to be confined to one or a few. Whatever may have been the design of the worker, it was the purpose of the great God who worked in and through him that all men should some way receive from it life and strength.

The Sayers are the mediators between the Thinkers and the people. They reconcile them, and join them together in sympathy and effort.

They dilute the concentrated ideas of the Thinkers, so that the weak stomachs of children in knowledge and understanding may receive and digest them.

They deal out to them such portions as they can dispose of, that they may gradually increase in strength.

They engage the attention of the careless and listless; make clear to the mind of the stupid, things which are obscure; kindle, temper, and direct the enthusiasm of the earnest; and aid men of all classes and dispositions to understand and obey truth.

Thinkers live to think. They express their thoughts, it is true, in words, yet not that they may diffuse, but that they may put them in form and preserve them. They may hope for their perpetuation and diffusion, but are not careful to secure it; for besides that they are absorbed in their proper work, they feel sure that men will never permit truth once presented to be irremediable lost. To think aloud that others may hear, is their work.

To take up the life-giving sound, and echo and re-echo it around the world in the ears of all men, is the work of the Sayer. The Sayer originates nothing. He takes what he finds and tells it over and over again in a hundred different forms, that in some way by importunity if in no other, he may lead men to accept it.

The enthusiasm of the Thinker is excited to know all that mortal man ever knew, and more; of the Sayer, to make others know, by every possible means, all that he has learned from the Thinker.

The Thinker is recluse, and seems to others cold, distant, and unsocial in his manners. He is often quite unconscious of the existence of the outside world, and sometimes dreams that it is all an illusion of his senses; goes about with an abstracted air, and gazes with a vacant look on the seemingly realities around him. The Sayer lives among men as one of them, and yet above them. He sympathizes with them as real men and women; and if he have a benevolent heart, he sincerely desires to promote their welfare. He points to the isolated Thinker, and explains to men that he is too much pre-occupied with his great work to become their companion.

But whither tends all this thinking and saying? whither but to doing? Thought is the first expression of man's intellectual life. But the thought seeks a form and it becomes enshrined in words, through the medium of which it is rendered capable of preservation and communication. The Doer receiving the thought from the Sayer in the form of words, embodies it in other forms more influential and unchanging.

He incorporates it into governments, churches, schools; he frames it into ships, railroads, and cities; he embodies it in commerce and all the various arts of civilized life. And all these advance not a step in the progress toward perfection beyond the idea of the thinker. Nay, the thinker keeps so far in advance that he is often contemned, if not hated, by those who understand the ideas embodied in the manners and institutions of the society of which he forms a part better than they do his abstract thoughts, which, seeking better forms, would destroy all that they hold dear.

The Doers are the practical men; and the end of their labors is to renovate the world, transforming it from its natural wild and crude state fit only for the abode of brutish, savage men, into a new world bearing everywhere the marks of intelligence and beauty. The end! no, it is but the beginning of the end. Earth is to be made a paradise because man is to be made an angel. It is to be made new that it may become a fit habitation for the new man who is to inhabit it.

A great work, then, has the Doer; and an earnest, faithful, and patient man should he be. For not only in the natural world, must the many evils everywhere obstructing the growth of the good be uprooted and destroyed. But the man of faith is comforted by the assurance that the great work does not depend alone on himself or those immediately cooperating with him; but that all men, even though unconsciously to themselves are in one way or another helping to effect the grand result. For "the wickedness of the wicked shall come to an end," and all efforts to preserve it but hasten its destruction.

What, then, is the end of all this thinking, saying, and doing? What but the discovery and announcement of truth, and the practical application of it to the life and conduct of men!

And all thinking, saying, and doing which does not tend to promote this end has no intrinsic worth.—H. M. in Life Illustrated.

Knowing our duty, and then going about it heartily, we shall find that a pleasure which was a grievous task.

Bible Study.

Too much stress cannot be placed upon the study of the Word of God. People read and study every thing else, but they pay very little attention to the Bible. When we look at the facts in the case, we cannot wonder that there is such an astonishing ignorance of the teachings of the Scriptures. Called recently to sit in a council convened for the purpose of examining a brother who desired ordination, we were somewhat surprised that not one of the great men of Boston and vicinity did not know that the candidate did not quote John 16:8 correctly. He made the oft repeated mistake by quoting it in this way: "And when he is come he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness and of judgement" to come. In the chapter named, only that included in quotation marks is given. The brother had reached over into Acts 24:25, and added "to come" from that passage. We called the attention of a brother to the fact that the brother had not quoted the passage correctly, when he informed the writer that the passage quoted was not in the sixteenth, but in the eighth chapter of John. It would seem as if a $5,000 man ought to know better than that. A brother asked the candidate where he located "the judgment to come" referred to in the passage. The candidate explained his belief, but no one asked him why he added the two words to the Scripture quoted. It seems to us that there ought to be more study of the Bible, not only on the part of the people, but also on the part of the clergy.

Dr. B. I. Wheeler, Professor of Greek Cornell University, recently delivered an address upon this important subject; and the Christian Inquirer of New York has given an outline of it. It is somewhat lengthy, but we regard it as being so important that we give it entire, and commend it to the careful attention of our readers:

"1. We must have more reading and more thoughtful reading of the Bible at home and in private. The older practice of reading one, two, or three chapters at the daily family prayers, a practice of which I have the pleasantest recollections from my boyhood, is going or has gone out of vogue. In my experience as a Bible-class teacher, I have often been astonished to find earnest Christian men utterly unacquainted with large portions of the Bible. In many cases they have never been read, nor heard from the pulpit, nor studied in the Sunday-school. As a remedy for this condition, I would suggest that systematic effort be made by the pastors, if necessary from the pulpit, to induce the members of their congregations to read regularly with a purpose. Let a plan of reading covering large portions of the Bible and occupying some extended period like a year be prepared, printed and distributed. Let the topics of prayer meetings, even of sermons, take cognizance of each week's assignment. The pastor will find on Sunday an opportunity in knowing that many in his congregation have been reading the preceding week. Possibly Bible-reading groups might be formed in the church to give force and vigor to the fulfillment of the plan.

"2. The pulpit can do more than it has been doing in expounding the Bible. Texts could be used less as mottoes. Larger portions, whole books could be made the subject of special discourses. Selections for reading could be chosen from a wider range and more systematically than is often now the case. Does not the pulpit trust too much to the Sunday-school, and assume that more is done there in real Bible study than actually is? Does it not assume that more and better is done in the home than really is?

"3. The Sunday-school can be made to do more in this line, I am sure, than it is doing. There is too much verse-study. There is too much literalism, I mean want of perspective, neglect of context, absence of atmosphere. The particular significance and purpose of the different writings is too little treated. Larger portions might often be studied to advantage. The lesson leaves have too often crowded the Bible out of the class. Teachers are too apt to use passages as pegs to hang quaint notions of their own upon.

"4. The teachers themselves are too often untrained in the study of the Bible. A normal class for teachers is a necessity in connection with every Sunday-school. Possibly several different schools in the same town could advantageously unite in maintaining such a class and secure the services as teacher of some competent Bible scholar.

"5. Either in connection with the Sunday-school library or by itself, should exist in every church some collection of first-rate reference books on biblical subjects. This should be placed in a room that is warmed and lighted at least on Saturday evening, so that teachers and others can go there for preparation. We have not half appreciated the possibilities of the Sunday-school library. In the first place it is rarely if ever used as a reference library; in the second place its repertory is too much restricted to romance. A good biblical reference library should be equipped with a good Bible dictionary, an atlas, some few first rate commentaries (and they are few), a concordance, a harmony of the gospel, a good number of books introductory to the literature of the Bible, and on the history of the canon, manuals of contemporary history, books on the geography of the Holy Land, and on life and manners in the East.

"However it is compassed, the Bible must be read more and studied more and taken more deeply into life by every Christian man. We cannot do without it. It is the very heart of our faith. It contains in the germ the whole of our religion. It is the charter of our religious liberties in the deepest sense of liberty. He who reads and knows it can never be made a slave of traditions, or hierarchies, or creeds. It is the perpetual inspiration of the faith of the church. The victims of unbelief are not the Bible readers. We have known Christian metaphysics to inspire doubt, but never the Christian life. It is the unfailing guide to the progress of the church. Cast as it is in the life-form, it re-applies itself continually to the changing horizons of thought and society, and it cannot become antiquated or obsolete any more than a deed of heroism or a mother's love." —Messiah's Herald.

Don't Whine.

People who whine are a nuisance. A writer in Humanity and Health very justly remarks that there is a class of people in this fair world of ours—a class by no means small, alas!—whose prominent peculiarity is—whining.

They whine because of anything and everything—and they enjoy it. From the peculiar intonation used when expressing themselves, you might feel yourself called upon to express sympathy for them. Don't do it. The half-crying tones affected by them need neither distress nor decieve you. They are not suffering—far from it; they are enjoying themselves! It is you who suffer.

These peculiar people will whine about anything. If they be poor, they will whine; if they be rich they will whine, with "money scare," "life's trials," "love's a snare and a mockery," for the burden of their song. The whiners whine because it rains, but are just as ready to whine at the too brightly beaming splendor of the sun: they whine at the weather; they whine at luck or its tardiness of approach; they whine if they be sick or if they be well; if obliged to take a journey or to remain at home; at eating or drinking, or sleeping or waking: it's whine, whine, whine, until one almost longs for some real trouble to overtake them, so that if they will whine they may have something to whine about.

How different the spirit of the whiners from that of the Christian, who rejoices evermore, and in everything gives thanks; who serves the Lord with gladness, and who, though sorrowful is yet "always rejoicing."

Not Alone.

Never mind where you work, care more how you work; never mind who sees, if God approves. If He smiles, be content. We cannot always be sure when we are most useful. It is not the acreage you sow, it is the multiplication which God gives the seed which makes up the harvest. You have less to do with being successful than with being faithful. Your main comfort is that in your labor you are not alone. For God, the eternal One, who guides the marches of the stars is with you.—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Good Advice to Preachers.

Don't study without prayer.

Don't pray without study.

Don't feed people with unbaked dough.

Don't tell all you know in one sermon.

Don't put the hay too high in the ricks.

Don't offer them sentimental confections or intellectual shavings.

Don't mistake philosophy for Christianity; cant for piety; noise for zeal, or crowds for success.

Don't be so broad that you can float nothing but intellectual chips on your shallow stream.

Don't wear blue spectacles all the time, but own a pair and always have them in the pulpit with you.

Don't scold.

Don't wear the cap and bells.

Don't mistake length for profundity nor brevity for wit.

Don't lash the back of the sinner instead of the back of his sin.

Don't offer to other people manna which you have not tasted yourself.

Don't imagine your sermon to be a revelation, or anything but the text to have "thus saith the Lord" written across it.

Don't let your harp have only one string.

Don't be a vender of nostrums.

Don't try to make bricks without straw.

Don't be anybody but yourself.

Don't be a sectarian.

Don't be afraid to be a denominationalist

Don't let any religious hobby ride you, but don't be afraid to ride any religious hobby, if you have one.

Don't live in the clouds.

Don't follow everybody's advice.

Don't be afraid of any man.

Don't be afraid of the devil.

Don't be afraid of yourself.

Don't become a peripatetic gossip or a persistent tea-drinker, nor on the other hand a solemn clam.

Don't hold yourself too cheap.

Don't try to do anybody's duty but your own.

Don't spare the people's pockets, for therein lie their hearts.

Don't expect the sun to shine through all the twenty-four hours of the day

Don't expect that all your geese will be swans, or all your believers saints.

Don't expect to build Rome in a day, or the Lord to be in as big a harry as you are.

Don't restrain too much; it is well, often, that steam escapes.

Don't let the young people run away with you, nor the bald-headed put too many brakes on.

Don't drive, but lead.

Don't be disappointed when harvests do not come in a day, and oats do not spring up like Jonah's gourd.

Don't see everything that is wrong in the congregation.

Don't carry all your ecclesiastical eggs in one basket.

Don't despise the rich and dishonor the poor, nor esteem yourself wiser than your brethren.

Don't feel yourself responsible for the universe nor try to spread yourself over creation.

Don't be an evangelist without a message, a preacher without a doctrine, a pastor without devotion, a presbyter without responsibility, or a bishop without watchfulness, and you will not be a servant without reward.

Don't be too confiding.

Don't despair.—Zion's Herald.

Patience.

Patience, it has been well said, may be the making of a soul. "It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord." The discipline of delay may be productive of great good. A man going forth to battle may be ready to nerve himself for the clash of arms, but he may fret and fume under the lonely and long-guard duty of a picket. Nevertheless, a lonely vigil may do more to make a veteran soldier than the action of the battle-field. While we think of our divine Lord as an example of patience in his intercourse with the world and his disciples, we often overlook the long-suffering patience of his life on earth.

Where can we find so grand an example of patience as is supplied by his thirty years in Judea, when, having within himself a knowledge of his divine mission, he nevertheless was content to remain known year after year as the carpenter's son, and gave himself to the commonest offices of life? Surely, whatever the appointment that may seem to be meted out to us, and whatever the provocations to which we are subjected, we ought to possess ourselves in tranquility when we remember the patience of our Lord. And let us remember that it is the patient, in contradistinction to the impetuous, who make the grandest achievements. —Christian Advocate.

Original.

Conference Report.

The conference of Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois, convened as before announced, on June 23, 1893.

Brother and Sister Woodward were present to do the speaking, and a goodly number of brethren from other points were present to listen and enjoy the feast prepared for us. The meetings throughout were well attended by our towns-people and more interest was manifested than had been for many years.

Saturday at 2 P. M., the business meeting was called to order by Bro. J. M. Glotfelty. A hymn was sung, and prayer offered by Bro. R. W. Woodward, then all went to work as though they meant business.

The church was first set in order, choosing their elder, deacon and deaconess. Next the conference work was begun. Officers elected. J. M. Glotfelty, President. S. P. Renner Vice-president, J. D. Renner, Sec., Howard Giddings, Treas.

The financial plan of the national conference was adopted, and in addition to this a subscription list was presented for free will offerings and $136.00 was subscribed. Repairs being needed on the church at Lanark, $80.00 was raised for that purpose, and the following week the work began by re-shingling the roof.

Bro. and Sr. Woodward were persuaded to remain with us through the following week, and all were greatly encouraged by their work among us.

Sister Anna Adams was buried with Christ by baptism, and declared that to be the happiest day of her life.

Sunday July 2nd closed our meeting. Brother and Sister Woodward preached in all 17 discourses, and gave the very best of satisfaction. They are workers that we need not to be ashamed of.

J. D. RENNER, Secy.

Editor Restitution:

I thank you for the two copies of THE RESTITUTION. I am pleased with it, and your declaration of principles at the head are very near my views after nearly thirty years study of the Scriptures, which clearly teach the restoration of Israel or Jews, and that necessitates the restoration or the setting up of their Kingdom on the territory given to Abraham their head, by God in Christ their King, and the twelve apostles to rule over the twelve tribes, and not a Gentile will be permitted an inheritance in that kingdom, they have no promise, while this kingdom of Israel is to be an everlasting one. It is not universal, but will be limited to a small territory. There is no gathering in of the Gentiles to any one special place, but they are to occupy the dominions of this kingdom of Israel, as Daniel clearly shows, from the river to the ends of the earth," that Christ will reign over Israel in the kingdom 1000 years before the sleeping saints are raised, or, "the waiting ones" are changed. "Israel is dwelling safely," the Gentile saints living when this time comes will be changed, the sleeping ones raised in all lands or countries where they live, over the entire earth, which will be their abiding place, and will be bright and shining lights, on every side, of this earth to make one eternal day. Yes, they will outshine Moses, the pattern, and as the poet says:

There are lights along the shore
That will shine forevermore.

For the saints are to take the kingdom and possess it under the whole heaven, and that forever—that is, the political kingdoms, which is the dominions of Israel's kingdom, that Christ is the only Life Giver, and the only source through which a resurrection can be consummated, through a union with Christ, which entitles all such to an everlasting inheritance on the purified earth, which makes them children of the living God, and if all are raised, all will have immortality and cannot die, which makes universalism true. There is no escape from this. That the death of Christ assures a resurrection to all is not Scripture. Under the old law there was no life, no hope, no resurrection. All was forfeited in, or lost by the fall. Christ only restores what was lost in Adam. As Adam had privilege and access to the tree of life, that he might reach, and eat, and live for the ages, but refused, so Christ has again opened up a new and living way, that if we will comply with the requirements of his gospel, we can pass from under this law of sin and death entailed by Adam. It is not now, nor ever was compulsory, but requires a willingness on the part of the creatures, in complying with the conditions laid down, before they can be affected in any way by the gospel. Christ paid the redemption price. He died that all might (not should) live. In Adam we all die, surely, but in Christ we are all to live. But we must know that we are in him, before we have any assurance of being raised out from among the dead ones, to have an age-lasting life. The wages of sin is death that knows no awakening. The gift of God (which is Christ) is eternal life to all that believe on his name, to none others. Yours in hope of the gospel. Which is eternal life through Christ.

J. W. C. GRAY.

Dear Restitution:

The 4th Sunday I preached near Waveland, Montgomery County, Ind. Brother James H. Sympson sent for me to come on Saturday before the 4th Sunday, and stay over Sunday.

On account of poor health, the brother had meeting at his house. There was a fair turnout on Saturday night, and on Sunday at eleven.

At three o'clock we went to the water and immersed his oldest son into the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of past sins, then to walk in a new life.

I immersed Brother Sympson and others some twenty years ago, but the most of them have fallen asleep. I may visit them again soon.

In reading our dear RESTITUTION I find a good article from Brother W. H. Wilson, on, "Our relation to the Apostasy." I tell you that has the Bible ring to it. As long as we mix up with the sects, and ask them to take a part in our meetings, we are bidding them God-speed. I cant, I wont. I read in our dear RESTITUTION that some professed brother, preached the funeral sermon, assisted by the Rev. So and So. And I hear some professed brother has exchanged pulpits with some sectarian minister, thus bidding them godspeed, and are partakers of their evil deeds. Now brethren these things ought not so to be. The Revelations says: "Come out of her, O my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, for her sins have reached unto the heaven." I came out and I never intend to go back.

J. S. HATCH.

If we permit it, we can let a thousand things annoy and fret us every day. Why let the perplexities of life even cloud our brow? The promise is, "Ask and ye shall receive." Let us cling to it, and enjoy peace of mind, it is our privilege to have it continually; for the Savior says, "My peace I give unto you."

We are the constant recipients of God's mercies, and yet how little gratitude we express, how little we praise him for what he has done for us.

On the morning of June 23, 1893, Samuel Jason, son of Sylvanus M. and Mary R. Boyer, aged 19 months and 17 days.

Blessed were the Savior's words when he said: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The Christain parents have our warm sympathy. May the morning soon come.

E. R. B.

[illegible] by the Way.

All lovers of the truth are interested in the results of the labor of those engaged in the work of sounding out the Word of Life, and it is no doubt the wish of many to see reports from time to time of the laborers in the Lord's vineyard.

These reports are eagerly read, even when no direct results of labor are shown, for it shows that the labor is still going on, that the work has not ceased, and when God has blessed the labor it gives encouragement to others who are battling bravely for the cause of Christ.

From one of the fields of labor the writer has been sowing seeds of truth in, reports have been made from time to time.

This is a place about forty miles north-west of Indianapolis where for many years there has existed in various stages of prosperity an organization of the believers in the kingdom of God and the name of the Anointed One. Perhaps not at any time has the light of the truth been allowed to become entirely obscured, but the light has not shown with the brilliancy that well trimmed lamps always give.

Attempts have been made to absorb the members by the "Crisis People" but they have steadfastly held the faith delivered to the Saints and are adding to the little band a few who have made the noble confession.

Within a little over two months twelve have been immersed. Seven of this number demanding baptism at the hands of Brother C. Plummer one of the Elders in the church. Three obeyed at our last meeting, June 25. With pleasure we refer to the immersions administered by the Elder, and earnestly hope that no one will be denied the holy ordinance of baptism because there is no regular minister to perform the work. Let the believing father or mother assist the candidate to put on Christ through the holy adopting ordinance.

Who is Paul or Apollos, or any other minister to arrogate exclusively the right to administer this holy rite? The church is the pillar and ground of the truth, but the minister is not the church, but the humble instrument to assist in the work. While the minister has a mission to fill, and a very important one too, yet, the deliberate conviction of the writer is that too much has been demanded of that "awful" functionary the preacher. Upon him devolves the burden of teaching, exhorting, warning and "warming" the congregation, with other duties too numerous to mention. The church of the living God is constructed purely upon the mutual plan, fellow-workers, colaborers in the work, each having a joint interest, and believing that the work cannot be performed without each one faithfully aiding in the grand work. Let this idea animate the body of Christ and the truth will be even in this sinful age a power felt in its effect upon the hearts of the children of men. Yours in the blessed hope.

J. F. Wagoner.

Dear Restitution:

I have thought for some time that I would like to write something for the letter drawer. My husband and I were baptized by Bro. S. T. Hook, Sept. 20, 1888, and since that time we have been earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints.

For some time we were alone, no one of the faith near to give us a cheering word, but we battled on amid the sneers of our orthodox friends, and in Oct. 1891, Bro. J. D. Rawlings came here and preached five sermons and four were added to our number. Oct. 5th we were organized into a church. Brother Rawlins has visited us twice since and baptized two more into the all-saving name.

Brother J. S. Hatch was here last April and preached six discourses and three were baptized, and others were interested. Some said he preached more in a few minutes than they had heard for 20 years. He is a good preacher, and may God bless him with life and strength that he may preach the gospel of the kingdom to a sinful world, for the harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few.

Let us awake and be working for the Master and have our lamps trimmed and burning. Let us lay aside every weight and the sins that doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, ever looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith. Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, and hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering for he is faithful that promised, and let us consider one another, to provoke unto love and to good works, and so much the more as we see the day of the Lord approaching, for we are bound to give thanks always to God for the beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen us to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth.

May the Lord direct our hearts into the love of God and into the patient waiting for Christ, for unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation. Oh glorious hope that rests on the promises of God. Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

Your sister, waiting for the coming kingdom.

Kittrell Rooks.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published.	$198.78

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$10.00
H. L. Vickery,	10.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

Conference Call.

The quarterly conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith will [illegible] west northeast of Oxford two miles, in Brother Thomas Jackson's neighborhood July 21, 1893, Cowley Co., Kansas, to continue over Sunday and longer if the brethren think best. We hope and entreat all who have an interest in the cause of the Master and are looking for his soon coming to be at the meeting, for we believe that all intend to be reached, yet there is a strong tendency to growing cold among the true church that precedes his coming.

We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren in this and other states. There is some important business to transact and we would like all of the brethren to come that possibly can come. Brethren let us work while we have an opportunity for the signs indicate the near approach of the Master. Let us be up and doing.

E. F. Randolph, Sec.

To the Mountains and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata, the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago, form part of the new equipment.

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:10 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:15 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication [illegible] of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to capture persons, who being isolated from the brethren, are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$24.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$11.20
J. S. H [illegible] to go to Arkansas
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$7.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Horn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sircleville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised therein.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

JUST THE THING.

This is an expression the traveling public generally use when they find something that is exactly what they want. This expression applies directly to the Wisconsin Central Lines which is now admitted by all to be "The Route" from Chicago to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, Duluth and all points in the Northwest. Their double daily train service and fine equipment offers inducements which cannot be surpassed.

This is the only line running both through Pullman First Class and Tourist Sleepers from Chicago to Pacific Coast Points without change.

For full information address your nearest ticket agent or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen. Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Tracts. Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and mission of Christ, by Sixty Baptists, in 1838. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man. [illegible] 6. The Two Avenues. [illegible] 8. The Rest [illegible] 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. [illegible] per set [illegible]

FOUR [illegible] TRACTS.

[illegible]

Life and Death. A [illegible] of the two [illegible] Theological and Bible use.

Can you Tell? A series of questions on certain points of our doctrine.

Which was the Sabbath? and Which is the First day of the Week? [illegible] The above [illegible] Price [illegible] $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism [illegible] Holy Scriptures [illegible] Lexicographers and [illegible]

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? [illegible]

The Gospel of Christ Defended by the Teachings of the Apostles. [illegible] pamphlet of 32 pages by W. H. [illegible] City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. [illegible] on the New Heavens and New Earth. [illegible] cents for a copy, postpaid, or [illegible] for $1.00.

The Hell of All Things [illegible] subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution [illegible] San Diego, Cal. [illegible] to those unable to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, [illegible] page engravings [illegible] illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land [illegible] of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the Light of the covenants; including a brief [illegible] of the Jews—being [illegible] C. Thomas. 150 pages, price [illegible] cts., or four for $1, postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott, B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition, on large paper. Cloth $4.00; library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 300 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price 60 cts.

Cruden's Concordance Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation—every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, of the English and Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual, by Wiley Jones. 175 pages, cloth bound, for 15cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas, Title page.—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 750 pages—[illegible] price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home, and in the Sunday School. By Mrs. Carrie Whitmire. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 4 for 90 cents; 12 for $1.50; 50 for $6.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Author at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 256 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 500 hymns. Besides [illegible] added 32 pages of Hymns for Children's use [illegible] Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; [illegible] copies for $4.00; [illegible] copies, [illegible] Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce this work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, E[illegible], Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 366 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible reading," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. C. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrief. We have received an invoice of the new book of 143 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 883 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 85 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meaning of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 426 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at [illegible] Avenue, San Diego, California.

[illegible]

[illegible] has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the [illegible] Hall, located [illegible] of Madison street and the [illegible] o'clock [illegible] brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings [illegible] As follows: Preaching by Eld. N. H. Geiselman every fourth [illegible] Bro. J. F. Wagoner [illegible] Sunday School every Sunday [illegible] every Thursday [illegible]

[illegible] meet in Hall [illegible] streets, [illegible] Sunday [illegible] Friday evening. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

[illegible] every [illegible] day [illegible] at [illegible] for Sunday School, and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any be [illegible] passing through are [illegible] cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover South Dakota, meets every Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 38 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Alonzo Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. Stevens, Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at [illegible] Brethren known to this church, or others [illegible] by attending every [illegible] will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Kesler, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Elias Siple, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harlan and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table,

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 22,	Passenger, Leaves	[illegible]
No. 22,	" "	[illegible]
No. 26,	" "	[illegible]
No. 152,	Local,	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21,	Passenger, Leaves	[illegible]
No. 25,	" "	[illegible]
No. 41,	" "	[illegible]
No. 151,	Local,	[illegible]

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily except Saturday

No. 21, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:52 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 6:55 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Trf. Manager.

CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.

Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE,

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	12:56pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 56	8:35pm	"
No. 54, "	10:02pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:10pm	" "
No. 55, "	4:10pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

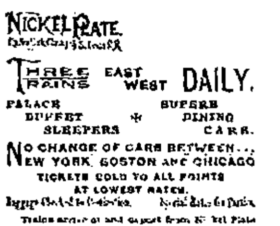
Westward.	23	9	5	1
Pittsburgh lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Eastward.	30	24	8	4
Chicago lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager, E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Penn'a.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.



Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS ✣ SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of Lake Erie Ry., Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Euclid avenue, Wilson avenue, Broadway, [illegible] Lorain street and at Detroit street, [illegible] which stations passengers may [illegible] to reach any place in the east part of the city.

For rates and other information [illegible] the [illegible] Plate Road [illegible]

B. F. HORNER, General Pass'r Agent, CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in [illegible] form a great, fresh, positive argument [illegible] of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. 4 cts. English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Italian, etc. [illegible]
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. 12 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible. 1 ct.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament. 3 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant. 25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses." 3 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers. 5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament. 10 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H. 3 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson. 10 cts.
11. Geological Evolution. " 10 cts.
12. The Origin of Life. " 10 cts.
13. Darwinism. " 10 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White. 4 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H. 12 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H. 10 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H. 10 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity. 3 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey. 3 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey. 4 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey. 4 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H. 4 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings. 4 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings. 4 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H. 4 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism. 5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these." Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 5 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cents for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N.Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. E. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors. [illegible]

TERMS [illegible]

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 19, 1893. NO. 27.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

[illegible]

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 2.

[illegible]

The continuity of life must depend upon its environment. If the life is manifested through an environment of flesh it must sooner or later terminate; if spirit, must of necessity be endless. Such is now, and ever was the nature of God. "God is a Spirit," but "Jesus Christ came in the flesh." Thus the life of the Father and the life of the Son was manifested through [illegible] environments. The serpent insisted that the environment of man's life should be "as gods," and [illegible] "ye shall not surely die."

[illegible] we [illegible] spirit [illegible] which is mortal [illegible] spiritual [illegible] Who will receive the spiritual? [illegible] a spirit of [illegible]

All of this [illegible] historical fact in the [illegible] of the Lord Jesus. [illegible] in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death [illegible] "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him."

Jesus had a mighty mission to accomplish, which he could not have [illegible] in the flesh [illegible] See Heb. ii. 14, 15. "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he himself took part in the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." To deliver from death, and destroy the source of death, he had to accomplish "through death." Hence of necessity, "every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God," because he arrays himself against the only method by which man may exchange the life of flesh for that of spirit.

There is an interesting thought, and a very suggestive one too, contained in the rent veil of the temple. Did it ever occur to your mind that at the very moment that the veil of his flesh was rent on the cruel cross, the veil of the temple was rent in two from the top to the bottom? See Mark xv. 37, 38: "And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost. (expired.) And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom." Is it not remarkable that the two veils were rent at the same moment?

The Holiest of all contained the censer, the ark of the covenant, the golden pot that had manna, Aaron's rod, the tables of the covenant, and the cherubims of glory. It was into this place the high-priest alone entered once a year with blood to make an offering for himself and the people. Now, [illegible] this place where was the ark of the covenant, the [illegible] of the covenant, and the [illegible] it was the place [illegible] presence [illegible] the most holy [illegible] to come into this place and behold [illegible] that God has pardoned their sins. Now, while the veil remained what did it signify? See Heb. ix. "The Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as yet the first tabernacle was yet standing." When was the [illegible] Christ? See Heb. ix. 16, 17. [illegible] that [illegible] is of force [illegible] dead [illegible] that which [illegible] alive." (Diaglott.) As [illegible] to ratify the new covenant, the very moment his death occurred the new covenant was ratified, and the veil of the temple [illegible] the [illegible] was no longer in force.

Now suppose Jesus had not "come in the flesh," he never could have ratified the new covenant. Hence, "every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God."

But how is it [illegible] in the flesh [illegible] covenant [illegible] through [illegible] for us, through the veil, that is to say his flesh."

Alas! where would have been our "liberty to enter into the holiest," "through the veil, that is to say his flesh" had not Jesus "come in the flesh?"

"The [illegible] apostates of this day, both Catholic and Protestant, positively deny that the real Jesus [illegible] ever [illegible] "come in the flesh." Hence all who do so affirm, are "not of God."

He gave his life for the life of the world." The environment of that life was flesh, or he could not have given it. But now is it now? Listen to the message he has sent us through the grand old [illegible]: "I am he that liveth, and was dead, and behold [illegible] Amen."

He [illegible] now [illegible] through an environment [illegible] then [illegible] his dying [illegible]

Another great [illegible] the Catholic [illegible] say, is that Jesus was no less a personage than God himself, yea, even the Everlasting Father. Now to teach that the life of the Everlasting Father was ever manifested through an environment of flesh is blasphemy. If it had it could not have been "Everlasting."

In proof they refer to Isa. ix. 6: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father."

This Scripture was somewhat of a puzzle to me until one day I was reading a Hebrew Bible translated by a Jew, and found the above text read as follows: "Shall be called the Wonderful Counsellor with the Mighty God, the everlasting Father, etc." That little word "with" makes a change of the title that is in harmony with Scripture and common sense. It is quite another thing to be a "Counsellor with the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father," and to be "the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father."

This Jew was not a believer in Jesus, therefore, his translation was not made to meet the mon- [illegible] the place [illegible] Mighty God, the Everlasting Father," he who [illegible] himself, [illegible] the source of all life. [illegible] in contrast with John v. 26: "As the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." Hence [illegible] given "is not the [illegible] [illegible] woman [illegible] [illegible]

A short time ago, I attended a temperance lecture given at the Woman's Temple in Chicago. A [illegible] was asked to lead in prayer. He prayed that the Lord would send a visitation of his Spirit upon this deathless and dying congregation." A nonsensical prayer, surely, I presume the [illegible] the real persons of that congregation (which they claim is Spirit) were deathless, but the [illegible] which envelope each one of them was made of flesh, and subject to decay. A musician carries his music in a leather case, but he would [illegible] at anyone who would [illegible] the case which covered the music was the music. Even so, when pressed with [illegible] they will at once deny that the [illegible] of flesh is [illegible], that the man is spirit, and consequently cannot die. They hesitate not at all in denying that Jesus Christ himself was [illegible] flesh. Consequently such are "not of God," in harmony with the above, the poet [illegible]:

[illegible]

Compare the above with God's Word: "And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them." Josh. xi. 11.

"The souls or persons of both Christ and man were born of fleshly parents, and consequently were mortal dying souls made of flesh.

Again another poet says:

[illegible]

Assuming contrary to God's Word that man's Spirit in place of flesh, consequently is "no [illegible]," and cannot possibly die. God's Word says: "the wages of sin is death." How natural, simple and [illegible].

We have another sample as follows:

[illegible]

Compare this with the Sacred Word: "He which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death."

What is it then, to make any attempt to "convert the sinner from the error of his way" and by so doing "save a soul from death," if "death gives us more than was in Eden lost?" Let them continue in sin by all means, for all who do so are sure to receive "the wages of sin"—"death." This king of terrors is even "the Prince of Peace," to this shameful God-contradicting apostasy; but not ours thank God! Our Prince of Peace "brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

What, then, is our relationship to this God-dishonoring apostasy? Can you find a congenial home there, and claim its adherents as your brothers and sisters? Oh, let me entreat you in the name of the Lord Jesus, whom I love, to "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues." Rev. xviii. 4.

W. H. WILSON.

Cheerfulness in a young Christian is a splendid recommendation of Christ to the unsaved.

The Son of God.

"While the Pharisees were gathered together Jesus asked them, saying, What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he? They say unto him, The Son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in Spirit call him Lord, saying, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? If David then call him Lord, how is he his Son?" Matt. xxii. 41-45.

The [illegible] editor has been writing a series of articles [illegible] on "The Woman's Seed," and [illegible] letters have come to hand requesting me to reply to "Our Rejoinders." I think it better, however, to avoid the strictly controversial style, and simply show, in a reverent and humble manner, what is the teaching of Holy Scripture on that high and awful subject, the nature of Christ.

The question, "What think ye of Christ?" was propounded by the Master himself, and must, therefore, be "good and profitable." It shows the importance of having Scriptural thoughts of Him—of believing on him "as the Scripture hath said." Knowing the Christ of Scripture is one of the marks proving us members of His "little flock" to whom it is the Father's good pleasure to give the kingdom. "I know my sheep and am known of mine." Jno. x. 14.

Therefore we are not to portray a Christ of our own imagination, like the heathen who, guided only by "the thinking of the flesh," invent the objects of their own worship. Nor like the Pharisee who, while professing a reverence for all Scripture, would take only a one-sided view of Christ, being willing to confess Him Son of David, but not willing to confess Him Son of GOD, although the great Messianic covenant had as truly affirmed the one Sonship as the other, saying to David, "I will set up thy Seed after thee.... I will be his Father, and he shall be MY Son." 2 Sam. vii. 12-14; Psa. ii. 7; Heb. i. 5. The Pharisees from being "partial in the law" had become partial in the gospel also; willing to learn only the sense [illegible] which suited their prejudice, and turning a deaf ear and a blind eye to the rest. But we have been forewarned to "learn not the way of the heathen," and also to "beware of the leaven of the Pharisees." Jer. x. 2; Matt. xvi. 6.

It is easy enough to collect and emphasize such texts as teach that Christ was the Seed of the woman, the Son of David, in "all" things made "like unto his brethren," etc.; but unless we also remember that He is the Son of God, and that He and the Father are "ONE," we shall never believe on Him as the Scripture has described Him. We must, therefore, study with equal fairness and candor both classes of testimony, that concerning His divine as well as that concerning His human relationship. It is a royal rule of interpretation never be departed from, That we are not to expect in every place the whole circle of Scriptural truth to be fully stated; and therefore no conclusion should be drawn from the absence of a doctrine from one passage so long as we can find that doctrine clearly stated in another. For example, although one passage says, "In all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren," we are not thence to conclude, with the Pharisees and Socinians, that He is a mere man; for another passage of at least equal authority says, "In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." Heb. ii. 17; Col. ii. 9.

Now, to treat this exalted theme in a brief and systematic manner, I shall in this first number endeavor to show, (1) The difference between nature and person, and (2) The Scriptural uses of the word "Son."

1. NATURE AND PERSON.

There are two natures, the one divine the other human. Spirit is a distinguishing characteristic of the divine nature; flesh and blood, of the human. There was a time when the human nature existed only in the person of Adam who was the first and, for a while, the only living embodiment and manifestation of that nature; no plurality had as yet been embraced in it. But afterward that nature became manifested in the person of Eve also, and after that in the person of their first-born. The process of manifestation was diverse in the three: Eve proceeding from Adam alone, and Cain from Adam and Eve in another, but Adam had no human source or progenitor. And now a great multitude are partakers and manifestations of the human nature. Here we see the need of distinguishing between person and nature. Adam could never transmit his personality to another, yet he "begat a son in his own image and likeness," and, of course, in his own nature also. But however many persons may become participants of the human nature it "is of the earth earthy;" and but for the coming resurrection the personal forms of humanity that now flit before us in the mortal state would soon fall back to dust and there remain, for, "your life is but a vapor that appeareth for a little time and vanisheth away." Jas. iv. 14.

To the righteous, however, the Lord has promised a higher plane and basis of existence called "the divine nature." He "hath granted unto us his precious and exceeding great promises; that through these ye may become partakers of the divine nature." 2 Pet. i. 4. R. V. From Theos, which is the Greek word for God, is derived theios which is the unaffected form of the Greek word for "divine," and occurs three times (2 Pet. i. 3, 4; Ac. xvii. 29). In Act xvii. 29 it is translated "God-head," and so is its derivative theiotes in Rom. i. 20, and its cognate theotes in Col. ii. 9. Accordingly Webster says that "God-head" denotes "divinity; divine nature or essence." And as none of us can fully understand the human nature, much less can we comprehend the divine. But we are assured that the divine nature is sinless, incorruptible, and immortal; and that the living and true God is the one Supreme and underived Head of that nature. With Him is "the fountain of life," and he is "the Former of all things." "God is a Spirit." Psa. xxxvi. 9; Jer. ii. 19; Jno. iv. 24.

Although we are not to suppose that so great and incomprehensible a theme as the divine nature can be fully illustrated by any resemblance drawn from the nature of man, yet as man was created in the image of God, and we see a plurality of personal manifestations in the human nature, we are lead to believe that there can be a plurality of personal manifestations in the divine nature also; for not only are the Father and the Son distinct persons in that nature, but so too will be the multitude of the redeemed when "made partakers" of it. And in both natures is a well-marked gradation of personal dignity and power, as implied by Paul's words, "I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God." 1 Cor. xi. 3.

2. SCRIPTURAL USES OF THE WORD "SON."

This word is used in several analogical senses, in the Old and New Testaments. It denotes filial relationship (1) by generation: (2) by creation, as Adam, a mere man, is called a son of God, and as Paul speaking to the heathen says, "We are his offspring," Luke iii. 38; Act xvii. 29: (3) by adoption, as all truly converted believers are, Gal. iv. 5, 1 Jno. iii. 2: (4) by discipleship or instruction, as Eli calls Samuel his son, and we read of the sons of the prophets, and of Paul, 1 Sam. iii. 6; 1 King xx. 35; 1 Tim. i. 2, Titus i. 4: (5) by commission, as the One "whom the Father hath sanctified and sent into the world," Jno. x. 36: (6) by resurrection, as the redeemed will be "sons of God, being sons of the resurrection." Luke xx. 36, R. V.: (7) by anointing, as the branches of the Olive tree represent "sons of oil," Zech. iv. 14 margin: (8) by offspring or emanation, as it were, from any parent, as "sons of the burning coal," that is, sparks; and son of the bow or quiver, that is, an arrow, Job v. 7, xli. 28; Lam. iii. 13 margin: (9) by descent from a daughter-in-law, as, "There is a son born to Naomi," Ruth iv. 17: (10) by desert or tendency, as "the sons of destruction," and "a son of Gehenna," Prov. xxxi. 8; Matt. xxiii. 15, R. V. and margin: (11) by principle or disposition, as "the sons of valor," 2 Sam ii. 7: (12) by home or country, as "sons of the east," and "sons of Zion." Job i. 3 margin; Zech. ix. 13.

Now, as to the sonship of Christ, He called God his own Father," and is called the "own Son" and "the only begotten" Son of God, Jno. v. 18, R. V.; Rom. viii. 32; Jno. i. 14, 18; iii. 16; 1 Jno. iv. 9. The use of these peculiar qualifying terms own and only begotten proves that He is "Son" in a higher sense than any other being; and therefore this title is brought forward as a proof that He is superior even to angels. Heb. i. 5. And was it ever known since the world began that a begotten son did not partake in some degree of the nature of his father? This plain and simple question is enough to settle the controversy as to the divinity of the Son of God. Hence, the Apostles, believing in His divine sonship, called Him Lord and God; but His enemies, not believing in it, accused Him of blasphemy, for claiming to be the Son of God. Jno. xx. 28; Heb. i. 8; 1 Jno. v. 20; Jno. x. 30; v. 18.

And what better authority can we desire for believing Christ to be the Second Person of the divine nature, than the fact that he is "the only begotten of the Father?"

It is an incomprehensible fact of human nature that my will causes hand, foot, and all the passive matter of nerve tissues to move and act as organs of the will. And if this union of two such different entities as will and passive matter in a mere man is incomprehensible surely the union of the divine and human natures in the one person of the Son of God is far more so. We believe in this miraculous union of two natures in the one person of Christ, nor because we understand it but because it is taught in the Bible. Every sensible person has to believe many things he cannot fully explain. We know that we think, but not how we think; and that light blends with air and displaces darkness, but not how it does so.

In my next, after glancing briefly at the views of several modern writers, I hope to resume my regular line of argument on this exalted theme.

WILEY JONES.

Losing the temper takes all the sweet, pure feeling out of life. You may get up in the morning with a clean heart full of song and start out as happy as a bird, and the moment you are crossed and you give way to your temper, the clean feeling vanishes and a load as heavy as lead is rolled upon the heart, and you go through the rest of the day feeling like a culprit. And anyone who has experienced this feeling knows that it cannot be shaken off, but must be prayed off.

Selected.

Pious Infidelity.

"Infidelity," says a clerical writer, "has so overrun the church, and pious men are so active in joining with and seconding the plans of infidels, that they do more evil by scattering infidelity with the right hand, than they do good by the clouded and mitigated gospel which they encourage with their left. So much closer is the alliance of some of the Lord's (professed) children to infidels than to the essential peculiarities of the gospel, that if the time were to come wherein the infidels should have power to drag Christians to the stake, I should not be surprised to see some of their professed brethren carrying the faggots which were to destroy them. From this lamentable state, nothing but the preaching of the coming judgments can emancipate the churches.

But we must remember, that to see and to believe in the kingdom of Jesus, and in the judgments which are to introduce it, is a speciality: it is faith in his coming which the Lord signifies to us is that which is to be exceeding rare. Furthermore, let us bear in mind, that the appearance of the Lord will be in a manner perfectly unexpected. A very great inquiry is now excited. Still, however, the multitude holds out, and refuses even to inquire! The Lord give them repentance to the acknowledgement of his will. In the mean time,

No hope have they, no fear of aught to come,
As well for them had prophecy been dumb.
They could have held the conduct they pursue,
Had Saul of Tarsus lived and died a Jew.
And truth proposed to reasoners wise as they,
Is a pearl cast—completely cast away."

Temperance Heraldings.

A prison chaplain says very tersely, "Crime is simply condensed alcohol."

The tobacco vice is almost entirely absent among the Brahmo Somaj of India.

It cost Ireland last year ten million dollars more for intoxicating liquors than for rent.

Rev. Thomas Evans has begun a temperance work among the Tea-garden coolies in India.

The food of 3,000,000 people is annually destroyed in Great Britain in the production of drink, and yet there are multitudes starving.

In the city of New York the Church Temperance society have established a night lunch wagon, where night workers can secure good lunches at cheap rates. As a temperance agency it is doing remarkable work.

The great increase in the number of prisoners in Massachusetts is due almost wholly to drunkenness; and except for the added commitments for this offense the prison population would show a relative decrease in comparison with the inhabitants of the State.

It is reassuring to know that there is one coveted place in the vicinity of New York where a liquor-seller, even for a relatively large sum of money, cannot as yet buy the opportunity of prosecuting his evil traffic. The Brooklyn Bridge Trustees, at a recent meeting promptly rejected an offer of $5,000 from one John O'Brien for the privilege of putting up a stand for the sale of liquor and other beverages on the platform of the Brooklyn Bridge tower.

The Word is "fire," and burneth; a "hammer," and breaketh the hardness of heart. It is mighty in operation, cleanseth the inner man, openeth the conscience, is "a savor of life unto life," the means of salvation, the word of reconciliation.

Christ has bought us, and we yield ourselves to him, that he may free us from sin.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 19, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

IN this issue we give place to an article from Bro. Wiley Jones, entitled "The Son of God." Brother Jones represents the class who differ somewhat from the positions taken in the series of articles by Bro. M. Joblin, under the title "The Seed of the Woman." While there seems to be quite a wide difference of opinion, we trust the two brothers can write upon this question without engendering strife, and avoid sharp dagger thrusts of sarcasms that are not arguments. Let love be uppermost, and no harm will come from a friendly write up of both sides.

IT has come to our notice that some hardships have been wrought in a number of cases, largely, we believe, through not fully understanding the facts in the case. It is a delicate subject, and we do not intend to enter very largely into it. Cannot do so without treading on some one's "corns." However, a wrong impression is held, and we have but to state it, and the remedy should be applied. A relative dies, arrangements as to time, and place of funeral are made, a message is sent for some preacher to come and hold service. He is expected to answer the dispatch, pay railroad or livery bills, leave his previous appointment and so lose his pay for the preaching he has engaged to do, be at much personal inconvenience, and when all is done, is often thanked, and bidden God speed on his return home. He arrives at his home and finds the same bills for rent, food and raiment that you have to be paid, and no money to pay with. The hand-shake, and "thank you for the noble effort," is all he has for his labor. It is simply a business matter. If you want a minister to do work for you, pay him like you would any one else. Arrange for his expenses and he will be satisfied with small wages for his labor. If you ask him to miss his chance to earn his week's wages, pay him so he will not be out of money.

PAUL tells us that the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God, and if any one seems to be wise in this world let him become a fool—that is, a fool in the estimation of people around that he may be wise. (1 Cor. iii. 18.) •

"EXCEPT a man humble himself as a little child he shall in no case enter the kingdom of God." What an apt illustration! A little child takes without a question what the tender parent offers; God, the Great, the Good,—the ever blessed Father offers you his kingdom, reader,—what say you? Have you anything to say? Does it suit you? or do you think you ought to have been consulted about it? If so, you exclude yourself from that kingdom, as the foregoing words of Jesus prove. •

THE latest news from Germany seems to us to indicate that the Emperor will gain his point by making a few concessions. And from what we gather from the press we conclude that many, on second thought, concluded that of two despotisms the military was less to be dreaded than that of Socialism. It cannot be denied that a widespread and dangerous ferment is going on. After ages of subjection the masses in almost all countries have received somewhat of political power; and the result is, the almost universal desire to bring down the upper classes, and bring up the lower. But matters will not be readjusted under Gentile rule. He who shall be King over all the earth is a Jew; and in his day shall the righteous flourish, and abundance of peace as long as the moon endureth.

But are matters to rest where the Emperor of Germany desires? What of France, and what of Russia? Where is the halt to be called? Will not these powers strengthen themselves in the same proportion? If so, Germany will have to make further demands, and then the others and so on till the chapter ends by the presence of the Generalisimo of all earth's contending forces. •

"IF after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not?" Paul, in the light of modern theology was a very poorly informed man. Instead of death being the gate of life he looked to the raising of the dead for the salvation he was looking for in connection with Christ. Could those who oppose what we advocate have used this argument? If not, then of a surety they either forget that he was speaking to us for the Spirit, or hold that we need no revelation, can guess our way to glory. Reader, look at Paul's words once more. If they mean anything, in effect he says, "If you take away the resurrection from me, there is no advantage in my doing what I am doing, and suffering what I am suffering. I am looking to the resurrection for the great salvation." There can be no question of this because in writing to the Philippians he defines the object of all his labors in these words: "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead." Say, can you define your spiritual aspirations in that way? If not, you are in a sad state. You have taken the wrong road; thousands travel with you, we know, but it is the narrow way which few find, which leads to life. •

Switches on the Track.

There are many of them. Hardly a day passes without discovering new switches; they turn up so often, indeed, that we have neither time nor space to notice half of them; but we do want to pay our respects to one that is very often set for us, of late. Rightly enough we are told that there is one Body, one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith and one baptism; this is on the main line; but when it is added that the one Body is composed only of those chosen out of all nations between Christ's first and second coming, those writers have been switched off if they were ever on. They do not know what Jehovah's purpose is; they do not know what he has been doing in the past, or is doing at the present, or what he intends to do in the future.

The presumption is that the recent writer quoted above has been following the "Millennial Dawn" which teaches that "the disciples erred at first, or, in common with the entire Jewish nation had an imperfect conception of God's Kingdom, and that the Kingdom Jesus preached and invited his followers to an heirship in, was an invisible kingdom,—a spiritual kingdom." This we deny straightly. God has promised a kingdom to them that love him, and we challenge the author of Millennial Dawn to show one promise of an invisible kingdom; and assure him that we do not accept his home made Scripture.

Our author calls the period between the First coming of Christ and the Second, "the Gospel Age." Can he point to any age that was without the Gospel? Was not the promise that the Woman's Seed should bruise the head of the serpent Gospel to the first pair? Has that not been Gospel ever since? And what but the belief of Gospel and the unbelief of it constituted some sons of God, and the rest mere children of men? (Gen. vi. 1, 2). Paul says the Gospel was preached to Abraham; and when he adds that he was justified by faith, was it not faith in the Gospel preached to him? And when we find that Christ was made a curse for us that the blessing of Abraham might come upon the Gentiles (Gal. iii. 14) and that they who are Christ's are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise, have we not infallible evidence that the Gospel Age began in Eden, and has continued all down through the Ages?

At this point the law is dragged out by those in the fog; but Paul clearly shows that the promises which have always been gospel were not disannulled by the addition of the law. The promises gave life to the believer the law did not. It was given to restrain transgressors, (Gal. iii. 19) till the Christ should come, not for salvation purposes. And we stoutly maintain that God all the way through to our day has justified men on the principle of faith and obedience, and no other.

But we do not now propose to commence a systematic review of the work named but to briefly examine the so-called spiritual phase of the kingdom, said to embrace only those selected since the crucifixion. This rules out Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, Samuel, Isaiah and all the prophets and patriarchs. The man through whom all the families of the earth are to be blessed, is doomed to be merely a human, while our author is to be divine. The man whose faith is held up as a pattern for all, and styled the Father of the faithful, is not permitted to enter the higher circle of redeemed ones at all, although the Spirit says expressly, that they who are of faith—all of them—are to be blessed with faithful Abraham—permitted to have a share of HIS inheritance, and failing to become his children faithwise there is nothing. Every saved soul is blessed with faithful Abraham, and this is he, who with all the prophets are relegated to a back seat, or as our author would put it, "the second grade;" a great honor that, but nothing compared to the invisible upper circle.

In quoting "ye shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, our author significantly says. "It should be noticed that the Master does not say that he or his apostles would be visible with Abraham." Poor old Abraham, was it this that made you so glad when you saw the day of your illustrious Seed? Did you know he was going to give you the cold shoulder, by excluding you from divine nature? Oh, oh! We could have wept like Jeremiah when we read this double-distilled foolishness, to think that he should start out on a line of sublime truth and then weight it down with such flagrant, God-dishonoring and skeptic-breeding speculations. Abraham will not need our commiseration, but our author will unless he repent and believe the gospel of the kingdom promised. Yea: he will be invisible because he will not be there.

Will our readers accompany us back to the Psalms of David in order to prove all things? Psa. cxlix, 4-9. "For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people; he will beautify the meek with salvation." Be careful David, mind you are away back there—don't get excited;—don't expect too much—the Millennial Dawn is around here. But David does not mind a bit. He strikes off on a higher key than ever:—"Let the saints be joyful in glory, let them sing aloud upon their beds; let the high praises of God be in their mouth and a two-edged sword in their hand, to execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishments upon the people, to bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron; to execute upon them the judgment written, this honor have all his saints, praise ye the Lord." And by reference to Rev. ii. 26, 27 it can also be seen that the overcomers do this work.

But to the Psalms again. "As for ME I will behold thy face in righteousness." If our author be correct, David, that is very questionable, indeed quite improbable—we may say impossible. You will be human, David. The spiritual will always be invisible to you. Our author says so, and what more do you want? But we will hear David out: "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." There's a mistake somewhere! If David wakes in the likeness of his Lord what is to hinder him from seeing him? Job said he would see God for himself and that smashes the new idea all to pieces.

In Vol. 2, p. 122 we have other home-made Scripture. It there says, "God's kingdom will communicate, operate and manifest its presence and power through human, earthly agencies, just as Satan exercises an unseen influence through his subjects. What think you of that? Could the Lord devise no better form of government than the alledged Satanic Majesty? He is going to follow Satan's plan precisely! We confess our inability to do justice to that assertion, and so in order that our readers may not forget these last words of our author, we will say nothing: they contain their own antidote. •

Original.

John's Second Epistle.
Chap. 1.

1. The elder unto an elect lady and her offspring whom I love in truth; and not I alone, but also all those who comprehend the truth,

2. Because of the truth that is abiding in us, and will be with us forever.

3. With us will be grace, mercy, peace from Father God and from Jesous Christ the Son of the Father in truth and love.

4. I am exceedingly thankful because I have found some of thy children walking in truth even as we have received commandment from the Father.

5. And now I request thee, lady, not as though writing unto thee a new commandment, but a commandment which we have had from the outset, namely that we love one another.

6. And this is the love, that we walk according to his commandments. This is the commandment, that even as we have heard from the outset, we walk in it.

7. Because many who lead astray have gone out into the Cosmos, who do not confess a Jesous Christ who cometh in flesh. This is the deceiver and the antichrist.

8. Look out for yourselves that ye do not lose what ye have wrought out; but take away full wages.

9. Any one who leadeth forward and doth not abide in the teaching of the Christ hath not God. He who abideth in the teaching hath both the Father and the Son.

10. If any one cometh unto you and doth not bring this teaching, do not receive him into a household, and do not say greeting to him.

11. For the one who saith greeting to him becometh a partner in his wicked deeds.

12. Having many things to write unto you, I have not desired to do it with paper and ink: but I am hoping to be with you and to talk mouth to mouth, that our joy may have been made full.

13. The children of thy elect sister greet thee.

COMMENT.

The term "lady" here is the feminine of "lord" merely. Whether John is addressing a personal letter to "a lady" of his acquaintance, a person of some social prominence in the world, but a true convert to Christianity or to a church under the soubriquet of a lady, is a matter of interesting conjecture of course, but not vital to the import of the teaching, as the advice is equally applicable to the church as a body or to the individual, and just as applicable now as it was when it was written. The theology of this epistle is exactly in accord with the general teaching of the Scriptures. God is recognized in his ineffable attributes as the author of all and the Christ as "the Son of the Father" with an "official-power" limited only by the "truth" and the "love." The "Apostasy" and the "antichrist" are assumed to be synonymous terms and the reader is duly warned of the danger and its deceptive nature.

My own judgment is that this letter of John's is addressed to one of the sister churches of his day, and is thus disguised as a personal letter for precautionary reasons well understood to those whom it concerned, namely to avoid persecution.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Selected.

Advance.

"Let us go on." Heb. vi. 1.

The bugle of God's army is ever sounding the "Advance!" Never is heard the "Halt!" or the "Fall back!" It is always, always, the "Advance!"

Long ago, God's Israel, becoming discouraged, cried, ungratefully, and trustlessly, "Let us go back!" But, that was wrong. Moses went to God about it, and God's reply was, "Speak unto the children of Israel, they Go forward!"

Years passed by, and the pilgrim hosts were on the border-land of the promised inheritance. There it was, stretching away before their eyes, in all its breadth and beauty, the "goodly land," so long desired and sought. But Reuben and Gad thought the country on the wilderness side of Jordan was the "goodly land," too, especially for the cattle; and, if Moses would consent, they would not mind settling down there; their brethren might go beyond the river, and have their shares, as well as their own, of the promised land. Moses was troubled. The "Advance!" was sounding, and how could he reverse it for them. No: they must go forward with their brethren, and, at all events, assist in getting possession of the grand inheritance given them by the Lord.

And all along, from that day until now, how incessantly God's buglers have had to sound out the "Advance!" clear and strong. Many, however, even of the disciples of our Lord, refused to hear it, and "went back!" The apostles deplored the fact that some had departed from the faith; while others had forsaken him, through love of the world. Others still were inclined to halt; becoming cold and careless in the things of God. Hence the ringing "Advance!"

And is not that so now? Is there not yet, a tendency to halt, if not actually to go back? Do not some actually leave their "first love," and return to the world? Oh, this is indeed sad! Would God it were otherwise! What shall we do, with this fact before us? Let us, as Moses did, cry to God in the first place; and then, let us awaken the echoes all around with the bugle call, "Advance!" "Advance!"

In the spiritual life there is a great tendency so be content with mere beginnings. In ordinary affairs it is far otherwise. No mother would be content if her babe remained a mere babe: or if her child, though achieving "straight strokes," with great ability, and repeating the alphabet in a very skillful way, proceeded no further in educational acquirements. No enterprising man of business would be satisfied with having duly completed his apprenticeship and opened, on his own account, "in a small way." And no one would tell himself he had, now, nothing further to care for, who had placed the "engaged ring" on the hand of the fair object of his choice. And yet, Christians are sometimes inclined to feel fully satisfied now that they are really saved, and are professedly on the Lord's side. "This will do," they are ready to say to themselves, "I can now rest and be thankful!" What! a soldier resting at the commencement of the campaign! A pilgrim resting as soon as his hand grasps the staff, and his feet stand in the King's highway! No! No! "Rest?" Why he is just "in position" to march, to fight, to work for Him to whom he belongs! Being saved is but the merest beginning of the Christian life. Now for the grand business of the man of God, the soldier of the Cross, the servant of the King! There's the bugle call! Who can mistake its ringing note? "Advance Advance!"—Times of Refreshing.

Is It Safe?

There are many things which may be done which seem desirable and promising, but yet are not absolutely safe; and the man who seeks to conduct his affairs prudently, will consider the saftey of any given course before he determines upon it. The farmer, the mechanic, the engineer, and every man who concerns himself in important affairs must consider the saftey of the course he undertakes.

Especially is this true of moral and religious teachers and teachings. There are lines of thought which are engaging, novel, interesting, and which may seem worthy, and may prove to be worthy of attention; but there are dangers connected with them. The new method may turn out to be impracticable; the whole scheme may prove to be unsafe, uncertain, and delusive, after it has been substituted for something less alluring but more certain and reliable.

The farmer who sows his broad acres with a seed which he has never tested, is very likely to lament his folly when it is too late to remedy it. The man who undertakes to do his work with an engine or a machine which he has never seen used, could hardly complain if the result were thoroughly disappointing; and the man who is teaching the public, and preaching to the people, devotes himself largely to the discussion and presentation of new startling and unproved theories is very likely to find that his "new truths" may prove to be old errors, and that he may not only lose the harvest which he had hoped to gain, but he may find the fields he sowed encumbered with weeds which he will never be able to eradicate. Hence, while a man of intelligence and enterprise should not lightly reject good thoughts or refuse new suggestions, yet he should limit his field of experiments, and devote his energies largely to things which are certain, and to the things which are known to be safe, rather than to the things which are yet untested and unproved.

One thing is certain, and that is, that the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the good news of His grace and His salvation is safe, and may be proclaimed without hesitation, and without the slightest danger of disappointment. The world has never outgrown or superseded the teaching of the Son of God. Enemies being witnesses, earth has nothing superior to this, and those who scoff and sneer at the faults and follies of many who bear the name of Christ, hush their ribaldry when they are brought face to face with His example and His doctrines. It may therefore be held, that the Gospel of Christ is a safe message; that the example of Christ is a safe example; and that the teaching of Christ may be safely followed; and if this be so, then the preaching of the Gospel as Christ preached it, is a safe thing to do.

There are people who have bare-skimmed the edge of divine truth, who seem to think it is necessary to go farther that they may find something new and fresh. They have dipped a cupful from some little eddy, and are anxious lest the river shall be exhausted. They fear the message they bring will become stale: they must find something else besides the Gospel to "interest the people."

They are greatly mistaken in their estimates of the whole matter. Men have eaten bread for thousands of years, but the appetite for bread remains. Men have drank water since the world began, and no substitute for it has been found; and so the bread of God, and the water of life, have not grown stale to a hungry, thirsty generation. Men may have drawn from stagnant pools; they may have found water which is dead, and insipid; but the water from the living fountain is fresh, clear as crystal, and will be, so long as men hunger and thirst after that which is right, and good and true. Hence there is nothing safer than to hold fast the faithful word, to "stand in the way and enquire for the old paths;" to bear witness to the truth as it is in Christ; to bathe our souls in the living fountain, and proclaim with joyous faith the glad and glorious Gospel of the Son of the living God. Nothing can supersede the message. Nothing can be substituted for it, and whatever experiments we may try with other things, this must be the staple and substance of our testimoney, if we are to glorify God and benefit mankind.

Nothing is more new or more fresh than this old story, told in the might and power of the Spirit of God, and proclaimed with courage, with faith, and with love. Said the apostle, as he returned to this glad theme, "Finally, brethren, rejoice in the Lord, to write the same thing to you, to me is not grievous, but for you it is safe." Phil. iii. 1. Nothing can be more safe than to write the things which have been the comfort and salvation of the lost for generations, and the cheer and consolation of the church of God through all ages past. It is safe to preach Jesus Christ; safe for the preacher and safe for the people. It is safe to tell the way of salvation which he reveals; safe for those who point the path, and safe for those who follow it. Whatever else we may learn; whatever else may interest us, let nothing take the place of this message, let nothing be substituted for this Gospel. The fight of faith has been fought on these lines through all the ages, and we may well heed the apostle's admonition, "Let us walk by the same, let us mind the same thing." Phil. iii. 17.

The world is full of attractions and invitations. The cry "Lo here," and "Lo there," sounds far and wide, and men are often deceived and deluded; but he who clings to the Gospel of Christ, who preaches the Word in season and out of season; who tells the story of a Savior's love in the ears listening multitudes; who preaches righteousness in the great congregation, and warns the sinner to flee from the wrath to come; he who with his soul on fire with heavenly love goes forth and sheds this light in dark places, will never need to regret such work, and will rejoice in the day of Christ, that he has not run in vain, neither labored in vain. The safest thing for the world is a knowledge of the God who made the world. The safest thing for the church is is the Gospel of Him who has loved the church and given Himself for it; and the safest and manliest message for human kind is the message of the man Christ Jesus, who came to lead the lost wanderers home to God, and to turn our feet into the testimonials of the Lord.—Christian.

DIED.

June 13th, 1893. Sister Polly Green, at the advanced age of nearly 91 years, at Ada, Mich.

She had lived many years with her son-in-law, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace. I attended the funeral of her husband about 7 years ago. He also died in the "blessed hope of the glorious appearing."

Bro. Wallace says, "she experienced religion in the state of N. Y., about 30 years ago, and since that time has led a consistent Christain life, and her example has always been worthy of immitation. Often in her last sickness, spoke of that blessed hope of a glorious resurrection. She was baptized into the fellowship of the Baptist Church, but in after years changed her views, and became identified with those of the Advent faith, in which she died.

We can say of her, that in all her sickness, she was a model of patience although suffering greatly, she was willing, like Job, to wait her appointed time.

She had her mind until the last, but could say but little, and passed away peacefully. Volumes might be written in regard to her life and character, but we shall know by and by, when Christ shall come and take those that are His.

She like Paul, has fought the "good fight,—finished her long race, and kept the faith, hence, there is laid up for her a crown which the Lord will give to all that love His appearing."

The funeral was held in the Bapsist Church in Ada. A discourse was preached by the writer from, 1 Thess. iv. 13, "but I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them who are asleep, that ye sorrow not as those who have no hope, for if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring (from the dead) with him." "Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

This clearly embraces the true Bible hope.

E. HOYT.

Anna Fitze was born March 15, 1815. Died July 11, 1893, aged 78 years, 3 months, and 27 days. Funeral at Lakeville, in the M. E. Church.

N. H. GRISELMAN.

James Officer Cordray, was born in St. Joseph Co., Ind. Dec. 20, 1861. Died at his parent's five miles north-west of Lakeville, July 1, 1893. Aged 31 years, 6 months, and 3 days.

Funeral sermon by the writer to a large and attentive audience, after which we laid him to rest in Lakeville cemetery.

N. H. GRISELMAN.

Pennsylvania Lines. Reduced Rates to Warsaw for the Spring Fountain Park Assembly.

Excursion Tickets will be sold to Warsaw, Ind., via the Pennsylvania Lines, July 20th to August 9th, inclusive, at low round trip rates, account Spring Fountain Park Assembly. Return coupons valid until August 10th.

Poetry.

I thank Thee for the Loneliness.

I thank thee for the loneliness
  That brings me near to Thee—
Thanks that no other heart can know,
  No other eye can see!
I never knew the depth, the height,
  Of heavenly love before:
O Lord! Thy presence gilds my night,
  It brightens more and more.

What matter to that lucid beam,
  If stars seem bright or pale!
Shall we of lesser glories dream
  Who look within the vail?
Why count the earthly loss,
  When gifts from heaven flow down?
Lord, thou for the best set the Cross,
  With jewels of the crown

A. G. F.

Original.

Paper read at a meeting of [illegible], at Grand Rapids, Michigan, by E. Hoyt.

What do the Greek Scriptures mean, which are translated "end of the world, and world to come?"

1. They do not mean the end of our globe by fire, or a world to come, of any kind, away from the earth. A great mistake has been made in supposing that the coming of Christ was in immediate connection with the burning of the earth spoken of by the apostle. Peter says: "one day is with the Lord as a thousand years," and this is called "the day of the Lord." The Bible teaches that the advent will take place at the beginning of the great day of the Lord, and the change of the old earth into the new will be at the end of the one thousand year day. The first resurrection of the "blessed and holy," and their millennial reign will precede the "new earth."

2. Wherever the phrase "end of the world" occurs, it is not the end of the age or kosmos, but the end of the Aione—age. The definitions in the Greek Lexicon of Aione are, "age, a long period of time, time, whether past, present, or future."

Young's Greek and English Concordance defines the word, "Age," indefinite time, dispensation. The word is sometimes translated age, or ages, as in Col. i. 26 "the mystery which hath been hid from ages." Again, "that in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace." Eph. ii. 7.

The Revised Version has it "consummation of the age," in the margin every time the "end of the world" occurs. The Common Version translates Aione, world, 31 times. In Matt. xiii. Jesus illustrates the kingdom by use of parables. The parable of the tares by request is explained.

"He that soweth the good seed is the Son of Man; the field is the world, cosmos, (not the church;) the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked; the enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world, (Aione, age,) and the reapers are the angels. As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world, (age.)

"The Son of Man shall send forth his angels and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity, and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." Matt. xiii. 37. "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear."

"Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."

The "holy land" promised to Abraham and his seed, (which is Christ) forever, is the territory the kingdom out of which will be first gathered all things offensive and them who commit iniquity, when the righteous fashioned like unto Christ's glorified body, will shine as the sun in the promised kingdom. That will be at the end of this age. Then "many that sleep in the dust of the earth, shall awake, some to everlasting life. And they that be wise shall shine as the stars forevermore." Dan. xii.

The coming of the Lord will be at the end of this age, for the disciples enquire of their Master, "what shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the age?"

At the end of this age is promised "the resurrection of the just." Jesus said unto them (the Sadducees) "the children of this age marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that age, and the resurrection out from the dead ones, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; neither can they die anymore; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. Luke xx. 34-35-36.

This answer to unbelieving Sadducees contains much, very much, important truth for us.

1. There will be a resurrection of those counted worthy from the rest of the dead, who will not "live again" till the millennial age, or one thousand years' reign is ended.

The Greek word, anistasis means the standing up again of one who has fallen in death, but as used here, it has the prefix ex before nekroune which means from, or out from, the dead ones. "Blessed and holy are they who have part in the first resurrection for on such the second death shall have no power, and they shall reign with Christ a thousand years." Rev. xx. 6.

2. They will obtain that glorious age when as immortal kings and priests they will reign over the "left of the nations" with "the king of kings" whose kingdom will be "from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth." The nations will be greatly blessed then, and not till then, by an all-powerful and perfect administration of that "Law that shall go forth out of Zion." Isaiah ii. 3. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth, even forever. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." Isa. iii. 6 7.

We should strive earnestly to obtain that age, (not to be the mortal subjects of the kingdom, although that will be a peaceful, happy condition—free from the calamities, and crimes, and wars, and wickedness, of this age,) but, through the "better resurrection," to become immortal princes to reign under the eternal King. In order to this exaltation we must be, and remain heirs of the kingdom that is promised to those that love God, until the time appointed for the inheritance, which, without the second coming, when Jesus will say "come ye blessed of my Father." Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels, consequently they will then begin to live forever. Then they become the children of God, by being the children of this resurrection, or change, they are born again, as Jesus was the "first-born from the dead," through his resurrection. We cant become the children of God in this higher sense without putting on immortality at the resurrection of the Just. This future is spoken of in the common translation as the "world to come." In the Revised Version it reads every time in the margin, the consummation of the age, for, "end of the world, "and for "world to come," age, in the margin. We have seen some things that are to be attained in the future age by the true disciple. Eternal life, the greatest gift of God, through Jesus Christ our Lord, is promised in that age to come. Take the testimony of Mark x. 28-29-30. "Then Peter began to say unto him, lo, "we have left all and followed thee, and Jesus answered and said, verily, I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or brothers, or sisters, or fathers, or mothers, or children, and lands for my sake and the Gospel, he shall receive an hundred fold now in this time, houses, and brothers, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come, (Aione, age to come) eternal life." The testimony of Luke xviii. 28 is similar. "And Peter said to him, "we have left all and followed thee, and he said unto them, verily, I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brothers, or wife, or children, for the Kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the age to come life everlasting." These Scriptures make two things plain—one, that eternal life will be given in the age to come, and another that this blood-bought gift will be given at that time, to all who fulfill the condition specified, viz., to forsake all that is valued in this age, so far as is necessary to obtain an abundant entrance into the Kingdom of God, and eternal life there and then.

The Apostle Paul gives us some plain truth on this subject. "For if the dead rise not, then is Christ not raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ, are perished. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ (was made alive) the first fruits, (of the great resurrection harvest) afterward they that are Christ's (will be made alive) at his coming." I Cor. xv.

How much reason "to love His appearing! This is God's order in making alive the dead saints of all ages, who sleep in Jesus.—Man's order is to make them alive immediately after death. "But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" I Cor. xv. 17. This will be when the victory of the grave is past and "death is swallowed up in victory."

In showing the superiority of Jesus to the angels, Paul writes "unto the angels. He hath not put in subjection the world to come whereof we speak." Heb. ii. 5. Here "the world to come" is translated from the Greek Oikoumene and means habitable (earth) to come. But there is no earth (Ge) to come but the "new earth."

This follows the age to come and is more glorious, and will be the final abode of the meek who will inherit the earth. Matt. v. 5. "Nevertheless, we, according to his promise, look for a new heavens and new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Peter iii. 13.

By these Scriptures we are plainly taught, that at the end of this age and the beginning of the age to come, the righteous fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body, by a new birth at the first or "better resurrection," will shine as the sun in the Kingdom of their Father. Also, that in the millennial age to come, immortality and eternal life will be given to both the living and dead saints by almighty power. Then they will be spiritual bodies, for it is expressly said, "It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown a natural body it is raised a spiritual body." "And as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly,"—the second man,—the Lord from heaven." "But thanks be to God who giveth us the victory (over death and the grave) through our Lord Jesus Christ." "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." I Cor. xv. 57-58.

I quote an extract from an article, published in the Bibliotheca Sacre, Oberlin, Ohio, by Rev. E. B. Fairchild, D. D. L L. D. He says: "I used to believe that the resurrection and final judgment came at the end of this world's history, meaning the terrestrial globe on which we live, and its mortal inhabitants. I confess that the views I held were vague, and certainly they were, not so much the results of my own investigations, as of a kind of passive acceptance of the dictums taught me from my youth up." He says: "It is unfortunate that the English word, world, should be employed in our English Bible to translate two entirely different Greek words—Aione and Cosmos,—words, which to the careful student of the original convey distinct ideas. Aione is a word of time, Cosmos of place.

The Bible never speaks of the end of the Cosmos, nor does it in my judgment, employ any form of words to express that idea."

I close with the testimony of the "Faithful and true Witness" as recorded by Matt. xix. 27. "Then Peter said unto him, "behold, we have forsaken all and followed thee, what shall we have therefore?" And Jesus said unto them; "verily, I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of His glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones judging (ruling) the twelve tribes of Israel. And every one that hath forsaken houses, brothers, sisters, etc., for my name's sake shall inherit everlasting life." These words of promise are a specific answer to Peter's question, "what shall we have, who have forsaken all to follow Him,"—they should at a future time, sit on twelve thrones and rule the twelve tribes of Israel, in the land promised to Abraham for an everlasting inheritance, fulfilling the prediction of Isa. xxxii. 1. "Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness and princes shall rule in judgment." All the prophets foretell a literal kingdom much oftener than a literal suffering of Messiah. When will the kingdom come for which we are taught to pray? It will be at the time of the regeneration, when the apostles and other disciples are born again, as Jesus was at his resurrection. The regeneration, as punctuated, is connected with the sitting of the Son of Man on his throne of glory, and that will take place when he shall come in his glory, and all his holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. Matt. xxv. 31. Then the apostles, and millions of other martyrs, and all who have overcome in the trials endured, shall be exalted to sit with me on my throne as I overcame and am set down with my Father on his throne. Rev. iii. 21. By complying with the conditions, may we at that time hear the welcome, "Come ye blessed, inherit the kingdom, and go into life eternal."

P. S. Was glad to read the article of Bro. Boutelle, taken from the Crisis. Some 40 years ago, Brethren Cook, Marsh, Weethee, Hastings and others were gathered in the city of N. Y., to heal the division caused by some of us embracing what was called the doctrine of the "age to come." When speaking on that subject, I told them, we should all be "age to come" men, if the Greek word Aione had been correctly translated "age" instead of "world to come." Brother Boutelle as well as others laughed at me. Perhaps he has changed his mind since.

Selected.

"Without Me Ye Can do Nothing."

"Abide with Me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in Me. I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without Me ye can do nothing.—John xv. 4 5.

Here we have twice a positive declaration that man, even in a regenerated state, is utterly powerless of himself to perform that which is good. The history of the fall of man, and its effects upon human nature, are not only written upon every page of the Holy Scriptures but also on every page of the world's history. What is Man in his most civilized state? Do we not find the word failure written on all his works? In his wisdom and morality, in his government, he is a failure. Where are now those great nations of antiquity, with all their great wisdom and glory? They are gone, because they had not known the wisdom of God, or having known it, they did not allow themselves to be guided by it.

When we consider man in the light of his own achievements, we are tempted to ask the question—Is man a failure? History again gives the answer:—Of himself he is. But we know, through the revelation that God has given us, that there is yet a glorious future for man. That state of things, however, can never be brought about by himself; he must wait for it, until He who has purchased redemption for the human race shall bring in that reign of righteousness that "shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea."

Some men have tried to find in this passage of Scripture—"Without Me ye can do nothing"—an excuse for continuing in a course of sin. They reason thus:—"I feel that my nature is corrupt; I would like to be in a better state of mind than I am, but I can do nothing to help myself; I make my resolutions only to be broken again. So till God gives me His grace, I can no more change my own heart than the Ethiopian can change the color of his skin." Truly, "there is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death." Satan is said to be an able reasoner, but this is not sound reason, seeing that it leads men to give themselves up to be carried along with the stream, to settle down into a continued state of sin, with a justification of themselves, and a casting of the blame upon God for having brought them into such a condition, or of withholding the grace needful for their deliverance from that condition. It is true that man is utterly powerless for his own recovery from sin, but that does not excuse, but rather aggravates his guilt, as it arises from his own love of sin, his fixed desire to do evil, and to indulge his passions. It is the deep principle of evil in man that renders him helpless, and his case desperate. Men in such a state of mind want to work out a righteousness of their own, instead of falling down at the feet of Jesus, and crying out:—"Lord, be merciful to me a sinner," or of looking up to the cross and there beholding the burden of their sins transferred from their own shoulders to the shoulders of Him who hung upon that cross, but who has now gone into the presence of the Father to plead the cause of penitent sinners.

Our Lord said:—"He that entereth not in by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber." The words—"Without Me ye can do nothing"—were not addressed to those that were outside the fold, but to those that had already entered into it by the door.

They were addressed to the apostles—the chosen ones—the little flock; and even these are declared to be unable to serve their Master without His aid. Most important are these words of our Lord:—"As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, no more can ye, except ye abide in Me;" and again:—"Abide in Me, and I will abide in you."

Let the knowledge of our weakness convince us of the necessity of receiving strength from Him who alone is able to strengthen us. We must cleave closely to the Lord Jesus by faith and prayer, and He will increase our faith and hear our prayer. "If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." These words, though spoken to the apostles, have also a large application to us who live in these latter days.

In the epistle to the Philippians, the apostle declares that God not only strengthens us to perform that which is good, but also that He gives us the will to do it. He says:—"It is God that worketh in us, both to will and to do of His own good pleasure." What then? Are we to sit down in indolence, and wait till God operates more fully upon our hearts? No, rather, as the same apostle says, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling."

In the second epistle to the Corinthians, we meet with another Scripture to the same effect, thus:—"Not that we are sufficient of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God." The apostle is speaking of his labors among the people he was addressing, and says, "Ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God, not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart." Paul here argues that he had written on the hearts of that people the character of Christ, but he does not claim any merit, or any power of persuasion to bring about the conversion of any of them. No, his sufficiency was of God. The efficacy of the apostolic preaching was ascribed by the apostles to divine power. They knew and felt the power of these words—"Without Me ye can do nothing."

"Paul may plant, and Apollos may water, but God alone giveth the increase." What was the line of conduct pursued by the apostles in the face of this truth? Did they relax in their endeavors, in the hope that God would act without their agency? No, they acted as if the bringing about of the Kingdom of Christ on earth depended altogether on their exertions. These men went about from place to place preaching the Word of God. They bore ill-usage patiently, being hunted from place to place like wild beasts, hungry and wearied, sometimes without the common necessities of life, scourged and otherwise persecuted, slandered and opposed even by some in the church. Why did they suffer all this? It was because of their love for the cause of Christ and their love of their fellow men. As Paul said—"If by any means I might save some."

These early messengers of the Lord Jesus were also animated with the hope of a glorious resurrection from the dead, with the rest of the saints at the coming of the Lord, when He shall gather His saints together and take to Himself His great power and reign. This they constantly preached and earnestly looked for.

It is the entire design of the Scriptures to teach us our own insufficiency, and to show us our need of such a plan of salvation as God has wrought out for us, and to persuade us to accept it. Jesus says, —"Learn of Me." He was the lamb slain from the foundation of the world the victim through the shedding of whose blood we have obtained the remission of our sins. Without Christ we can do nothing; nothing to satisfy divine justice; nothing to cancel our enormous guilt; nothing that can commend us to God; nothing to purify our corrupt nature.

I think that we will all admit that, even in the best of us, there is a continual tendency to evil; hence the need of some magnetic force to draw us and to hold us in the path of righteousness, and that magnetic force we have in the Lord Jesus. If we commit ourselves to Him we know that He is able to keep safely that which we commit into His keeping.

What is it to be a Christian? With many, this question will have little meaning beyond this—not to be a Turk or a Hottentot—but to us, it is to be a follower of the Lord Jesus, the Christ—to be the follower of one whose principles we indorse, whose commands we obey, on whom our hopes are centered, and to whom we look for the accomplishment of all our desires. If this be so, then we will let that mind be in us that was in Christ Jesus. How can we get a glimpse of that mind? The best way is by a study of His words and doings, for these are the outcome of the mind.

Who can read the words of our Lord to His disciples on the occasion of the last supper and not admit these are the outcome of a mind that never has had an equal on earth? They are certainly not a fable as some would have us believe, for no human mind could have produced them, and to believe that they could have been produced by a human mind, would be to be guilty of greater credulity than the wildest atheists have ever charged us with.

What do we find in the works of our Lord? Rejoicing with them that rejoiced, and weeping with them that wept; going about from place to place, having no settled abode, or, to use His own words, having "nowhere to lay his head;" yet spreading blessings rich and abundant everywhere, by curing all manner of disease, opening the eyes of the blind, raising the dead, and pleading on men to repent and receive the mercy He so freely offered, and finally offering Himself as a sin-offering for the world. Could the human mind ever have invented a hero like this? It never has and never could have.

Well might the Apostle say,—"Let that mind be in you that was in Christ Jesus"—a heavenly mind—a mind so filled with holy affections that there is no room for grosser ones.

We have need of that mind, or as much of it as our evil nature will allow us to attain to, for we have a great battle to fight against sin in us and around us, and I believe that there is a satanic power in the world that we have to resist. This is shown by different parts of the Old Testament. It was shown to be in the earth at the time of Christ and His apostles, and we are told that it will be manifested with great power in the "latter days." Indeed I see no reason to doubt that it has been going on all the time, and at present exists, only we have visible power to expose it. The Apostle tells us that we have to "wrestle not with the flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, and against spiritual wickedness in high places."

How are we to prevail against these powers? Do we find any inherent power in ourselves that is equal to such a task? Certainly not.

We can do nothing of ourselves, but the Lord has promised that His grace will be sufficient for us, and assuredly if we ask that grace we will get it, for the Lord will not leave us to fight an unequal battle. A knowledge of our weakness is given to us that we may be humble before God, and strive against sin, studying to know His holy will, and to improve the means of grace. Such is the purpose of the words we have been considering—"Without Me ye can do nothing." Such was the thought of the Apostle when he penned these words—"I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." "I labor more abundantly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God that was with me." And again—"I can do all things through Christ which strengthened me."

To sum up, all that we have been considering is this, that Christ will influence the hearts of all those that believe in Him and put their trust in Him; that He will assist them in their obedience, and that He will support and comfort them in every time of trial. But while there is one by whose strength we are supported, we are not to be less earnest in our endeavor to secure that strength, to glorify Him for His grace, and rejoice in His mercy and favor. If we continue in His favor, happy are we. Then can we look forward to that glorious day with a joyful heart, when the Lord shall gather together His saints. If we fight the good fight, and keep the faith, in due time we shall receive the glory.

If any of us have any misgivings at any time, let us rest on these words—"Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." We rest on a finished work; our Lord said on the cross, "It is finished," and we have the proof in that God raised Him from the dead. "I am the vine, ye are the branches," says our Lord. What then are we? As long as the branch adheres to the stem or trunk of the tree it is a part of it, all parts of the tree have one life, and draw that life from one source—the roots of the tree. If the branch bear fruit, it is not the branch that is the cause of the fruit, but the stem to which it is attached; let the branch be loosened from the stem, and what will be the result? Not only will it cease to bring forth fruit, but death will be the result; it will only be fit to be burned up.

Do we see the lesson? If we do, let us profit by it. He can live without us, but we cannot live without Him. But we know that He does not wish to live without us; we are precious in His sight. We know that He loves us with a greater and purer love than that of any earthly friend. May the Lord Jesus help us to continue in His love.—Thomas Robertson in Messenger.

Dangerous Medicines.

Professor Virchow, the foremost medical authority of the German Empire, has repeatedly urged moderation in the use of drastic drugs, and holds that some medicines, so-called, have, on the whole done more mischief than good, and ought to be dropped from the list of remedial agents. It would be a good plan to begin with alcoholic drugs. A single prescription of medicated brandy has in many cases led to the relapse of half-reformed drunkards, and rekindled the flames smothered by years of heroic self-control. Tonic bitters have also frequently initiated the alcohol habit, and the history of all epidemics proves that the victims of strong stimulants are especially liable to the risk of contagion. In Southern Asia the plague rages with special virulence among the opium eaters, and in the yellow fever epidemics of the West Indies the mortality among dram drinkers is about twice as large as those of total abstainers. The Mexican Indians who detest alcoholic drinks, are almost fever proof, while the bibulous Creoles die by thousands in spite of abundant opportunities for becoming acclimatized.

* * *

When people give themselves to any Christain service, the money to carry it on comes easily enough, but when they simply give money and expect the cause to go of itself they are usually disappointed.—Watchman.

[illegible] Hindrances from Men.

"Nothing is more painful than disappointment, and doubly so when it arises from quarters which we cannot help esteeming for some excellencies. This is a severe trial in the Christian's walk. He expects when he first enters upon it, that his brethren in one common hope will help him on his road—stimulate him when he is disposed to flag in his career; and comfort him when he is weary. But too much intercourse with them will rather tend to relax his exertions, and to make him loiter by the way. As our great forerunner was "alone, and of the people there was none with him," so is our salvation a personal thing, an individual fight; and of the people there will be none with us. Expect little from men, be they saints or sinners, but hindrances. There are many who, in their vain endeavors to entice the world into the church, fail in that, whilst their conduct is the means of drawing back weak Christians into the world. Though Paul said at one time, "Bring Mark, for he is profitable for the ministry," 2 Tim. iv. 11; he saw at another time that same Mark abandon him, and go not with him to the works. Acts xiii. 13; xv. 38. Though he found Demas ready at one time to join him as a brother in saluting the church at Colosse (chap. iv. 14), he experienced his subsequent desertion through love of this present world, 2 Tim. iv. 10, 11. When the Israelites were determined to reject the Lord, it was Aaron's hands which prepared the idol, Exod. xxxii. 4. The prophet who was sent to Ahab was not to be subdued by the power of the tyrant, nor seduced by the blandishments of the court; but he was ruined by a man of God. There is many a professor now, who would lay down his life for the name of the Lord Jesus, who nevertheless daily betrays him to please the "religious world!"

"Who treads the path that old Spider [illegible],
To turn [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] to [illegible]."

—the religious world is the Capua of the soldiers of the Most High God."

* * *

Thoroughness.

Next to helpfulness one of the most important words in our language is thoroughness. In commending that element of character implied by this word, a bishop once spoke most highly of the practical wisdom of a certain young lady who said she could always tell the character of a young man by the way he blacked the heels of his boots. In nothing is the presence or absence of the element of thoroughness more manifest than in the regard that is paid to little things, the little properties, duties, and services of every day life. He that is faithful in that which is least will also be faithful in much.

The motto of one of the most influential firms of publishers in this country is: "Do it well or not at all." The corner-stone of this great publishing house is said to be built upon this laconic sentiment. The influence for good of an institution inspired by a sentiment so lofty and noble upon the world of letters and consequently upon the world of men can hardly be exaggerated. In business life, as individual character and pursuits, a high purpose in doing well what is given us to do, followed through a series of years, does not fail to accomplish high results. Good work pays, and the payment comes not only in money, but in what is better than money, in influence, in enlightment, in power to help on the progress of the age.

By this we learn that nothing contributes so effectually to strength symmetry of character, to honorable fame and usefulness, as faithful conscientious work. The one who does good work, and never does any other kind, will certainly be a factor of strength and service in whatever department of life he may be placed. This implies having a high purpose in life, and that success gained in harmony with such a purpose is earned success.

* * *

In the 107th Psalm, King David repeats many times, "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men."

GLEANINGS.

God loves beauty of character.

No tears are shed that God does not notice.

There is no smile that God does not mark.

God cares for everything, and sustains everything that is created.

The Savior is pleased to have his children tell him their needs, their trials, cares, sorrows, and fears.

When we doubt God's love, and distrust his promises, we dishonor him, and grieve his Holy Spirit.

Satan is working with all his power and might to obliterate the knowledge of God from the earth.

It is not well to burden our fellow-mortals with our troubles. Christ is our burden-bearer. Tell him.

He who cares for the lilies of the field, and the birds of the air is not indifferent to the wants of his children.

If we ask for blessings that the Giver thinks not best for us, we need not wonder if our prayers seem not to be answered.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young men in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$[illegible]

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Bogle.	25.00

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$10.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation W[illegible],	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

Conference Call.

The quarterly conference of the Churches of God of the Abrahamic Faith will meet northeast of [illegible] two miles, in Brother [illegible] Jackson's neighborhood July 21, 1893, Cowley Co., K[illegible], to continue over Sunday [illegible]. [illegible] the brethren think [illegible]. We hope and entreat all who have an interest in the cause of the Master and are looking for his coming to come to the meeting, for we believe that all intend to be ready [illegible] there is a strong [illegible] growing cold among the true [illegible] that precedes his coming.

We extend a cordial invitation to all [illegible] and other states. There [illegible] to [illegible] and we would [illegible] of the brethren to [illegible] that possible [illegible]. Brethren let us work while we [illegible] that [illegible] approved [illegible] Master, let us be up and doing.

C. F. [illegible], Sec.

[illegible]

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines [illegible] the desirable [illegible] Bedford Springs, Altoona, [illegible] one of the delightful [illegible] in the cool Alleghenies. [illegible] By no other route [illegible] the ideal [illegible] of that romantic mountain [illegible], as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to [illegible] and the way [illegible] leading past [illegible] the Alleghenies [illegible] the famous Horse Shoe Curve [illegible] the [illegible] America's scenic gem. [illegible] Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket, or any of the numerous watering places [illegible] the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine [illegible] trip to the [illegible] Catskills and resorts in [illegible] New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, exceptional facilities for [illegible] journey are offered via this [illegible] route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Ass't General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago, form part of the new equipment.

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:15 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable [illegible] made to [illegible] tingent Fund [illegible] suggest further [illegible] administer [illegible] the [illegible] this will [illegible]

All who [illegible] the "Con[illegible] send remit[illegible] this offi[illegible] ceipts wil[illegible] deceived [illegible] Publicati[illegible] of donat[illegible]

We wi[illegible] subscribe[illegible] year 189[illegible] the fund [illegible] ployed [illegible] size [illegible] from the [illegible] secure [illegible] lation.

[illegible]

Prev[illegible]

J. S. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

J. [illegible] Ind.

J. W. Niles, [illegible] Pa.

H. Hayes, [illegible] on-M[illegible], England.

[illegible]

T[illegible]

A [illegible] Watson [illegible] office.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

[illegible]

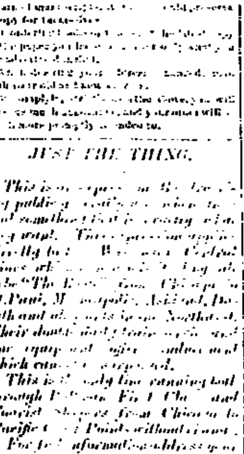
JUST THE THING.

This is [illegible] public [illegible] want. [illegible] Lines [illegible] the "The [illegible] Chicago to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, Duluth and all [illegible] Northwest. Their [illegible] dining [illegible] which can [illegible].

This is the only line running both through [illegible] First Class and Tourist Sleepers from Chicago to Pacific Coast Points without change.

For [illegible] information address your nearest ticket agent or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen. Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Convenient Terminal [illegible] all Points North, West and [illegible] Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, [illegible] Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

[illegible]

LIST OF CHURCHES.

[illegible]

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

[illegible]

Local Time Table.

[illegible]

AND

In Plymouth, Ind. [illegible]

[illegible]

CHAS. F. DALY, [illegible]

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

[illegible] NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. [illegible]	[illegible] pm	For St. Joseph.
No. [illegible]	[illegible] pm	"
No. 54, "	[illegible] am	For South Bend.

[illegible] SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51 Ex. Sun	[illegible] am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	[illegible] pm	"
No. 55, "	[illegible] pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. Chesbrough,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

FOR [illegible]

Twenty-five Cents.

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for [illegible]

[illegible]

NICKEL PLATE.

[illegible] EAST WEST DAILY.

[illegible] DINING CARS

[illegible] NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO. TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

[illegible]

W[illegible] good help with a supply of [illegible]. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

[illegible]

1. The Inspiration of the Bible. H. L. H. 5 cts.
[illegible]
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. 15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible. 10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament. 5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant. 30 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses." 5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers. 5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament. 15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H. 5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Gazing. [illegible] 15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution. " 15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life. " 10 cts.
13. Darwinism. " 15 cts.
14. Number in Nature. by Edward White. 5 cts.
15. [illegible] and Arithmetic. by H. L. H. 15 cts.
16. Israel's Exodus. by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet. by H. L. H. 5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law. by H. L. H. 10 cts.
19. The Separated Nation. by H. L. H. 10 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack. by H. L. H. 5 cts.
21. A Warning Word to [illegible] Infidels. 5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations. by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings. by [illegible] Ramsey. 5 cts.
24. [illegible] Spirits. by Mrs. [illegible] 5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved. by W. [illegible] 5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan. by [illegible] 5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H. 5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits. by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses. by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism. by H. L. H. 5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism. 5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that covers the [illegible] skeptical [illegible] as well."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 27, 24, etc., 6 cts. [illegible] [illegible] Sent [illegible] to the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

[illegible]

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N.Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA. JULY 26, 1893. NO. 28.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT RAMSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILSEY,
GEORGE ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential to final salvation.

Poetry.

Where the Day Begins.

Where does the day begin? where may it be?
Not on the mountain tops, not on the sea:
Somewhere beyond them, somewhere before them,
Shines the sweet light, ere the morning breaks o'er them.
Peak that is highest, island that lies
Farthest away, in the purple-rimmed sea,
Where does the day begin? where may it be?

Out of the bosom of God comes the day.
Flood of his tenderness, nothing can stay:
Love that, out-springing, sets the world singing,
Steeples ablaze, and the silver bells ringing!
Infinite motion of infinite ocean
Light but the symbol that broadens for aye,
Out of the bosom of God comes the day.

Original.

John's 3rd Epistle.

1. The Elder unto the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.

2. Beloved, above all things do I pray that thou continue to prosper and be well even as thy soul is being prospered.

3. Moreover I was very thankful when the brethren came and testified to thy truth even as thou art walking in truth.

4. I have no greater joy than this that I hear of my children walking in the truth.

5. Beloved, thou art doing an act of faith in whatever thou mayest do to the brethren and that too to strangers.

6. Who have testified to thy love in the presence of the church, whom thou wilt do well to have forwarded in a manner worthy of God.

7. For the name's sake have they gone out taking nothing from the people of the nations.

8. We then ought to help such that we may become co-workers with the church.

9. I wrote something to the church: but their Diotrephes who desireth to take the first rank doth not accept us.

10. Therefore if I come I will remind him of his doings trifling with us with wicked words; and not satisfied with these neither doth he himself accept the brethren, and he preventeth those who are willing to and he putteth out of the church.

11. Beloved, do not imitate the evil but the good. The one who is doing good is of God: The one who is doing evil hath not seen God.

12. Demetrios hath been testified to by all and by the truth itself; and we also testify, and thou knowest that our testimony is true.

13. I had many things to write to thee; but I do not intend to write thee with ink and pen;

14. But I hope straightway to see thee and we will talk mouth to mouth.

15. Peace be unto thee. The friends greet thee. Do thou greet the friends by name.

COMMENT.

This epistle seems to have been addressed more particularly to a certain member of a Greek Christian church, judging from the names and certain other ear-marks rather than to the whole church, probably for the reason that Diotrephes had a following sufficient to make things unpleasant for the rest of the church, and so that John's party in the church, could use their discretion in holding it as a club over Diotrephes and his party. There are some "first-principles as they are in Christ" as Paul calls them asserted here which we will do well to heed and reflect upon. Bear in mind that John is an —επισκοπος— or "bishop" as the church understands the term now, and is writing in his official capacity in all three of these epistles. He has the same "keys" that the Catholic church has assumed to be in the hands of St. Peter alone, and with this commission call to mind the great "official-power" entrusted to the twelve. "What they should loose on earth should be loosed in heaven and what they should bind on the earth should be bound in heaven" —in short an official power even of life and death, at least natural life and death, which we see asserted in the case of Annanias and Sappheira. They all understood though that they were to use this "official-power" in mercy rather than in severity. They had experienced mercy themselves and they were not to forget it. So John tells Gaios "to remind" Diotrephes and his ilk and says that when he comes himself he will "remind" him. Remind him of what, think you? No doubt of this unlimited power in his hands. Diotrephes and his party are to be reminded that they are "trifling" with God and his vice-gerents. Then what a stab John gives to false-leadership and "chief-seat" hunters and how he asserts "the helping-hand" gospel. Again what a withering rebuke he gives the modern church in its universal attitude of mendicency through the world, leaning on and soliciting help of the unconverted "the people of the nations" instead of husbanding its own resources, fully consecrating them to God and looking to God for anything they lack, as "royal people for his name" should do in its spiritual warfare against "the world, (cosmos) the flesh and the Diabolos." Stand to the front yourselves is John's exortation, and "forward" the brethren who are doing it especially "strangers." No nonsense and frauds to be tolerated though. See to it that they are attested witnesses, that they have shown themselves "faithful" and that too not by talk merely. The test was what have they done that can be accounted "acts of faith." What Christian work per se have they helped on and forwarded, not what general work of philanthropy have they done. Have they sought the kingdom of God first? This was the question to be always uppermost in the mind of the novitiate of that day. "Do good and not evil." This was the first postulate, and the second was "Do good unto all men; but especially unto those who are of the household of faith." This implied that if your means and opportunities were limited and you had to choose which, the good to the household of faith must be uppermost. Notice again that John always calls himself "an elder" and leaves the episcopacy to be taken for granted. Paul did the same thing. "Bossing" was an unpopular thing in the early church. They found it a very difficult thing to reconcile bossing with the "stand fast in the liberty unto which ye have been called." They had come out from under a yoke and they had had all the bossing they wanted for at least one generation. They fully realized however that "authority" and "official-power" could not be ignored, and how to assert them in love, was the great new problem inaugurated to be solved. See how John and Paul wrestle with it from different standpoints. They understand it themselves; but how to make it clear to "the sheep" and how to so assert the new principle of the new kingdom that it might take root and grow in the earth was a labor compared with which the fabled labors of Hercules were child's play. The apostasy which began to assert itself even in John's day is still the living witness to the Herculean struggle. How to assert "authority" and "official power" without judging and condemning as "the Gentiles" and "God's people" even had always done, how to "labor and to wait" and to leave all judgment to "the Judge of all the earth" was difficult for even the twelve to learn under divine inspiration and leading. To keep right on doing good even to your enemies and leave the result to God—has the church learned this first-principle yet? Or has it learned another just as vital, namely to assert the truth under all circumstances to become faithful witnesses for God and his kingdom in the world, and take the consequences? There would be more "martyrs" I imagine in this day of apostasy if this were true. Don't make the mistake of supposing that John was a mere sentimentalist, going around telling people to love one another without any sense or reason, and patting everybody on the back alike. Remember that he was "a son of thunder" naturally, and was one of those who wanted to call the lightning of God's wrath down on some who were doing good even in a way different from what he understood it ought to be done. No, John had simply learned how to love as God loves better than any of the rest of the twelve, and he had learned it by leaning on Jesus' breast.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Son of God.

"He is thy Lord; and worship thou him." —Psa. xlv. 11.

Having shown that the Father is the First, and the Son is the Second person of the divine nature, it may not be a waste of time, perhaps, to glance briefly at what several modern writers have said concerning Christ.

Alexander Campbell, president of Bethany College, Va., in 1835, says, "By him and for him all things were created and made; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist. But he became flesh. Who? He that existed before the universe, whose mysterious, sublime, and glorious designation was the WORD of God. Before the Christian system, before the relation of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit began to be, his rank in the divine nature was that of the Word of God. Wonderful name! Intimate and dear relation! The relation between a word and the idea which it represents is the nearest of all relations in the universe: for the idea is in the word—and the word is in the idea. The idea is invisible, inaudible, unintelligible but in and by the word. An idea cannot be without an image or a word to represent it—and therefore God was never without his word, nor was his word without him. "The Word was with God, and the Word was God"—for a word is the idea expressed—and thus the word that was made flesh, became 'the brightness of his glory and the express image of his person,' insomuch that 'he who has seen the Son has seen the Father also,' . . . . The Word incarnate or dwelling in human flesh, is the person called our Lord and Redeemer, Jesus Christ. . . . The Lord God of Shem, of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, is the God and Lord of Christians: for 'the child' that has been born to us—and 'the son' that has been given, according to another prophet, came from eternity. 'His goings forth have been from of old from everlasting.' Such is the evangelical history of the Christian system as to his antecedent nature in the Deity or Godhead. He became a true and proper 'Son of Man.' 'A body has thou prepared me.' But the 'me' was before 'the body.' It dwelt forever in 'the bosom of the Father.' 'I came forth from God,' said the Incarnate Word. Great beyond expression and 'without controversy, great is the mystery—the secret of godliness, 'God was manifest in the flesh.' 'He that has seen me has seen the Father also.' The Son of Man was and is the Son of God—'Emanuel God with us.' Adored be his name! The one God in the person of the Father, has commanded all men to worship and honor the one Lord, as they would honor him that sent him: for now in glorifying the Son, we glorify the Father that sent him and that dwells in him. Know ye not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? Thus spake our Lord Jesus Christ." Christian System, pages 23, 24.

Dr. John Thomas, commenting on Jno. i. 1, says concerning God (Theos) and the Word (Logos), "Here was companionship and identity—'the Logos was with the Theos, and Theos was the Logos.' Never was there a conceivable point of time, or eternity, when the one existed without the other, Prov. viii. 22.... This may be illustrated by the relation of reason, or intelligence and speech, to brain, as affirmed in the proposition, no brain,—no thought, reason, nor intelligence. Call the brain Theos; and thought, reason, and understanding intelligently expressed, Logos; and the relation and independency of Theos and Logos, in John's use of the terms, may readily be conceived.... Now, Theos was the Logos, says John; that is, Deity was the Word; and this Word became flesh in the manner testified. Was the product, therefore, not Deity? Did the union of spirit and flesh annihilate that spirit, and leave only flesh? Was the holy thing born a mere son of Adam? or 'the fellow' and 'equal' of the Deity? The latter unquestionably. Zech. xiii. 7; Jno. v. 18; Phil. ii. 12....The resurrected Jesus can now say, in every sense of the words, 'I and the Father are One.'"—Eureka, Vol. i., pages 90, 91, and Vol. iii., 883.

Adam Clarke, on Jno. i. 3, says, "In Gen. 1, God is said to have created all things: in this verse Christ is said to have created all things: the same unerring Spirit spoke in Moses and in the evangelist: therefore Christ and the Father are ONE."

But these writers are no decisive authority. Let us, therefore, hew to the line that Scripture has made for us; and if, in so doing, the lines of Trinitarians, Unitarians, Socinians, Campbell, Thomas, Clarke, or any other uninspired writer be hewn away and lost among the chips, it will surely be no fault of ours. "To the law and testimony! if they speak not according to this word, surely there is no morning for them." Isa. viii. 20. R. V. Let us, therefore hearken to both classes of texts—those concerning His divine as well as those concerning His human nature.

TESTIMONIES CONCERNING HIS DIVINE NATURE.

1. The Son testifies, "I and the Father are one." Jno. x. 30, R. V. and Diaglott. I think this means "one" divinity (Theion) or divine nature, for "the Word was God" before the human nature was created. True unity of will without unity of nature is something inconceivable. Hence, the unity of believers with Christ depends for its completeness on the participation of the divine nature to be communicated to them at His coming. Jno. xvii. 11, 21, 22; 2 Pet. i. 4.

The Word that was God "tabernacled" among us (Jno. i. 1, 14 margin of R. V.): but when His enemies came and inquired at "the temple of his body," saying, "Who art thou?" and heard the sublime and awful response, "I and the Father are One," they were enraged and sought to "destroy this temple." But He himself raised it up, as He had foretold them, "In three days I will raise it up." Jno. ii. 19, 21; viii. 25; x. 30. No mere man could raise his own body from the dead,—it is "God who quickeneth the dead." Therefore Christ is God. Rom. iv. 17.

But the unbelievers could not bear to hear Him claim oneness with the Father. Thinking Him to be a mere man "they took up stones to stone him," saying, "Thou being a man makest thyself God." Jno. x. 30-33. The trouble with them was that they "judged after the flesh," that is, according to "the thinking of the flesh" or "the carnal mind." Such a mind revolted against the idea of Christ being God, and one with the Father. Jno. viii. 19; Rom. viii. 7. Because "Jesus Christ came in the flesh," they thought he was mere flesh; not knowing that "God was manifest in the flesh" which they saw before them, and which was the personal and living "temple" of the Father, as He said, "The Father is in me, and I in him." 1 Tim. iii. 16; Jno. x. 38. I would state here, parenthetically, that the expression "is come in the flesh," in the third verse of Jno. iv. is omitted from the R. V., the Diaglott, and the Am. Bible Union's version. The entire verse in the Revised Version reads, "And every spirit which confesseth not Jesus is not of God: and this is the spirit of the antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it cometh: and now is in the world already."

2. "Thy throne O God is for ever." Heb. i. 8. Most clearly Christ is called God. Prophets call Him "Our God." "The Mighty God," "The Lord my God." Isa. ix. 6; xxv. 9; Zec. xiv. 5. Apostles call Him "God with us," "My Lord and my God," "The true God and Eternal Life." Mat. i. 23; Jno. xx. 28; 1 Jno. v. 20.

Here two questions might be asked, 1st, How then does the Son call the Father "The only true God?" (Jno. xvii. 3), and 2nd, If Christ was God, how could He die?

In reply to the first question I answer that the supposed conflict vanishes when we remember those other words of the Son, "I and the Father are ONE;" and that the true God is spoken of here in contrast with heathen idols. Compare I Jno. v. 20, 21. And so when the Father says, "Beside me there is no God," and "Besides me there is no Savior" (Isa. xliv. 6; xliii. 11), the key of harmony is the Hebrew word rendered "beside," which signifies without, and is so rendered in Isa. xxxvi. 10.—"Am I now come up without the Lord against this land?" And in Jer. xliv. 19, where the idolatrous women ask, "Did we make her cakes to worship her, and pour out drink offerings unto her without our men?" Also in Gen. xli. 44, the root of this word is used where Pharaoh says to Joseph, "And without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt." The Son is not a separate God and Savior "beside" or without the Father, for they are ONE,—the Father in the Son, and the Son in the Father. In perfect harmony with all this we read, "The Lord our God is one Lord." Deut. vi. 4

The answer to the second question is easily given, but let that remain till we come to the testimonies concerning the human nature of our Lord.

3. "He is thy Lord; and worship thou him." Psa. xlv. 11. "Lord," in the common version, is often printed in capitals to show us that the Hebrew of it is Jehovah. And it is so printed several times where Christ is meant, showing that this awful and sacred name of the Father is applied to the Son also. Compare Isa. vi. 3-2 with Jno. xii. 41. Isaiah was speaking of Christ when he said, "Mine eyes have seen the King the LORD of hosts." And Mal. iii. 1, with Mark i. 2; and Lu. vii. 27. Is it not evident that the "me" in the first part of the verse is "the LORD of hosts" in the last? and that Christ is the One for whom this way was prepared? And Psa. xcvii. 6-7 with Heb. i. 6. Is it not evident that Christ is the "him" whom all angels worship, and "the LORD" at whose presence the hills will melt like wax? Also Jer. xxiii. 6 with 1 Cor. i. 30.

"Now, "It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Mat. iv. 10. But there is no idolatry, nor having of "other gods" (Ex. xx. 3) implied in the command to worship the Son, for He is [illegible] our "Lord" and our "God" (Jno. xx. 28), and is to be worshipped as one with the Father who has given Him a participation of His own name, "the name which is above every name; that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things on earth, and things under the earth, and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." Phil. ii. 9-11.

While the Scriptures teach us to worship and serve "the Lord Christ" (Col. iii. 24; Psa. xlv. 11), they express abhorrence of worshipping a mere man. Ac. x. 25, 26; xiv. 13; Rom. i. 25.

(To be Continued.)

WILEY JONES.

Dear Restitution:

We want to tell you of our visit among the Ill. brethren. From them came the invitation to attend their conference, and Bro. Renner wrote come a day early and rest and see the brethren before meeting begins. We appreciated his thoughtfulness and started Wednesday morning, June 21st, reaching there at six the same evening, found Bro. Renner awaiting us, and also found a cordial welcome from Sister Renner and Sister Gans when we reached their home.

Meeting commenced Friday evening with a good audience and we found the brethren all awake and with the love of the cause uppermost in their minds and although they have had many cruel reverses they are still strong in the faith, and are anxiously waiting for the King's return. We stayed after the conference closed and spoke every evening and four times the following Sunday. The meetings were very interesting throughout as many came who were much prejudiced against our belief. This feeling was partially overcome when the people understood that we believed and preached the record God had given of his Son and a Godly, prayerful Christian life as essential to salvation.

Some outside parties had proposed to the brethren to sell the little church and join some one of the six or seven churches in their midst, but Bro. Glotfelty arose at the close of the last meeting and decided the matter emphatically by saying, As long as we live this building will be used to preach the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we all said, amen, amen.

At the close of the meeting we received many words of loving encouragement and we felt that not only they but we were strengthened to work on. We returned to our home feeling that other ties of love and Christian friendship had been formed never to be broken. Our visit there will ever be remembered as one the bright spots in our lives. The brethren were not forgetful of our necessities and liberally gave for the support of the work.

We reached our home July 4th, and have been very busy answering correspondence, with considerable other writing performing the necessary housework, and with it all each of us have had the sad duty of preaching two funeral sermons, and to-day Sunday July 16th, the Elder performed the pleasant work of baptizing two dear ones into the Christ—Glen Pallett and Gertie Eyre, may God give us strength to continue our work.

B. W. & M. A. WOODWARD.

A Blotted Out Family.

The father of thirteen children said to Dr. Lees, "Doctor, how is it all my children die in decline when young? None of them reached more than twenty. My wife was not unhealthy, and see what a stout man I am."

The doctor informed him that drink had destroyed the beginnings of life, so that he had transmitted a corrupt type to his children. This is nature's law; and when it is violated she exacts fearful penalty.

Dr. Lees had taken supper with four doctors and two lawyers at St. [illegible] when one of the doctors said he thought the effect of drink had been exaggerated.

"Why do you think so, sir?" said Dr. Lees.

"O," says he, "We have such cases of free drinkers who, nevertheless, are in good health. A friend of mine only the other day told me he had drank at least a bottle of wine a day for the last fifty years."

"What is your argument?"

"That wine cannot be so bad a thing as you represent, when a man is so hale at eighty after drinking so much."

"Now for your opinion," said the lawyer.

"Well," said Dr. Lees, "I cannot give you my opinion without knowing the facts. This gentleman lives in a good situation?"

"Yes, the best in town."

"He lives well and not extravagantly?"

"Just so."

"And what sort of a lady is his wife?"

"Oh, she is a very moderate woman."

"Pretty healthy?"

"Yes."

"Well, I should think, then, you have not much to do in this family?"

"O, yes," said the doctor, "but I have."

"What family have they?"

"Oh, they have had eleven."

"Indeed! How many have they now?"

"Six."

"That is very strange," said Dr. Lees; "I suppose you believe in the law that like produces like? Is there any more certain principle in physiology than that good food produces good structures, and good structure transmits good structures. When parents are healthy, the children must be healthy."

"I cannot deny that," said the doctor.

"Now," said Dr. Lees, "there is something to be accounted for—six children are living, five are dead. But what is the condition of the six?"

"Oh, for that matter," said he, they are hipped, nervous."

Oh," said a lady over the table, "you know Miss——was touched in the head."

"And Mr. George," said another, "was in the asylum; and William, you know, is certainly queer."

"Gentlemen," said Dr. Lees, "without going further, nothing is more certain than that some great and serious law of life has been violated; and upon the face of it, the one bottle of wine a day for fifty years may have been the agent. That is my case."

A silence followed.

Within a few years all that family was cut off. The father died of apoplexy, and the rest of the family were cut off in early life.—Bombay Guardian.

How to read the Bible.

Luther used to teach his children to read the Bible in the following way: First to read through one book carefully, then to study chapter by chapter, and then verse by verse, and then word by word; for he said: "It is like a person shaking a fruit tree; first shaking the tree and gathering up the fruit which falls to the ground, then shaking each branch, and afterward each twig of the branch, and last of all looking carefully under each leaf to see that no fruit remains. In this way, and in no other, shall we also find the hidden treasures that are in the Bible.—Young People's Paper.

[illegible]

EDITORIAL STAFF:

Directors of the C. P. Association.

N. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 20, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

THERE are times in the lives of mortal men when sorrows and trials come, that seem to all but crush out brightness and make bright hope even appear darkness itself. Such a time has come to our beloved Brother L. E. Conner. Leaving his home, last Saturday forenoon, with wife and family in usual health apparently, he got so far as Peru, Ind., and while waiting to take the train for Warren County to preach, received a dispatch saying to return home as his wife was dead. She was attacked about eleven o'clock, while engaged in her household duties, with a pain in her head, caused probably by the rupture of a blood vessel, and died before one o'clock. The funeral was held on Monday, July 24. Brothers Geiselman and Wagoner conducting the services. Friends from Hedrick, Rensselaer, Argos and Plymouth attended the funeral, and the vast concourse of relatives and friends from the neighborhood, give testimony of the esteem of all for the dear one gone, and sympathy for the bereaved living ones. Brother Conner, you and the little children left motherless, with father and mother, brothers and sister, are assured of the sympathy of every reader of our paper. We know it is feeble consolation, but we offer it, as all we can do in this hour of sorrow. Friends can write to Bro. Conner at Mary, Ind. and give personal testimony of your fellow feeling and Christian love and sympathy.

THE Annual Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, was appointed to be held with the Church in Warren County, the time to be announced. The friends in Warren County have arranged the time to be over the last Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before. As they are anxious to have a good attendance we make this partial notice, and the Secretary will make his regular announcement later. The way to get there is by way of the Wabash R. R. running through Peru, going to West Lebanon. The place of meeting is a few miles from this point, but by sending word to Harry Evans Jr. at Hedrick, Ind., you will be met and cared for properly. We hope the friends will make an effort and attend this meeting, as they are anxious to entertain you, and as this is the first time our Conference has been called for this place, we all should try and make it successful.

KIND words to the worn and weary, and disappointed, and bereaved ones, never fail of appreciation; and besides that, it often paves the way for pouring in "the balm of Gilead," so to speak. There are few who fail to find life an uphill journey; and he who has a heart to feel another's woes in this life, can generally get very close to people with the good message of future life. Make a note of this; it may prove to be a check upon the bank of heaven for you.

THE "Recorder" of New York says there has been a secret conclave of "Bolting Presbyterian Ministers" in that city, from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Rhode Island, at which it was resolved to take immediate steps to circulate a protest against the General Assembly's action on the B[illegible] matter, the same to be signed by Presbyterians of the more advanced school all over the country. We are persuaded if it comes to a "split" it will be quite a respectable split, not a mere splinter. More and more the fruit of no-matter-what you believe doctrine is being gathered;--Higher criticism grows on that tree. Let them split. They have a right to split if they want to. There is nothing to hinder them. It is only a human institution,—humans have a right to overhaul their own work to suit themselves. They are not amenable to the law of God's household, because they do not belong to it—have never been adopted into it. We say this seriously and sorrowfully. We find nothing about the Presbyterian church in our book; and more than that, the gospel of Christ, or the Anointed, is repudiated by them. Yea, although it is said by Paul to be God's saving power, they pass it by, as not essential, and indeed nature, for the reason that they hold something else to be the essential gospel. As both of these contending parties have been teaching us that it does not matter what we believe, if we are only sincere, the wonder is, what they want to split for? Did the General Assembly adjudge Briggs to be insincere? We saw no such accusation. And if it cannot be governed by the no-matter-what-you-believe doctrine it is about time to quit preaching it to others.

In the 17th of John Jesus teaches that only truth sanctifies. Can Presbyterians with the fountains of truth in their hand point to one unadulterated truth in all their creed? With another God, and with a Jesus, but no Christ,—with a heaven of their own invention, and to which they go without promise or invitation, instead of accepting the kingdom on earth God is sworn to give those of faith; and with pardon just for the asking, without regard to God's law of pardon, and with undying natures without obligation to Christ.

They are all in this boat, and it is the greatest folly for them to split. They will land together at last—why quarrel over their little differences? It makes no difference what men believe if they do not believe the truth of God. They all belong to one church who do not believe God's truth, and it is a numerous one; they have plenty of company, and all the splits take place because of thirst for position and authority.

THE years roll around and men keep dreaming of "the good time coming boys," and wind up with "wait a little longer." Hope has wonderful sustaining power, even when it has no foundation. If men think their hope is well grounded it answers every present purpose; but what of the future? The "Good time coming" so long deferred and so ardently hoped for will never come, because they ignore a Divine intervention; and persist that they can devise means to usher it in, although utter failure has characterized the past. Men of clear worldly sight say little about the good time coming. Lord Beaconsfield in one of his last addresses said he could hear the moan of a tempest on the horizon. And John Bright could see no augury but that of darkness and calamity ahead.

Jerusalem!

People often speak of "Palestine," and "Jerusalem," and the "Holy Land," and "Canaan," with reverence, and thousands spend time and means to visit that land because of its past history. The cradle of the human family was that region, and Jehovah has often revealed himself to men in awful power and grandeur and love and mercy there, that all who believe the Bible history have a sacred regard for both the land and city. Especially does the life and death of Jesus add to their interest. But it is all in the past; it has no future to interest the religious world of this age. We are not guessing at this. Not one in a hundred of the entertaining books of travel deal in anything but the past, although the authors of many of them claim to be ministers of the gospel. Our readers will remember that Dr. Talmage not long since visited that land and gave us the benefit of it in his published discourses. And if he knows nothing certain of God's purpose in regard to that land we may look in vain for it among the masses.

The truth is, our religious leaders have so far gone out of the way that they do not know man's origin, nature or destiny. And having decided without revelation that man is inherently immortal, and must and will live forever,—for aught they know he may have lived from all eternity, as a part of God; and it becomes easy to think that one of so exalted a nature as that has for some mysterious purpose been imprisoned here for a short time only, and will presently return to its native clime.

Of course they know little of the future of Jerusalem, and care less, —and unless we can convince them that God by Moses has given us the true history of man they are impervious to all other truth of God. If we attempt to instruct them on any other point whatever, this heathen superstition will stand squarely across the track of truth; and beside that, it will be like beginning in the middle and ending nowhere, because it is impossible to find medicine for immortals in a book sent to men formed of dust and sentenced back to dust.

But amid all the infidelity we are surrounded with it is pleasant to know that Jerusalem is the city of the Anointed One. See Zech. ix. 9, and Matt. xxi. 1-7 and because Jerusalem was his city he forbad his friends to swear by it, see Matt. v. 35.

The manifestation of God's glory upon earth is associated with the future of Jerusalem. No other meaning can be taken out of Is. lxv. 18. "Be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create: for behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her, nor the voice of crying. There are no contingencies here. It is absolute promise: and the fulfilment is yet future.

Is. xl. 2, is equally clear upon this subject. It says: "Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplish, her iniquity is pardoned, for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins." The proof that this speaks of the future of Jerusalem is found in the fact that the double of her sins is still being dealt out to her.

Is. lii. 1, 2, says, "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O, Zion, put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city, for henceforth there shall no more come unto thee the uncircumcised and the unclean. Shake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bonds of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion."

Jesus bespeak a future for his city in Luke xxi. 24, where he intimates that it will not be trodden down of the Gentiles after the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

And reader, do you realize that your salvation is connected with the glory of that land and city. If you do not, it is time you did. Read Is. lxvi. 10-14 beginning with: "Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her ALL YE THAT LOVE HER: etc.

Read that Jerusalem will be the throne of the Lord, Jer. iii. 17; Is. xxiv. 23.

See that divine glory will be established there forever. Is. xxxiii. 20, and Ezek. xlviii. 35. These testimonies believed will steady you amid the turmoil and infidelity and confusions of the last days. Amen.

Selected.

Moses Gathered unto his People.

[illegible] and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people."—Deut. xxxii. 50.

This passage was brought under our notice in a sermon at a watering place where we happened to be spending a few holidays. The speaker said some very good and just things regarding the great leader of the children of Israel, but it was sadly marred to our ears towards the close, by the use made of the phrase "gathered unto thy people," which was taken to mean, not the simple burial of the body of Moses, but the taking away of his spirit or soul there and then to the heavenly Canaan to join the "spirits of just men made perfect." We are quite satisfied that no such meaning would ever have been attached to the phrase without the previous conception of souls thus departing to glory at death, and the very slightest examination of the context, and of the use made elsewhere in Scripture of the same phrase, should satisfy anyone that it can by no means bear such an interpretation.

Here let us note one or two reasons for our saying so:--

The assumption is that the gathering of Moses to his people was equivalent to his being called away to enjoy the living presence of his departed ancestors in an active, conscious state, in some distant land called the "heavenly Canaan." The context, however, at once corrects such an idea, for this was not the first intimation which Moses received from Jehovah of his coming death. In Deut. xxxi. 16, "the Lord said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers." This distinctly contradicts the idea of departing into an active, conscious state existence, for such is not sleep and if we take the marginal reading of "sleep," viz., "lie down," it as plainly points to the grave as the place where Moses was to be with his fathers.

If it should be contended that the phrases "sleep with thy fathers," and "gathered unto thy people," do not refer to or mean the same thing, then we would refer the objector to the prediction and fulfilment of Abraham's death. The prediction reads thus: "Thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age" (Gen. xv. 15). Here again we may see that the going to his fathers meant Abraham's burial. The fulfilment is thus recorded: "Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man and full of years; and was gathered to his people" (Gen. xxv. 8).

This is more than confirmed by what we read of King David. We read in 1 Kings ii. 1, that the days of David drew nigh that he should die;" and then in verse 10, "So David slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David." To this witness of the Old Testament we can add that of the apostle Paul, who said: "David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption:" and added by way of strong contrast: "But He, whom God raised again, saw no corruption." Study this language carefully and it must establish two things:-1st. That the state to which David went was death, and corruption, and it is this state which is called sleeping with his fathers. 2nd. That David is not alive, but his Lord and ours is. That is the great contrast between David and Christ that the apostle Paul draws; and if we suppose that the former is now enjoying all the felicities of the "heavenly Canaan," we destroy the force and power of the Apostle's reasoning, and, practically David is placed upon an equal footing with the Lord Jesus as regards life, having attained that without resurrection which his Lord could only obtain through resurrection. There are not two Davids, one lying in the City of David, and the other in glory. Of this we have most positive assurance from the Apostle Peter in Acts ii. 29, where his words are:-"Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day." Then he made the same contrast as the Apostle Paul regarding the raised up of Christ, and continues in verse 34,-"For David is not ascended into the heavens." If he is not in the heavens, where is he? He is "dead and buried," and, as he himself said, his flesh is resting in hope of that resurrection from death which has been fulfilled so far only in the person of his Lord. This resurrection is on that very account a thing made sure, and so death is fitly termed a "sleep."

Then, again, the idea which we referred to at the outset as attached to the phrase "gathered to thy people," supposes that the "people" of Moses, or of any other one of whom the same thing may be said, are righteous, God-fearing people like himself, who have preceded him into the kingdom of the just. As far as Moses' fathers are concerned this might pass muster, but in cannot hold good elsewhere. Take the instance of Abraham. What were his fathers? We do not know much about them, but we know they were idolaters, and Abraham was called to be separate from them. Consider, also, that of Solomon, and Rehoboam, and Asa, and others, it is said they "slept with their fathers." Solomon we know departed from the Lord in his latter days, whilst Rehoboam and Asa were altogether wicked kings. Are these all passed away into the "heavenly Canaan?" Surely not. It is quite evident that the being gathered unto one's people means no more than what we commonly say now-a-days of a person who has just died, that he has "gone the way of all flesh." So Jacob, when he felt his end was near, said to his sons:-"I am to be gathered unto my people: bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite" (Gen. xlix. 29).

Furthermore, as regards Moses himself, the idea that he was called away to the "heavenly Canaan," of which Palestine was but the earthly type, introduces a palpable absurdity, into which the preacher unwittingly fell. For, in dwelling upon the words of God to Moses:—"I have caused thee to see it (the promised land) with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither" (Deut. xxxiv. 4), and in trying to draw a parallel between the death of Moses and that of many of God's people now, whom he pictured as being brought also in sight of the earthly Canaan and then, being suddenly cut off, they are told to enter into the true, and heavenly Canaan; whereas the words to Moses are "thou shalt not go over thither." There is no parallel, but rather a contrast here, and something is introduced which is certainly not in the text. But is it not absurd to think that Moses was punished for his sin at Meribah by being kept out of the earthly Canaan to be immediately ushered into "the better land," the "heavenly Canaan?" Such is the difficulty into which we will always be landed when we seek to incorporate heathen dogmas with the pure Word of God. For the preacher owes his obscurity upon this phrase we have been considering solely to having adopted the platonic dogma of the immortality of the soul, upon which the Bible is entirely silent.

The land which was promised to the fathers of Israel was that upon which they trod, and sojourned as pilgrims and strangers; but they never received it as a possession. Yet God promised it to them, and His promise will be fulfilled to them in the day of resurrection, when the great Seed of Abraham and David, the King of Israel Himself, shall return to "reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before His ancients gloriously." - Messenger.

Whisperings.

There is a great deal connected with the character-destroying processes of American society that is not within the reach of ordinary remedies. It is the whispering, the back-biting, the tale-bearing, the saying of a little here and a little there, that is so dangerous to human character. A word dropped here and there, a suspicion aroused affecting one's honesty or purity, will often do untold damage. Such conduct reminds one of the man who is said to have sowed a little thistle-down near his own home. It was an utter stranger to the soil of all that region. But when it grew, the winds carried the seeds hither and thither, and the noxious weed was multiplied by the thousands. And likewise the winds of talk, of idle gossip, of tale-bearing, scatter the seeds of mischief and sorrow and ruin throughout a community. A miserable story goes the rounds and one cannot tell who is his slanderer. He is told that "everybody is talking about it." In many instances he might as well try to reach the sun with reindeer and dog as to discover the real offender, or to unravel the web which has been woven by gossipy and slanderous tongues. This great evil would be materially abated if people would refuse to listen to gossips and scandal mongers. "As the north wind driveth away rain, so doth the angry countenance a back-biting tongue."

Mr. Spurgeon declared that in robbery of reputation as in all other kinds of thievery, "the receiver is as bad as the thief." And Dr. Smith, an eminent clergyman of a former time, was of the opinion that both should be hung, one by the ear, and the other by the tongue. But unfortunately a large and willing audience is usually given to the words of a slanderer. One is just as anxious to hear as the other is to tell. Like the strangers and Athenians, their delight is to hear and to tell some new thing. "I heard something to-day so strange about Mr. A. or Mr. B." "Why, did you? What was it?" "I'll tell if you will promise never to tell anybody." The hearer might as well try to hold a coal of fire on his tongue as to keep that secret. It won't be fifteen minutes until another person has heard the same story a little more highly colored. It may effect a family, a husband and wife, a man who is the embodiment and illustration of integrity, a woman who is "chaste as ice and pure as snow." And what is the result? A reputation is tarnished, a character is smirched, the happiness of a family is destroyed, a community is rent with discord, a church is divided and distracted. Mid-Continent.

Almost Brings an European War.

PARIS, July 22. The opinion often expressed here that some question of little or no importance may yet set Europe on fire has almost been realized, for in the Siamese affair England and France enter into a conflict with each other, and already Europe is manifesting disquietude. Nothing is now spoken of except the movements of the fleets and the grouping of the powers. Russia has given the French Government to understand that it will approve of everything in the policy of France in Siam. On the other hand, Italy has asked England why there was not a need for Italian ironclads in the China Sea. Germany so far has remained quiet, but to-day there was some talk about sending a German ironclad to protect German interests, which are really important, in Siam. Therefore, as in all great questions, Russia and France are together against all the other powers. The French Minister of Foreign Affairs had counted on the arrival of Lord Dufferin to put an end to the gravity of the situation, but reliable information from London contradicts this way of looking at the question.

The session of the Chamber of deputies closes to-day. The general elections remain fixed for Aug. 20. The events in Siam may have an influence upon their result.

The Franco-Siamese Imbroglio.

The strained relations between Siam and France at last have reached that dangerous point where war may occur any day between the two powers, in which case it appears inevitable that Great Britain will ask France some leading questions, upon the answers to which will also depend the issue of peace or war between those two powers.

The origin of the quarrel of France with Siam grows out directly from a question of indemnity for the murder by a Siamese mandarin of M. Grosgurin, a French military inspector of Annam, who was endeavoring to expel the former from territory which is in dispute between France and Siam, and, indirectly, from the demand of France for recognition of the rights of Annam and Cambodia, both under the protection of France, on the left or east bank of the Mekong River. The second demand is the outcome of the opportunity of the first. It gave a chance to acquire a large slice of Siamese territory, amounting to 95,000 square miles. The French ultimatum demands jurisdiction over both banks of the Mekong River, an indemnity of 3,000,000 francs for the murder of Grosgurin, and the right, as a guaranty of good faith, to occupy the mouth of the Menam River, which otherwise is forbidden by treaty. If this ultimatum were not accepted within a given time Bangkok was to be laid under siege. The time has expired and Siam's reply to the ultimatum is not satisfactory to the French Government. The limitation of the frontier as proposed by Siam does not agree with that proposed by France. The former fixes the eighteenth parallel of latitude as the northern boundary of Cambodia; the latter fixes it on the twenty-third parallel. In other words, Siam is ready to concede only about one-half the French demand. As to the money indemnity the Siamese Government thinks 3,000,000 francs too much and offers 2,000,000. This, accompanied by an expression of regret on the part of Siam, is the substance of its answer, but it is neither regrets nor money that France [illegible] cares for so much as it is the extension of French territory. The tax collections in the new district are worth a good deal more than the proposed indemnity.

In the settlement of this difficulty France must reckon with England rather than with Siam. England's interests in Siam are so considerable that she cannot permit France to dominate that country or to wreck it. Siam adjoins British territory in India, is within easy sail of British ports, and 80 per cent of its trade is in British hands. Siam is in debt, and its creditors are mostly British. The Siamese Princes have been as frequent borrowers in the London market as the Irish landlords used to be, and a recent writer says: "There are thousands of pounds (sterling) in London unpaid at this moment, as several Bond street tradesmen could testify." That England will protect its interests and those of its merchants and moneyed men there is no doubt.

A Cure for Infidelity.

Some one has said that if you pull out a doubt by the roots you will find a sin at the end of it. The Apostolic warning is, "Take heed lest there be in any one of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God." Unbelief has its root and center in the heart; and the man who combats it without reference to this fact will fail to accomplish his purpose. When a man says "in his heart, There is no God," it is probable that the wish is father to the thought. Conclusions are not always based upon evidence. Men sometimes claim that they "cannot believe without proof;" and make the lack of proof the sole cause of their unbelief. But in thousands of instances twelve men have sat in the jury-box and listened to precisely the same evidence from beginning to end, and have come to directly opposite conclusions. Every disagreeing jury gives proof that conclusions are not based solely upon evidence. There are prejudices, there are interested motives, there is lack of intelligent apprehension and mental grasp, and there is sometimes the stubbornness of a man who will not be convinced.

Doubtless in many instances the trouble with unbelievers is, they do not like the Bible nor the gospel; they prefer to live their own lives and take their own course, and simply desire to be freed from danger and responsibility.

B. Fay Mills, the evangelist, in a letter to the Independent, tells the story of one man who had been for years a skeptic, and on whom he spent some labor trying to convince him of the truth of the gospel of Christ. His efforts seemed not successful, but he at length induced the man to promise that he would try to live a better life, and leave off the things which he knew to be wrong. "I did not speak with him again," writes Fay Mills "for a week, at the close of which time he came into the inquiry meeting again, and, standing up, he said: 'Something tells me that I must acknowledge Jesus Christ. For thirty-five years I have been a blasphemer. The first twenty years of my life I lived in a godless home; the last fifteen years I have been an open infidel, but for the past week I have been trying, with all my heart, for the first time in my life, to give up what I know is wrong, and to commence to do what I know I ought to do, asking God for light and help in my endeavor; and to-night I am forced in a way to explain, to stand here and say that I believe in Jesus Christ as the Son of God.' That was on Friday evening. On Sunday his wife came to one of the pastors, and said: 'We had a great bonfire at our house to-day and burnt up all my husband's infidel library.' "

Infidelity goes with vice, and sin, and wickedness in all its forms and shapes. The strongholds of unbelief are in the dram shops, the saloons, the places where vice and lewdness hold their carnival. So long as men live such lives they must be expected to continue in unbelief. When men are willing to forsake Satan's service, they are willing to disbelieve Satan's lies: the sins and the errors go together. The man who disobeys God prefers to disbelieve God: the man who is living a life of obedience has no occasion to doubt or disbelieve.—[illegible]

Nickel Plate World's Fair tickets now on sale.

Poetry.

PALESTINE.

"A good land and a large, a land flowing with milk and honey."—Exod. iii. 8.

Blest land of Judea! Thrice hallowed of song,
Where the holiest of memories pilgrim-like throng;
In the shade of thy palms, by the shores of thy sea,
On the hills of thy beauty, my heart is with thee.

With the eye of a spirit I look on that shore,
Where pilgrim and prophet have lingered before;
With the glide of a spirit I traverse the sod
Made bright by the steps of the angels of God.

Blue sea of the hills! in my spirit I hear
Thy waters, Gennesaret, chime on my ear;
Where the Lowly and Just with the people sat down,
And thy spray on the dust of his sandals was thrown.

Beyond are Bethulia's mountains of green,
And the desolate hills of the wild Gadarene;
And I pause on the goat crags of Tabor to see
The gleam of thy waters, O dark Galilee!

Hark, a sound in the valley! where, swollen and strong,
Thy river, O Kishon, is sweeping along;
Where the Canaanite strove with Jehovah in vain,
And thy torrent grew dark with the blood of the slain.

There down from the mountains, stern Zebulon came,
And Naphthali's stag, with his eyeballs of flame,
And the chariots of Jabin rolled harmlessly on,
For the strength of the Lord was Abinoam's son!

There sleep the still rocks, and the caverns which rang
To the song which the beautiful prophetess sang,
When the princes of Issachar stood by her side,
And the shout of a host in its triumph replied.

Lo, Bethlehem's hill-site before me is seen,
With the mountains around and the valleys between;
There rested the shepherds of Judah, and there
The song of the angels rose sweet on the air.

And Bethany's palm-trees in beauty still throw
Their shadows at noon on the ruins below;
But where are the sisters who hastened to greet
The lowly Redeemer, and sit at his feet?

I tread where the twelve in their wayfaring trod;
I stand where they stood, with the chosen of God—
Where his blessing was heard, and his lessons were taught,
Where the blind were restored and the healing was wrought.

Oh, here with his flock the sad Wanderer came—
These hills He toiled over in grief are the same—
The founts where he drank by the wayside still flow,
And the same airs are blowing which breathed on His brow.

And throned on her hills sits Jerusalem yet,
But with dust on her forehead and chains on her feet;
For the crown of her pride to the mocker hath gone,
And the holy shechinah is dark where it shone.

But wherefore this dream of the earthly abode
Of humanity clothed in the brightness of God?
Were my spirit but turned from the outward and dim,
It could gaze, even now, on the presence of Him.

Not in clouds and in terrors, but gentle as when
In love and in meekness He moved among men;
And the voice which breathed peace to the waves of the sea,
In the hush of my spirit would whisper to me!

And what if my feet may not tread where He stood,
Nor my ears hear the dashing of Galilee's flood,
Nor my eyes see the cross which He bowed Him to bear,
Nor my knees press Gethsemane's garden of prayer.

Yet, loved of the Father, thy spirit is near
To the meek and the lowly and penitent here;
And the voice of thy love is the same even now,
As at Bethany's tomb or on Olivet's brow.

Oh, the outward hath gone!—but in glory and power,
The spirit surviveth the things of an hour;
Unchanged, undecaying, its Pentecost flame
On the heart's secret altar is burning the same.

—J. G. Whittier.

Original.

Wherefore by their Fruits Ye shall know Them.

Matt. vii. 20.

In the Province of Bengal, containing less than one fourth the population of British India, the census of 1891 returned 70,009,-260 people--Hindus 65.36 per cent, Mohommedans 31.21 per cent, Bhuddists 0.22 per cent, Christians 0.18 per cent, and others 3.01 per cent.

Of every 1000 people there were 966 either Hindoo or Mahommedan, 2 Bhuddists, 1 Christian, 31 various, mostly aboriginal beliefs.

In every 10,000 there were 200 more Hindus than at last census, Mahommedans 2, Bhuddists 10, Christians 4.

The Christian community is rightly classed as follows:

Church of England (Episcopal, 36,000, Lutherans 30,000, Church of Rome 29,000, Baptists 17,000, various Protestant creeds 16,000, total 128,000.

According to census 1891 there were in Bengal 86,806 native Christians chiefly Lutherans, Baptists, Episcopals, and Roman Catholic 13,000.

Deducting from the 128,000 Christians the 13,000 Roman Catholics, the followers of the Bramo Somai Atheists and the 41,847 Christians of foreign birth, and various dubious nondescripts classed as Christians. We find the actual number of native Protestant Christians reduced to about 64,000 in round numbers, or about one half of the total of those in Bengal classed under the head of Christians.

That is to say in every 2000 of the population of Bengal 1932 are Hindus or Mahommedans, 4 Bhuddists, one native Protestant orthodox Christian, and 63 scattered, and this solitary one in two thousand represents the result of Protestant missionary work in India in bold figures, during the last century. It may be said this represents not all their work.

"Statistics of conversion are no adequate tests of missionary work missionary teaching and Christian literature are leavening native opinion especially among the Hindus in a way and to an extent quite startling to those who take little trouble to investigate facts. It is not too much to say that the whole Brahmo (Somai) Movement, which takes a lead in all Social and Moral reforms in India and which although decidedly Unchristian, pays to Christianity the sincere flattery of imitation, is the direct product of missionary teaching." Letter of Sir Charles Aitcheson, late governor of the Punjab, to the Rev. Dr. Stewart of Sealkote in reply to an article asserting that Indian government officials could no longer uphold mission enterprise, and quoted complacently in Missionary Herald (Baptist) of May 2, 1887.

Save us from our friends. Notwithstanding the general flattering testimony of this letter we think our missionary friends had better not have quoted it.

"Ye shall know them by their fruits. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit." Matt. vii. 16-18. How comes it that the Christian fig tree produces thistles?

Sir Charles Aitcheson says "it cannot be said that an agency which, within little more than 50 years has built up a native church, numbering, simply, two-thirds of a million is resultless."

If the native Christians in Bengal in 1887 were say roughly 90,-000 and Bengal contains somewhat less than one-fourth the population of India, it is difficult to see how this amount multiplied by 4 would produce two-thirds of a million. No doubt the sum stated was based on figures including all the Christians in India, Europeans, Americans, and others including Roman Catholics. This is misleading, as these letters, roughly estimated at 50 per cent of the Christians are not all of them the Protestant mission by any means.

Even by deducting the foreigners and Roman Catholics alone, 54,847, to say nothing of the followers of the Brahmo Somai," Arya Somai, Atheists and Agnostics and Sleepers classed as Christians, the total amount of native Christian population in India would only reach 202,612. Supposing Bengal contains one-fourth the whole population of India, and it would require the utmost stretch of Christian courtesy to suppose that even all of these were directly due to missionary enterprise.

Evidently there is something wrong, and there is the usual tendency to make excuses, and lay the blame elsewhere. The governments, its officials and the European population generally are whiningly blamed.

It is insinuated or assumed that lack of morality of the white community in India bars missionary progress.

The vast majority of the white people are officials and their families. The officials are selected, by every device know to civilization, to secure the cream mentally and physically of the young men of Great Britain.

Is it reasonable to suppose that they and their wives are below the general average in morality and Christianity?

The unofficial element are almost universally of the educated and well to do classes, free from the baser element that permeates European general society.

Returns show that about one-third of the European soldiers in the British Army of occupation are tetotallers, and a very large percentage belong to the army of the Lord and other Christian churches and organisations, in addition to which military discipline is strict and compels decent conduct.

Then are those whose life is objectionable every where, but it is too much to expect the public to believe that this cause is sufficient to account for the lack of success, especially as Hindus and Mahommedans are intelligent and have plenty of black sheep in their own pens and can make allowances.

Says a writer in the Missionary Herald May 2, 1887. "We cannot call government education Anti-Biblical—it is not professedly so, but it is out and out Non-Biblical and the result of it as such, in a very large scale, is sad in the extreme," and then in the face of this sweeping condemnation he says. "We believe the need for mission schools and colleges will gradually decrease as government education will spread among the poorer classes," and so on. Are we therefore to understand that government education, the result of which "is sad in the extreme" is after all so much superior in every way that it will in time supercede "the need for mission schools and colleges?"

The government census shows that Mahommedanism in India is not making converts. The last returns show that where Hindoos increased 200 per cent and Christians 4 - Mohammedans only increased 2 per 10,000 since previous census.

When force is not permitted Islam can not work to advantage; with this powerful foe hobbled why can not Christianity spread faster in a non-proselyting community educated to the point of rejecting, as absurd and impossible, its own peculiar faith?

Is the arm of the Lord shortened that it can not save? Presumably there are other sufficient reasons.

In the first place, proper care has not been taken to supply India with a superior class of picked men as missionaries.

The British authorities long since discovered that to retain their hold in India, it was vital necessity that none but the very best material procurable should be employed in their civil service.

The missionary societies seem to think any thing is good enough for India, that has the missionary spirit.

If these societies expect to succeed they must adopt the same wise and prudent methods as the government.

In pursuance of the same wise plan, and recognising from experience the value of education, the government has exhausted its resources in promoting educational establishments.

There are in India five (at least) magnificent universities, (modelled on the plan of the London university, England) at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Punjab university, and Allahabad.

In 1880 there were 68,775 educational institutions (on English basis) with 1,812,382 students as against in 1890 134,710 with 3,626,-390 students.

No country in the world can compare progress with this, and India is fairly crazy for education on the European model.

It is the only road to honor, wealth and preferment. Great Britain has pledged her honor to protect all in the exercise of their religious rites and favor none. Do our orthodox clerical friends desire that she should forswear herself, force religious instruction into these schools and destroy their utility to the masses?

If so what denomination shall be especially favored and would the Missionary Herald (Baptist) rejoice to see them turned over to the clergy of the church of England?

The real trouble is that the self-styled orthodox churches have adulterated their Christianity with heathen superstitions until they are no longer able to contend with advanced and enlightened infidelity.

Contact with civilization and education has undermined all faith in paganism in India. An unusual population is giving up and continually increasing, that rejects Brahma and Bhudda but is too thoughtful and intelligent to accept of Christianity encumbered with superstitution.

From this heaving mass has arisen the "Sudaran-Brahmo-Somai" (Universal Theistic Religion) and the Aryan Somai (entirely infidel).

Keshu Chunder Sen the founder of the former, believes that "the Revelation of Jesus Christ was to show men the way to God more clearly. He did this by his Life and words and when he died His pure soul rose to heaven in Resurrection glory, a type and earnest of our own resurrection."

On account of the tenacity with which the Protestant churches held to the soul consciousness of Jesus and his soul power in the intermediate state, the Brahmo Somai altogether rejected his corporeal resurrection as superflous and useless. As Christ exercised his redeeming power by preaching to the spirits in person, before he rose in the body from the tomb, therefore resurrection of the missionary was useless.

The Sadaran-Brahmo Somai, generated in the error of so-called Christian churches, is now the most dangerous adversary of its progenitors.

As a writer has said in the Madras Berean Monthly. So stupendous and immeasurable are the consequences upon the millions to whom England and America send their half-taught missionaries, that any one acquainted with these matters can but tremble to see the greater solicitude evinced by our brethren for a few hardened gospel hearers at home. A solemn warning is held up against preaching the "Sleep of death," because so they urge, the results upon a handful of Englishmen will be that the "judgment to come" will be "a vain threat." But upon the millions of India, whose creed and philosophy center and surge round this very point of "conscious survival" the results of the missionary preaching "Die and go to Heaven" gospel are not worth that deep consideration.

We have the testimony of some of the ablest and most successful missionaries in India, that this previous error and the doctrine of the Christian hell, both founded in the heathen belief in the Inherent Immortality of the soul, are the greatest stumbling blocks to the missionary in India, and that once freed from this heresy and its consequences, they found their path cleared from most of their difficulties.

H. T. Baker.

A Tobacco Remonstrance.

Brethren I have just been out hoeing my melon patch, but my mind was not on the work, or the melons either, so I thought the best thing I could do was to stop hoeing and try to reason with the brethren about this very bad, world wide, habit of using tobacco, and as Brother Cady says, "I wish to let the brethren know where I stand on this question," and to remain silent on such an important subject is virtually to assent to it.

1. It is wrong from the fact that it is conforming to this world's habits, that was contracted in our innocent ignorance, and to go on indulging the unholy appetite is worse if possible than Israel's sin in the wilderness when they felt a lusting for something to eat and said, "We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick: but now our soul is dried away and there is nothing at all beside this manna before our eyes."

It is wrong from a financial point of view. It is "using this world's goods as abusing them." Many men are hard run to make a comfortable living, and pay their honest debts, yet they will manage some way to get their tobacco.

Wisdom cries out to every tobacco user, and especially to Christains, to stop this unnecessary expense. Stop these rat-holes that are robbing you of a good share of your earnings.

I fail to understand how any one can use tobacco and observe the "Golden Rule,"—"Do unto others as we would wish to be done by," when we know that the poisonous stuff is very offensive and sickening to others. What moral right have I to poison the atmosphere that you must breathe in order to live? "Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend (or is offensive to my brother) I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend."

Again, most all who use tobacco will freely admit that it is a bad filthy habit, and they would like to get rid of it if they could on easy terms, without a struggle on their part. Then is it not a presumptive sin to go on and indulge in this or any other bad habit against better judgment. Sin dies hard, like a mad dog, or, it is no easy task to die to sin, neither was it a light, easy task for our dear Savior to die for, or on account of our sins. Contrast your hard task brethren, that you contracted yourself, with that of Jesus of Nazareth, the One that has overcome all opposition, and has thus made himself worthy of a place at his Father's right hand, and now he sends back the glorious promise to you and me of a like position with him in his throne, on condition that we will follow his footsteps and overcome sin, the flesh, and the devil. Shall we do this brethren, and fellow travellers to eternity, or will we say, Lord thou art a hard Master, and travel on our own way?

But oh, the excuses that raise up out of ambush to frighten away our better judgment. One says, "I had to turn back to the habit or lose all my teeth." Another says, "When I quit the habit I lost my temper, and was miserable," and another poor brother who saw the folly of his way and quit the habit for a short time, said, "my health failed and I was not fit for any thing," and so on to the end of the chapter. Sin dies hard, and most all men, and women to, have contracted some bad habits, some time in life of which it is no easy matter to slip away from, yet, that is no excuse for indulging our many and dear pets that are dragging us slowly down to death.

Again, would you my brother who use the weed, wish, or advise your boy to use it? Oh no, by no means. Then be consistent, and set a right example for your boy to follow. It is a delusive sin to preach one thing and practice another. Listen to Paul a moment please. "Thou therefore which teachest another teachest thou not thyself? Thou that preachest a man shall not steal dost thou steal?" Happy is he that condemeth not himself in that thing which he alloweth." "Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence; shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of Spirits and live."

The Father of Spirits through and by his servants requires and commands us to "cleanse ourselves from ALL FILTHINESS of the flesh and Spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." God has made certain promises to His children on condition of obedience to the foregoing requirements. See 2 Cor. vii. 1.

Again, in the language of the Apostle Paul, we would say, what? "Dont ye know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own."

Let us be careful and not defile this temple with tobacco or whisky which are fit sacrifices to demons, or, think you the Holy Spirit would be pleased to occupy a temple saturated and fumigated with tobacco or whisky? Seriously do you think it would? Would it be a Holy Spirit? Do you candidly believe it would be the Holy Spirit sent from God?

For ye were bought with a price. What was the price brethren? Seriously what was it? I hear one say, "the precious blood of Christ." Amen. "Therefore, for this cause glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." God has bought us body and spirit, and we belong to him, for we are not our own, and have no right to do as we please, but as he pleases.

One is heard to say that tobacco is not mentioned or spoken against in the Bible. True. Neither is whisky or opium, and many other bad things we have to encounter nowadays.

But, says one, what was tobacco made for if not to use? We might ask, what was opium and whisky and very many other things made for, that was, and is made? No doubt but God made all that he made for a purpose, but man in his ignorance, and his greed for money and some new-fangled fashion has perverted God's ways and designs in many respects, and I do not believe that all these things were, and are made for me to use as others use them to be fashionable, for we are told in the good Book that the fashions of this world are to pass away, but he that does the will of God abides forever."

The uses and abuses of tobacco, opium, whisky, and beer, and many other things that are used, are either right or wrong, if right let us indulge and tell others to indulge if they wish, but if wrong let us who claim to be examples and lights in the world be careful to abstain from every appearance of evil, and tell others to not touch, taste, or handle the unclean things, —the forbidden fruits, lest ye die.

May God in His mercy teach us in his own good way how frail and prone to evil we are, and help us to to put away forever all our idol's habits, ere the Bridegroom comes. Amen.

T. E. Adams.

Selected.

A Mother's Duty.

There is nothing in all the world that is as dear to a child's heart as a true, loving mother. From the day the bright little eyes look up into its mother's face and smile, until death, there is nothing so close to that heart as mother. Although others may love us, and be good and kind to us, they cannot comfort like a mother's care and love. Whatever our station in life, nothing can fill the place of the true, good mother.

Let me say to every mother who reads this: "Are you a true, loving guide to that little family the Lord has blessed you with? They are looking to you for an example to follow. Are you setting them such an example as you would wish them to follow through life?"

Never tell them a falsehood, never deceive them in act, word or deed. Do not associate with those whose moral character is such that you would not want your daughters to associate with them; nor with those you would feel afraid to trust your daughters with at all times, and under all circumstances. Always let your walk and conversation be as you wish those of your daughters to be. Almost invariably a daughter will follow a mother's footsteps. If the mother associates with the wicked and immoral, and leads a wicked life, the daughter is well nigh sure to do the same. If her associations are with good Christain people, there you will find the daughter also. Whatever life the mother leads the daughter is generally sure to follow.

Sooner or later the daughters will know just what a mother's life is. From the time they come to the years of discretion, they will watch you and strive to do just as you do. If some one asks them why they do thus and so, they will say, "Because mother does. If mother does, why should not I?"

Be good, true, faithful. Be choice of your associations. Look well to your daughters' associations; guard them on every hand. Teach them by example and precept to be moral, truthful, chaste, upright. Then you will be proud of them, and they will love, honor and respect you as long as you live. Remember, the world is full of pitfalls for the unexperienced. Teach them how to avoid them by chaste, helpful, industrious lives.

"I Never knew You."

"Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name cast out devils, and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you."

These words were running through my mind one morning when I awoke, and I asked what there is required of us if these were turned away? And the answer was, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it not to me." Again I asked, "What then, O Lord, is required of thy children?" And the answer came so plainly that it could not be misunderstood, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate; for strait is the gate and narrow the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be who find it." Then how earnestly I prayed, Search me and try me, and see if there is anything evil in my heart, before the door of mercy is shut forever.

How many of God's professed children today are walking in the narrow way, so narrow that we cannot carry our pride or burdens of care, which Jesus commands to cast upon him? No weight of unbelief, or doubt, or sin is allowed to be brought this way. Have we cleansed our hearts from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit? The Bible is very plain on this subject, and to the searcher for more knowledge the Lord reveals himself in many wonderful ways. Do we feel condemned when we hear any portion of the word of God, and wish in our own hearts (although not willing to confess it even to ourselves) that that part of the Bible had been left out. Psalm 15th used to condemn me when I read it. The question is so great, and one that every one should be interested in. "Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle, who shall dwell in thy holy hill?" And the answer is, "He that walketh uprightly and worketh righteousness and speaketh the truth in his heart. He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor."

I resolved in my heart that if I could say no good of a person I would not speak of them at all. Sometimes the enemy gets the victory. A neighbor will speak of one who has done wrong, and before I am aware of it I am taking up the same reproach, and the moments spent in this way are worse than lost. "He putteth not out his money to usury." We may say surely it is well to provide for a time when we or our family may be in want of the comforts of life. God's care of his children in all past ages will not allow us to reason thus. "The silver is mine, the gold is mine," saith our heavenly Father. Surely "He will withhold no good thing from those who walk uprightly. Will he say, "Well done, good and faithful servant," if he shall find us with treasures hidden away that might furnish his own dear children with many comforts which are now denied them? Let us search our hearts lest when he comes he will say, "I never knew you."—Crisis.

Seven Ways of Giving.

1. The careless way: To give something to every cause that is presented, without inquiring into its merit.

2. The impulsive giving: To give from impulse--as much and as often as love and pity and sensibility prompt.

3. The lazy way: To make a special offer to earn money for benevolent objects by fairs, festivals, etc.

4. The self-denying way: To save the cost of luxuries and apply them to purposes of religion and charity. This may lead to asceticism and self-complacence.

5. The systematic way: To lay aside as an offering to God a definite portion of our gains—one-tenth, one-fifth, one-third, or one-half. This is adapted to all, whether poor or rich, and gifts would be largely increased if it were generally practiced.

6. The equal way: To give to God and the needy just as much as we spend on ourselves, balancing our personal expenditures by our gifts.

7. The heroic way: To limit our expenditures to a certain sum, and giving away all the rest of our income. This was John Wesley's way.—Dr. Pierson.

With an Unexcelled Passenger Service, the Nickel Plate Road still gives its patrons rates as low as the lowest.

Reduced Rates.

The Pennsylvania R. R., will sell tickets from Plymouth to Chicago, and return. Good on any train during this week for $2.55, one fare, good ten days from date of sale. This is a low rate, and the accommodation first class, and should be taken advantage of by all who have been waiting for a low rate to attend the World's Fair.

The Nickel Plate Road runs three trains daily in each direction.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the Lake at $2.00. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

An Excellently Appointed Dining Car Service makes travel on the Nickel Plate Road a luxury.

Sunday Morning July 30th the L. E. & W. R. R., will run another Cheap Excursion to Chicago. Train will leave Plymouth at 2:55, A. M. Tickets good to return up to and including Aug. 10th 1893. Fare for the round trip only $2.00.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rebecca Cole, the subject of this sketch was born in Sussex Co. Eng. Dec. 9th, 1815. Aug. 17th, 1836, she was united to James Pallett in marriage, and from this union six children have come to them as blessings of love, and they have lived to see each one baptized into the Christ. The youngest with his wife became interested in the gospel last winter while Brother Conner was preaching in Watson, and in the spring Elder B. W. Woodward led them into the water, and there they took their Savior's name.

In the year 1842, Brother and Sister Pallett came to the land of their adoption, and in 1849 they landed in Watson Allegan Co. in which county they have ever since resided. More than 30 years ago Sister Pallett was baptized by our dear Brother Ephraim Miller, long since fallen asleep. Her life has been a quiet, sweet, and Christain life. To know her intimately was to know a loving, true and sympathizing friend, ever loving the truth of the Gospel above every thing else, made her an examplary one every way. Sweet, quiet, patient, loving, such a mothers life, how could it help but influence each child for good. No wonder their names have all been registered in the "Lamb's Book of Life."

While my husband and I were holding meetings at Lanark, Ill., word came from the stricken home for the Elder to be in readiness for Sister Pallett was very ill. We came home as soon as possible but our dear sister had been dead four days. Bro. N. Houser spoke to the sorrowing hearts from 2 Cor. 4 18.

The little home in Martin, Allegan Co., is so empty now, for mother and wife is gone, but as they walk through those lonely rooms what a comfort to know Mother's hope was bright with expectation of a coming King who will give life and immortality to every faithful child of God.

May we each renew our efforts of faithfulness that eternal life may be ours when Christ shall come.

MARY A. WOODWARD.

Olive Blakeman was born in Berrien Co. Mich., Oct. 11, 1853. Was married to George Pallett, March 31st 1871. Accepted the gospel and was baptized by Brother Miller about 14 years ago.

Sister Pallett was the mother of nine children, six of whom are still living.

She loved the gospel and saw a beauty in it she could not see in any other preaching. Her children have been brought up to understand its worth, and today while I write these sad words of a mothers death her oldest son is on his way to our home to be baptized into the all-saving name. Sister Pallett died suddenly at her home near Lake Odessa, July 11th, 1893. Elder B. W. Woodward spoke to a large audience in the Methodist Church, from 1 Thess. iv. 13, and the people heard the first gospel sermon they ever heard, and many wondered if those things were true, and if the Bible really held such wonderful words of the resurrection and eternal life.

Brother Pallett has our deepest sympathy in this his double bereavement, for mother and wife are both gone. O, death, when will your cruel work be over? Come Lord Jesus, Come. O haste thy coming, that we may meet our loved ones and see no more death.

M. A. WOODWARD.

The gospel brought from heaven by the Son of God, and made reachable by Calvary, is for the masses, not only in its free offering of life, but in its adaption to their thought and need and environment. And to bring them into the possession and helpful delight of it, it is for the church to go to them and win them to its glad acceptance. Hugh Price Hughes in one of his addresses, while in this country, said with all the positiveness of his intense nature, that "the thirteen million non-church goers in England belonged to any church, that had the Scriptural audacity and sanctified common-sense to go for them." We who have it are to live it and preach it and sing it and talk it among them, until they see that it meets their heart hunger, their unrest, their social and labor problems, and runs into every bay and channel of their lives with power and sweetness and blessing.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78

Pennsylvania Lines. Reduced Rates to Warsaw for the Spring Fountain Park Assembly.

Excursion tickets will be sold to Warsaw, Ind., via the Pennsylvania Lines, July 26th to August 9th, inclusive, at low round trip rates, account Spring Fountain Park Assembly. Return coupons valid until August 10th.

The New Nickel Plate Passenger Service including Sumptuous Sleeping Cars and Unexcelled Dining Cars now runs three trains daily in each direction.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

World's Fair tickets now on sale by the Nickel Plate Agents.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

The Nickel Plate Road has a Superb New Passenger Service.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity. etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

If you are going any where at any time dont let the fact slip your memory that a Magnificent New Passenger Service has been established on the Nickel Plate Road's Daily trains.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

The Nickel Plate Road's Improved Passenger Service Approaches Perfection.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

You can secure just as advantageous rates via the Nickel Plate as via any other route.

To the Mountain and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata, the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The sale of World's Fair tickets via the Nickel Plate Road is now authorized.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

The Elegant New Dining Service of the Nickel Plate Road can not be too highly spoken of.

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago, form part of the new equipment.

The New train Service on the Nickel Plate Road includes Elegant Sleepers and Superb Dining Car Service Daily.

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

A New Improved Passenger Service on the Nickel Plate Roads.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00

EXPENDITURE.

Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas.
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

Three daily trains each way via the Nickel Plate Road.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Circleville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

The New Passenger Service on the Nickel Plate Road is Superb.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised therein.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

What more can be Exacted?

Cheap Rates,
Courteous Attention,
Luxurious Sleepers,
Magnificent Day Coaches,
Faultless Road Bed,
Unexcelled Dining Cars.

Can anything be added to make the Nickel Plate Road more popular?

JUST THE THING.

This is an expression the traveling public generally use when they find something that is exactly what they want. This expression applies directly to the Wisconsin Central Lines which is now admitted by all to be "The Route" from Chicago to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, Duluth and all points in the Northwest. Their double daily train service and fine equipment offers inducement which cannot be surpassed.

This is the only line running both through Pullman First Class and Tourist Sleepers from Chicago to Pacific Coast Points without change.

For full information address your nearest ticket agent or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen. Pass. and Tkt., Agt., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by Dr. McGarvey, in 1866. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10 Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 20 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

16 for 10c; 30 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Are to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Stanley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5c. each, 25 for 50c. 30 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 24 pages, price 25c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July 19, 1873 by Jos. Laxter. Can be had at this office at 10c., each, 3 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Traditions of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 72 pages, by W. Brittle, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Sold at 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Heir of All Things. Carrie Williams. This little book of 110 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from THE RESTITUTION office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land, the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being two lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 100 pages, price 30 cts. or four for $1. postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word-for-word English translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references, new improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; Library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift, J. H. Pettingell. With an Introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 365 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price 50cts.

Cruden's Concordance—Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation—every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 175 pages, cloth bound, for 15 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas, Title page.—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 350 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 12 for $1.80; 30 for $3.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 150 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 32 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as Agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 368 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an additional of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. O. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 148 pages, written by William O. Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation—Is There Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Wm. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses," A volume of 288 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 25 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom," An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 496 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1445 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Ninth and Spring Garden Sts, Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsey Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and 7.15 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 1810 EttING Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m., every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their Lodge on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. N. H. Geiselman, every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every 2 at Sunday in the month, also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in hall southeast corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at 10 o'clock for Sunday School, and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 37 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Amos Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. Stevens, Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Drummond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Silas Siple, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harlan and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger,	Leaves	†11 45pm
No. 24,	"	†6 30pm
No. 26,	"	*3 21am
No. 150, Local,	"	†12 43pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger,	Leaves	†9 49am
No. 23,	"	†5 32pm
No. 27,	"	*11 25pm
No. 151, Local,	"	†11 15pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily except Saturday

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:28 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 8:56 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 6, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager.
CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:24pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 56 "	8:48pm	"
No. 54, "	10:06pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:50pm	" "
No. 55, "	4:40pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry. Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
FtWayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eastward.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
FtWayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager. E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent.

5-21-93—D PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't.
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, pungent and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Hebrew, [illegible] "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall do my best to circulate it."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	5 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	4 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	4 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson.	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	[illegible]
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	4 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.	4 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	4 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits. by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan. by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism so well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 2, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 5 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased every body last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send for the Guide, which can be had free. [illegible]

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT RALLABACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS	One Year	$1.50
	Six Months	.75
	Three Months	.40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 2, 1893. NO. 20.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

I am His and He is Mine.

"I am my Beloved's, and my Beloved is mine."
Cant. vi. 3.

Loved with everlasting love,
Led by grace that love to know;
Spirit breathing from above,
Thou hast taught me it is so.
Oh, this full and perfect peace!
Oh, this transport all divine!
In a love which cannot cease,
I am his and he is mine.

Heaven above is softer blue
Earth around is sweeter green;
Something lives in every hue
Christless eyes have never seen;
Birds with gladder songs o'erflow,
Flowers with deeper beauties shine,
Since I know, as now I know,
I am his and he is mine.

Things that once were wild alarms
Cannot now disturb my rest,
Closed in everlasting arms,
Pillowed on his loving breast.
Oh, to lie forever here,
Care, and doubt, and self resign!
While he whispers in my ear,
I am his and he is mine.

His forever, only his:
Who the Lord and me can part?
Ah, with what a rest of bliss
Christ can fill the loving heart!
Heaven and earth may fade and flee,
Firstborn light in gloom decline;
But while God and I shall be,
I am his and he is mine.

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 3.

"Many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." 2 John vii.

The phrase "many deceivers" is applicable to more than the "mother of harlots," for of a truth she has many daughters "who confess not that Jesus Christ came in the flesh." This "mother" when offering her prayers to the Virgin Mary addresses her as "The Holy Mother of God."

It is a well known fact in nature that a child cannot exist as a person previous to its birth. Now, if Mary gave birth to God, then there could have been no God previous to that time. And yet they claim that he did exist and that he created his own mother. When asked for a solution of these dark enigmas, she exclaims: "Mystery! mystery!!!" "Upon her forehead was a name written, mystery."

I knew a little girl who attended a Baptist Sunday school, her teacher told the class that Jesus was God himself. The little girl happened to remember reading in her Bible the account of Jesus' baptism in Jordan, and God's approving words uttered from heaven. She told her teacher that she could not see how he could be on earth and in heaven at the same time uttering approving words of himself.

The teacher replied that it was so, but she could not explain it. "It was a great mystery." "Upon her forehead was a name written, mystery." Her daughters all wear the same badge—"mystery!"

It is a noticeable fact that all who wear the above mentioned badge, emphatically deny that the origin of Christ's being as a person was when "made of a woman, made under the law," there is not enough "mystery" about that to suit them, although it is directly in the line of nature, common sense and the Bible. "The Word (which was in the beginning) was made flesh (not spirit) and dwelt among us," at that time, and not before.

Rom. i. 3, 4, is a very clear testimony in this line; it shows the origin of Jesus to be of flesh, but by means of the resurrection he exchanged the frail nature of flesh for the all-powerful nature of spirit.

"Concerning his Son Jesus Christ our Lord which was made of the seed of David according to the flesh; and declared the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness by the resurrection from the dead."

Such also will become the experience of all those who die in the Lord. "It is sown in weakness; (flesh) it is raised in power." (Spirit).

The phrases: "Son of Man," "Seed of the Woman," "Son of David," "his father David," all suggest an origin of flesh. If it were not so, aliens and enemies to God could never have been reconciled. But how is it now? See Col. i. 21, 22: "And you, that were sometime alienated and enemies in mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death." Hence of a truth, "he who confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God," because it invalidates the plan of redemption. Having purchased our redemption "in the body of his flesh through death," he is now "the image of the invisible God, the FIRST BORN of every creature." Col. i. 15.

Ver. 18: "he is the head of the body, the church: who is the BEGINNING, the first born from the dead." He is "the faithful and true witness the beginning of the creation of God." Rev. iii. 14. "That he might be the first born among many brethren." Rom. viii. 29. Again we read in the Hebrews: "But when he brings again (second time) the first born into the world, he says, let all the angels of God worship him." Being "the first born," "the beginning" even, "the beginning of the creation of God," "the first born from the dead." As far as the flesh is concerned, he was not "the beginning of the creation of God" "the first born from the dead;" his existence as a person of flesh commenced when "born of flesh" through his mother—Mary. "The Word was made flesh, (not flesh and spirit) and dwelt among us."

A short time since, I attended a temperance service at the Woman's Temple. The lady in charge of the services, announced with much feeling and sorrow, the death of P. A. Burdick, a temperance worker who had rendered the Association great service. The lady immediately contradicted herself, by saying: "He is not dead, he has simply gone home." That which the Bible calls "death," these people say means that "he has simply gone home," "he is not dead," because P. A. Burdick himself was always immortal, being spirit in his nature.—"Shall be as gods." These people would not hesitate at all to boldly deny that Jesus Christ himself ever came "in the flesh." They would interpret such a confession as being a denial of his "divinity"—his divine nature as "god-man." That word "divinity," is the shell in which the apostasy is caged.

Another speaking of the death of Col. Clark, told the people how happy the Colonel was, and what a beautiful temple he now occupied, so much handsomer than the Woman's Temple in Chicago.

Such teachers are the "many deceivers (which) are entered into the world who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." Opposite the names of all such is written the fearful words:—"Not of God!" "A cage of every unclean and hateful bird." Rev. xviii. 2.

These birds who dwell together in the "cage" are "hateful" in God's sight in that they refuse to believe the record he has plainly given that "the soul that sinneth shall surely DIE." When God says: "Shall surely die," he means cessation of life. The "hateful birds" simply make it out to be a ticket of transportation on which to "go home." "Ye shall be as gods"—"ye shall not surely die," says the serpent, and these hateful birds have adopted this teaching as being correct. They profess to be God's servants, and yet discredit his word plainly given: "He that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." 1 John v. 11, 12. The inhabitants of the "cage" say: "No!" it is in us and has been ever since we were born, but God's precious children who have no affinity with the "hateful" "birds" who dwell in "cages," are proud to confess: "Our life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. iii. 3, 4. Praise God, for such a reasonable and precious hope! Compare it with the songs the "hateful birds" sing and it will shine forth in greater glory still, by reason of the comparison:

"Forever must my spirit dwell,
When this frail breath shall cease,
With devils in the depths of hell—
Or with my God in peace."

The reason given as to why it must thus dwell is given in another song:

"But my soul will still survive,
Death can never reach the soul;
Doomed to bliss or woe to live,
While eternal ages roll."

All this is the outgrowth of the monstrous error of the apostasy who "confess not" that either man or "Jesus Christ is come in the flesh," but in each case two natures blend —divine and human.

Jesus, himself, lays down a principle and were it believed by these professed followers who dwell in the "cage," would forever set at rest this two-nature theory with regard to both man and Christ. It is this: "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the spirit is spirit." John iii. 6. It is either one thing or the other, and not the two blended at the same time.

Those who follow the teachings of the apostasy, in place of the above clear teaching of Jesus himself, are led into inexplicable difficulties which they never attempt to answer except by the use of the word written upon the forehead of the "mother of harlots:" "Mystery!"

Jesus testifies of himself as follows: "I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold I am alive forever more." He does not give the least intimation that he was part dead and part alive, which would be the case if "in the days of his flesh," his nature was part human and part divine, because the divine nature is absolutely deathless. I "was dead" is his own testimony concerning himself.

Now, trinitarians firmly believe that he was part human and part divine, and hence they call him the "God-man." If this be true, Christ as a whole never died, for the divine nature is absolutely deathless. At his crucifixion the dead and the alive parts must have been separated. The Bible tells us plainly that the dead part went to the grave, but is as silent as the grave as to where the alive part went to. How much better it would be to accept Jesus' own words: "I was dead; and, behold, I am alive forever more." Here we see plainly that the two natures did not coexist, but succeeded each other.

"Many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." 2 John vii.

W. H. WILSON.

The Gospel According to Loukas.

1. Since forsooth many have essayed to draw up an account of the things that were fully assured unto us,

2. Even as those who were from the outset eye-witnesses and who became subordinates of the Word, delivered them to us.

3. It hath seemed proper for me also, following close at the heels of them all to write unto thee the events accurately and in order from the beginning, most excellent Theophilos,

4. That thou mightest fully know the certainty of the accounts of which thou hast become a Catechumen.

5. It came to pass in the days of Herod the king of Joudaia that there was a certain priest by the name of Zacharias of the daily course of Abia: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron and her name Elisabeth.

6. And they were both justified in the sight of God, going their way in all the commandments and ways of justification (statutes) of the Lord blameless.

7. And they had no child for the reason that Elisabeth was barren, and they had both become advanced in their days.

8. And it came to pass as he was serving in his priestly office in the order of his daily course in the sight of God,

9. According to the custom of the priesthood, it became his lot to enter into the inner-sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense.

10. And all the multitude of the royal-people were engaged in votive-prayer outside at the hour of the incense-offering.

11. And an angel of the Lord appeared unto him, standing at the right hand of the altar of the incense-offering.

12. And Zacharias was disturbed when he saw, and fear fell upon him;

13. And the angel said unto him, Fear not Zacharias, For thy supplication hath been heard, and thy wife Elisabeth will beget a son for thee and thou wilt call his name Joannes (John.)

14. And joy and gladness will be thine and many will rejoice at his birth.

15. For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and wine and strong drink he shall not drink, and he will have been filled with Sanctified Spirit even from his mother's womb.

16. And many of the Sons of Israel will he turn unto the Lord their God.

17. And he will proceed in his sight in the Spirit and ability of Helias to turn hearts of fathers to children and disobedient to thinking of things that justify, to make ready a royal-people prepared for the Lord.

18. And Zacharias said unto the angel, In what way shall I comprehend this? For I am an old man and my wife advanced in her days.

19. And the angel answered and said unto him, I am Gabriel who standeth in the presence of God; and I have been sent to talk with thee, and to announce these glad-tidings to thee.

20. And lo, thou wilt be silent and not able to talk until the day when these things shall have come to pass, because thou didst not put faith in my words which will have been fulfilled in due season.

21. And the royal-people were looking expectantly for Zacharias and wondering at his tarrying in the inner sanctuary.

22. Moreover when he came out he was unable to talk to them; and they became aware that he had seen a vision in the inner-sanctuary; and he was making signs to them and continued dumb.

23. And it came to pass when the days of his public-service had been fulfiled he departed to his own house.

24. And after these days Elisabeth his wife conceived, and hid herself five months, saying,

25. Thus hath the Lord caused unto me in the days when he looked upon me to take away my reproach among men.

26. And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God into a city of Galilaia the name of which was Nazareth.

27. Unto a virgin who was betrothed to a husband whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the name of the virgin was Mariam.

28. And he came in unto her and said, Hail, thou favored one, The Lord be with thee.

29. And she was disturbed at the word and reasoned as to what this sort of a greeting might be.

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not Mariam, For thou hast found favor with God.

31. And lo thou wilt conceive in womb and bring forth a Son and thou wilt call his name Jesous.

32. He will be great and will have been called a Son of a Most High One; and the Lord God will give unto him the throne of David his father.

33. And he will rule as king over the house of Jacob for the ages and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

34. And Mariam said unto the angel, How will this be, since I know not a husband?

35. And the angel answered and said unto her, Sanctified Spirit will come upon thee, and an ability of a most High One will overshadow thee. Therefore the Sanctified (babe) that is being begotten will have been called a Son of God.

36. And lo, Elisabeth thy cousin. She also hath conceived a son in her old age and this is sixth month with her who is called barren,

37. That no oracular word may prove impossible on the part of God.

38. And Mariam said, Lo the bond-maid of the Lord; may it have occurred to me according to thy oracular word. And the angel departed from her.

39. And Mariam arose in those days and went her way into the mountain range into a city of Joudas.

40. And entered into the house of Zacharias and greeted Elisabeth.

41. And it came to pass when Elisabeth heard the greeting of Mariam, the babe leaped in her womb, and Elisabeth was filled with Sanctified Spirit.

42. And spake with a great voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43. And whence to me is this that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44. For lo, when the sound of thy greeting occurred in my ears, the babe leaped with gladness in my womb.

45. And blessed happy is she who had faith to believe that there would be a fulfillment of the things spoken unto her from the Lord.

46. And Mariam said, My soul magnifieth the Lord,

47. And my spirit hath become glad in God my Savior.

48. Because he hath looked upon the humiliation of his bond-maid. For lo from now on all the generations will account me blessed-happy;

49. Because the Able One hath caused great things for me, and Sanctified is his name.

50. And his mercy is unto generations and generations of those who fear him.

51. He hath caused controling-power with his arm; He hath scattered haughty ones in the thought of their hearts.

52. He hath put down influential ones from thrones and seated lowly ones;

53. Hungry ones hath he filled with good things; and wealthy ones hath he sent away with nought.

54. He hath intervened for Israel his servant to remember mercy.

55. Even as he spake unto our fathers, for Habraam and his seed forever.

56. And Mariam remained with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

57. And for Elisabeth the time was fulfilled for her to bring forth, and she begat a son.

58. And her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had magnified his mercy toward her and they rejoiced along with her.

59. And it came to pass on the eighth day that they went to circumcise the child and they were calling it by the name of his father Zacharias:

60. And his mother answered and said, No, no, but he shall be called Joannes.

61. And they said unto her, There is no one of thy kindred who is called by this name.

62. And they made a sign to his father as to what he might desire to call it.

63. And he called for a little table and wrote saying Joannes is his name. And they all wondered.

64. And his mouth was opened straightway and his tongue, and he spake praising God.

65. And there came to be fear on all those who dwelt round about; and in all the mountain range of Joudaia all these oracular words were talked over.

66. And all who heard set them in their heart saying, surely what will this child be? For the hand of the Lord was with him.

67. And Zacharias his father was filled with Sanctified Spirit and prophesied saying,

68. The Lord God of Israel be praised, because he hath taken an oversight of and caused a way of redemption for his royal-people.

69. And hath awakened a horn of salvation for us in a house of David his servant.

70. Even as he hath spoken through a mouth of his saints the prophets since there was an animate age.

71. Salvation from our enemies and from the hand of all those who hate us.

72. That he would cause mercy in relation to our fathers, and would remember his sacred covenant.

73. An oath which he swore unto Habraam our father, that he would give unto us to serve him for hire,

74. Without fear, when delivered from the hand of enemies.

75. In holiness and righteousness in his sight all our days.

76. And thou child moreover wilt have been called a prophet of a Most High One.

For thou wilt go thy way before in the sight of the Lord to prepare his ways.

77. To give a comprehension of salvation unto his royal-people in a remission of sins.

78. Because of our God's tender feelings of mercy, in which a ray from on high will visit us.

79. To appear unto those who are seated in darkness and a shadow of Death, for the restoring of our feet to a way of peace.

80. And the child grew and became controled with spirit, and was in the waste-places until a day of his showing up to Israel.

COMMENT.

The name of this Evangelist is Loukas. Why he should have been nicknamed "Luke" all these centuries of apostasy is more than I can account for unless the perversion of the names is a part of the apostasy.

Lucas is no doubt a nearer attempt to anglicize the Greek word Loukas and not uncommon among the English speaking nations, and no doubt "Luke" is an abbreviated nickname of Loukas.

"John" is also an abbreviated nickname of the original Greek and Hebrew Joannes, common in the Old Covenant Scriptures as well as the New. As I have frequently pointed out before, the prophetic names are always significant of their character and work, and herein lies the iniquity of the perversion of the names. Joannes for instance when translated means "Lo the Faster" and this prophet was known as an Eremite of Eremites. Loukas probably signifies a "washed-brother" although the derivation is somewhat uncertain and difficult to get at.

Zacharias means "a life of grace that healeth."

Elisabeth means "progress without a turn."

Joseph "a wise healer."
Mariam "Bitterness healed."
David "Taught to know."
Gabriel "Mercy indeed O Earth."

The "λαος" are always the covenant people not people in general, "the people of the king." God being that king and the term is as old as the theocracy.

The term ναος used here means "the holy of holies" or the inner-sanctuary where the golden-altar for the incense-offering was, and not the whole "temple" C. V. & R. V.

The "waiting expectantly" outside was because Zachariah had overstaid the stated time and probably they failed to hear the tinkling of the silver-bells on his priestly robe.

Observe, they were offering "votive prayer." Any other kind of prayer would have been inappropriate and not in accord with this particular Levitical service.

Again Luke here speaks of the woman "begetting" "will beget a son for thee." Now Luke was a physician and we would expect him of all the Evangelists to use medical terms correctly, and I am inclined to think that he intentionally uses this term under the divine inspiration to show that John's begetting was out of the usual natural order of things and a forerunner of the divine begettal of Jesous. Then if he is quoting the oracular words of the angel verbatim as I think he is, there is still more significance in the angel's use of the term, as there is no room for supposing any mistake to have been made. It is the word of the angel to Zacharias or at least purports to be.

We shall find a rich mine in this Gospel of "Luke" I think, and some veins that the students of Scripture never have worked so far as I know.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Twin Evils.

Once I made a mistake that came near costing a young man his soul. He was the son of a Presbyterian minister, and had wrecked his life through drink. He was gloriously converted. Not only had he been intemperate, but he was addicted to the use of tobacco. In all my ministry I had never known a man who has been an inebriate but that when he was converted if he did not give up tobacco with the whiskey, he slipped back into his sin. For a long time this was a mystery to me, but when I learned that the cabbage and burdock and other ingredients used in making plug tobacco are moistened and bound together with Jamaica rum, I realized fully the danger threatening an inebriate who indulges in tobacco. Six months after his conversion I met this young man on the street and noticed that he was chewing tobacco. He blushed when he saw me, for he knew that I was acquainted with the fact that he had not given up the habit. Fearing to discourage him and make him fear I had lost faith in him, I said,

"Well, my friend, it is a little better for a man not to chew tobacco, but there are thousands of better men than I have done so."

A week later I met that young man on the street drunk. I took him to my study and laid him on the lounge. While he was too drunk to walk straight, he had a good deal of sense; I said to him,

"How did this happen?" he replied,

"You are to blame for it. I had supreme faith in you. I knew I was doing wrong when I took the tobacco, and if you had shaken me up the first day I met you, that would have been the end of it; but just as soon as I chewed the tobacco I wanted to take the whiskey." Then and there I realized I would far better have rebuked him on the spot. By the grace of God, though he fell, he was reclaimed.
—J. M. Caldwell.

itution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directory of the C. P. Association.
M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 2, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

BROTHER N. H. Geiselman has gone on a tour west for a short time. Was to be at Lanark, Ill. over Sunday last.

BROTHER L. E. Conner visited with friends in this city last Saturday and Sunday. He does not feel able to preach just now, and will rest for a short time.

THE war between France and Siam seems to have ended. Both sides give way somewhat. England, seconded by Germany, objected to the French blockade of their Merchant Vessels, from the Siam trade, and the French appear not to be anxious to fight these powers.

THE depression in trade, and consequent financial troubles, has caused the shutting down of many factories, and abandoning of work in mines and other industries to such an extent, that the problem of providing food for thousands of unemployed men is presented to the authorities in many places. Troops have been called to prevent trouble at Denver, Col., and the railroads are now carrying the men almost anywhere to get them scattered to places where work may be had. Altogether the outlook is dark and threatening.

MARTIN Luther says the invitation in the Psalms, "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him" is, in the Hebrew, "Be silent to God—let him mould thee." God knows what he desires us to be, and he will shape us to suit himself if we but use the means furnished to our hand; and if we are not what we ought to be the evidence is clear that we either neglect or resist them. •

"BLESSED is he that considereth the poor;" Psa. xli. 1. But how will he be blessed? Why, "the Lord will deliver him in the time of trouble; the Lord will preserve him and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth: and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies." And, as if this were not inducement enough to consider the poor, it is added, "The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." •

AFTER lecturing in a Southern city during parts of two weeks recently, we were one day accosted on the street by a person who said he heard our lecture the night before, and wanted to ask a few questions. Hopeful that he wanted to know what he should do to be saved, we said, "Certainly, Sir," so he said, "I have often heard it argued by some that the forbidden fruit eaten by Adam was an apple, and by others that it was not? I would like you to give me your opinion about it." We replied in effect, Sir, what is the reason you never had this question satisfactorily settled? Is it not because there is no testimony? That being so, of what value is human opinion? And is not the absence of testimony proof that it is not necessary for you to know what sort of fruit it was? Have you made up your mind as to the result of eating the fruit? Do you accept the statement of Paul that death came by that act of disobedience? If not it is a matter of vital importance that you should. There is no other way of accounting for death, and no possibility of redemption from death while in that condition, because, supposing yourself whole, you reject the medicine offered by the Great Physician, as a matter of course. We were hopeful that something more than curiosity had been excited in you by our remarks last night. As it is, we are sorry you were there at all. Life Everlasting in the glory, honor and power of God's kingdom was plainly offered to you in the words of God and of Christ, and those words will judge you at the last day if they are rejected. Be entreated not to fritter away your time on frivolous questions while momentous interests are at stake. •

"OH Lord, let thy loving-kindness and thy truth continually preserve me." What a comprehensive prayer! God's love is the motive power to obedience, and his Truth the foundation of faith and hope. May this prayer of the Psalmist ever be ours. •

SAID Jesus, "Salvation is of the Jews." To religious Gentiles generally this only means that the Old Testament came to us through the Jewish prophets, and that Jesus was a Jew. But those who have the key of Truth see that the idea revolutionizes the whole system of current theology. •

THIS is what an Alaskan chief said with uplifted eyes after hearing a part of God's loving message to mankind: "The heavens indeed are changing. We thank the Great Spirit for having pity upon us, for sending his boy to take the bad out of people. We thank thee that thou hast sent the white man with thy letter. Help us to listen and obey." Surely that Indian had the hearing ear. We seldom hear such words of gratitude in the land of Bibles. •

Do you say you "don't think there is any harm in it?" Why do you think that? Why did you think anything about it? Does not the fact that you thought about it at all, prove that it is very close upon the harm-line? You never debate whether there is any harm in paying your debts, do you? Or in being obedient to parents in the Lord, or of obeying the precepts of Jesus and a hundred other things? If you have to debate whether or no a thing be wrong or right you must be very careful or else you will decide the way you want it, regardless of right or wrong. Remember, too, that it is not only positive evil but the very appearance of it that has to be shunned by those having put on the yoke of Christ. This is what the book says, no matter what you think about it. The person these lines are intended for will probably read them; they will do no one any harm. •

The Blessed Hope!

In the professing Christian world we discover no anxiety for the second coming of Christ; nay, there is an universal indifference to it. Would it not be passing strange for a bride not to be anxious for the arrival of the bridegroom? Does not this condition of things argue a want of faith in his coming? And does not want of faith in his coming mean no hope of his coming? How could it be otherwise? And when the apostle who speaks of the Blessed Hope also says there is but one hope, we see plainly they are absolutely without any valid hope.

A very few minutes conversation with popular religionists will oblige us to class them with the scoffers Peter prophesied of; for, they practically say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" With some this may mean that there is no promise of his coming; with others, that if there was a promise of his coming it is over due, and has failed!

Beloved, do not be disturbed; the world lieth in wickedness and discerns not the signs of the times. Unbeknown to them the day approaches when all this apathy shall be rudely dispelled; ah, as a snare shall it come upon all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

Why is it that men are so blind-ed to the most obvious teaching of the New Testament? Why is it? Because of a false theory which makes them look for a final settlement at death, when in fact nothing is then settled, but, that men no longer live. All are consigned to darkness to await the coming of him whom God has appointed to judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. Happy they who are prepared for his coming. Blessed thrice blessed are all they who look for, and love his appearing. To such only will he appear the second time unto salvation. Reader, how is it with you? Are you ready? To the believer, this means: Are you a doer of the Word? Does the truth affect your life, or is it all in your head? How do you act when the flesh is hurt? Is it allowed to have its headstrong way? If so, you are not ready. Are you laying up treasures for yourself? If so you are violating a standing order, and are not ready; and it would be a fearful thing for you were the Lord to come. These questions will suggest scores of others, if you examine your status carefully.

We will not ask the *un*believer if he is ready. He is not ready. No matter how pious he is, he is not ready if he has not believed the Gospel of the kingdom Jesus preached; and not believing that he believes nothing of importance. The Gospel of Christ is the power God employs to save; it saves those who believe it, and Jesus is coming to save them, no others. From this point of view we see why people dread to hear the Lord is coming, coming soon. They are not looking for him; they do not love his appearing because they do not know him; have never been introduced to him, have never taken his yoke upon them, nor his name; and hence he has never become their sin-covering.

Fellow mortals, a blessed hope is within your reach to-day, if you can be constrained by the love of God and of Christ, to believe and obey. We are writing now with the hope that some who have long been prayed for and mourned over, may give heed to interests that are everlasting. We do not mean that they are vile, or worthless, or unlovely, but that it is not necessary to be such like in order to be lost. They are just neglecting the great salvation, and we know by Heb. ii. 3 that there is no escape of the sinner's doom for such, no matter how excellent their traits of character.

This will only appear hard terms to those who fail to realize that all will be saved by God's favor or not saved at all. Goodness will save no one. Our righteousness is only filthy rags. The righteousness of God is by faith of Jesus Anointed. God is pleased to reckon all righteous who from the heart believe the Gospel of his Son; he who thinks to set aside God's terms and institute terms of his own will find to his sorrow that he has made a stupendous blunder; and has worked under the towering delusion that by some means or another he can purchase salvation for himself. Such have no blessed Hope no matter what is hoped for, it will never be realized.

To all who have been begotten to a hope of life by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, we say, hope on. He is coming, for he said he would, and he who cannot lie has promised to send him; and the signs of his coming soon are crowding upon us! God help us to be ready. Only those who are ready go in. •

Selected.

Approaching Scenes.

Onward sweep the grand, momentous scenes which will close our world's dramatic story. Forward rush, with maddening haste, earth's unconscious masses to meet their awful destiny. Swiftly ripens the amazing crisis foretold by every prophet, long looked for by the just, presaged by signs and wonders in sky and earth and ocean's vast expanse of restless waves. Pushed on by the travail of six millenniums God's great judgment day draws nigh. The mighty revolution, wide as the world, inclusive of all nations, is swiftly massing its turbulent forces. The tarrying of the "vision" prophetic must be nearly finished. Prepare, O earth, for thy impending doom!

New Testament prediction sets forth a "Great and terrible day of the Lord" which will open, in great suddenness, and imposing scenic display. All unexpectedly as the lightning's flash across the face of the silent heavens, will appear the "Sign of the Son of man," the appalling signal of probation ended, and God's day begun. Of what that "Sign" will consist all is conjecture. The "Word of prophecy" leaves that awful omen shrouded in mystery. It will be Jehovah's great surprise to an ungrateful, unrepentant race, called to swift, inexorable account. It will need no explanation when it comes. At sight of that last of a succession of solemn premonitions the ungodly will know their day of mercy ended, their last chance of pardon gone, their false hopes departed, their doom forever fixed. The opening of that scene in "heaven" the aerial heavens will close the terms treaty between the long gracious God and defiant men. Under the terrific flashings of the "Sign in heaven" no word of prayer will be uttered, no syllable of confession will be offered. A universal wail of helpless, hopeless despair will rise from unsaved souls of all lands and people; a vast dirge, deep, ominous, appalling: the knell of salvation's last hour departed.

"And then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven. And then shall all of the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

This coming of Christ immediately following the appearing of the "Sign of the Son of Man" will be not with intercession and grace, but "In power and glory!" not to inaugurate a supplementary age of gospel work, but in his regal power as "Lord of lords and King of kings." And so at the sight of him the unsaved do not rejoice but mourn.

The first sound of the "Shout" and "Voice" and "Trump" of his approaching retinue will convince the nations that their career of unholy dominance and intrigue of ambitious power is at an end. Loosed from the restraint of the probationary ages, abandoned of the Spirit's withholding influence; released from the overruling force of divine Providence, abandoned to their uncurbed carnal passions, with one wild, terrific acclaim of despair the left and lost masses will rush to the sword and the torch, and to every known agent of destructive conflict; and the "Time of trouble" portrayed by Daniel's prophetic words, will set in. And this is the scene that is now coming on: the very next in our world's now closing history.

What means this spirit of unrest; these startling upheavals in all political centers; these commercial distresses; this ill concealed anger of the nations; these huge war preparations; these muttering thunders of anarchial revolution; this universal distrust and fear; what but the swift approach of judgment scenes?

This is the time of times for holding fast our confidence in God and his word of prophecy secure. They who drift with careless oar in these hours of sudden change will be struck by the unexpected but impending storm, and sink with the general wreckage of an unbelieving world. Now is the time to keep our garments white; to watch and pray, and be ready for the worst.

"Put on your armor now, ye righteous!
Put the helmet of salvation on, and gird
Your loins about with truth, add righteousness,
And add the shield of faith, and take the sword
Of God: awake, gird you! It is the day of Great day of God Almighty and the Lamb.
The harvest of the earth is ready ripe,
Vengeance begins to tread the great winepress
Of fierceness and of wrath; and mercy pleads—
Mercy that pleads so long—he pleads no more.

But the darkest hour is not all darkness. The gloomiest prospect is not utter gloom. Other and brighter scenes await us. The righteous Lord will not forget his own. The souls that fear his name and wait for his kingdom shall find covert from the terror and the storm. The consuming lightnings of his wrath will not affright the inhabitants of the "Rock." The destroying angel will not molest the blood-covered "little flock."

God's elect will be rescued from the fiery tempest of his wrath before the carnage and judgment begin. In Jehovah's great jurisprudence deliverance and judgment walk hand in hand. The righteous eight were securely shut into the ark before the floods decended.—God's own hand turned the key. The heavens, surcharged with consuming fire, did not—could not—emit a spark until Lot was out of Sodom. Apostate old Jerusalem could not burn till the saints had fled to the mountains. To Isaiah's chambers in the shelter of the far-off heavens; to sea of glass; to the royal city, safely poised above our mundane world, the righteous will be called before consuming judgment shall fall on the Christless nations.

Be not terrified, ye who fear the Lord and think on his name. When he makes up his jewels; when he gathers his own, he will remember you. He will not forget or overlook the weakest, the poorest, the remotest of his children. No infant is so young, no patriarch so old, no saint so forgotten and forlorn, no Lazarus so poor but the gathering angels will find them and bring them safely and right royally to the "Palace of the King."—Crisis.

Our Children's Welfare.

Parents seek the welfare of their children, and are their truest and most unselfish friends. But there is one fact worthy to be remembered, very few parents are anxious to have their children follow the same occupation which they themselves have pursued. The farmer often looks for something better than farming for his son; the blacksmith does not wish to have his sons work as he has in the dingy smithy; the physician knows enough about the medical practice to be quite willing that his sons should pursue some other calling; and so many persons, becoming acquainted with the discomforts and disadvantages of their own occupations, counsel their children to follow other callings, with the disadvantages of which they are not so well acquainted.

But no man ever saw a faithful, God-fearing Christian, who was not anxious that every one of his children should follow in his steps, and be faithful servants of the Lord. Said the beloved disciple, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in the truth" (3 John iv.); and this is the universal feeling of all true children of God. Could there be a stronger proof that the religion of Christ is a reality, and a blessed reality to those who in heart and life obey and serve the Lord? Many of them have proved the religion of Christ for many many years, and they not only hold fast the faith to the end, but strive to induce others to share with them the blessings of the gospel; and their strongest desire is that their children should be faithful Christians. Armory.

I would have told You.

Among those familiar words in the fourteenth chapter of John, we have this expression of Christ's: "If it were not so, I would have told you." There is much significance in the second clause. He had just said that in the Father's house are many mansions, and then added that if this were not so, he would have told his disciples. In other words, he would have told them that there were no such mansions, or abiding-places, if there were none in fact. He would not leave them to think of something which had no truthful foundation for it. He did not want them to put their trust in a misconception nor in a mistake.

And this principle applies to other things. It applies to the Old Testament. If it were not the word of God, worthy of the strongest confidence of the disciples, Christ would have told them that it was not. If it contained errors, would not Christ have told his hearers, and especially his disciples that it did? Undoubtedly. Why should he have left them in ignorance of such a thing, if it were indeed so? He would not have them believe in errors. He would not consent to let them trust in falsehoods. If the Old Testament were not thoroughly reliable in its history, in its moral teachings, in its prophecies, then Christ would have doubtless told his followers. And who, better able than he, or as well qualified as he, was there to judge of the authenticity and reliability of the Old Testament?

Again, if it were not true that they who die in their sins are forever lost, would not have Christ plainly told the people? Yes, he did tell them that it is so. And if it were true that all men will be finally saved, would he not have clearly and unmistakably told his hearers? Verily he would, but he never did. He told men that if they should die unforgiven they could never go where he was going, even to his Father and heaven. Furthermore, if any man could be saved by his own works or by any ordinance, Christ would also have told the people so, but he did not, and hence it cannot be true that any one is saved or can be saved in that way. If there were any other way than by faith in Christ and God's grace in the heart, that men can be saved, Christ would have straighway told us. C. H. Wetherbe in Messiah's Herald.

DIED.

Emma A. wife of L. E. Conner, died at her home two and one-half miles east of Macy, Miami Co., Ind., July 22, 1893. Aged 32 years, 3 months and ten days.

Mrs. Conner was the second child and daughter of David and Ellen Foor, and was born and raised at the old home where she has lived up to the time of her death, with the exception of two years, which years were spent in Rensselaer with the church there where her her husband was laboring.

Bro. and Sr. Conner was joined in holy matrimony Feb. 28, 1880. To them have been born 6 children, 2 girls and 4 boys, five of which still live while little Jennie the second has preceded her mother to the tomb.

This is indeed a sad visitation to our Bro. and the suddenness with which it came makes it hard to bear, and shows us how frail we are, and the inquiry comes again, "Who knoweth what a day may bring forth."

Bro. Conner has been engaged in the ministry for a number of years, and his engagement the last five years has been with churches in Warren, Jasper and Blackford Counties, and on Saturday morning after saying the usual good by to wife and little ones, he started for his appointment in Warren Co. reaching Peru, and while waiting for his train, a message reached him of his wife's sudden illness, which was quickly followed with the worst, "She is dead." O! how our hearts are made to bleed when visitations like this pass before us. Words are powerless to convey the sympathy of hearts so closely knit with the cords of fraternal love, and tears speak more than words, and our tears were only intermingled with the showers which fell from other eyes. While heart beats with heart in a thousand breasts the notes of love and pity, for those little children need so much a mother's care and a husband a faithful and trustworthy companion, and in this his loss is irreparable.

Bro. Conner is a young man that has won for himself a large circle of friends which was duly attested at the funeral held in the Christian church in Macy. Among the visitors from abroad was 3 from Rensselaer, 4 from Warren Co., 10 from Argos, and 7 from Plymouth, who came with loving words to the bereaved and with flowers as tokens of respect to the deceased.

While we in our weak way tried to speak words of comfort from 1 Thess. iv. 13, after which we layed her to rest in the Odd Fellow's cemetery west of Macy to await the trump of God.

"There the Book whose sacred pages,
Tell to us what God has said,
Tell that in the coming ages
Man will live who now are dead!

Yes, the man of Uz has told us,
Though we sleep beneath the sod,
And the arms of death enfold us,
In our flesh we shall see God."

N. H. GEISELMAN.

Died of paralysis June 14th, 1893, about nine miles from his home, Stewart, Mercer Co. Ky., Levi Skeels aged 62 years, 2 months and 15 days.

He had never entirely recovered from the effects of the gripp which he had two years ago.

He was born in Union Co. Ohio, in the year 1831. Married Ann H. Martin at the age of 21. They were baptized shortly after by Bro. L. H. Chase of Mich. who was holding meetings at Pharisburgh at the time. He began preaching the gospel of the kingdom in 1871 at Doublin, Ohio. Removed to Ill. in 1872, moved in a two-horse wagon, visited all the brethren on his route, sometimes would go far out of his route to see a brave old soldier of like precious faith.

Held several meetings on the way, visited Bro. Thompson, staid over Sunday, heard Bro. J. L. Wines preach there. He lived in Ill. two years where most of his time was spent in preaching. Went from there to Indiana, was about three months on the road which time was spent in visiting churches and isolated brethren. He preached almost every night in that time, baptized quite a number of intelligent believers. Lived in Indiana almost two years where he tended a farm and preached almost every Sunday.

Removed from Indiana to Kentucky, spent about three months on the way, preached every night except about three. Moved into our present little home in Dec. 1876. His time since then has mostly been spent in preaching the gospel, has baptized twenty or more since coming to Kentucky.

The Word of God in his hand has proved a savor of life unto life to a few and a savor of death unto death to many.

Though he was never discouraged knowing many are called but few are chosen, he said in his life time all he wanted was to live in such a way, that it could be said of him when sleeping in his narrow home, he died in the Lord, he fell asleep in Jesus.

Comparing his life with that of the example set for us to follow, we can say with full assurance, he died in the Lord. He was of a meek and humble spirit, if reviled he reviled not again. Never resented evil in the least, he had no enemies except for Christ's sake, and a harsh word for such never crossed his lips even in his own family circle. Hatred and strife were not in his heart. And above all he had full faith in Jesus as the life giver, and was ever waiting for his coming and kingdom.

He leaves five children and many friends who deeply mourn their loss, though we sorrow not as those who have no hope, for in God's Word we are told, "All them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." We are ever waiting for that glorious coming when the earth shall be made new and sin and sorrow shall have passed away. And the last bitter enemy, yes, bitter enemy death shall be destroyed. Yours in hope of eternal life.

SADIE SKEELS.

Conference Notice.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana, will be held at the Pleasant View Church in Warren Co., Ind., commencing Thursday evening August 24, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday.

At our last conference at Antioch, in June, a general invitation was extended through Brother Conner to all lovers of the truth; and as this will be the first conference held at that place let there be a liberal response, for it is the duty of all in the like precious faith to be there if possible. What if it does take a little time, and some of our means, it will only be a little sacrifice in the right direction.

The brethren there are desirous of having a good meeting and we hope they may not be disappointed.

As has been previously announced the way to get there is by way of the Wabash R. R., running through Peru, going to West Lebanon.

The place of meeting is a few miles from this point, but by sending word to Harry Evans Jr. at Hedrick, Ind., you will be met and cared for.

J. F. WAGONER, PRES.
A. C. ROBERTS, SEC.

Cheap-Home Visitor's Excursion.
Thursday, August 17th, 1893.

On the above date the Lake Erie & Western R. R., will run their Annual Home Visitor's Excursion to Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Ohio, and intermediate points. The rates are so low that it will be cheaper to go on this Excursion than to stay at home; thus giving everybody an opportunity to visit their old home and friends, through the States of Indiana and Ohio.

Excursion train will pass Plymouth at 5:46 A. M. For further information see Agent L. E. & W. R. R.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wines	$10.00
J. L. Wines	20.00
Alfred B. Wines	5.00
Calvin Beagle.	25.00

Selected.

Jerusalem trodden down by the Gentiles.

Jerusalem was taken by Titus A. D. 70, when 1,100,000 Jews perished, and 97,000 were carried away captive.

A. D. 132, it was taken by Barchochab, who rebelled against the Romans, and claiming to be the Messiah, had 200,000 followers, and committed great slaughter.

In the year 135 it was re-taken by the Emperor Adrian, who destroyed 50 castles, 980 cities, and slew 580,000 Jews.

Constantine built many churches in Jerusalem, and favored it highly.

Julian favored the Jews, and commenced to rebuild the temple, setting 10,000 men at work to clear Mount Moriah, intending to make a rival of Mount Calvary; but his projects failed by special interposition of God, the workmen being driven from the foundation by balls of fire issuing therefrom and soon after, he died.

Chosroes, king of Persia, in the year 614, aided by 24,000 Jews, sacked the city, killing 90,000 Christians.

Heraclius recovered it by treaty, after defeating the king of Persia, year 628, and it remained under Roman and Christian control till the rise of the Arabian impostures.

In 637 it was taken by the Kalif Omar, who by treaty allowed the Christians a right to the holy sepulchre, and built the splendid Mosque of Omar on Mount Moriah, on the site of Solomon's Temple.

Ackmet, a Turk, took it in 868.

The Kalif of Bagdad took it in 936.

Hakem of Egypt took it and burnt the church of the holy sepulcher, 1009.

Soon after, Mohammed Isched, a Seljukian Turk, conquered it.

Ortok took it in the same century.

Malek Shah next, 1076.

The successors of Ortok recovered it soon after.

The Fatimites of Egypt soon after recovered it, and burnt the Church of the holy sepulchre, which was soon rebuilt.

The Crusaders took it in 1099, slew 70,000 Mohammedans, and elected Baldwin King.

In 1187, Saladin, the Turkish sultan of Egypt, took it.

In 1192, Richard of England defeated Saladin in several great battles, with immense slaughter, and by treaty recovered the freedom of Jerusalem for the Christians.

Melek Moadin of Damascus demolished the city's walls in 1219.

In 1229, Frederick II, Emperor of Germany, with an army of 40,-600, entered Jerusalem in triumph, and by treaty secured it to the Christians.

Toleration was secured for the Mohammedans in the Mosque of Omar, and for the Christians in the church of El-Aksa. But this treaty was soon violated by the Turks; for David of Kerac destroyed the city and slew most of the people; and when the Earl of Cornwall arrived, the Christians were in great oppression; but by his energy they were reinstated, by treaty, in the enjoyment of their rights, 1243.

The Sultans of the Carismians took it in 1244.

It was recovered in 1247.

It was surrendered to Bibars of Egypt, a Mameluke conqueror of Antioch, at which time he slew 40,-000 and carried away captive 100,-000. He besieged Acre with an army of 200,000, sacked it, and ended the kingdom of the Crusaders in Palestine.

Jerusalem was taken in 1982 by the Tartars, and yielded to Tamerlane about 1400. It soon fell under the Mamelukes of Egypt, and the Othmans took it in 1617, under Selim I. The church of the holy sepulchre was burnt in 1808, and the present one built in 1810.

In 1832, Mehemet Ali took possession of it without war, but in 1834 it revolted, in the general insurrection of Palestine, but was soon brought into subjection. In 1842 he was deprived of all his Syrian possessions, and since that it has been under the Sultan of Turkey,--Russia, France and England having rights in it.

Almost all nations of Europe, Asia, and Africa, have trodden Jerusalem under foot. How true the great prophecy of Christ!

Waiting for my Boy.

A few years ago, in one of the growing cities of New York State, there was a home into which the great sorrow of a father's death had entered. The sons, of whom there were several, were of a nervous temperament, full of animation, and exposed to the many temptations which endanger the young in large cities. The widowed mother realized the vast importance of her responsibility, and many a time did she look upward to the Heavenly Father for divine aid in the guidance and protection of her fatherless boys. She made it a rule to never retire for rest at night until all her sons were at home. But as the boys grew older this became a severe task on both her time and health, often keeping the faithful mother watching until the midnight hour.

One of the boys displayed a talent for music, and became a skillful violinist. He drifted, however, among the wrong class of people, and was soon at balls and parties that seldom dispersed until the early hours of day. Upon one occasion it was nearly seven o'clock in the morning before he went to his home. Entering the house and opening the door of the sitting-room, he saw a sight that can never be effaced from his memory.

In the old rocking-chair sat his aged mother fast asleep, but evidently she had been weeping. Her frilled cap, as white as the snow, covered her gray hair; the knitting had fallen from her hands, while the tallow from the candle had run over the candlestick and down her dress. Going up to her, the young man exclaimed, "Why, mother! What are you doing here?" His voice startled her, and upon the question being repeated, she attempted to rise, and piteously, but oh! so tenderly, looking up into his face, said, "I am waiting for my boy." That sad look, and those words, so expressive of that long night's anxiety, quite overcame the lad, and throwing his arms around her he said, "Dear mother, you shall never wait like this again for me." That resolution has never been broken.

What were the results of all that godly mother's faithfulness, patience, and love? The young man deliberately and forever consecrated his talent unto the Lord. Never again did he play for dances or midnight parties. He did not give up his music. He could not. He must sing and play. He soon organized music classes, keeping spiritual aims constantly in view, and taught his pupils to praise God with heart and voice. He found engagements in public schools, and more than thirty thousand pupils have received instruction from him. He ranks high as a composer, and has given the world some of its sweetest and most sacred songs.

Not a few young people have thus far failed to enter upon the grandeur and ecstacy of life because they have not consecrated their talent to the Lord. If it be skill in music, then let us "sing for Jesus." If it be the ability to accumulate money, let this be for the Lord. Whatever the ruling passion, the controling purpose, the uppermost desire, our calling in life let all be for the glory of him "who loved us and gave himself for us."

And let us remember that when this is done, our talent, whatever it may be, is thus consecrated to the Lord, our heavenly Father, in accepting it, does not take it from us in the sense of depriving us of it; but he leaves it with us for our enjoyment, and the greater good we can do thereby, so that it becomes the more precious to us.—J. J. Hall, in the Golden Rule.

Points for Policemen.

Superintendent Colvert of the Indianapolis police force recently issued a manifesto to the men under his care which would be seasonable reading to many policemen besides those of Indianapolis:

"There is no excuse for drinking while on duty, and an officer with even one drink of whiskey, is not in a fit condition to act as a policeman. Don't hang around saloons. The saloon-keeper who feeds you on drinks and cigars will tell it, and, if you receive favors at his hands, you cannot compel him to live up to the law. So far as drinking while on duty, there is no second offense, no excuse. Once means suspension or dismissal. It won't do to say you have taken a sudden cramp or become sick. In that case call a doctor; don't visit a saloon. This order is positive: the officer who drinks while on duty—if caught at it—and he will be caught—will be out of a job. When not on duty your time is your own, but let me advise you as a friend, not as a police superintendent, not to drink and hang around saloons. It will be better for yourselves, and your families will be happier. Nothing good can be said of whiskey-drinking.

"Let us all be gentlemen, and if we are gentlemen, the public will soon find it out and treat us as such. We don't want to be loafers and bar-room loungers. We all have a pride in ourselves, and we want the public to be proud of us. I am not, gentlemen, trying to deliver a temperance lecture. I am only talking as a friend to my friends. You will be better men, happier men, if you will spend your leisure time with your families or at places of innocent amusement. You cannot be hail, good fellows with people whose actions you are obliged to regulate. I hope you will take what I say in the spirit I gave it. Let us all pull together and make the Indianapolis force not only the pride of the city but of Indiana. In conclusion, let me remind you that there is no excuse for drinking liquor while on duty, and there will be no second offense."

The police in a good many cities might be greatly improved by following the wholesome instructions addressed to the police of Indianapolis.—Safeguard.

The King of Siam and his Realm.

San Francisco Chronicle: The King of Siam is a monarch who has more absolute power over his subjects than the Czar. Few men in this world have as much to make them feel big and important, but for one in his position he is a very much civilized and fin-de-siecle young person. He is small in person. His head is crowned with a golden pyramid of jewels, rising in circular tiers, diminishing as they go upward, until they end in a long, pencil-like point, which extends nearly two feet above the forehead of its kingly owner. His body is clad in gorgeous coat and vest, heavily embroidered in gold and jewels, and in place of pantaloons he has the rich brocaded sarong of the Siamese about his loins and waist. It comes down below his knees at the front, and it looks not unlike a pair of fancy knickerbockers. Below these are a pair of shapely calves in white silk stockings, and his feet are thrust into jewel-covered, heelless slippers, pointed like the shoe of the Turk. The whole makes a costume brilliant and grand. He is a pleasant looking fellow, and his olive brown face is plump and unwrinkled. He has beautiful liquid black eyes, a broad, high, and rather full forehead, and short, straight black hair. Under his rather short and half-flat nose there is a silky black mustache, and below this the lips are rather thick, and the chin plump and well rounded. His hands and feet are well made, and he is, all told, a good specimen of Siamese beauty. He is the ninth son of Maha Mongkut, the last King of Siam, and he was picked out of a family of eighty-four children to be placed upon the throne. He has thirty-four half brothers and forty-nine half sisters.

Looking at him it is hard to imagine that he is the sacred ruler of from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 of people, and it is hard for an American to appreciate his absolute power and his holy dignity. The people of the country are his slaves. He has the right to call them into his service either with or without pay, and all men in Siam are forced to give him either the whole or a part of their services during the year. His word can throw a man into chains or put him to death; can deprive him of his property or rob him of his daughter. All the women of Siam are supposed to belong to the King, and no one is forbidden to him except his mother. He is supposed to take one of his sisters as his Queen, and the nobles of the country offer him their daughters by the score. His court is one of intrigue, and the nobles are glad to have their daughters in his harem so that they may thus the better attain the King's friendship and powerful offices. He taxes the people as he pleases, and these taxes are so heavy that at times some men have to sell their wives and children as slaves to enable them to pay him. Still, his vaults are full of treasure. Siam has no national debt, and he has an income of more than $10,000,000 a year. He can spend tens of thousands of dollars in cremating a dead wife or in establishing a petty navy.

Still, this King of Siam is the most progressive the country has ever had. He is far in advance of his people, and he is doing a great deal to civilize them. Before his second coronation in 1873 all natives who approached the King had to do so on all fours. They had to raise their hands in adoration to him and bump their heads on the mats before him. The King did away with all that, and he has introduced the American handshake into his reception of foreigners. He gives receptions to foreigners and he speaks the English tongue, though he never does this when noted foreigners have an audience with him. He has brought the telegraph and the telephone into Bangkok, has established a street car line, and lights his harem with electric lights.

The King of Siam is a Buddhist, and he was for some time a Buddhist priest, as is the custom with all men in Siam. Every one is expected at some time to enter the priesthood, and this monarch, with his millions of treasure, his scores of wives, and his $10,000,000 a year, once shaved his head and nominally gave up his crown and his harem to wear a yellow scarf about his waist and to go fasting and praying. The Siamese priests are picturesque, as well as devout. The priesthood is useful to married men. A man can be divorced whenever he likes by entering the priesthood for a month or so. Nobles do not require any such formality.

The great event in the life of a Siamese is the functions of having his hair cut. This is sometimes a great event in the life of an American young man also. On the top of a Siamese baby's head a certain lock of hair is preserved. All the rest of the head is shaved, but this lock is kept sacred until he reaches the age when he officially passes from boyhood to manhood. Then off comes the lock. The celebrations attending the hair-cutting of the present King lasted three days.

The King of Siam has a large assortment of wives, but he is so high and mighty that he must marry nobody beneath him in rank, his only equals being his own family. His regular official Queen must, therefore, always be his half-sister. The Queen is not far from 20 years of age; she rules the harem, and she is a very pretty Siamese girl. Her complexion is a light brown, and her oily black hair, about two inches long, stands straight up and is combed backward from a fair, open forehead. She has beautiful eyes, wears diamond earrings, and has a diamond pendant at her neck, and her fingers are covered with precious stones. She smokes cigarettes, as does also the King, and she chews the betel nut, making her teeth as black as jet and her lips stick out. The Siamese say that any dog can have white teeth, but that it is only those who are rich enough to afford the betel nut who can have black ones.

The debtor class of Siam afford a great contrast to all this gorgeousness. They are stripped naked, and, chained to heavy logs, are compelled to work as slaves. The interest on money is so high in Siam that when a man once gets in debt the most he can possibly hope for by the hardest kind of work is to pay the interest on what he owes. This has discouraged industry and has encouraged the practice of allowing women to do the work. Man, being proud and ambitious, soon tires of industry indulged in for its own sweet sake.

The temples and palaces of Siam are structures of complicated magnificence.

Witnesses in court are tortured in very ingenious ways. Certain classes are prohibited from testifying. They include drunkards, gamblers, virgins, executioners, beggars, and persons who cannot read. When they whip a man they stretch his skin from his head to his heels to make the blows effective.

The sacred white elephant for which Siam is famous, if he ever did amount to anything, has gone all to pieces. He is at present a mangy, scraggy, wild-eyed creature, with nothing white about him but his ears, which seem to have leprosy. His keepers are dirty, he is not bound with golden chains, and the only thing royal about him is his bad temper.

Ominous Signs.

1. The wide-spread and increasing contempt for authority. In breaking away from the tyranny of kings and the traditions of the past, the pendulum of human life is evidently swinging too near the danger line for comfort. The mists of chaos along the horizon are rapidly thickening into ominous clouds. The thrones of the world are overshadowed with socialism and Nihilism and every form of civil government is disintegrating with distrust and rebellion. Along with attacks upon governments comes the attack upon the Bible carrying the war of negation into the religious domain. The spirit of socialism, Nihilism and the school of "Higher Criticism" is revolutionary; in opposing and ignoring authorities they are one. Notwithstanding the apologies made, and to be made for this latter school, there can be no question but that it has contributed largely toward the present prevailing contempt for authorities in all lands. It may be claimed that this is but the abuse of a good thing. That may be. But that it has contributed force to the irreligious wave of the Nineteenth Century now sweeping over our country cannot be denied. What expression of the people's will may not be ignored? yea! that has not already been trampled in the dust by the liquor traffic monopolies, the rich, and the wicked? Is not the following Scripture this day fulfilled before our eyes? "Likewise also these filthy dreamers defile the flesh, despise dominion, and speak evil of dignities."

2. Mammon Worship. Commercial interests have crowded religious and moral interest to the wall. Business men have no time for domestic and religious duties. It is almost a mad rush for money the world over. Wealth never accumulated more rapidly throughout the world and especially in America than during the last quarter of a century. The world never had more millionheirs than now. There is not only a wide-spread craze for wealth, but the shortest cuts are being taken to attain it. The honest laws of trade are ignored and gambling popularized. A common policy is "The most money, in the shortest time, at the least cost." There is no time for social culture and intellectual improvement. Men are too absorbed to even look into a religious journal. Everything read must be short. The education of young men and women is curtailed strictly to business. Knowledge is on the increase in the land only in the multiplication of branches. Speciality is the law of the day; general knowledge is not esteemed, nor on the increase. The eyes of the people are blinded to their higher interests by "the god of this world." In the clamor for wealth, contracts are broken, unjust laws enacted, courts bribed, justice defeated, politics corrupted, sentiments ignored and majorities set at naught. Many of the conditions in Paul's description of the "last days" mentioned in 2 Tim 3: 1-4, already exist. They are the legitimate fruits of mammon worship.

3. Pleasure seeking. Next to mammon worship, pleasure-seeking holds the pre-eminence. Popular amusement is the daughter of wealth. Theaters, resorts, races, games, tours and excursions were never so popular as in these later years. Prodigality is the offspring of carnal pleasure and characteristic of the present age. The people are to-day "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." Business and pleasure have emptied churches, disorganized Sunday-schools, dwarfed prayer-meetings, curtailed contributions, and greatly hindered the evangelization of the world. There is plenty of money for everything but churches and missions. Money is lavished upon vices and vanities, while virtuous, moral and religious enterprises are begging for existence. How long? O, Lord! how long shall these things be? Must they work out their own destruction? Are we to have a reign of terror in this fair land? Are there not yet the seven thousand who have not and who will not bow the knee to Baal? Yea, more! But these are trying days upon the elect of God. Faith and moral courage are the wants of the day and age.

The foundation of God cannot be removed, nor his kingdom shaken. In the din and glamour of business, pleasure and sin, let us not lose faith in God. "And to you who are troubled rest with us when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Christian Evangelist.

Home.

Go through the town any evening, and you will be surprised, if you have never given the matter any thought, at the number of boys and young men who make a practice of squandering their evenings, to say nothing of the days spent in the same manner. Squandering time is the sin of the age. As a rule, the idle, indolent boy goes to the bad. He may have all the elements necessary to make a first-class business or professional man; but if he is not instructed and encouraged to form habits of industry, he will be a failure, almost inevitably. There is wisdom in the Jewish proverb, "He who brings his son up without a trade, brings him up to be a thief." Prison statistics show that a large proportion of convicts never learned a trade until they learned one in prison.

There is one way this great evil of squandering time can be remedied, if not altogether obviated. Parents must take the matter in hand—must themselves set the example of industry and frugality, and must see that their children imitate the example and that they have something to do. Make the home pleasant and attractive. If the boys love the street or the loafing place better than the home, you may be assured that the home is lacking in some important particular. Provide the boys with interesting reading matter, and useful tools, and encourage them to employ their time in any harmless way that will keep them from idleness and profligacy. When you see a boy or a young man willing to trifle a day, a month, a year in doing the work of a disgusting street loafer, you may set it down it would not take much to persuade that boy or that young man to become a full-fledged scoundrel.

It is well to teach the boys that no success comes from squandering time, and that the better class of people have about as high a regard for a real industrious thief as for an ignorant, idle loafer. It is in the power of most parents to regulate this matter, and if they will do it, we see our army of trifling, loafing young men and boys diminish. Make the home what it should be, and you have done much toward assuring the future of our boys.

But if parents suffer their own minds to grovel continually in sties and stables, and see nothing higher in life than land and money, how can they lead their children on to useful lives, fruitful in noble words and deeds? The Common People.

Shun Bad Books.

It requires some heroism to say you have not read such and such a book. Your friend gives you a stare which implies your literary inferiority. Do not, in order to answer the question affirmatively, wade through indiscriminate slush.

We have to say that three-fourths of the books of the day are a mental depletion to those who read them. The man who makes wholesale denunciation of fiction pitches overboard "Pilgrim's Progress" and other good books. The fact is that some of the publishing houses that once were cautious about the moral tone of their books have become reckless about everything but the number of copies sold. It is all the same to them whether the package sent out be corn-starch, jujube paste or hellebore. They wrap up fifty copies and mark them C. O. D. But if the expressman, according to that mark, should collect on delivery all the curses that shall come on the head of the publishing house which printed them, he would break down his wagon and kill his horses with the load. Let parents and guardians be especially watchful. Have a quarantine at your front door for all books and newspapers. Let the health doctor go abroad and see whether there is any sickness there before you let it come to shortage. Talmage.

The Daily Tragedy.

At the entrance of one of our college chapels lies a nameless grave. The grave covers the mortal remains of one of the most promising fellows, ruined through drink. I received, not very long ago, a letter from an old schoolfellow, a clergyman, who after long, arduous labor, was in want of clothes and almost of food. I inquired the cause—it was drink. A few weeks ago a wretched clergyman came to me in deplorable misery, who had dragged down his family with him to ruin. What had ruined him? Drink. When I was at Cambridge one of the most promising scholars was a youth who, years ago, died in a London hospital, penniless, of delirium tremens, through drink. When I was at King's College, I used to sit next to a handsome youth who grew up to be a brilliant writer; he died in the prime of life, a victim to drink. I once knew an eloquent philanthropist who was a very miserable man. The world never knew the curse that was upon him; but his friends knew that it was drink. And why is it that these tragedies are daily happening? It is through the fatal fascination, the seductive sorcery of drink, against which Scripture so often warns. It is because drink is one of the surest of "the devil's ways to man and the man's ways to the devil."—Farrar.

"I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; and I will sing praises unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great above the heavens: and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds. Blessed be the name of the Lord from this time forth and forevermore."—David.

He that has light thoughts of sin never has great thoughts of God.

Conference Report.

The annual conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, of Kansas, met according to call on the 21st of July, in Cowley Co., Kansas, Northeast of Oxford, in Brother Jackson's neighborhood.

A committee of three was appointed to look after the Evangelistic work as follows, Lydia Chaplin, Corresponding Sec., Ashton, Sumner Co., Kan. Nancy E. Barber, Arkansas City, Kan. W. H. Bernard, Oxford, Sumner Co. Kan.

We had a good, interesting meeting, a well filled house, and good attention. A goodly number of brethren and friends from other places, and one young sister Waldo, late of Pierceton, Indiana.

Oh what a grand thing for those of the "one faith" to meet together and tell our trials and hopes, and cheer one another with the blessed "Word of Life," and to talk of the soon coming of our Blessed Lord. Yes, brethren, cheer up, for it will not be long ere he will come. Let us strive earnestly for the crown which is promised to each one of us if we are found with our lamps trimmed and burning.

The place and time of next conference will be given in due time.

Brother Oliver reports preaching 13 discourses, in 38 days, traveling 300 miles. Baptized one, visited three new places, had large congregations with a desire to hear more. He says he finds the field is large but the laborers are few.

Brother Richardson of Iowa, who has been travelling in our state and holding meetings, says, there are always good congregations, and a good interest. He and Brother Adams held meetings in Jefferson Co., and four have been immersed into the all-saving Name. I think this should encourage us to work with a zeal.

E. F. Randolph, Sec.

ected.

the Study of Prophecy.

Great was the honor which God conferred upon the father of the faithful when he conferred upon him the endearing name of "Abraham My friend." He was called the friend of God. There can be no mutual confidence without friendship, nor can friendship continue without mutual confidence. It must exist on both sides. It was the position in which God stood towards Abraham, and Abraham towards God, which elicited the appeal from the heart of God to his own heart—a zealous thought?—"Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?"

Can we not gather from this that God does and will speak to His precious ones concerning that which is in the future? Much experience is to be drawn from the past; the present is to be judged and accepted in a heavenly light and by a Scriptural standard. But in order to form a sound judgment, we must view the future also in accordance with the word of God and in subjection to the Scriptures.

God, in prophecy, takes His people, as it were, into His confidence. His intention is to teach them that they may frame their life aright, and glorify His name, and live in the world as those who are acquainted with its present condition and its final destiny. Nothing influences the life and habits of Christians so powerfully as a clear understanding of God's purposes in permission and forbearance during the present existing circumstances, concerning the world the course and the end of which is revealed prophetically, and made as certain to faith as the past or the present.

How much depends upon expectation! One man believes that by culture, by Parliamentary measures, by science, by learning, the fallen race is to be regenerated. Another, not despising such things in their place, looks for the Almighty Regenerator from heaven. "Surely I come quickly" sounds through the cries of misery; and the response goes up, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." How different the effect produced! May our hearts be so truly in unison with God that we may respond thus. The verse is remarkable. The Greek word is a very strong one (Amen, surely, verily). The Lord uses it, and the people of God respond with the same.

An objection is often raised against the study of prophecy upon the ground that it is obscure, that it can be interpreted by fulfillment only, and therefore that it is better to let it alone. I have heard the passage in 2 Pet. i. 19-21 misquoted, or rather misrepresented, as if "the dark place" referred to the prophecy in so far at least as to make it difficult of comprehension. But so far is this from being the case, that, as it is evident, the prophecy itself is the light that shineth. The night is far spent the day is at hand; prophecy is the light of warning. Wearied with pain, and worn with the long night of sickness, the sufferer revives with joy at the first beam of twilight. It is the precursor of day. So with the child of God. The promises in the future are the support of the passing time; the twilight of nature is but the angular reflection of the sun, when he rises in his splendor the twilight vanishes. So will it be in our perfect day. But here what we have is the same in nature and in character, although not in degree. Let us walk in the light. Let us not fail to keep our face towards it, our back to the world, our face towards a coming Christ, and the Sun of Righteousness will arise upon us with healing in His wings.

For practical instruction and guidance we must ever remember where the light shines. Although there is the true light and the sure word, there is also the dark place. The word translated, "dark," is literally rendered "squalid." It also signifies "dry," "thirsty," dirty," "impoverished," "needy." It occurs here only (to the best of my knowledge) in Scripture. Now, it is certain that under the circumstances in which we are placed, it is of the utmost importance that we should walk in the light, and that light is the sure word of prophecy. The word conveys not only the impression that we are walking in a dark land, but also in an unhealthy atmosphere. The mists that arise obscure the light, which, perhaps, was, the day before, shining brilliantly. Thus does inconsistency, worldliness, indifference, darken our eyes, although the light is as bright as before. No doubt the worldliness of the professing Church has created indifference (if not somewhat worse) towards the great prophetical truths. Thus, due heed is not given to that which throws a true light upon the ways, the course, the end of the world.

Let us "take heed" a strong word this in the Greek. One signification is, "Hold before—have in preference to others." The Church, like the moon, shines with borrowed light. Let the earth come in between, there is an eclipse. If we are waiting for the Lord, our light will shine before men. Christ says "Ye are the light of the world." If the face is kept towards a coming Jesus, and the mind fixed on Him, we shall walk surely, hopefully, cheerfully, and ourselves as lights in a dark place, shall be witnesses of a crucified and a risen Christ and for a coming Savior. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Silver Morn.

What is one to do when melancholy casts its gloom over the soul? Emerson says, "Come out into the azure; love the day." Talmage says, "Take a rest, or see a doctor." Good! But not enough. One must get away from himself—his gloomy, morbid self. He must look up and think up, and feel up and struggle up. He must go to God's Word. What cheering promises it contains! He must go to prayer. There is an ear which is never heavy. Elijah went to the mount of God when he woke up to find he had been under a juniper tree. Upon the heights of Horeb the Lord passed by. That was enough. The prophet's despondency was gone. His heart was assured, and he looked out upon life as it really was. Personal fellowship with God will cure the worst case of "blues" which ever tormented a human soul. The man who is confirmed in his faith in God is a confirmed optimist. Do you belong to that sunny class? If not, how would it do for you to join right away? Epworth Herald.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198 78

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1 05

Pennsylvania Lines. Reduced Rates to Warsaw for the Spring Fountain Park Assembly.

Excursion Tickets will be sold to Warsaw, Ind., via the Pennsylvania Lines, July 26th to August 9th, inclusive, at low round trip rates, account Spring Fountain Park Assembly. Return coupons valid until August 10th.

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago, form part of the new equipment.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

To the Mountain and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:50 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the Lake at $2.00. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$11.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,
J. F. Waggoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Circleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Reyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Caty, Holbrook, Neb.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

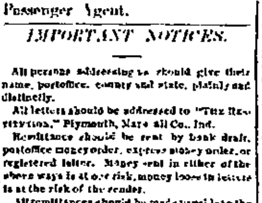
JUST THE THING.

This is an expression the travelling public generally use when they find something that is exactly what they want. This expression applies directly to the Wisconsin Central Lines which is now admitted by all to be "The Route" from Chicago to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, Duluth and all points in the Northwest. Their double daily train service and fine equipment offers inducement which cannot be surpassed.

This is the only line running both through Pullman First Class and Tourist Sleepers from Chicago to Pacific Coast Points without change.

For full information address your nearest ticket agent or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen. Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ [illegible] 3. [illegible] 4. [illegible] Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and [illegible] Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 30 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

[illegible] Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and [illegible] treat of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe, a series of [illegible] on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. S. [illegible] The above is the title of a 16 page tract. [illegible] $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures [illegible] pages [illegible]

"Christ's Kingdom—Where [illegible] What [illegible]" [illegible] 3 for [illegible] $1.

The Gospel of Christ Notched by the Tradition of the [illegible]. The above is the title of a [illegible] pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. [illegible] of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very [illegible] on the New Heavens and New [illegible] 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or [illegible] copies for $1.00.

The Best of All Tales, Carrie Williams. This title [illegible] pages on the above named [illegible] may be had from THE RESTITUTION office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, [illegible] maps of the Holy Land at the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—his Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants, including a brief [illegible] by [illegible] Thomas. 100 pages, price 30 cts. or four for $1 postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott, B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory footnotes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition, on large paper. Cloth $4.00; library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 300 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price 30 cts.

Cruden's Concordance—Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation. Every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's [illegible]; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 175 pages, cloth bound, for 15 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Exposition of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief." This work contains 250 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 12 for $1.80; 50 for $6.50. Free to those not able to pay. Send to the office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The [illegible]. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 256 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 24 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in the churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connections with the Kingdom of God, and the One Baptism." It was written many years ago by the late Mrs. C. W. Woodland, and is really "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and [illegible]. This [illegible] page tract [illegible] each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Explaining the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 350 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures and addresses, and about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible reading." Being comments on particular texts that have called for thought or study. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Rochelle, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 100 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, entitled, "Future Probation: Is That an Article [illegible] of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. [illegible] Price, 25 cts., or can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 183 pages, 6th edition. Cloth, 25 cts., [illegible] gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, as they stand in the Scriptures." [illegible]

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 4 page, double column tract, [illegible] per dozen, [illegible] per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blest Hope, 626 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1250 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Ninth and Spring streets, [illegible] C. C. Ramsey [illegible] every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. [illegible]

The Chicago church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at [illegible], Ind., hold meetings [illegible] Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every first Sunday in the month; also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday [illegible]

The [illegible], Plymouth, Ind., meet in their [illegible] hall, corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Sec'y.

The Church of God at [illegible] meets [illegible] day of the week at [illegible] Sunday School, and [illegible] for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, [illegible] each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., in Music Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 13 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Almus Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. Stevens, Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of Westseattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church services every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letters will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, when prayers and exhortations are made to one another, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Knife, [illegible], or B. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder, Elias Siple, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Hatton and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dalton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 30, Passenger, Leaves	11:46pm
No. 22, " "	10:40pm
No. 20, " "	12:21am
No. 160, Local, "	12:45pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves	4:42am
No. 19, " "	10:24pm
No. 27, " "	12:15pm
No. 151, Local, "	12:15pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily except Saturday. No. 21 at Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:55 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 9:45 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers. Nos. 20, 21, 22 and 19 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west. For tickets, rates and general information call on C. H. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W., Plymouth, Ind., or address C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt. H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager. Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	10:36pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 56	6:25pm
No. 54,	6:40am	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53	2:00pm
No. 55	[illegible]

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address E. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or J. M. CHESBROUGH, Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

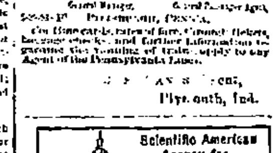
Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.
Pittsb'gh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eagle Lake	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eastward.
Chicago	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eagle Lake	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager. E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent. PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

[illegible] Agent, Plymouth, Ind.



Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York Chicago & St. Louis RR.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

[illegible]

1. The Inspiration of the Bible. [illegible]
[illegible]

Cheap Edition Without Covers.

[illegible]

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains [illegible]

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N.Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
FOR THE
Christian Publishing Association
Board of Directors:
[illegible]
W. A. [illegible],
[illegible] B. Wiley,
[illegible],
A. R. Underwood.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XIII PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 9, 1893. NO. 30.

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As it bears in this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the [illegible] saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisite to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Potter.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] of the Master Moulder's hand,
[illegible]

[illegible] His loving skill
[illegible] to fill an and again his form,
[illegible] the clay in the [illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] shall be satisfied
[illegible]
—[illegible]

Original.

"There is no God but God and Mahomet is his Prophet."

"La Allah il Allah, Mohammed Rasool Allah."

Probably over half the Mohammedans in the world are subjects of the Queen.

The Sultan rules over about fifteen million only. Morocco perhaps eight, whilst there are over fifty million in British India alone besides those in other British Dependencies and Suzerainties.

The Indian Mohammedans are probably by far the best educated, enlightened, and wealthy of the race, from their long contact and training with civilization during over 100 years.

The Faithful have yet an important part to play in the near future and excite interest accordingly.

From the latest "authentic" Census returns there is no active propaganda of Islamism in India.

A small amount of conversion goes on but this arises from social and economical causes and is confined to the poorer classes, mostly females, Hindoos of low caste, outcasts, loose women, and so on. Religious conviction has nothing to do with this.—Islamism appeals to those who have for ages been kept hanging as outcasts on the verge of Hindoo society, as offering an entrance into a new social organization, with a purer conception of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Few of these converts are more than just circumcized Hindoos. Few of them can repeat even the simplest formulas of the faith, and all have adulterated the Creed of Mahomet with their former heathen superstitions, just as the converted Greek Philosophers in the early Christian Church brought in their Pagan theories of the immortality of the soul.

The only road to administrative appointments in India is individual fitness for discharge of public duties.

In the North of India where Mohammedanism is purest the proportion of Mohammedans in the universities and colleges is in excess of their ratio to the general population. The Great Mohammedan University at Aligurh founded by Mohammedans is a credit to Islam.

In Bengal the reverse is the case. Prior to the educational tests in 1852 nearly all the Pleaders in the Calcutta High Courts were Mohammedans; from 1852 to 1868 only one such was admitted to the Bar.

In 1872 though forming 32 per cent of the Bengal population only 14 per cent were in the schools, and not 4 per cent in colleges. Under Lord Mayo's Administration steps were taken to rectify this and from 1871 to 1881 their school attendance increased from 28,148 to 231,885, and throughout the country the increase was 70 per cent in ten years.

But the Hindoos were still far ahead proportionally and on the whole Islam in India has not compared favorably in education with the Hindoo. The young Mussulman has to undergo an education in the Mosque before he can commence his secular studies, whereas the Hindoo [illegible] all his [illegible] in the attempt to get such an education as will give him a successful start in life.

Again the Hindoos of the better class always strive for an entrance into the Public Service or at least some of the lucrative professions. The Mohammedan father on the other hand often devotes his son to a devotional career. The result is, the Hindoo is studying English and Mathematics at a government college while the Mohammedan is at Madrassa poring over the Koran and studying Arabic which will never be of any practical value to him.

It is the same old story, the exclusive religious school running opposition to state education and getting a black eye in the process. English education is the only road to success in life in India now-a-days, and Mohammedanism handicaps its young men in the race. Perhaps that is the reason it secures no more converts.

Its exactions are not otherwise great. Total abstinence from intoxicants is demanded. A confession of the Unity of God, and that Mahomet is his prophet. Circumcision and the ability to worry through some Arabic formulas not necessarily understood. No change of heart is required or expected.

The Mohammedans suffered terribly in and after the mutiny: they never have recovered from that punishment and ever since have steadily fallen in the social scale.

All active religious propaganda in India is either in the line of Christianity or free thought. The Sadaran-Bramo-Somai (Universal Theistic Religion) The Arya-Somai (infidel) the Christian Missionary and the Christian Sankritten, a kind of Hindoo native salvation army are doing all the fighting. The Brahmins and Mohammedans as active religious warriors are practically dead.

The Mohammedan Fuqueer, the Buddhist Punjyts the Sikh Nana Sahis and other Holy Humbugs are waning.

The Hindoo Virage (Religious Mendicant) has left his Thakurbari (idol house) and is either a Mutalashi (enquirer) of Yihan Mahsi (Jesus Christ) or is distributing the Yihsu-Pariksha (Jesus tested) or some other blasphemous infidel production.

In Africa it is otherwise. It is stated that the Koran dominates half Africa, it leavened one quarter and is operating on the fourth.

Under Paganism the African was a hunted, harmless orate, under Islam (what is left of him) [illegible] finds rest and prosperity. His material condition was bettered, no demands were made of him Spirituality.

Islam has worked in Africa one thousand years, from the Arab conquest of Egypt, whence it found a road up the Nile into the interior of the Continent, and this with no opposition.

Christianity has difficulties that Islam escapes. It calls for Spiritual elevation in its converts, and its work is always hindered by those ghastly spectres that stalk by its side, "The cursed greed for gold," and the "blasting rum bottle."

Mohammedanism is a most dangerous foe, its claims are intolerant, its morality animal, its nature overbearing, fierce and blood-thirsty.

It aforetime (and now) despised the Greek and Roman Catholic apology for Christianity and classed it with Paganism.

Only in India has it ever met on equal terms a live aggressive, spiritual Christianity. Here it has to fight fair, for it has no political power. Cannot persecute, suppress literature or hinder Christian preaching, and what is worse, contact with Christian women has caused the Mohammedan lady to revolt against the restraints of the Harem, and demand education and more freedom and social rights.

Contact with a highly educated and refined class of Europeans has also led the Mohammedan officers, noble, and official to despise in his heart many of the old tenets.

The hand that rules in India though admitted to be honest and just, (and political existence demands this) is of the finest steel, though masked by the velvet glove. There is no evading or circumventing its decrees and under these conditions the chances are that Islamism in India will (if conditions do not change,) not succeed in holding its own in the future.

H. T. BAKER.

Selected.

Hunger and Thirst.

Those who hunger and thirst are pronounced blessed. They have one of the elements of the blessed life. Such hunger, says Jesus, carries a benediction in its bosom. It is the evidence of a new nature; it is the instinctive characteristic of a soul which has been ushered into a new life. The babe, the moment it is born, seeks the nutriment provided for it; the sinner who has been translated from darkness into light, seeks the living nutriment without which he must die and the very hunger and thirst that he feels for it is to him the irrefragible proof that his heart has been quickened, that the life of God is in his soul, and that he is born again, and made one of the family of God.

If there be no appetites in the body, there can be no life; and if these appetites seek after unwholesome things, there can be no health. If we are satisfied with the bread which God has provided, it indicates health; if we are hungry for it, it indicates that we have life; but if we are seeking the tinsel of human rhetoric instead of the bread that nourishes the soul; if we cannot take the simple food without craving after artificial stimulants; if we prefer to feed on husks instead the food of our Father's house; if we prefer the bright poppies to the corn, there is disease. We need to apply to the Great Physician, and ask him to pronounce over us, "I will, be thou healed."

This hunger and thirst is blessed, because in seasons of disquiet, despondency, and doubt, to which every believer is more or less subject, the very sensation that he feels is inferential evidence that, notwithstanding all his doubts, his despondency, his distrust, he is yet one of the accepted of God. An earnest hungering after righteousness—a wish to be what Christ desires us to be—a desire to be found in Him, though not faith exactly, is faith in God's acceptance: for he accepts the desire for the thing, and satisfies the desire that he himself has implanted. There is not a heart that yearns for spiritual joy and spiritual righteousness, which has not been touched by the transforming grace of the Spirit of God; and whilst the sensation of the want may be pain, yet that sensation, painful as it is, is inferentially pleasure, for it is the proof that God has begun that good work, of which he is the Author, and of which he will be the Finisher also.

They are blessed who thus hunger and thirst after righteousness, because they are drawn off from the disappointing and perplexing pursuit of the things of this world. They cease, in proportion to the intensity of that feeling, to hunger after that which is not bread, and to labor for that which satisfieth not. In proportion as the next world grows in brightness, the present falls into the shadow. In proportion as the heart is absorbed with the unseen, it lets go its grasp of the seen and the temporal. The affections set upon Christ are withdrawn from lesser things. The greater light extinguishes the lesser; and thus we escape the disappointments, the pains, and the perplexities of pursuits that never gratify; and we start upon that race, which is ascending progress, the goal of which is immortality and glory, looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith.

But such are blessed primarily and chiefly, because they shall be filled: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." This is the star that cheers the believer in his darkest night; here is the rainbow that overarches the gulf of his deepest despondency; the bright light that bids him still hope on, faint, yet pursuing. "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." It is God who says so; and therefore we are sure that we shall be filled. "He filleth the hungry with good things, but the rich he sendeth empty away." He satisfieth the longing soul; and it is he who says, "If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink;" it is he who says, "The Spirit and the bride say Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst, Come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." God satisfies the wants of all living things. The sparrow on the house-top looks to him, and he feeds it as carefully as the noble inhabitant within. The summer swallow on its wing chirps to him, and he hears it. The young lions no sooner lack food than he opens his hand, and satisfies the desire of every living thing. Are ye not much better than they? If God satisfies the beasts of the earth, the fowls of the air, the fishes of the deep, surely, surely, he will not leave desolate and forever hungry, and never satisfied, his rational, fallen, but yet beloved and believing offspring.

God always gratifies the desire that he himself implants. Whatever Satan has implanted in the human heart, God extirpates; but whatever God himself has awakened in the human heart, that he nourishes. The passions of which Satan is the inspirer, God will destroy; the appetites of which God is the Author, he himself will gratify. He has made us hunger and thirst after righteousness; he will fill us.

He is our Father, and we are his children. If your son ask you for bread, will you give him a stone? If he ask you for a fish, will you give him a serpent? If you, earthly fathers, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him! It is God's happiness to give, and satisfy the wants of all flesh. It is one of those beautiful traits disclosed in the divine character, that God's richest glory and joy seem to be involved in the most munificent giving. Were we only to think of God more as the Giver of blessings, and to think of him less as the Exacter of duties, we should do duties better, and we should be more thankful for blessings. Nature's common idea of God is, that he is a great and sovereign tyrant, always exacting duties that nature is unable to discharge: the gospel picture of God is, that he is a great and gracious Father, ever bestowing blessings, exacting nothing, but leaving the blessing to suggest the obligation that you owe, the gratitude that you should feel, and the duties which thereby devolve continually upon you. Wherever God is regarded as the Exacter of duties, but Giver of nothing, there is the suspicion of the slave, the miserable obedience of the subject, to a tyrant, but not the joyful response of a son to a loving and affectionate Father.

God will satisfy the believer first of all, with righteousness. They who hunger and thirst after righteousness shall be filled. They shall be clothed with white robes. They shall appear in raiment white and clean, which is the righteousness of saints. All that we feel requisite to meet the demands of God's law will be supplied us. All that we feel needful to expiate the curse of his broken law will be given us. Our hearts will be inlaid with holiness, till holiness shall cease to be a duty, and become the very air that we breathe, the pulse of the heart, the joy and delight of the soul; and that beautiful image effaced at the Fall shall be re-struck and re-stamped upon man, and a world that commenced with holiness and happiness of a yet grander Paradise restored.

We shall be filled, not only with righteousness, but also with that which is its spontaneous fruit, perfect happiness. The possession of perfect holiness is necessarily the possession of perfect happiness. Did men in national, social, political, municipal arrangements, only keep in mind this great principle that will outlast the stars in its duration, and prove coeval with the existence of the throne of Deity, that sin is misery, that what promotes the first necessarily spreads the last, that holiness and righteousness are happiness, and that what promotes the one necessarily sustains and promotes the other, they would pursue better measures, and advocate better plans for benefitting mankind. We may rest assured that in proportion as righteousness flows down our streets, will the sunshine of happiness irradiate our roofs; that in proportion as righteousness exalts a people, will there bound and beat in the hearts of that people the joy that teacheth us to live righteously and godly, and that will culminate in a glory that is perfect; until, in the language of the Psalmist, "We shall be satisfied when we awake with God's likeness."

The expression "fill," seems to denote a feast. We read of that feast in the twenty-second chapter of St. Matthew, "They shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God." It is called in the Apocalypse the marriage supper of the Lamb, where angels are our ministry, the glory of God and the Lamb is our light, the Tree of life, whose fruit is for food, is in our midst, with the River of life that proceedeth from the throne of God and of the Lamb forevermore flowing past, proclaimed by Isaiah as a feast of fat things, in which, and by which, we shall be abundantly satisfied.

So much then for the explanation, first, of the appetite which has its origin in God—spiritual thirst; secondly, the benediction pronounced upon it, showing that however painful may be the sense of want, there is an element of joy in that very sense, because it is the evidence that we have received life from on high and that our hearts are therefore no longer dead in trespasses and in sins; and lastly and chiefly the benediction is felt in the hope of its ultimate fulfillment, when all who now hunger and thirst after a righteousness, a perfection and a glory, that are aliens in a great degree to this fallen world, shall, when they awake, be satisfied with the likeness of God, with the joys that are at his right hand, and with the pleasures that are forevermore.

Earth is the place of want or desire. Perfect satisfaction is not reaped or realized below. "This is not our rest," is proclaimed by a thousand tongues. "There remaineth a rest for the people of God" is eloquently and emphatically announced by one, and that one the voice of the Holy Spirit of God. David describes the nature of the earth when he said, "There is none on earth I desire," showing that on earth we have a hunger not satisfied perfectly till we arrive at home, a desire that will not be completely subdued until we are where prayer is not, because there are no wants to fill, no hunger to remove. On earth the Christian's affections will aspire towards God, yet not reach him, as when the moon shines upon the sea, and the eager waves lift their gleaming heads, each anxious for her smiles.

The future is our rest. As the present is not, the future unquestionably is. There remaineth a rest for the people of God: "They shall be filled." "When I awake, I shall be satisfied with thy likeness." Or, as it is beautifully described by the seer in the Apocalypse, and by Isaiah in his prophecy; 'They shall hunger no more, neither shall they thirst any more; and the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick; and there shall be no night, nor sorrow, nor tears, nor sighs, nor death; for the former things are passed away."

We learn that real religion is a matter of personal experience. A man knows when he is thirsty. This is the instinct of nature. If there be real religion, if we be Christians at all, we must be conscious of a hunger that will carry us to the sanctuary, to the Bible, to the throne of grace, to God for bread; and of a thirst which will be satisfied with nothing from this world's cisterns, which only will be met and removed by water from the fountain of life.—Dr. Cumming.

What We Owe Others.

We owe other people service. Service goes with loving. We cannot love truly and not serve. Love without serving is but an empty sentiment, a poor mockery. God so loved the world that he gave. Love always gives. . . . This matter of serving has multitudinous forms. Sometimes it is poverty that stands at our gate, and money help is wanted. A thousand times more frequently, however, it is not money, but something else more precious that we must give. It may be loving sympathy. Sorrow is before us. Another's heart is breaking. Money would be of no use; it would be only a bitter mockery to offer it. But we can hold to the neighbor's lips a cup of the wine of love, filled out of our own heart, which will give new strength to the sufferer. Or it is the anguish of a life struggle, a human Gethsemane, beside which we are called to watch. We can give no actual aid—the soul must fight its battles alone; but we can be as the angel that ministered in our Lord's Gethsemane, imparting strength, and helping the weary struggler to win the victory.

The world is very full of sorrow and trial, and we cannot live among our fellowmen and be true without sharing their loads. If we are happy we must hold our happiness so that its beams will fall upon the shadowed heart. If we have no burden, it is our duty to put our shoulders under the load of others. Selfishness must die or else our own heart's life must be frozen within us. We soon learn that we cannot live for ourselves and be Christians; that the blessings that are given to us are really for other people, that we are only God's ministers to carry them in Christ's name to those for whom they are intended.—Christian Standard.

"It is often an evidence of guilt when people become angry at reproof. The innocent can bear reproof much better than the guilty. Whether innocent or guilty, anger will only make things worse."

GLEANINGS.

The light of friendship is as the light of phosphorus—seen plainest when all around is dark.

God does not measure his pity by what our sorrows are in themselves, but by what they are to us.—Mrs. Charles.

You can't "walk in the light as he is in the light," without being seen by somebody who is lost in the dark.

Economy is half the battle in life; it is not so hard to earn money as to spend it well. Hundreds would never have known want if they had not first known waste. Owing and borrowing are brambles full of thorns.

A Christian too conversant with people of the world resembles a bright piece of plate too much exposed to the air; which, though in reality it continues plate still, yet grows tarnished and loses its fine burnish, and needs a fresh rubbing up.

In the place of finding fault with the wrong doings of others, let us set them a good example, and sweetly and kindly try to get them into a better way of living. A chronic grumbler is a very undesirable companion, a troublesome church member, and an annoying business man.

A good story is told of Mr. Joseph Harper, one of the original "Harper Brothers." He was an excellent man, but a great tobacco chewer. Mr. Harper had a neighbor who was a notorious drunkard. A friend was one day laboring with the man, and entreating him to stop drinking. "Why, I could no more quit drinking," he replied, "than old Joe Harper could give up tobacco." When this remark was repeated to Mr. Harper, he exclaimed: "Does that old drunkard say that? I will show him that old Joe Harper can give up tobacco." And from that moment he never touched it again.

Some things may be old, yet they are indispensable. Nothing new can take their place. The sun is as old as creation, but no new substitute in the way of light and heat can supersede it. The atmosphere is coeval and coextensive with nature; but no chemical combination is capable of dispensing with it as a source of life and well-being. In like manner the gospel is old; but as long as the human nature is corrupt and requires divine cleansing, and as long as creature power is inadequate to its purification, so long will the gospel of Jesus Christ be an "all in all" to every man upon the face of the globe.—Presbyterian.

The Horrors of Siberia.

A report is circulating in European political circles that the Czar will issue a ukase Jan. 1, 1894, putting an end to the deportation of convicts to Siberia, and that on the same day the provisions of the judicial procedure act of Alexander II., with the exception of trial by jury, are to be extended to that country. It has been expected that, as a result of the recent visit of the Czarowitz and in view of the construction of the trans-Siberian railway, a revolution in the government of Siberia would be effected, but the report of a change so radical as that suggested is received with caution. The natural wealth of Siberia makes it an ideal land for colonization, for it is by no means a region of unrelieved harshness and arctic rigors as is largely supposed. Its horrors are in the convict mines and the exile system, not in the country itself. But the abrogation of the system of Siberian exile would change the whole scheme of government in Russia, and, while some radical change in Siberia is confidently expected in the near future, it is hardly probable that the Czar will make a move so positive as that.

[illegible]

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
... JOSLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 9, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

YOU can tell when a man does the will of God heartily by the way he goes about it. •

THE Lord willing we will commence a series of articles on the Atonement in the near future. •

To the brother who wants to know what is to be done with the crooked sticks in the church, we suggest a reference to James i. 5, where he can find out may advice gratis, but a promise for compliance with it. •

THE Investigator of Montreal some time ago said that a jury of twelve men were called to judge the facts of a case wherein a murder had probably been committed. Their verdict was, "Died by the visitation of God under suspicious circumstances;" and the paper named added that "this is thoroughly orthodox, and furnishes a fair reflex of the influence of popular theology on the masses." •

THE Spirit in Paul says, "The dead in Christ shall rise first. Why rise first Paul? The answer can only be, because they are in Christ. And what of them? They rise to meet the Lord in the air—they are ever with the Lord. If the dead in Christ rise first, and that because they are in Christ, this is infallible proof that they are adjudged to be in him before they rise; no matter what men may say to the contrary. •

A DESPATCH from Montreal on Aug. 2nd says the Montreal Presbytery has decided to take prompt action against Prof. John Campbell of the Montreal Presbyterian College, for heresy. His colleagues charge him with impugning and discrediting the Scriptures as the infallible source of truth, and teaching that God has nothing to do with the judgment or punishment of the wicked, and must be summoned to trial. He holds the chair of Biblical Teachings. •

OUR Lord would have us be careful for nothing, but cares are constantly obtruding upon us and causing perplexity and anxiety. Nothing will better help us to outgrow this tendency to undue carefulness than the memory of God's goodness, and of his parental regard. If we only realize that his watchful eye is ever over us, and that He has promised that all things shall work together for our good if we only lovingly serve him it will lighten all our burdens. •

IF the penalty of God's law be "death eternal," and if "death eternal" be "endless suffering," is not redemption utterly impossible? What a figure the doctrine of substitution cuts in the light of endless suffering! Is it any wonder that intelligent and thoughtful people who have not found the Key of Truth should reject such theological nonsense, and the book they suppose accountable for it? Do theologians who teach "endless suffering" and "substitution" say that Christ is and ever will be, suffering in man's stead? If not, where does the "substitution" come in? •

ONE who is called an eminent divine recently commenting on Acts vii. 59, 60, "And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit; and he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this he fell asleep," said, "Death is gone. The physical fact remains, but all the misery, the essential bitterness and the poison is sucked out of it, and it is turned into "he fell asleep"—as a tired child on its mother's lap—as a weary man after long toil. Death is but sleep now, because Christ has died, and that sleep is restful, conscious, perfect life. . . . A life of rest conjoined with intensest activity." This is no clearer than mud. Death is perfect life—a life of rest conjoined with intensest activity, and yet he fell asleep as a tired child on its mother's lap, but conscious all the while—what else, pray? •

"THE dead know not anything;" so says the Wise Man; but the recent utterance of a blind leader is to this effect: "One minute after the vital functions ceased the little child that died last night knew more than Johnathan Edwards, or St. Paul before he died." Our readers can take their choice. •

A STORM has long been brewing, a dark pall overspreads the political sky, and every year and every month it grows denser. Its nature is only known to the few who heed the sure word of prophecy. The bursting of that storm is not far distant, but those with whom the secret of the Lord is are not alarmed at its propinquity—no indeed—of all earth's teeming millions they alone can stand and calmly wait the denouement. What is the secret of their peace? Oh, the coming one is their elder brother; they are heirs with him of the world's dominion and the transfer is about to be made of all human governments; the day is a day of joy and gladness to them; the body is united to the head, the bride to the groom, and the consort to the king. Yes; they hail the happy day.

Brothers and sisters we feel that the responsibility of every member, no matter how small, should be pressed home upon them. Earnest exhortation and a godly example is the very least we could do to encourage patient, watchful and prayerful waiting. Only those who are ready go in. •

God's Grand Old Book.

A PRICELESS treasure is the Book of God; happy those who have made it the man of their counsel. We exhort all to cling to its promises. In evil report and good cling to them; in fair weather and foul cling to them; they are the Word of the living God; they abide ever; they were never known to fail; their price is above rubies. "Men boast of mines of wealth and treasures of earth, and crowns of gold, and diadems of pearls, and sceptres of power, but what are these to the Grand Old Book? It glows with the freshness and beauty of heaven truth. Every Word of God is pure; it shines with its smile; and frowns with wrath. It thunders in Sinai, but speaks in softest tones from Calvary. It is the source of the world's wisdom, the repository of its knowledge, and the sole guide to holiness." O cling to the Grand Old Book! It has healed many a sore heart; quenched many a sigh, dried many a tear. "Precious Bible, Book divine," may every reader say, "Thou art mine." "It will rest the weary; it will restore the faint; if friends have failed and foes have triumphed, and disaster overtaken you, come to the Grand Old Book, and look truthfully through the clouds to the precious promises, and hope will spring anew within you."

It would be a sad mistake to neglect the Book of God in these troublous times. Castles which towered aloft but a few days ago are coming down with a crash; the hearts of many who but a few days ago were lifted up with millions of ill-gotten gain, are now failing them for fear of coming disaster, as they see the riches of others take wing. It is worth something to feel safely anchored in these times; and know of a surety that one's treasure is deposited in a bank which cannot fail. •

The Bible Lands.

England and America are called Bible lands, and rightly so. From these countries many millions of copies have gone forth, and the marked differences between these and other countries are attributable to the influence of the Bible. The Bible is a godsend to every man, woman and child in the land, whether it is believed and obeyed or not. In a word all that is really good, and all the uplifting influences in the world have been set on foot by the word of God. The entrance of God's Word gives light in more than one sense,—and although the ships going out are loaded with rum as well as Bibles, we regard the work of the English and American Bible Societies with great interest. A great work is being done preparatory to the coming of Israel's King. The dark corners of the earth are being civilized and educated so that at his advent and proclamation they will appreciate, and become loyal to the divine government. We earnestly oppose the rum business; but knowing that these societies are laboring under the impression that they are commissioned to convert the world it seems strange that they do not more stoutly oppose its traffic. Although we know their hopes are vain, we yet rejoice to know that the human family is being lifted to a higher plane of existence before the dawn of the morning without clouds.

What influence is it that blinds these zealous workers to the deadly effects of rum? Since writing the above we picked up the Sunday Magazine of London, and on one of its fly leaves we read a black letter advertisement that said that while mild ales, port wine, dark sherries and sweet champagne, liquors and brandies are all apt to disagree, light white wines and gin and whiskey diluted with soda water would be found the least objectionable, and indeed particularly adapted for any constitutional weakness of the liver, and possess the power of repairing the digestion." It would seem from this that Bacchus has full control on that side of the water, as well as this, or else such advertisements would hardly find a place in their religious literature. But this condition of things confirms to us the prophetic Word worse and worse morally in spite of educational faculties, is plainly predicted. •

Original.

Theater Boards.

Scattered about the city of Chicago are stationary boards upon which the theaters advertise their plays. Recently I noticed upon several boards pictures of hands bound with a chain, and on the blank space between the pictures were the following sentences in large letters: "Jesus is coming soon." "Jesus is coming soon, watch!"

At supper table I spoke of the occurrence to my family. My wife remarked in substance as follows: "Yes, that is very significant, in that Christ comes to break the chain, and release the captives."

"Yes," I replied, "that is true, but it suggested a different thought to me. I thought that was significant in that it was a solemn warning to seekers after ungodly and worldly pleasure."

We have now entered upon very strange and significant times. The plays in the theaters, and pictures upon the boards have become quite sensual, neither are fit for the pure in mind to look upon.

A young lady of rather refined sensibilities, a member of a Congregational church, who occasionally attends the theaters, remarked to my family that the manner in which female characters appear before audiences was disgraceful, and sometimes she thought she would never go again. I called her attention to the warning on the theater board: "Jesus is coming soon, watch." If that grand and momentous event which is so soon to become a fact, was thoroughly instilled into the minds of members of the popular church, (for they are the ones who attend the theaters.) I think theater managers would soon have to close their doors. None could with easy consciences sit in such places, and witness such scenes, and hear improper speeches, with the thought that "Jesus is coming soon" ringing in their ears.

I would that the above sentence could be placed everywhere in conspicuous places that the people may be warned. Let every believer visit his or her neighbor and tell them that "Jesus is coming soon."

The angelic reapers will soon enter upon their work of gathering in the "elect," and it is a certain thing they will never visit saloons, and the places where the ungodly assemble to be amused. White garments unspotted from the world is the thing to be sought for in these uncertain and trying times. Be not deceived, we have already entered the last days.

"Jesus is coming soon, watch."

W. H. WILSON.

If you want to know whether you are a grumbler, just try one day, one week, or one month, to get along without complaining, fault-finding, grumbling. Begin this week at home, then carry it into the church, and then into the business life.

Selected.

Unnoticed Labor.

Many Christians have to endure the solitude of unnoticed labor. They are serving God in a way which is exceedingly useful, but not at all noticeable. How very sweet to many workers are those little corners of the newspapers and magazines which describe their labors and successes; yet some, who are doing what God will think a great deal more of at the last, never saw their names in print. Yonder a beloved brother is plodding away in a country village; nobody knows anything about him, but he is bringing souls to God. Unknown to fame, the angels are acquainted with him, and a few precious ones whom he has led to Jesus know him well.

Perhaps yonder sister who has a class in Sunday School; nothing striking in her or in her class; nobody thinks of her as a remarkable worker; she is a flower that blooms almost unseen, but she is none the less fragrant.

There is a Bible woman; she is mentioned in the report as making so many visits a week, but nobody discovers all she is doing for the poor and needy, and how many are saved in the Lord through her instrumentality. Hundreds of God's dear servants are serving him without the encouragement of man's approving eye, yet they are not alone; the Father is with them.

Never mind where you work; care more how you work; never mind who sees, if God approves. If he smiles, be content. We cannot always be sure when we are most useful. It is not the acreage you sow, it is the multiplication which God gives the seed which makes up the harvest. You have less to do with being successful than with being faithful. Your main comfort is, that in your labor you are not alone. For God, the eternal One, who guides the marches of the stars, is with you.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Take Care of the Girls.

While I fully believe that every girl should be taught to work, and at an early age to be given some responsibility, yet great care must be exercised that too heavy work is not given to the young and growing girl. Many mothers, without thought of doing wrong, put the care of young children on the eldest daughter, although she is only ten or twelve years old. The fretful, teething baby must be kept quiet, and sister lifts and carries him until arms and back ache. I know a lady who has suffered for years with a weak back, the result of carrying one of the younger children. She says: "I have no doubt it has robbed me of ten years of life, besides causing untold suffering. Mother did not know it would hurt me and so the mischief was done."

Young girls are often allowed to lift heavy tubs and boiler on wash-days, buckets of milk and cream in the dairy, and move heavy pieces of furniture at house-cleaning time. They feel strong and do not know that it will hurt them. Girls from ten to fifteen years of age cannot be looked after too carefully. Their life is all before them, and its happiness and usefulness largely depend on physical health and strength.—Farm and Fireside.

The Artist's Epitaph.

John Bacon was born in Southwark, in the year 1740, and acquired great celebrity as a sculptor. In the course of his career, he obtained the distinction of the gold medal of the Royal Academy, an honor which was quickly supplemented by the bestowment of royal patronage. But prior to his death, in 1799, he ordered this inscription to be placed on his tomb: "What I was as an artist seemed to me of some importance while I lived; but what I really was as a believer in Christ Jesus is the only thing of importance to me now."

It is not necessary to wait to be told that you are a grumbler and people may not want to tell you. But in this simple way you can find out in one month whether your wife or your pastor or business men have any right to set you down as a grumbler.

"A Remnant Shall Be Saved." Rom. 9; 27.

This does not mean all. It does not mean the larger part. This application of Isa. x. 22, 23, to the people of this dispensation is significant indeed. There it reads, "A remnant shall return." Here the apostle puts it, "A remnant shall be saved." But a remnant of what people? In vs. 23, 24 it reads, "And that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory, even us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles." Here is the class, the remnant, both of Jews and Gentiles. A remnant of the Jews and a remnant of the Gentiles united, making up the church of Christ.

In Rom. xi. 5, we read: "Even so then, at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace." It is, therefore, a remnant that is elected, and not the whole. The apostle adds, verse 7: "What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded"—margin, hardened. The remnant were not blinded. Throughout the ages there has been a remnant in every generation. There was one of eight souls at the flood. There was one in the wilderness; one through all the history of the Israelitish nation. There was a remnant in Elijah's time. God told him that he had reserved to himself seven thousand who had not bowed to the great idol. But seven thousand only in a nation of a million! How small the remnant! There was a remnant at Jerusalem's destruction. There will be a remnant when Jesus comes again. This is God's arrangement, and it will not be changed. No matter how much men may want it to be otherwise, and declare to the contrary, it will remain as designed and pointed out in the Book. "A remnant shall be saved." It is more than surprising to witness the almost universal expectation of the salvation of the world. Contrary to the teachings of the prophets, Christ, and apostles, it is widely believed that a far greater number will be saved than lost; and this belief is prevailing even among the so called evangelical sects. When the subject of Christ's coming is spoken of and looked for, there is no apprehension of anything in it that any should fear. He comes to save more than to judge and condemn. Even a whole nation is to be converted at his coming—a nation that has hated him from the beginning is to hail him with joy, and be called by him to where it crucified him eighteen centuries ago. And who knows, say some of these teachers, but that Christ will then send out missionaries into all heathen lands and gather to himself the millions who know him not? His coming, therefore, has no terrors in it for the ungodly and wicked. They are to be saved rather than destroyed. His kingdom is to be set up here among the nations, he subduing them by his spiritual reign, bringing all into sweet harmony with himself and God.

Such is the dream of many, and no direct declarations of the Scriptures to the contrary are to be received. No threatenings of judgment are heard; nothing that will alarm, nothing that will produce uneasiness of mind. This is the present-day gospel. The mass and not the remnant are to be saved. There is no elect; all are included in the salvation. All are called, and all will come. Quiet reigns; peace and safety are proclaimed and felt. All is going well. There are no alarmists heard now—it is only said quietly: "The Lord is coming." This disturbs no one now; there is nothing very disagreeable in the sound. Some who repeat the words are floating upon the tide of popular favor, being careful not to make the subject too prominent.

The "hour of temptation" is here. The world is being tested. Dark shadows are taken for bright omens of a glorious day. The "day of the Lord" means only greater prosperity to the world and church—a glorious day of grace, when a nation will be born in a day. The judgment is only the introduction of a new and more favorable dispensation of grace and salvation for the entire world, or at least the greater part of it. This is the prevailing thought in Christendom, and will be until He comes. I. I. Leslie, in Crisis.

"Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbor." We cannot. We want to do it sometimes; we have got so far as to say that honesty is the best policy, but any honesty that is based on lines of policy is dishonesty. Honesty and policy cannot live in the same heart. Who can make anything of the liar? He is the worst of all men. He has lost the higher qualities of manhood, yet the base deceiver can shudder when he sees the poor drunken man who may be a saint compared with himself. The liar cannot be converted, unless it be by the whole force of the Deity. He is hallow, he has killed his conscience, he has sold his honor. Never allow a liar to come into your house. The liar is a complete sinner; he sins all around, or would sin any direction or every direction if it would serve his purpose to do so. Have faith in every man that loves truth. Though he fall seven times a day he shall stand at eventide. Any sins that lie along the line of passion are nothing as compared with sins of deliberation, plan, scheme, thoroughly wrought out, purposed. I have known many a soul overborne by the gusts of the bottomless pit, not wanting moral quantity and fine quality, but I have never known a liar that was worth being touched by the point of the longest instrument nor fashioned by human hands. Dr. J. Parker.

When a man has to go over a river, though he ride once and again into the water, and come out, saying, "I fear it is too deep for me," yet considering that there is no other way for him, he resolves to venture. "For," saith he, "the longer I stay the higher the water will rise, and there is no other way for me. I must go through at last, why not at the first?" And so he ventures through. Thus it is with you. You say, "Oh, but my heart is not humbled: oh, but I am a great sinner—and how can I venture upon Jesus Christ?" Will thy heart be more humble by keeping from Jesus Christ? and will thou be less a sinner by keeping from Him? No, certainly; for the longer you stay from Christ the harder it will be to venture on Him at last. Wherefore, if there be ever a poor drooping, doubting, fearing, trembling heart reading these words, know that I do here, in the name of the Lord, call out to you and say, "O soul—man or woman—venture, venture, venture upon Christ now! for you must come to trusting in Him at last; and if at last, why not now?"—Sword and Trowel.

Bro. N. H. Geiselman called at Lanark, July 28th, and remained with us over Sunday—preaching four very interesting sermons, and a few of the brethren from Adeline and Plum River joined us. Meetings were fairly well attended, but owing to the busy harvest time, concluded not to have preaching during the week.

Bro. Geiselman is a man up to the times by way of presenting the truth, and not in that old fashioned way of abuse of other churches which I hope will soon all be done away with, but to present the truth and let that shine above falsehood. Bro. Geiselman went from Lanark to Dixon before he took his departure for Iowa. We hope to have him come this way again in the near future. For the truth.

J. M. GLOTFELTY.

World's Fair Excursion Aug. 17.

Excursion Tickets to Chicago at one fare for the round trip for the adults and one-half the Excursion rate for children under 12 years of age will be sold by the Pennsylvania Company, Thursday, August 17th for train leaving Plymouth at 8:37 A. M., arriving Chicago Union Passenger Station 11:45 A. M. Train will stop at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood to discharge passengers and baggage in vicinity of World's Fair Grounds and convenient to hotels and boarding houses adjacent thereto. Returning, tickets will be valid in coaches of regular trains scheduled to stop at destination (except the Keystone Express departing at 10:45 A. M.) leaving Chicago before midnight of August 24th.

MARRIED

At the Church of The Blessed Hope, in Cleveland, Ohio, by Evangelist Iddles, July 27th, 1893, Mr. Walter S. Tomlinson and Miss Mattie Sutherland, both of this city.

The church was filled with brethren, sisters, and friends, anxious to witness the joyful event and wish the young couple all the happiness the relation is designed to impart. Having been realized that the name of the Lord is a strong tower and run into it, they are safe, and can claim the Father's protection and blessing as long as they walk in the truth. That this may ever be, is the fervent prayer of the whole household of faith in Cleveland. •

DIED

Susan, wife of S. A. Henry, was born in Grant Co., Ind., Nov. 17, 1841, and died at Battle Creek, Mich., July 25, 1893.

Sister Henry was the daughter of Mary and the late Daniel Dwiggins. In 1838 she removed with her parents to Jasper Co., Ind., which Co., has ever since been her home. In Oct., 1876, she was married to Samuel A. Henry, with whom she lived a devoted wife, until the day of her death.

For many years she with her husband has been an earnest, devout member of the Church of God. Ten months ago she became seriously ill, since which time she has suffered much. During the long, weary months of suffering she was patient and faithful. She expressed herself as being ready to sleep, but desired to live to comfort a little while longer her companion to whom she was very much attached. Three weeks before her death she was removed to the Sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., where everything possible was done to relieve her suffering, and restore her to health, but human hands were too weak; human skill insufficient. In the presence of her husband and one sister, her physician, and others she fell asleep. The Pastor of her church having met with sad bereavement a few days previous to her death, Elder N. H. Geiselman was called to officiate at her funeral. Words of consolation from the "Word of Truth" were spoken by him, after which she was laid away by tender hands to await the call, "Awake."

L. H. C.

Mrs Sylvia Daley, aged 70, fell asleep at 9:30 o'clock, July 7th, at her son's residence, 816 Woodward Ave., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mrs. Daley was another victim of that dreaded cancer. All was done for her that a truly dutiful, and only child, and a kind and thoughtful daughter-in-law could do. She bore her sufferings with remarkable patience. Her trust was in God, and she knew in his kingdom there would be "no more pain." She was buried in Watson, her former home, beside her husband. After the interment at her request the writer addressed the friends at the church, text, Ps. xlviii. 14. May God guide her darling Fred, the idol of her heart into a saving knowledge of the truth.

MARY A. WOODWARD.

At Elkhart, Ind. Aug. 2, 1893, Leda, the eight months old daughter of Warren and Olive Garver.

The mother and baby had been visiting her father, Leroy Evans, and other relatives, at Plymouth, returning home on Monday. Our young friends feel keenly this loss of their only child, and though we can sympathize with them, and say few words of comfort that may soften the blow a little, they must look to the Father above for the only comfort that can be given in these hours of sore trial that come to every household. The funeral was from the home of Sister Garver's father, near this city, on Aug. 4.

Pennsylvania Lines. Reduced Rates to Warsaw for the Spring Fountain Park Assembly.

Excursion Tickets will be sold to Warsaw, Ind., via the Pennsylvania Lines, July 29th to August 9th, inclusive, at low round trip rates, account Spring Fountain Park Assembly. Return coupons valid until August 14th.

Poetry.

Never Mind.

Did you hear the angry word?
Never mind;
Let it be as never heard—
Never mind;
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Never mind.

Have you planned and toiled in vain?
Never mind;
[illegible]
Never mind;
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Never mind.

Does the night seem [illegible] and long?
Never mind;
[illegible] it with a song
Never mind.
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Never mind.

Does the east wind rudely blow?
Never mind;
Does the north wind bring the snow
Never mind;
Should be south, or should be west,
[illegible]
[illegible]
Never mind.

[illegible]
Never mind;
[illegible]
Never mind;
[illegible]
Heaven is watching [illegible]
[illegible]
Never mind.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 2.

1. And it came to pass in those days that a decree went forth from Kaisar Augousto, to have all the inhabited (earth) written off.

2. This first copy-registry occurred while Kurenios was leader of Suria.

3. And they all went their way to be written off, each one into his own city.

4. And Joseph also went up from Galilaia from out the city of Nazareth into Joudaia into a city of Daveid, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of a house and patria (family on the father's side) of Daveid.

5. To be written off along with Mariam who was betrothed to him she being enciente.

6. And it came to pass while they were there, the days for her to bring forth were fulfilled.

7. And she brought forth her son, the first-born, and wrapped him in swaddling-clothes and laid him up in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn.

8. And there were Shepherds in the same province dwelling in the fields and keeping watch over their flocks by night.

9. And an angel of the Lord stood over them and a glory of the Lord shone round about them and they were much afraid.

10. And the angel said unto them, Fear not, for lo, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which will be for all royal-people (the covenant-people.)

11. Because there hath been brought forth for you to-day a Savior, who is an Anointed (Christ) Lord in a city of Daveid.

12. And this for you is the sign, Ye will find a new-born babe wrapped in swaddling clothes in a manger.

13. And suddenly there came to be a multitude of a heavenly company with the angels praising God and saying,

14. Glory to God among highest ones and on earth peace; in men satisfaction.

15. And it came to pass, when the angels had gone away from them into the heavens, the Shepherds said to one another, Let us go through unto Bethlehem and see this thing (oracular-word) which hath occurred, which the Lord hath made known to us.

16. And they hastened and went and looked up Mariam and Joseph and the new-born babe lying in the manger.

17. And when they had seen they made known about the oracular-word that had been spoken to them concerning this child.

18. And all who heard wondered about the things that had been spoken to them by the shepherds.

19. And Mariam watched to keep all these oracular words committing them by heart.

20. And the Shepherds returned glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen, even as it had been told them.

21. And when eight days had been fulfilled to circumcise him his name was called Jesous, which he had been called by the angel before he had been conceived in the womb.

22. And when the days of their purification had been fulfilled according to the law of Moses they led him up to Hierosoluma to present him to the Lord.

23. Even as written in a law of the Lord, namely every male that hath opened a womb will have been called sanctified unto the Lord.

24. And to give a sacrifice according to that oracularly spoken in the law of the Lord, namely a pair of turtle-doves or two young pigeons.

25. And behold there was a man in Hierousalem, whose name was Sumeon, and this man was justified and truly-reverent, looking expectantly for Israel's advocacy, and spirit was sanctified upon him:

26. And it had been oracularly revealed to him by the sanctified spirit, that he should not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

27. And he went in the Spirit into the temple, and when the parents brought in the child Jesous that they might do according to the custom of the law concerning him.

28. And he had received it in his arms he even praised God and said;

29. Now Master (Despotes) release thy slave (bond-servant) according to thy oracular word in peace.

30. Because mine eyes have seen thy instrumental salvation.

31. Which thou hast made ready before the face of all the peoples of kings;

32. A light for revelation for nations, and a glory for thy royal people Israel.

33. And his father and his mother were wondering at the things spoken concerning him.

34. And Sumeon blessed (commended) them and said unto Mariam his mother, Lo this one is lying for the fall and rise of many in Isreel and for a sign that is being denied.

35. And a sword will go through thine own soul that the reasonings of many hearts may have been revealed.

36. And there was a prophetess Anna, a daughter of Phanouel, of the tribe of Aser. She was advanced in many days, having lived with a husband seven years from her virginity;

37. And she had been a widow about eighty-four years, and had not stood away from the temple, serving for hire night and day with fastings and supplications;

38. And she stood by and confessed unto God, and spake concerning him unto all who were looking expectantly for a way of redemption in Hierousalem.

39. And when they had consummated everything according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilaia into their own city Nazareth.

40. And the child grew and yielded to control, being filled with wisdom; and God's grace was upon it.

41. And his parents went their way year by year to Hierousalem to the feast of the paska (suffering.)

42. And when he had become twelve years of age, they going up according to the custom of the feast,

43. And having completed the days, as they were returning the child Jesous remained behind in Hierousalem; and his parents were not aware of it.

44. And supposing him to be in the caravan went a two day's journey and were looking him up among their kindred and acquaintances; and not finding him, they returned to Hierousalem looking him up.

46. And it came to pass three days afterward they found him in the temple seated in the midst of the teachers both hearing and asking them questions.

47. And all who heard him were astounded at his understanding and answers.

48. And when they saw him they were amazed, and his mother said unto him, Child, why hast thou done in this wise to us? Lo thy father and I have been in woe seeking thee.

49. And he said unto them, Why have ye been seeking me? Did ye not know that it behooved me to be among my father's (people.)

50. And they did not understand the oracular word which he had spoken unto him.

51. And he went down with them and subjected himself to them. And his mother watched to keep (that is tried to remember) all the oracular words in her heart.

52. And Jesous toiled forward in wisdom and age and grace with God and men.

COMMENT.

Would say in regard to all the names that appear in the translation that they are purposely given as they are spelt in the original, simply employing the English equivalent letters instead of following the custom of substituting a for y for instance and c for k. This I have done so as to give the general reader an idea of how the names have been tampered with, and because I am satisfied that the names in their original spelling are an essential part of the oracular word and in every instance translatable.

The reader will observe that "Ierousalem" is spelt once "Hierosoluma" and the rest of the time "Hierousalem." The latter means "hallowed peace" and the former "a hallowed place desecrated." This ought to interest the careful student of Scriptural history I think.

"Kaisar" is not properly a name but an appellation, meaning in English "Emperor."

"All the royal-people" instead of "All the people" R. V. or "all people" C. V.

"A multitude of a heavenly company" instead of "of the heavenly host" R. V. & C. V. The word used here is not the same commonly translated "host" in the C. V. & R. V. meaning an army. This seems to me a matter of sufficient importance to make a note of it.

"Among highest ones" instead of "in the highest" R. V. & C. V.

"In men satisfaction" instead of "good will to men" C. V. or "among men in whom he is well pleased" R. V. Neither of these translations being the thought of the oracular-word. The word translated "satisfaction" is a legal term used just as we use the term in law and real estate, and means here that the mortgage on the race is about to be released, and that the instrument of redemption and release and salvation is now in sight. At least the angels see it in the child Jesous and further along in this chapter he is designated as "God's instrumental salvation" or instrument through which God effects salvation.

"The oracular-word" instead of "the saying" R. V.

"And Spirit was sanctified upon him" instead of "And the Holy Spirit was upon him" R. V. There is no article in the text and the arrangement of the words in the sentence indicates the reading as I have given it. There was no doubt of Spirit being upon him probably. The only question to be solved was whether it was sanctified or unsanctified. For the prophetic frenzy seized the "lying" prophets as well as the true.

"Master" and "slave" or "bond-servant" instead of "Lord" and "servant" C. V. & R. V.

Old Sumeon is talking about redemption and being released from the bondage of sin and Satan and not about dying and his soul being released from his body as this passage has uniformly been understood and interpreted theologically to mean.

"Instrument of salvation" instead of "salvation" in the abstract merely C. V. & R. V. This distinction is constantly made in the Psalms. Both words are used in their different meanings in the oracular word and the difference is an important one in its Messianic import.

"And for a sign that is being denied or refused" instead of "and for a sign that is being spoken against" R. V. for the reason that this passage is no doubt a specific reference to Isaiah (Hesaias) 7-10-11.

"That it behooved me to be among my Father's" (people) instead of "that I must be in my Father's house" R. V. or "about my Father's business" C. V.

"Suria" (Syria) means the "land of the pipe" (a musical instrument.)

Sumeon ([illegible]) "He being with me." [illegible] is the appellation by which God revealed himself to Hubraum. "The Being" in other words. Augoustos "One who is a shining light."

"Kurenios" is "One found."

"Phanouel" is "mercy made manifest."

"Anna" "One who dwells above."

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Clock of Prophecy Stopped!

Who stopped it? Surely the God of heaven, who has in his Word thrown the light of prophecy across the dreary centuries of this dispensation did not stop it. The times of the Gentiles have been measured in the prophetic word as well as the time, at the termination of which God sent forth his Son, Gal. iv. 4. God has not left eighteen or nineteen centuries of human events of sin and corruption and crime "unchronologized" as some interpreters of prophecy have claimed. Some last day writers believing in the doctrine of a future personal antichrist to arise between now and the coming of the Lord insist that the chronological periods of Daniel and John should be understood literally, that is a day meaning a day, instead of a day meaning a year according to the law of symbolization as claimed by others. The literalist or futurist is obliged to admit that sixty-nine of the "seventy weeks" of Dan. ix. 24, were fulfilled in the past on the scale of a day for a year and that the seventieth, or last week, severed from the sixty-nine, and placed down at the end of this age, is to be fulfilled on the same year-day scale. They admit that the logic of facts proves that the number of days in these weeks stands for the same number of years and this admission weakens the argument of our futurist brother in favor of literal time in connection with symbolic prophecy; for here by the futurist's own admission, extorted by force of stubborn facts, is year-day time reaching from the date of an edict in the old dispensation to a date several years this side the beginning of this dispensation, and one week of the same kind of time (year-day) reserved for the action or agency of the future antichrist. The ground of contention is surely diminishing. Now in view of this surrender of a part of the argument, how do you, my futurist brother, know that the clock of prophecy stopped back yonder? There is the troublesome period of 2300 days of the vision of the 8th chapter to be disposed of in harmony with these weeks of years, and according to the fact as announced by the angel that these should serve as an explanation of that part of the vision relating to time. The angel before giving the explanation says, "I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding," (9th chap. v. 22), and "I am come to show thee" (v. 23)—then gives the weeks as explanatory of the vision. It is the period of 70 weeks that I design to consider, in this paper, in its connection with the 2300 days (years) which measure the entire duration of the vision. 70 weeks of years is too long a period to be included in 2300 literal days, therefore these days stand for as many years and that the 70 weeks x7 equals 490 days equals 490 years are a part of the 2300 years.

"Seventy weeks," says the angel, "are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city to finish the transgression and to bring in everlasting righteousness and to seal up the vision and prophecy and to anoint the Most Holy."

The word translated determined in the passage quoted, occurs no where else in the Hebrew Scriptures. Young in his great concordance does not define the word, but the following high authorities give as its only meaning—"cut off." Henstenberg, Gesenius, Chaldee-Rabinic Dictionary of Stockius; Mercius Thesaurus, Arius Montinus; Theodotion's Greek Version of Daniel; Dr. Wilson on the Seventy Weeks; Prof. George Bush; and Alexander Campbell in his debate with Owen. Henstenberg says, Seventy weeks are a period cut off from subsequent duration, and accurately limited, and Campbell says, "that the 2300 day-(years) are to be dated with the seventy weeks and that they are years." Time can only be cut off from time. Seventy weeks or 490 years are cut off from the 2300 years or longer period leaving 1810 years. The 400 years spanned the period between the decree of Cyrus, and the fall of Jerusalem by the Romans under Titus; and the 1810 years reach from this date to the cleansing of the sanctuary. Dan. viii. 14. Verily the clock of prophecy did not stop; its pendulum has measured off the centuries of Gentile abominations and Judah's desolation; nor do the painfully pathetic words of Jesus lend support to the notion that the period of Gentile domination is unmeasured in the prophetic calendar. I will here quote his tearful words which denote the ending of his mission to Judah as a nation and the abandonment of the tribe from which he sprang to the curses written in Moses and the prophets: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold your house is left unto you desolate!" Matt xxiii. 37, 38. Although in this passage he uses only the words "house left desolate" to set forth the doom of this devoted city and people there is no ground in this language for the inference that the clock of prophecy was to stop with the ending of the 69 weeks and resume its movement down near the end of the present age. The seventy weeks run in straight forward sequence of time, and end when Judah's captivity begins and Rome as one of the Gentiles (nations) sets her foot on the conquered city and its holy places, and prepares the way for the "overspreading of abominations" as the work of other despoilers and desolators (Dan. ix. 27) Grecians, Persians, Mamelouks and Turks.

Early in my Christian experience and wishing to avail myself of whatever aids to the study of prophecy fell into my hands I read articles from the pens of writers who assumed that there is an interval of silence, or literally, space of unmeasured time between the end of the sixty-ninth and the beginning of the seventieth week, but did not know why this should be done. Later I learned the reason why this class of expounders placed this last week so far from the sixty-ninth with which it seemed to be as closely connected as 1892 with 1891 A. D. It is alleged by this class of writers on prophecy that the language of the 27th v. "And he (the prince) shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease. It is not the Messiah who is here called "the prince" nor is it the Messiah who confirms the covenant but "the prince whose people shall destroy the sanctuary," who is represented as doing this. The laws of language and the facts of the prophecy shut the expounder up to this. The Roman legions led by Titus destroyed the city and this military chieftain confirmed the covenant. What covenant? "The covenant" means a particular one already existing and made with the Hebrews through the mediation of Moses and reads "Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse; a blessing if ye obey the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you this day, and a curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the Lord your God." Deut. ii. 26, 27, 28. The blessing was put upon Mount Gerizim and the curse upon Mount Ebal, v. 29. This covenant being signed and sealed by God who can not lie (Ezek xvi. 8) on the one part and all of the Hebrew nation on the other part (Deut. xxvii. 26) the God of heaven through virtue of this covenant was as solemnly bound to pour out a curse upon them in case they did not obey as he was to bestow a blessing if they did obey. At the date to which Daniel's prophecy (chap. ix. 26, 27), relates the Jews had filled up the cup of iniquity, they had crucified their Messiah and exhausted the divine patience. So it is now clear, that by the expression, "confirm the covenant" we are to understand here the pouring out of a curse upon them instead of a blessing, and this is the way Daniel understood it, for he says, in verse 11 "Therefore the curse is poured out upon us and the oath that is written in the law of Moses * * * because we have sinned against him." And in the 12th verse he uses almost the same words that the angel does in verse 27 Daniel: "And he hath confirmed his words. Angel: And he (the prince) shall confirm the covenant."

As the King of Babylon was the minister of God in "confirming the word" at the time to which Daniel referred in his confession, so at the time to which Gabriel refers Rome was "the minister of God, a revenger, to execute wrath upon" those who had broken the holy covenant. (Rom. xiii. 4). In the light of these passages the word of God as spoken by Moses "I will bring a sword upon you that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant, and will punish seven times for your sins" was accomplished in the war waged by the Romans, that resulted in the overthrow of the Jewish commonwealth, the desolation of their capital, and the ruin of their fair land.

In the conclusion then, I will state that all the periods in Daniel 9 chap. under the designation of weeks were fulfilled on the scale of a day standing for a year as the futurist admits per force of historical facts and as proven by the seventy weeks being "cut off" the first end of the 2300 days of the 8th chap. it logically follows that these days also belong to the same scale of time and that therefore the principle of symbolic or mystical periods is found true in connection with symbolic beasts and horns as the Medo-Persian ram with his two horns, the rough goat of Grecia, and the great horn between his eyes and the four horns that succeeded the breaking of this. Small animals and little horns denoting great kingdoms and short periods standing for many times longer periods. Here is fitness of things.

JOHN L. WINCE.

An Appeal.

It will be remembered that almost a year ago, Bro. Richard, of Kansas, proposed starting an evangelical fund for Kansas. Soon after, the fund was started, with $135 subscribed, some of which has been paid to the treasurer of the fund, Henry Bernard, of Oxford, Kansas.

At our annual conference which convened at Oxford, July 22d, it was the earnest desire of all present that this fund be maintained. and that we earnestly solicit the co-operation of all God's believing children in the State of Kansas to help carry on this good work. Brethren and sisters, rally around the dear old standard, be loyal to the blood-stained banner of your King.

We hear a great deal about being loyal to our country and our flag; this is all right. But the children of God have a higher object to be loyal to, a name, which is above every name, the precious name of Jesus. Are we loyal to Him? are we faithful to the trust he left us? The dear Savior says, Ye are the lights of the world; Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good work, and glorify your Father in heaven.

There is a good work started, a chance to send the light of the glorious gospel to those that sit in darkness; call after call is made, asking for the bread of life, and now my brother and sister, it rests with each of you, whether these calls are answered or not.

Let all that are on the Lord's side come to the front. Too long have we let golden opportunities pass by unused, and sat with folded hands while those around us are calling for help ere they perish. Give freely to the Lord and he will abundantly bless you.

Dear ones, this is our duty, and the object in starting the evangelistic fund is to try, if possible, to answer these calls by sending an evangelist. If one and all would freely respond, there might be kept in the field several evangelists.

Cast your bread upon the water,
Far and wide your treasures strew,
Scatter it with willing fingers,
And shout for joy to see it go;
For if you do closely keep it,
It will only drag you down;
If you love it more than Jesus,
It will keep you from your crown.
Cast your bread upon the water,
Waft it on with praying breath;
In some distant, doubtful moment,
It may save a soul from death.

I should like to hear from isolated brethren that wish to have some meetings. As fast as the means to work with comes into the treasurer's hands it will be used to do evangelistic work in new fields of labor. The harvest truly is great, and the time to labor in is short. The anxious inquiry now is, What of the night, watchman, what of the night?

Was there ever a time when such distress of nations, with perplexity surrounded us? Men's hearts failing them for fear; nearly every one is impressed with the thought that some great change is about to take place. Look up, brethren, and rejoice. Our Savior says when this comes to pass, he is even at the door. Help send the good news to others, and great will be your reward in that day when he makes up his jewels.

LYDIA CHAPLIN.

Ashton, Kans.

Conference Notice.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana, will be held at the Pleasant View Church in Warren Co., Ind., commencing Thursday evening August 24, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday.

At our last conference at Antioch, in June, a general invitation was extended through Brother Conner to all lovers of the truth; and as this will be the first conference held at that place let there be a liberal response, for it is the duty of all in the like precious faith to be there if possible. What if it does take a little time, and some of our means, it will only be a little sacrifice in the right direction.

The brethren there are desirous of having a good meeting and we hope they may not be disappointed.

As has been previously announced the way to get there is by way of the Wabash R. R., running through Peru, going to West Lebanon.

The place of meeting is a few miles from this point, but by sending word to Harry Evans Jr. at Hedrick, Ind., you will be met and cared for.

J. F. WAGONER, PRES.
A. C. ROBERTS, SEC.

To the Brethren and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here, so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

P. H. BOOK.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Cheap-Home Visitor's Excursion, Thursday, August 17th, 1893.

On the above date the Lake Erie & Western R. R., will run their Annual Home Visitor's Excursion to Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Ohio, and Intermediate points. The rates are so low that it will be cheaper to go on this Excursion than to stay at home; thus giving everybody an opportunity to visit their old home and friends, through the States of Indiana and Ohio.

Excursion train will pass Plymouth at 5:40 A. M. For further information see Agent L. E. & W. R. R.

[illegible]ected.

Plato.

Plato was the pupil of Socrates, and "flourished," as they say, three hundred and forty-eight years before Christ. It is chiefly from his writings that the opinions of Socrates are learned. He is thought by his admirers to have improved upon the principles of his master; and his fame is considered by all Laodicean authorities as transcending that of all other philosophers in the department of theology and morals. He taught that.

"The universe was governed by a being of glorious power and wisdom, possessed of perfect liberty and independence. That there were a certain invincible malignity and corruption in this matter, inseparable by the power of God. That the human soul is an emanation from God, and therefore necessarily immortal; that evil must necessarily exist from the union of matter and mind in the human person; that Demons were an order of beings inferior to the Deity, but superior to men, and they governed the world; consequently, that they should be worshipped because of their agency in human affairs. Some of them he viewed as mediators, 'carrying men's prayers to God, and his answers to men.' In his Timæus he declares, that 'it is neither easy to find the Parent of the Universe, nor safe to discover him to the vulgar when found.' He therefore taught in matters of worship, his disciples ought to govern themselves by the law of their country. This was the maxim of Socrates, and to it Plato agreed. In his lib. viii. de Rep. he orders, 'worship and rites to be performed to the gods, and to demons, and to Esculapius, lest he should too much shock the prejudices of the vulgar.'"

Dr. Taylor Lewis of the university of New York city says, "we believe that in this age there is a peculiar call for a deeper knowledge of Plato. Some acquaintance with his doctrine of ideas seems needed as a corrective to the tendency, so widely prevalent, to resolve all knowledge into an experimental induction of facts, not only in physical, but also in ethical and political science. . . . Plato should be studied, if for no other purpose, as a matter of curiosity, to see if there may not possibly be some other philosophy than this noisy Baconianism about which there is kept up such an everlasting din; or that still more noisy, because more empty, transcendentalism, which some would present as its only antidote. In place of all this, we want the clear, simple, common sense philosophy of Plato, commending itself when rightly understood, to all the universal ideas of the race, in distinction from that mis-called common sense which is only the manufactured public opinion of the moment; a philosophy most religious, most speculative, and yet most practical; most childlike in its primeval simplicity, and yet most profound. We speak with confidence upon this point. The young man who is an enthusiastic student of Plato can never be a sciolist in regard to education, a quack in literature, a demagogue in politics, or an infidel in religion. Our main object, then, in publishing this translation of Plato's Tenth Book of the Laws "is to recommend this noble philosopher (who he says, 'lost himself in the fifth book of the Republic, and produced something which was neither allegory nor reality, neither philosophy nor legislation') to the present generation of educated young men, especially to our theologians."

This "noble philosopher" is also styled by "Christians" of Dr. Lewis' type "the divine Plato." He was a great authority with those who Laodiceanized the Ecclesia of Christ into the synagogue of the Satan, and made it what it is at this day. He is likewise now a great authority with our contemporary representatives of original Laodiceanism, as evinced in the case of Dr. Lewis himself, and the clergy at large. The Platonic Theology was the current and most respectable wisdom in the days of Jesus and the apostles. It was as popular with the old heathens as with the heathen of modern times; and all that would be necessary to constitute its author and illustrator, Socrates and Plato, "reverend" divines, would be to say they believed in Jesus. Being already divines and pious, to say this would convert them into as good Christians as the university professor of Greek. They were sound on the ecclesiastical goose, and only required a little modernizing to qualify them for the "sacred desk," and "the administration of ordinances."

But Paul had not the same admiration for the philosophy of this "noble" divine. He treated it very unceremoniously: and warned his brethren to beware lest they should be spoiled by it. Col. ii. 8. It was in his estimation a spoiling thing. Something that would spoil a Christian if he entertained it. It was that wisdom of the wise that he heartily despised, and incessantly preached and wrote against. He despised it because God despised it, and denounced it as foolishness. "I will destroy," says God, "the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent." "Hath not God," says Paul, "made foolish the wisdom of the world?" This is equivalent to saying, "Hath not God made foolish the philosophy of Socrates and Plato?" Hath he not by the revelation of the mystery as exhibited in our preaching, proved the folly of the heathen philosophy concerning God, concerning "the invincible malignity and corruption in matter," the immortality of the soul, and so forth? In condemning the wisdom of the wise to destruction because it is folly, God condemned these things also which are elements thereof. Here, then, is a direct issue between God and the world. The world hath its wisdom and its wise ones. The system they glorify is the thinking of the flesh, to which the thinking of the Deity is opposed in all its particulars. Plato's philosophy was nothing else than the thinking of the flesh. This was its alpha and its omega, its beginning and its ending; and therefore in its conceptions could never range beyond the imagination of the evil heart of man. Paul condemned it, and predicted that a time would come when it would be abolished. That time has not quite arrived yet, for "the folly" is still cherished as wisdom by an insensate and besotted world which calls darkness light, and evil good. But we wait for it; and in praying "thy kingdom come," petition the Lord to come quickly and destroy the folly, and establish that "wisdom which is first pure and then peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy." Even so, come Lord Jesus, come quickly. Amen.—John Thomas, March, 1861.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $108.78

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago, form part of the new equipment.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

To the Mountain and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata, the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz: leave Terre Haute 1:30 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:10 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the lake at $2.05. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 10 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be required. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.14
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas, J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sidesville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisroville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at all Terminals for all Points North, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, by 20,000 Baptists, in 1660. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 30 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; [illegible]

Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe? a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Church History. The above is the title of a 16 page tract. Price 5c. each, 14 for 50c, [illegible] for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 44 pages, price 10c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July 29, 1879, by Jos. Laster. Can be had at this office at 10c. each, 3 for 25c, or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ exhibited by the Evangelists of the Church. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. Heliste, of Nanticoke City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to this age people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Hell of All Ages. Carrie Williams. This little book of 100 pages on the above subject is now ready and may be had from THE RESTITUTION office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land in the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being two lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 160 pages, price 30 cts. or four for $1, postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the readings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; Library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an Introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 35[illegible] pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. [illegible] conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price 50 cts.

Cruden's Concordance—Unabridged. This work is too well known to need recommendation—every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance, bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 175 pages, cloth bound, for 15 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page,—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 350 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 103 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 5 for [illegible]; 12 for $2.00; 50 for $6.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 156 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 22 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 365 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 148 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 282 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 25 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." Abstract of 84 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 536 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at [illegible] Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, 5th and Spring Garden Sts., Philadelphia. [illegible] Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 1910 [illegible] Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the [illegible] Hall, [illegible] corner of Madison [illegible] and [illegible] Avenue. They meet at [illegible] o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. N. H. [illegible], every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner every second Sunday in the month. Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in hall northwest corner Michigan and Laporte streets. Services every Sunday at [illegible] a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Tuesday evenings. W. H. Thompson, Elder.

The Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at 10 o'clock for Sunday school, and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at [illegible] in [illegible] Hall. Andover is on the main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles west thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meet [illegible] on Sunday school at school house in District No. 31 in Frontier Co., and hold prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have [illegible] preaching but our beloved Bro. [illegible] visits us as often as he can. [illegible] W. A. Moore, Clerk.

The Church of the Blessed Hope of West Seattle, Wash. The church regularly meets for Bible and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brown Co., Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother [illegible], or U. L. Beeson, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at [illegible], Ia., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. [illegible], Elder; [illegible], Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harmon and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., meet for Sunday school every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves	†11:45pm
No. 22, " "	10:20pm
No. 31, " "	9:31am
No. 151, Local, "	†12:55pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves	†2:49am
No. 20, " "	10:34pm
No. 41, " "	†11:25pm
No. 151, Local, "	†12:45pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily except Saturday.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] p. m., making direct connections with C. & A. train arriving Kansas City 6:55 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Mississippi River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent L. E. & W. R'y, Plymouth, Ind., or address

E. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager. CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

N. 52, Ex. Sun.	11:26pm	For St. Joseph.
N. 56, "	6:15pm	"
No. 54, "	10:06pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

N. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:03am	For Terre Haute.
N. 53, "	12:09pm	" "
N. 55, "	4:15pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. DALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT:

HE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONT

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.
Pennsylvania Lines.
Schedule of Passenger Trains—[illegible]

Westward: Pittsburgh, Alliance, Canton, Massillon, Wooster, Mansfield, Crestline, Bucyrus, Lima, Van Wert, Ft. Wayne, Arcola, Columbia City, Larwill, Pierceton, Eagle Lake, Warsaw, [illegible], Bourbon, Inwood, Plymouth, Grovertown, Hamlet, Davis, Hanna, Wanatah, Valparaiso, Wheeler, Hobart, Liverpool, Clarke, Chicago. [illegible]

Eastward: Chicago, [illegible], Liverpool, Hobart, Wheeler, Valparaiso, Wanatah, Hanna, Davis, Hamlet, Grovertown, Plymouth, Inwood, Bourbon, [illegible], Ft. Wayne [illegible]

[illegible]

J. F. [illegible] AGENT, Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.
[illegible]

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at [illegible] avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, [illegible]

For rates and full information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Line, or address

L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS. [illegible]

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. 5 cts.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. 15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Proclaim the Bible, 15 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament, 15 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant.

[illegible]

"I do not know of anything in the English language that is so effective ... " Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

[illegible]

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best 24 seeds and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Chiemsee Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased every body last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors make it "The Poets' Number." Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cents for Guide, which can be deducted from first order.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N.Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 16, 1893. NO. 31.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
E. [illegible] Hallenback,
W. D. Fish[illegible],
J. H. Smart,
[illegible] Allbaugh,
A. R. Underwood.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40 }

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the first resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

As You Go Through Life.

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them,
It is wise and kind
To be somewhat blind
And look for the virtue behind them.
For the cloudiest night has a hint of light
Somewhere in its shadows hiding;
It is better by far
To hunt for a star
Than the spots on the sun abiding.

The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whims to the letter;
Some things must go wrong,
Your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it, the better.
It is folly to fight with the Infinite,
And go under at last in the wrestle,
The wiser man
Shapes into God's plan
As the water shapes into a vessel.

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 4.

"Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus the Lord is come in the flesh is not of God." 1 John iv. 3. (Sinaitic.)

"Every spirit which confesses Jesus Christ to have come in the flesh is from God." 1 John iv. 2. (Diaglott).

"Many deceivers are gone forth into the world even they that confess not that Jesus Christ cometh in the flesh." 2 John 7. (R. V.)

"Many who lead astray have gone out into the cosmos, who do not confess a Jesus Christ who cometh in flesh," 2 John 7. (Gardner.)

At the conclusion of our last article we were considering the teachings of trinitarian "deceivers" "who do not confess a Jesus Christ who cometh in flesh," but confess him to be wholly divine, dwelling for a time in a tenement of flesh, and hence they call him the god-man."

Such "deceivers" pay little attention to clear statements of the Divine Word, as for instance, the following: "But we see Jesus, who was made (by nature) a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death." There is nothing mysterious or ambiguous about this, it is a clear statement as to how he was "made." If he was "made" this way he was not "made" any other way—part human, and part divine as the apostasy asserts.

"But when the fulness of the time came, God sent forth his Son, born of a woman (that which has been born of flesh is flesh) born under the law, that he might redeem them which were under the law." Gal. iv. 4. (R. V.) The reason why he was "made" lower than the angels, and "born of a woman," is that through death he might redeem those subject to death. If he had been made divine instead of "lower than the angels," no such redemption could be possible. Therefore in place of the nature of angels he took the reverse, "the seed of Abraham." See note to Heb. ii. 16, in Diaglott: "For truly it," i. e. the fear of death, or death itself, "does not lay hold of" or sieze on "angels, but of the seed of Abraham it does lay hold."

"Since then, the children have one common nature of blood and flesh, he also in like manner, (born of a woman) partook of those; in order that, by means of his death, he might vanquish him possessing the power of death—that is, the enemy—and might liberate those who by fear of death, were throughout their whole life held in slavery." Heb. ii. 14, 15, (Diaglott).

The reverse of all this would have been, if he had not "partook" of the "common nature of blood and flesh,"—"in like manner," born as "the children" were. The double-nature "god-man," theory of trinitarians, is very much out of harmony with such clear Scripture, and not only so, but removes from Christ the only power by which "means of his death he might vanquish the enemy," and "liberate" those in captivity. A double-natured Christ, could not say: "I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forever more." He could only say: "I am he that was part dead," etc. Hence, there is no escaping the result of such false doctrine: "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus the Lord is come in the flesh is not of God." 1 John iv. 3. (Sinaitic).

He was wholly flesh, but now he is wholly divine—"is alive forever more." "When he had by himself purged our sins, (not before) sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high; being (at this time) made so much better than the angels." The apostasy does not discern between the time when he was made "lower than the angels," and also "made so much better than the angels." First, "that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual." This is the Bible order.

The Scriptures plainly teach that Jesus is the Son of God in a sense superior to every other son, but he was not the Son of God in the same sense that we are sons to our fathers, if he was he would have inherited the divine nature of the Father, as a whole, (like begets like) and not in part, and hence could not have died to redeem fallen men. Such teaching is at variance with the plan of salvation. He was the father or author of his being in that he caused the overshadowing power of the Holy Spirit to come upon Mary, and set in action the operations of nature, which resulted in a natural birth of Jesus. In Matt. i. 18, his real paternity is ascribed to the Holy Spirit. "She was found to be pregnant by the Holy Spirit."

Verse 20: "Fear not to take Mary, thy affianced wife, for that being formed in her is by the Holy Spirit."—Diaglott. But God was his Father in that he was the author of his being in causing the Holy Spirit to do this work. Hence he could have no claim to the divine nature of the Father by reason of his birth, either in part or as a whole. If you refer to Gen. i. 2: you will find this same power of the Holy Spirit was used in creation: "And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters," etc. There is another sense in which he may claim Sonship in a higher plane still. In Rev. iii. 14, he is called "The beginning of the creation of God." Col. i. 15: "He is a likeness of the invisible God,—first born of all creation." Verse 18: "The first born from the dead."—Diaglott. This birth makes him the Son of God inheriting his Father's divine nature. He is now in fact "born of God," and being born of God has the Father's nature by this birth.

The apostacy claims great admiration for what they please to term "the triune God"—"God the Father," "God the Son," and "God the Holy Ghost,"—"three Gods in one God," which is compounded nonsense pure and simple. In support of this they quote from John x., "I and my Father are one," and in order to emphasize this blending together of three Gods into one person, they place the word "one" in capital letters. It is pure conjecture that the word "one" has reference to a unity of person. If it refers to a unity of person, then they can have the opportunity of doing a little fine condensing work. Read the following: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them that they may be one EVEN as we are one." That the unity must be the same as that existing between the Father and Son, is evidenced by the phrase: "even as we are one." Then if the unity between the Father and Son is "one" of person, then all believers must be condensed into the same personal unity. I am afraid it would be necessary to write "mystery!" after such a monster personal condensation.

Paul affirms "that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God." A person whose life has a corruptible environment could not forever retain possession of an incorruptible or eternal inheritance, it must soon terminate. Jesus' testimony harmonizes with Paul's affirmation. See John iii: "Except a man be born from above he cannot see the kingdom of God." He must have an incorruptible environment or "be born anew," before he can inherit an eternal kingdom. "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of flesh (Jesus was) is flesh: and that which is born of the spirit (Jesus was) is spirit." The person must partake of the nature of the birth he receives. No one can receive two natures at one birth. He "is flesh," or he "is spirit," says Jesus, but the apostacy made Christ, and now makes man a compound of the two.

Paul also makes another statement which is adverse to the above mystical compound of the apostacy. It is this: "Neither doth corruption inherit incorruption." This principle is of universal application. "Corruption" and "incorruption" are opposite conditions, which cannot unite and dwell together. It is impossible for an "incorruptible" life to forever dwell in a "corruptible" environment. Paul says the one "cannot" inherit the other, and yet the trinitarian apostacy says the divine or incorruptible nature did dwell in the corruptible environment of Jesus, and when this corruptible part ceased to exist the divine or the "God part" continued its existence independent of everything, and was in fact the true and real Christ. Hence, such preaches a Christ which never died and rose again according to the Scriptures, and if this be the case, Paul says our faith, hope and preaching is all in vain. "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus the Lord is come in the flesh is not of God."

W. H. Wilson.

Love.

"Hear O Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord. And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." Deut. vi. 4-5.

These words were spoken to the Israelites after the Lord had led them out of Egypt. Notice the language, with all thine heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy might, and we hear it repeated from our Savior's lips. Luke x. 27. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. What does it mean to love. We will let Webster answer; To regard with passionate and devoted affection. Then to love with all their heart, soul and might means a great deal. If we love one of our own family, what would we not do for them that they might be happy? Then what is there too difficult, what too great, even to the devotion of our entire life, for one who has done so much for us. Christ says, John xiv. 15. "If ye love me keep my commandments, again he that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me, and if a man love me he will keep my word." But says one what are his commandments, we have quoted one from Matt. xii. 37, and the second is like unto the first, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." What added happiness for each other every day if these two commandments were carried out. Now dear ones do we each one of us love the Lord our God as we should, or do some of us wish to go after other gods. Of the gods of the people which are around us, O beware! for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come. If a man love me he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him. Brethren let us be careful, our Savior is too good a friend to offend, better by far offend an earthly friend. But if we do right we will have offended neither, for one is not our true friend who is offended at that which we may do or say believing it is to be right, so let us be faithful each day sowing seeds of kindness, encouraging some one who is disheartened and overcome by the discouragements and temptations of life, speak a kind word to the lonely ones, throw out a friendly smile to the one who seems to be alone in the world. To be sure these are but small acts, but far too many let them pass and look beyond them for some greater work to do, but remember the Savior's illustration of a cup of cold water, and do the little acts of love which bring great results many times. The harvest is great, the laborers few, therefore let us be up and at work. Love the Lord thy God first, thy neighbor second. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets. Your brother in Christian love,

Fred L. Austin.

Need of a Savior.

O I know what you need, poor despairing, dissatisfied one. I know just what would fill all the blanks, make up for every lack, satisfy every longing of your soul.

The love that you cannot find in human hearts, you can find in Jesus. The kind words that friends forget to say, Jesus has spoken. The cooling, tender touch of the hand, that you have so longed to feel on your fevered brow in the lonely midnight watches, he can give.

"You need a Savior!" All the day the words have been ringing in my ears—"You need a Savior!" "You need a Savior!" I know not who the message is for, but it has been given to me through some dear angel voice, that it might be born onward to you.

My soul has been in an agony of fear and haste as I have thought of your utter helplessness when death shall seize upon you. You cannot fight him away; you cannot go back and live over the squandered hours. You will not then have time to "make your calling and election sure." You must "die in your sins;" die without hope. It may seem a light thing now, to go on as you are going. You may feel as if all would be right in the end, but when you get there, you will have no Savior, no one in whom to trust for deliverance from the grave to an immortal, incorruptible life! You will stretch out your hands and cry in vain, for monster death will give you no reprieve—no time in which to obey.

O, I cannot make it strong enough,—I cannot write out the burden of my heart—for "sudden destruction" is coming and you are not ready!

It has already come to many who felt just as secure as you. In one short moment the cyclone's breath has brought some to the tomb, the fire-fiend has swept others into the land of darkness and of silence, and the sinking boat borne many more into the depths of the sea. What if it had been you?

"You need a Savior!" Your need is a desperate, an immediate one; you need a Savior NOW; you need him all the time, for he only can bring quietness and rest and peace to your sin-burdened soul. Life seems to you not worth living, only because you are living it without Jesus. It is not worth living without him, for it will be found of no worth in the great reckoning day, and will be blotted out as utterly valueless for the ages to come.

Oh that you had a Savior, that my "dear loving Savior" were your Savior too! Then why not make him your own? God only asks you to choose life that you may live (forever.) He only asks you to put away all that will harm yourself and unfit you for the glories of the kingdom. He only asks you to educate yourself for a position loftier than that which the angels fill.

And you wont do it?

You had rather go on miserable and despairing, unloving and unloved, no tender ties between yourself and God, no tender ties between yourself and the beings that sojourn with you beneath the same roof-tree?

Do you not understand? Are you blind? You cannot be saved without Jesus. It is utterly impossible. He is offered to you as a Savior. You must accept him. You must have his name. It must be named upon you in baptism. He becomes your Savior then. You come then into Christ. You are made one of God's dear family. You can claim life and land. The blessed hope of a resurrection from the dead in an incorruptible and imperishable life becomes your hope. You can "lift up your eyes and look northward and southward and eastward and westward, and can walk through the land in the length and in the breadth of it," assured that it will be yours forever.

It is a little thing that God asks, but the reward is exceeding great. I have found the treasure hidden in the field—(life—eternal life in the new earth,) and have sold all that I have to buy it, will not you do the same?

S. Roxana Wince.

Selected.

The Power of the Resurrection of Christ.

The well-established fact that Jesus, the Christ, the Son of God, after his crucifixion, rose from the dead and ascended into heaven, is the great fact of human history. Upon this one fact rests man's redemption from sin. For if Christ be not risen, the preaching of salvation through him is vain, and faith in him, folly.

But a risen Christ should be a Christ of transcendent power over his followers. He has triumphed over every foe, has promised to them a similar victory, and is ever with them a guiding, inspiriting and almighty power. He has made redemption from sin possible to the race, and has said to his disciples: "Go, preach the Gospel to the whole creation," "and lo, I am with you alway."

Such a command as this from the risen and triumphant Christ should become, to every one bearing his name, the supreme law and inspiration of his life. For this one end he should live. To accomplish it, so far as in him lies, he should marshal all the forces of his being.

First of all he should organize himself for this great work. Heart, intellect, will, body, property, influence—all should be consecrated and used to the sole purpose of bringing this world into loyal subjection to Christ. Whatever, then, his profession or employment, he makes it tributary to this one great purpose, which has taken such full possession of him, that he can say, "For me to live is Christ," because the risen Christ lives in him.

What a power from his ever living and triumphant Lord descends and abides upon such a man, transforming his character, marshalling his energies, and inciting him to higher endeavor to make his life tell to the utmost in bringing this world into loving loyalty to Christ.

And, then, one who has come somewhat fully under this power of Christ's resurrection, will also do what he can to organize the church of which he is a member, for this same sublime end. The true conception of a church is a body of believers in Christ, organized to promote the coming of his kingdom. But it would seem from the way in which not a few followers of Christ live, that their idea of a church is quite different from this—that it is a kind of hospital for "impotent folk"—"blind, halt, withered"—who gather within it to wait passively and with no great solicitude, for some descent of healing virtue. Now, wherever any such conception of a church prevails, every accession to it is an accession of weakness. It is only another patient carried to the hospital. The greater its numbers, the greater its impotence. And if, by chance, there walks into it a strong man in the flush of spiritual health, his breath is wellnigh taken out of him by the surrounding atmosphere. He, too, soon droops and withers, and becomes like the rest, or if he have spiritual stamina enough to resist this downward tendency, he must mainly direct his efforts to nursing the others.

But let a church throughout its membership, build itself up after the ideal and under the inspiration of its risen and conquering Lord, and it becomes a mighty power. Each member gives to it additional strength. Like the Roman legion, each supports and strengthens the others, and with shield joined to shield they move right on to the world's conquest.

Such a church, with a fixed and supreme purpose to do its full part toward the world's redemption, will seek to know the gifts and adaptions of each of its members, and to organize itself in such a way as to make its entire membership the most effective possible for its great work. It will not only care for its home-field, but will also pray and give and labor to bring the whole race of man into obedience to Christ.

This blessed result must come—if it come at all—by every follower of Christ bringing himself, through study of the Divine Word, meditation and prayer, with the aid of the Holy Spirit, more fully under the sway of the power of Christ's resurrection.—Prof. Franklin W. Fisk.

The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

As the Gospel is "the power of God unto salvation to everyone who believeth" (Rom. i. 16), it is essential that we should come to a right understanding of what this gospel is. We are told by Matthew (chap. iv. 23) that "Christ went about all Galilee, preaching the gospel;" and by Mark (ch. xvi. 15) that he commanded his disciples to "go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," which clearly shows that it is something necessary to be believed. What, then, is the gospel? This is a very important question, for Christ said (Mark xvi. 16) "He that believeth (the gospel) and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned." Did not Christ say (Luke iv. 43) "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent?" Did he not style this the "Gospel of the Kingdom?" Matt. ix. 35. Mark i. 14. Here, then, we have the answer as to what the gospel is:—"The glad tidings of the Kingdom of God." Luke viii. 1. Of this kingdom we read very fully in the prophets, particularly in Daniel. We are told there (ch. ii. 44) that the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed," and (ch. vii. 18) that "the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom for ever." Furthermore, he tells us (ch. vii. 27) that this kingdom shall be "under the whole heaven." Is it not clear, from the prophet Daniel, that this kingdom is to be on the earth? Is he not in perfect harmony with Jeremiah, who says (ch. iii. 17) "they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord?" and with Isaiah, who declares (ch. xxiv. 23) "The Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem?" Zechariah also (ch. xiv. 9) testifies to the same truth in the words, "The Lord shall be King over all the earth." In fact, the whole tenor of Scripture teaching is that "the meek shall inherit the earth" (Matt. v. 5. Psa. xxxvii. 11), and that "The kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever." Rev. xi. 15. If we take a glance of the New Testament teaching we shall find it is thoroughly interlaced with the same doctrine. We have Christ himself exhorting his disciples to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness" [Matt. vi. 10], saying, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." We have also the redeemed out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation, represented as singing a new song, saying, "Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 10. The kingdom of God is not now in existence, for the Nobleman who has gone into the far country to receive for himself a kingdom [Luke xix. 12] has not yet returned. When he comes, the promise which was made through Mary [Luke i. 32] will be fully realized, "and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." What a glorious time that will be when the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. Isa. xi. 9. Then "the law shall go forth of Zion and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem" [Mic. vi. 2], and the Lord of hosts shall reign before His ancients gloriously." Isa. xxiv. 23. "Thy Kingdom Come."

Conference Notice.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana, will be held at the Pleasant View Church in Warren Co., Ind., commencing Thursday evening August 24, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday.

At our last conference at Antioch, in June, a general invitation was extended through Brother Conner to all lovers of the truth; and as this will be the first conference held at that place let there be a liberal response, for it is the duty of all in the like precious faith to be there if possible. What if it does take a little time, and some of our means, it will only be a little sacrifice in the right direction.

The brethren there are desirous of having a good meeting and we hope they may not be disappointed.

As has been previously announced the way to get there is by way of the Wabash R. R., running through Peru, going to West Lebanon.

The place of meeting is a few miles from this point, but by sending word to Harry Evans Jr. at Hedrick, Ind., you will be met and cared for.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Wine drinking is the mother of all mischief, the root of crimes, the spring of vices, the whirlwind of the brain, the overthrow of the sense, the tempest of the tongue, the ruin of the body, the shame of life, the stain of honesty, and the plague and corruption of the soul. —St. Augustine.

[illegible]stitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.

[illegible] JOSLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 16, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

GRATEFUL acknowledgements for our tracts are received from far off Ceylon, with encouragement to hope that they are doing a good work.

IT is singular, but true, it seems, that in the grand parade of all nations at the World's Fair a banner borne aloft by Turks bore the inscription, "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem." Does the Turk feel that the time of his down-treading has almost expired?

AUDIN in his life of Luther, speaking of the reformers, says: "They left Wittemberg and went to Geneva, where we find them, in 1571, sustaining in a crowded school, and in printed theses, that all which was said about the immortality of the soul was invented by antichrist, for the purpose of making the Pope's pot boil."

Two spiritualists from London, England, are holding forth at Lake Brady, Ohio, and represent the antipodes of spiritualistic belief. J. Clegg Wright is an agnostic and materialist, while Walter Howard is called a "Christian Spiritualist." He opened his lecture with a prayer for God's blessing; but the other declared that talking to God was a humbug. "In our universe of infinite law and order," said he, "everything takes care of itself and leaves God out of a job."

THE Great (?) Brooklyn pulpit orator recently took his text from Zech. xiv. 7, "at evening time it shall be light." As usual he murdered his text. It is fulfilled in the evening of Christian sorrow,—in the time of old age; in the latter days of the church when there will be only a few missionaries, a few churches, a few good men compared with the institutions leprous and petrified, and finally at the end of Christian life. Strange that the prophet furnished no such key to this subject—strange that people intelligent on every other subject should spend their thousands on such ridiculous nonsense.

A PAPYRUS manuscript found in the den of an old hermit in a cave near Jerusalem in the year 1850, and which experts have all along believed to have been the handiwork of Peter the Apostle, and friend of Christ, was submitted to a committee of the Biblical Society of London in 1890. We see by the papers they have arrived at the conclusion that the work is in reality what it purports to be—the last literary work of the Apostle. It has not been ascertained exactly who has charge of the relic, but it is said that a "society of British literary voluptuaries" has offered $100,000 for the document.

The believer is seeking for glory, honor and immortality, by a patient continuance in well doing. This [illegible] is the supreme end, the [illegible] of all hope. Those [illegible] prove immortality to be [illegible] of our natural outfit are wont to say, when they run short of better argument, that belief of it is universal, and inasmuch as men believe in it who have no revelation from God in words it must be implanted within them by God. Our readers are doubtless aware that that theory was long since exploded. The myriads of Buddists in the East are said to believe in the immortality of the soul. It is not true. After some attention to this matter we conclude that annihilation would much better express the hope that inspires them. "Nirvana" is what they seek and hope for? What is Nirvana? It is the extinction of activity and personality and nothing more. Life is held to be an illusion, an appearance, a partial manifestation of the substance, of which existence is a palpable fact. Whether the substance exists or not after the vanquishing of the personality is of no importance. There is no more subjection to pain, to evil or to good. The elements which compose the individuality, detached from each other, "enter into absolute repose, from which they will go one by one to form other beings.

FOR weeks banks all over the country have been complaining of slow collections and lack of employment, but how can it be hard times when the unemployed by thousands march past us with cigars in their mouths? We never recollect to have bought one, but have been told that no decent cigar can be bought for less than five cents; and it soon goes off in smoke. We have scanned the city papers for some time to see if any saloon keepers have failed or the proprietor of any beer garden has assigned, but have found nothing of the sort, [illegible], although we did notice that several of them had gone to the wall in Indiana. It must be hard times when they fail. The slaves of the drink habit find means to gratify their taste for the poisonous beverages when starvation stares in the face of their families.

The editor of the Llano (Texas) Tribune projects a World's Fair at Jerusalem in the year 1900, and that it shall consist of panoramas of the condition of the human family, its sciences, arts and religions, making prominent the inventions, developments and creations of each century back to Christ, and then the same of previous ages. It is intended to be an exposition of every art, every science, every belief, practice, religion, literature, music and drama, covering all the world for every century. He says by that time travelling facilities will be such that we of the West could spend ten days there and be back home in a month. It is his opinion that $100,000,000 could be raised to make the exposition what it should be, the unparalleled achievement of mankind. A contemporary remarking upon this, says, "This would surely bring the handwriting on the wall, and to that end it may be carried out." We dissent from this. We think Jehovah has too plainly revealed his programme, to entertain any such idea. He has told us what the hour of recreation will be—not what the peaceful congress of nations shall assemble there for.

THE brother in Shenandoah Valley, Va. is informed that his letter, long mislaid, came to light a day or two ago. We give the divine directions for the breaking of bread which we observe. Paul's directions were as follows: "Be ye followers of Me, even as I am also of Christ. Now I praise you brethren, that you remember me in all things, and keep ordinances as I delivered them to you. 1 Cor. ii. 1, 2. As to time of observance we read in Acts xx. 7 as follows; "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached to them, ready to depart." In Acts ii. 42, it says of the disciples, and they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. From all which we learn that the Apostle delivered to them the ordinances; and secondly, the time to observe them; and thirdly, praised them for their faithful observance as commanded. Our advice is, go thou and do likewise; it cannot be amiss.

Go slow, Mr. Sceptic, or you may be bothered with something unearthed in the East before your ink is dry. And by the way, why not pay your respects to the contents of the antique records discovered in 1887 by a peasant woman near the ancient Arsinoe, in upper Egypt. You have no excuse now they have been laid before the public in Major Conder's work on the Tel Amarna tablets, comprising a translation of the text, with introduction and notes. Inscribed on tablets, subsequently baked into brick, and written in Aramaic, the ancient language of Syria, in cuneiform characters, you have nothing less than a series of despatches sent to the Egyptian foreign office about 1480 years before Christ, from the tributary kings of Canaan, imploring assistance against invasions. Among them are letters from the king of Jerusalem and other chiefs of Southern Palestine; and you can trace the dismay and alarm created by the advance of Joshua and the Hebrews, called "Abri," and "People of the Desert." And we invite your special attention to a striking passage in one of the dispatches of the fugitive monarch apparently after the battle of Ajalon recorded in Joshua x., in which he seems to apologize for his defeat, by speaking of the enemy as sorcerers, doubtless in allusion to the miracles of Joshua. The date of the exodus is [illegible] shifted back, to that assumed by earlier biblical experts, while the contrary theory of Dr. Brugsch, too hastily accepted as conclusively established, is overthrown. In the [illegible] of the [illegible].

We often feel profoundly grateful for the timely [illegible] brought out in the newspapers calculated to fortify the humble believer who has neither the time nor the ability to make an exhaustive study of the historical evidences of the truth of the Bible. Scarcely a week passes without some item of [illegible]. Only a few days ago we read of a Persian gentleman in this country who [illegible] brought with him bricks [illegible] at the [illegible] ancient Babylon. Many are running to and fro and knowledge is increased [illegible] of the prophets. Verily this is the time of the end. The inscription translated reads:

"To [illegible] of Bel Gimil, [illegible] who makes [illegible] has built E[illegible] for his bright [illegible] zie bird" means his wife.

Peace in Troublous Times.

The hearts of many are failing them for fear of coming disaster just now, with no well defined opinion of its nature. It [illegible] the believer to live near to God not merely to sing "nearer my God to thee," live a nearer more nearly as he lived and acted who manifested God in flesh—not his person but his character, his disposition. If a man has been enlightened by the Word of truth and [illegible] maintains a conscience void of offence toward God and men, [illegible] unlike the tide that ebbs and flows, now full, and anon leaving a waste of sand behind—his peace will be as persistent as [illegible] will flow [illegible] shallow pool ruffled by every breath, that winter turns to ice and summer drought to mud; but a river sparkling, flowing, ever growing deeper, broader, calmer as it flows." The secret of the believer's peace is that he is justified by faith,—"not by frames and feelings that shift with every wind. Show us the man who has a living, active faith, and we will point to his heart as the home of peace—a peace that passeth understanding, but it "has God for its author and faith for its source."

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 3.

1. And in the fifteenth year of the leadership of Tiberius Kaisar, Pontios Pilatos exercising the leadership of Joudaia, and Herodes being tetrarch of Galilaia, and Philippos his brother being tetrarch of Itouraia and the Trachonitis province, and Lusanias being tetrarch of Abilene,

2. During the chief-priestly office of Anna and Kaiapas, there occurred an oracular-word of God unto Joannes the son of Zacharias in the wilderness;

3. And he came unto all the surrounding country of the Jordanes, heralding a baptism of repentance for a remission of sins;

4. As hath been written in a book of words of Hesaia the prophet, namely a voice of one calling for aid in the wilderness; May ye have made ready the way of the Lord; make his paths straight.

5. Every ravine will have been filled up [com. trans. shall be filled up] and every mountain and hill will have been laid low, and the crooked-places will be straight, and the rough ways smooth;

6. And all flesh will see God's instrumental salvation.

7. Then said he unto the mixed multitudes that were going their way out, to be baptized by him, Generations of vipers, who hath directed you to flee from the wrath that is destined to come?

8. May ye have brought forth fruits worthy of repentance, and do not begin to say to yourselves: We have Habraam as a father: For I say unto you that God is able to raise up offspring for Habraam from these stones.

9. Moreover already even is the axe lying at the roots of the trees. Every tree then that is not bearing good fruit is being cut down and is being cast into fire.

10. And the multitudes asked him saying, What then shall we do? Let the one who hath two tunics give to the one who hath not: And the one who hath food let him do likewise.

12. And [illegible] also came to be [illegible] unto him Teacher, [illegible]

13. And [illegible] do nothing more than [illegible] to do.

14. And [illegible]

[illegible]

19. Moreover Herodes the tetrarch, who was being reproved by him concerning Herodias his brother's wife, and concerning all the wicked things which Herodes had done,

20. Added this also to them all, and shut up Joannes in prison.

21. And it came to pass when all the people had been baptized, and when Jesus had been baptized, and while he was praying [illegible] the heavens were opened,

22. And the [illegible] came down in a bodily appearance as [illegible] of a dove, upon him, and there occurred a voice from out of the heavens, Thou art my son, the beloved, in thee will I [illegible].

23. And Jesus, he was beginning to be about thirty years of age, being a son, as was supposed, of Joseph, of Heli,

24. Of Matthat, of Levi, of Melchi, of Jannai, of Joseph,

25. Of Mattathias, of Amos, of Naoum, of Esli, of Naggai,

26. Of Maath, of Mattathias, of Semein, of Josech, of Joda,

27. Of Joanan, of Rhesa, of Zorobabel, of Salathiel, of Neri,

28. Of Melchi, of Addi, of Kosam, of Elmadam, of Er,

29. Of Jesus, of Eliezer, of Joreim, of Matthath, of Levei,

30. Of Simeon, of Joudas, of Joseph, of Jonam, of Eliakeim,

31. Of Melea, of Menna, of Mattatha, of Natham, of Daveed,

32. Of [illegible], of Jobed, of [illegible], of Sala, of Naason,

33. Of Adamin, of Arni, of Esrom, of Pharis, of Joudas,

34. Of Jakob, of Isaak, of Habraam, of Thara, of Nachor,

35. Of Serouch, of Ragau, of Phalek, of Heber, of Sala,

36. Of Kainam, of Arphaxad, of Sem, of Noe, of Lamech,

37. Of Mathousala, of Enoch, of Jaret, of Maleleel, of Kainam,

38. Of Enos, of Seth, of Adam, of God.

COMMENT.

"Leadership" instead of "reign" R. V.

"A baptism of repentance" instead of "the baptism" R. V.

"As a father" instead of "to a father" R. V. which is very peculiar English to say the least.

"Is lying" instead of "is laid" R. V.

"Tunic" instead of "coat" R. V. for the reason that a tunic being an undergarment could not be considered a coat in any proper sense of the term. It might be accounted a shirt.

"Give" instead of "impart" R. V. We can't properly impart coats to people I think.

"Do" instead of "extort" R. V. It requires a vivid imagination to get "extort" out of "do."

"Neither oppress any one nor be an informer" instead of "Do violence to no one, neither exact anything wrongfully" R. V. another great stretch of the imagination as a translation.

"Wages and rations" the usual pay of a soldier, instead of "wages" merely R. V.

"Sandals" instead of "shoes" R. V. They didn't wear shoes in those days.

"He will baptize you in sanctified spirit and in fire" instead of "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire" R. V. The idea of a ghost is foreign to the Scriptures.

"Winnowing-fan" instead of "fan" merely R. V.

"Will gather the chaff" instead of "Will burn up the chaff" R. V.

"The good tidings" instead of [illegible] R. V.

"Added this also to them all" instead of [illegible] this above all" R. V.

[illegible] I satisfied" instead of [illegible] I well pleased" R. V.

[illegible] Jesus he was beginning [illegible] thirty years of age" instead of "And Jesus himself [illegible]" R. V.

There [illegible] the remotest reference [illegible] in the text to teaching. The names in the table of generations [illegible] given are spelled with [illegible] equivalent letters as nearly [illegible] the Greek [illegible] where [illegible]. The students of [illegible] will find a profitable study to compare [illegible] list of names with the same in [illegible] genealogies [illegible] point [illegible].

CHAS. GARDNER.

[It is impossible for the compositor to get printed correctly [illegible] unless written as plain and distinct. We have no font of type with the accent marks, hence cannot give the [illegible] at all. Our typesetters are ordinarily intelligent, but the peculiar spelling of the names, unless written so plainly as to be unmistakable, cause errors. We are far from perfect, certainly, but particular copy, where a single [illegible] even, makes a [illegible] difference would be far better written with ink carefully, than with a pencil hastily. ED.]

Dear [illegible]

I saw that my other little letter was published, and thought I would come again and say a few words that may encourage some poor soul that has not learned to love Jesus, and that would bring them closer to Him. This time I will talk on the Christian's reward, when it shall be, and what it shall be.

First we will find out when the reward of the Christian will be. It will be at the sounding of the great trumpet, when the Son of Man shall come in His power and glory.

Next is what it shall be. We will say eternal life, for the wages of sin is death, and the gift of God is eternal life, and our reward will be the gift of God. This is the reason we say eternal life.

Again we will ask, when is the reward? Why, when the work is done.

For example we will take a school teacher who wishes the scholars to do his will. He offers a reward for doing good, and scholars that have any interest in themselves will work for the reward, and on the last day every scholar will be rewarded according to their work. It is just so with the Christian. We understand that we will not get the reward just any time, but after the work is done. May we all take enough interest in ourselves that we may be found working for that great reward that the Master has offered. May we all work for the best reward. Let us try to get the work done that we may receive our reward. The work to be done is, that the gospel must be preached to all nations, to tell them the love of Jesus, that if we live a Christian life and do the Master's will, then at the last day the dead shall be brought to life again to "die no more." 2 Tim. iv. 8.

Yes, that crown of righteousness is for our well-doing in the work of the Master which we will get at the last day. "This is not to me only but to all that love the appearing of the Master. I hope more will be found working for the Master, it is so pleasant to work for him. Do not be discouraged dear young friends. I am only twenty-one years old and nothing can turn me back to the worldly pleasures again. Yours in Christ.

EMMA LINDSAY.

Dear Churches of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin.

We recently met a number of you at the Lanark Conference, where in company with Brother and Sister Woodward of Michigan, we talked of the good things to come. Since then memory, precious monitor of fraternity, has brought your faces one by one before us. We wonder if the chastening hand of the Divine Sculptor is carving its graces of joy and peace upon our brows, and we are walking with Paul, and John, and Peter, and Jesus upon the mountain heights of glorious anticipation.

Are we being sanctified by his truth? If God worked in us to will and to do, shall not that doing be successful? Oh let us pray mightily for Him to work in us to will and to do. What mighty forces are waiting to help us—God and His Son—but we must realize our need of that help.

Dear brothers and sisters; we must work on our knees. Do you know of any weight that is besetting you? weighing you down to earthly affections? you must cast it aside if you desire heavenly treasure. The prince of the power of the air is hovering over all ready to devour, but we may come off conquerors through Him that loved us. Let me say that against it is [illegible] we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us, we [illegible] a new start to work for Christ. Consecration must be our motto. We are on the way to the hills of beauty and we must get there, if we walk rough paths of blood.

On our way we occasionally meet a fellow-traveler such as was brother Geiselman of Indiana, who remained with us from August 4th until the following Tuesday. We were all much edified by his greeting. He met with us two evenings at Brother Anderson's, and on Sunday at our hall. All who heard him were much pleased, especially with the kind and Christian Spirit, that controled him. We thought him at his best when on the doctrinal points of the faith, and especially prized his suggestions about our plan of working. A good pointer was, "He did not work for his congregation, but with them." Now dear ones; we believe that we are now in the day of preparation, and as John was the forerunner of His second advent, "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." The paths are just as crooked now as in John's day, and does it not gladden your hearts to know that the humblest member of his flock may assist in the preparing? What is each one of us going to do personally? We deplore our lack of money but if the mouth and eye, and the feet, and the hands are all busy, the pocket books will be too. Let us each one pledge ourselves with God's help to try to bring one person to understand the truth and become obedient—one person for the year or more.

At the June Conference at Lanark, Ill., another dear worker was added to our number, Sister Annie Adams who resolutely set her face towards the land of promise, and more recently while Brother Geiselman was here another has decided to walk the heavenly way, Sister Edith Anderson.

Dear Annie and Edith you are character builders now in a new sense of the word. It's now for eternity and Christ. A glorious opportunity is yours, for you realize that your past sins are washed away, and you can begin to build into this wonderful temple, gold and jewels and precious stones, and when other workmen—equally as busy would tempt you to lay on that foundation worthless material, wood, hay and stubble, cast it aside in the strength of God. Temptations will come to try you, but you won't know how weak you are without them. And then your Advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ, will make you strong. You must put yourselves at once under his care, by daily prayer, and he will not fail you.

Finally God bless us all, far and near, and bring us home at last a perfect and complete household in Him.

Your beloved sister, one of the household.

ALICE J. KERR.

I Blot out a Day.

I keep on a desk before me a calendar of the year, with the day of each week by numerals. When the day is passed I draw my pen across a figure or the figures representing a day. It is gone, and I blot it out. So far as the column of numerals is concerned, I can do so.

But I am startled by the words, "I blot out a day." A day is a wheel in the great machinery of life, a link in the chain of my probation. It is as truly a part of vital and essential being as a year or a century. The day is given me. Will it vanish at my bidding? I did not originate it; I only received it. I have no more power to blot it out than to bring it in.

It was a gift. How should I treat the giver if I could and would blot it out? It came as a proof of the love of the Giver. To many that day came not. It was on the way, but the chain broke. But Divine kindness would not allow me to be a loser. Shall I not honor the Giver?

A day of sadness, perhaps. But [illegible] for that reason [illegible] the [illegible] of the day [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] day [illegible] such a [illegible] the day [illegible] divine [illegible] place. [illegible] then, it ought [illegible] blotting it out, obedience be given to him who afflicts "for our profit that we might be partakers of his holiness."

A day of gladness, perhaps the sky bright, the air balmy, joy in friends and all worldly comforts, above all, joy in the Lord and gladness in his salvation. Shall I mar such a beautiful picture? Shall I blot out such a day? As I erase the figure with a pen shall I drop it out of my mind as if there had never been such a day? Is this the kind return?

A day! That day just erased from my calendar, how much could have been accomplished in it! What a noble river of holy emotions might have rolled through my soul in that one day?—what fervor of love, ardor in prayer, and workings of faith, bringing the light and joy of heaven into the soul.

There hangs my calendar. I cannot blot out much longer. The last day is near at hand. The symbols of what remains may be erased by my driving pen; but these links of life, these waymarks of the path to eternity, these gifts of God, these opportunities of usefulness,—my gratitude shall welcome them, my love and zeal carry out their great design. They shall aid in the grand result, that my name shall not be blotted out of the Book of Life.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Cheap-Home Visitor's Excursion.
Thursday, August 17th, 1893.

On the above date the Lake Erie & Western R. R., will run their Annual Home Visitor's Excursion to Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Ohio, and intermediate points. The rates are so low that it will be cheaper to go on this Excursion than to stay at home; thus giving everybody an opportunity to visit their old home and friends, through the States of Indiana and Ohio.

Excursion train will pass Plymouth at 5:46 A. M. For further information see Agent L. E. & W. R. R.

G. A. R. Encampment.

On account of the G. A. R. National Encampment at Indianapolis, the L. E. W. R. R., will sell Excursion tickets Sept., 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th. Tickets good to return up to and including Sept. 16th, 1893. Fare for round trip $2.10.

Poetry.

"I Am with you Alway."

'Tis sweet to read the promise He hath given,
[illegible] our hearts along the pilgrim way,
It is sweeter far to know its blest fulfillment,
[illegible] walk with Jesus day by day.

[illegible] with Jesus who shall fill the gladness
[illegible] whose daily life the Master shared!
[illegible] full of love and pity
[illegible] their burdens and their cares.

[illegible] the joy of knowing Jesus
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] Savior came to
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Content to walk in paths of Heaven's choosing,
Since He will hold my hand along the way;
Content to know that I am journeying homeward,
[illegible] grows the pilgrim's gate each day.

Selected.

The House of Many Mansions.

This dear sentence is frequently quoted by professing Christians to show that there is a house above the sky, to which believers go when death has removed them from among men.

Believing as we do that the Bible does not countenance such doctrine, we propose to offer a few remarks upon it.

In the first place it will be necessary to notice the circumstances under which Jesus gave utterance to these words. He was engaged comforting his disciples under the keen affliction which they were so soon to experience, viz., His being taken from them. He has told them, "Whither I go ye cannot come" John 13: 33. But then (ch. 14: 1) he proceeds to comfort them by saying: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions." This was to show them that although they should have sorrow of heart for a time, it would not always be so. A time would come when their sorrow should be turned into joy, for: "If it were not so, I would have told you (so you may rely upon me.) I go to prepare a place for you, and then I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." What a comfort for them, after being told that He would leave them, to be assured that at some future time he would come to them again, that they might be with him.

Is there anything here at variance with popular theology? We reply, "Yes." By these words they were excluded from any hope of seeing Him again till he should return to them.

Let us notice here, that Jesus did not at this time explain the locality of his Father's house. He had taught them very distinctly on this point elsewhere. Jesus and his disciples believed what the prophets of Israel had written upon the subject. We should therefore apply ourselves to the same source of information before we take the liberty to insert words of our own which might mislead any poor wayfarer seeking everlasting happiness. It does seem very nice to sing,

"My Father's house on high,
Home of my soul how dear!"

But is that what is meant by Jesus here? We unhesitatingly say, 'No!' Let us look at one or two statements made by him and recorded in Matt. xix. 27. Peter puts a very pointed question: "Behold we have forsaken all, and followed thee: what shall we have therefore?" Mark the reply. Nothing about going to heaven, to the Father's house above; but [v. 28] "In the regeneration ye shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging [or ruling] the twelve tribes of Israel." And any who had made sacrifices for him should inherit everlasting Life. This promise was repeated to them after that last memorial supper recorded in Luke xxii. 30. It may be observed that their minds were directed in these statements to the regeneration, when they should have their reward. This is termed by Peter [Acts iii. 21], "The times of restitution of all things which God had spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets." He further tells us, that the heaven must receive Jesus till that time. We not do propose to produce all the evidence from the prophetic word to show that the earth will not always be under the curse of sin, and be the home of every variety of crime and violence and bloodshed, ignorance and superstition. This has been repeatedly pointed out by other writers; but we would ask the readers to look out and ponder at leisure one testimony among a host of others to this effect, viz. the thirty-fifth chapter of the prophet Isaiah. It was necessary, before this good could be accomplished that Jesus Christ should go to heaven to assume his mediatorial office at his Father's right hand to be there a High Priest for his people, and waiting the time when the earth should be regenerated. This is expressed in Acts 2: 34, 35, "Sit thou at my right hand till I make thine enemies thy footstool." He is now awaiting that time.

But the prophet Isaiah was favored with a vision of that time which is yet future to us. In his second chapter and first four verses, he points to a time when his words will be such as foretold, when the kingdoms of the world will be subject to Christ, the nations beating their [illegible] implements of war into instruments of husbandry; nations cultivating the arts of peace and [illegible].

Concerning [illegible] the prophet says, (ver 2) "In the last days the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established [illegible] and all nations shall flow [illegible]. Many [illegible] shall say, let us go up to the house of the God of Jacob, and He will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in His paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

Here we are definitely informed that the House of God will be at Jerusalem. This will [illegible] be a new Jerusalem. This we submit, is the House of many mansions to which Jesus referred when offering consolation to his disciples who were so soon to be bereaved. So that when he pointed them to the hope of ruling the twelve tribes of restored Israel they knew he was not speaking [illegible] but was only confirming what the prophets had previously written.

In conclusion, we would observe that it would always be the wisest course to avoid building a doctrine upon one isolated passage of Scripture and selecting words to make it suit our ideas; but instead, to endeavor to find the general teaching of the word of God on any subject, and thus harmonize the whole even if in doing so our previously cherished ideas have to be abandoned. All God's people may take comfort from the words of Christ (John,) for has he not declared that there are many mansions, or abodes, and although all cannot hope to rule the twelve tribes of Israel, yet hath he called them to be heir of his Kingdom, and many instructors will be required there when the nations shall go up to Jerusalem to learn the law of the Lord. "And then all of them will be able to say, Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests, or rulers of the people and instructors or teachers; and we shall reign on the earth. This is the hope set before the true Christain, to be realized after resurrection of those who have previously died, and judgment of the whole household and subsequent immortalization of those who are approved.

The Good Time Coming.

Thoughtful men in all ages have been puzzled to explain and defend the existence of evil in a world designed and governed by One who is All-powerful and All-wise. On every side they see the effects

"Of Man's first disobedience, and the fruit
Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste"

has caused us so much woe. They do not always find virtue triumphant and vice vanquished. On the contrary, longer life bringing enlarged experience, leads them to the conclusion that, so far as they are permitted to see and judge, the wicked flourish on their ill-gotten gains, enjoy the pleasures and luxuries of this life, then pass away, leaving their wealth to others. They behold the black Stygian stream of iniquity rushing victoriously to the gloomy shades of Erebus and Night, and they ask with many a heart-throb, many a pang, "Why is all this? Will it last forever?" And the only answer that their sorrow-smitten hearts can give is "No, no; it cannot be forever."

Man cannot, nay, will not believe that the striving of might to gain the mastery over right shall be endless. The belief in a good time coming has been universal; and men, in their imaginings regarding the state of the world in that far-off era, have lifted themselves out of the darkness of the present, and, projected on the wings of hope, have gazed upon the far-distant future, when men should dwell in holy brotherhood. Then should the world rest, men having learned by priceless experience the fearful penalty impending on those who grasp the sword and slay their fellow-men. Crime would be unknown; the earth would yield her increase, supplying abundantly all the wants of a teeming population. Literature "laden with the spoils of all the ages," science leading man from one grand discovery to others hitherto undreamed of philosophy teaching that "'tis only noble to be good," and with gentle mastery drawing men into the paths of rectitude, in search of holiness, justice, and goodness. No reason-defying atheism, no stony wastes of infidelity, but "all that has life and breath" uniting in one grand Hymn of Praise, to the Creator, and all existence in His smile.

[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] thinker describing this happy state, employing all the resources of language and art, all the luxuriance of eastern metaphor, and, with pencil dipped in the rainbow's light, picturing the future scenes enshrined in the [illegible]

[illegible] realities; and as they become more and more real to the busy brain of the great thinker, down his cheeks the big burning tears would roll—mute expression of inward pain. But, by a fascination impossible to withstand, he would again be carried forward in imagination to the golden age, and once again would he feast on all its transcendent beauty.

But, after all, it was only a blind groping in the dark; and to all such Utopias the only answer we can give is the sorrowful one—that the present holds out no hope of the ultimate triumph of virtue over vice. Upon ourselves we can rest no confidence, for eighteen centuries of Christianity has converted, nominally, only one-fourth of the earth's inhabitants; and recollect that in this estimate such countries as our own are reckoned Christian—Scotland, with its Synods and Assemblies, bewildered at the increasing licentiousness, and confessing that all means hitherto employed to stem this tide are utterly inadequate. And so the dreary future becomes drearier.

When we turn from the words of man to the words of God, we discover an unmistakable difference. With God there is no hesitancy; all is sure, distinct, and bright with his own sunshine. Listen to some of God's words regarding His golden age: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad * * * the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. In the wilderness shall the waters break out, and streams in the desert" (Is. xxxv, 1, 6). "They shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know Me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord" (Jer. xxxi. 34). "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain" (Rev. xxi. 4). "Nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more, but they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid, for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it" (Mic. iv. 3, 4). "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf, and the young lion, and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed, their young ones shall lie down together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. * * * They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain. For the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Is. xi. 6-9).

Now we are treading on firm ground; these are God's promises; He shall fulfill them. It is He alone who can make "wars to cease unto the end of the earth," and how shall this be accomplished? By sending His Son from heaven, and giving to him an everlasting Kingdom under the whole heaven, and dominion over all people, nations, and languages. Note the beautiful proportion existing between the end and the means. Jesus, the Christ, returns as a king to that very city which echoed to the mad shouts of "We will not have this man to reign over us!" apportions to His saints their rewards; and rules on Mount Zion and before His ancients gloriously. He is possessed of infinite wisdom to rule aright, and of infinite power to put down tyranny, and compel obedience to His commands. True, He is the Prince of Peace, but He is so only to the peaceful. They who contemn His authority shall find to their bitter cost that the Lord is a Man of War.

But, asks the worldling, how does all this affect me? In this way: you see that a great kingdom of righteousness and peace shall be established on this earth, under God's own Son, the Messiah of Israel. Would you not share in the joys of that blissful time? Nevertheless, although you die before that kingdom shall have come; Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob all died, not having received the fulfillment of God's promises to them. But they shall be raised from the dead, and then shall God fulfill to them all that he has promised. So you have it in your power to become one of those who shall be raised or changed by the Lord Jesus when he comes, and who shall sit with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. God has wrought out a great salvation, and this salvation he holds out and beseeches you to accept, so that you may escape death, the penalty of sin. He offers you, without money and without price, eternal life in the midst of more bliss than the mind of man can conceive. He entreats you to receive it. His conditions are easy compared with the exceeding value of the free gift. By appropriating to yourself this salvation in the appointed way, you become an heir of God's kingdom; and by walking worthy of this great hope, you shall be received by the King when He comes to reward His faithful ones, and to bless the world with universal peace and justice.

"Rejoice, ye happy earth!
Beneath His sway benign.
He is the Peerless One—
The Priceless—the Divine;
He is the King of Kings,
O earth! and He is thine."

Reasons Why the Lord Must Return.

Some time ago, a letter signed by the Dr. Andrew Bonar, Canon Fausset, Mr. F. B. Meyer, Mr. Mark Guy Pearse, and others, was sent out to the conveners of Christian conferences in the country urging the immediate necessity of arousing a slumbering church, in view of accumulating indications that the Lord is at hand.

The Baptized Believers of the Gospel of the Kingdom do not require such a call to make the Second Coming of Christ the central theme of their gathering. It has always been our central theme, but none the less gladly do we respond to the call now, and rejoice that other agencies besides ourselves are being used to rouse men to the importance and imminence of the Second Advent of Jesus Christ.

Two leading reasons may be given now why the Lord must return. 1. He has a work still to be done in the earth, and 2.—He has promised to return. Others might be advanced, but two good reasons must suffice at present, and we shall look at them as fully as the least time will permit.

I. CHRIST'S FUTURE WORK UPON THE EARTH.

When Jesus was on earth before, He did not accomplish all the work assigned to Him. He drank the cup of sorrow and humiliation to the dregs, and on the cross exclaimed "It is finished." His sufferings were over, and there now remained the glories that should follow. Peter's address on the day of Pentecost introduces the necessity of Christ's return, on the ground of work remaining for Him to do here. "Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restoration of all things whereof God spake by the mouth of His holy prophets which have been since the world began" (Acts iii. 21). Christ remains in heaven temporarily, until a certain time arrives—the time when certain things predicted by the prophets are to be restored. What are these things? For an answer we are thrown back upon the O. T. prophets, and on consulting them we find three leading things are to be restored:—(1) Life, (2) Israel's nationality in their own land, (3) Divine blessing for the world.

(1). LIFE is to be restored, and the return of the Lord is necessary to a Resurrection. The Psalmist looked for his life being restored: "God will redeem my soul from the grave" (Psalm xlix. 15). Isaiah speaks of a time when death shall cease: "He will swallow up death in victory, and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces. . . . . Thy dead men shall live" (xxv. 8, 19). Hosea refers to the same thing: "I will ransom them (Israel) from the power of the grave, I will redeem them from death. O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction" (xiii. 14). These are samples of how the prophets spake of the restoration of life, and when we turn to the N. T., we find that Christ is the One who is to restore life to the dead when He comes. "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that sleep. . . . . As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive; but every man in his own order. Christ the first fruits, afterwards they that are Christ's at His coming. . . . . Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written—Death is swallowed up in victory," etc. (1 Cor. xv. 20, 22, 23, 54). "The Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thess. iv. 16). "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with Him in glory" (Col. iii. 4). From these and similar testimonies we learn that our personal salvation from death and the grave depends upon the return of Jesus Christ.

(2.) Israel is to be restored to their own land nationally. This great purpose of God meets us wherever we turn in the prophets. When the Rod from the stem of Jesse, and the Branch out of his roots shall stand for an ensign of the peoples, "in that day the Lord shall set His hand again the second time to recover the remnant of His people which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea, ... and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth" (Is. xi. 11, 12). Ezekiel declares the perpetual reunion of both houses of Israel in their own land, when one King shall be King to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all. Neither shall they defile themselves any more" (xxxvii. 22, 23). Joel tells us about the coming of "the great and terrible day of the Lord," and adds, "In those days and at that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for My people, and for My heritage Israel," etc. (iii. 1, 2). Zechariah dealing with the same period, says, "Then shall the Lord go forth and fight against those nations, as when He fought in the day of battle. And His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives which is before Jerusalem on the east" (xiv. 3, 4). Such statements could be multiplied to almost any extent, and it is of no use to argue in reply, that all the promises of Israel's restoration are conditional. Of course they are; but the conditions are all Divinely guaranteed.

Here is one of the conditions. "As I live, saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you. And I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered with a mighty hand and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God" (Ezek. xx. 33-36). See also Isa. xlix. 18-23. What is the condition here on which the restoration of Israel depends? It is the life of Jehovah. "As I live, saith Jehovah," it shall be done. Surely no one can regard this as a risky condition.

Take another condition. "Thus saith the Lord, if heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, I will also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith the Lord" (Jer. xxxi. 37). "If those ordinances (the sun, moon, and stars) depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever" (ver. 36). The condition here is, that some one stronger than the God of Jacob, some one mightier than the Almighty, shall measure the infinite and unsearchable, and overturn the Divine ordinances. Will any one accept this challenge? It seems impossible to think so. The nearest approach to it is the impious presumption that rebellion foreseen and described in the second Psalm, when "the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing;" when "the kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the Lord and against His Anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us." And what is the result? Will the daring rebels succeed? We are not left in doubt. "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh, the Lord shall have them in derision. Then shall He speak to them in His wrath, and vex them in His sore displeasure." And His sole recorded answer is the brief reassertion of His firm, unalterable, unassailable purpose with Israel—"Yet have I set My King upon My holy hill of Zion."

But it is further objected that the restoration of Israel is conditioned by their conversion. Certainly it is, and the Lord has promised this shall be brought about too. "Thy people shall be willing in the day of Thy power" (Psalm cx. 3). This is not the church. The church has been willing in the day of weakness, but Israel has not been willing, and it is only God's "people Israel" that can be referred to here. The Lord is to bring them into subjection to Himself, to take away their hard and stony hearts, and to put His Spirit within them, putting His law in their inward parts, and writing it in their hearts, while their sins and iniquities will he remember no more (Jer. xxxi. 33, 34; Ezek. xxxvi. 24-32).

The Lord hath not cast away His people, and if the diminishing of them be the riches of the Gentiles, "what shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead" (Rom. xi. 15)? "If they abide not in unbelief they shall be graffed in, for God is able to graff them in again" (ver. 23). "Blindness in part is happened unto Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved," etc. (xv. 25-27). His word shall not return to Him void (Isa. lv. 11), and therefore we may assuredly look both for the conversion and restoration of Israel according to the word of the Lord.

It is still objected, that in the Old Testament prophets it is Jehovah who is said to do these things, and not the Messiah, we have only to remember Christ's own words,—"The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son, that all men should honor the Son, even as they honor the Father" John v. 22, 23, 26, 27). Jesus has distinctly claimed this honor, "All power is given unto Me in heaven, and in earth" (Matt. xxviii 18). He possesses the power, although its exercise remains in abeyance so far, but the time for delay may soon cease, and Israel's Savior appear. Speaking of His return, Christ says,—"Then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory; and He shall send His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory; and He shall send His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together His elect (Israel) from the four winds, from one end of heaven to another" (Matt. xxiv. 30, 31). The "elect" in this passage cannot be the church, because the church is to be with Him when He comes. (Zech. xiv. 5). It must therefore be His elect people Israel whose gathering is here predicted. (See also Isa. xxvii. 12, 13). The very same simple rules which we accept in reading those Scriptures which promise life to us through Jesus Christ when He comes, compel us to believe that He who scattered Israel will not only gather him, but "keep him as a shepherd doth his flock" (Jer. xxx. 10).

(3.) Divine Blessing for the world. This also depends upon the Lord's return, because it follows the conversion of Israel. We read that when the Lord shall build up Zion, "He shall appear in His glory" (Psalm cii. 16), and when this set time for mercy to Israel comes, the result is, "So the nations shall fear the name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth Thy glory" (ver. 15). The 67th Psalm shows the same sequence: "God be merciful unto us and bless us, and cause His face to shine upon us, that Thy way may be known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations." See also Isa. ii. 1-4, lxvi. 17-19 & the ix. 11, 12, as quoted by [illegible] James in Acts xv. 14-17. [illegible] this last Scripture it is evident that the purpose of God during the present dispensation is to choose from among the nations "a people for His name." Afterwards, when he returns, it is to set up again the house of David, "that the residue of men might seek after the Lord." So that the blessedness of all nations as promised to Abraham (Gen. xii. 3), is dependent upon the return of the Lord.

The Second Advent, then, is necessary to effect all these promised blessings. We may well pray for it, therefore, and can well understand why it should be referred to so often in the New Testament, some 68 times.

II.—CHRIST HAS PROMISED TO RETURN.

This is the second great reason why the Lord must return. His promise is sacred. "I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto Myself, that where I am, there ye may be also" (John xiv. 2, 3). His own words were enforced by two angels when He ascended to the Father's right hand: "This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven" (Acts i. 11).

Once more; He says, and this is one of the last intimations of the whole Bible,—"Behold I come quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give every man according as his work shall be. . . . . Surely I come quickly" (Rev. xxii. 12, 20).

We cannot do better than join earnestly in such a prayer, and cherish such a blessed hope, for in the words of a well-known and beautiful Scotch hymn—

"He's faithfu' that hath promised, and He'll surely come again,
He'll keep His tryst wi' me—at what hour I dinna ken,
But He bids me still to watch, an' ready aye to be
To gang at ony moment to my ain countrie.
Sae I'm watching aye, an' singin' o' my hame as I wait
For the soun'in' o' His footfa' this side the gowden gate.
God gie His grace to ilka ane wha listens noo to me,
That we a' may gang in gladness to my ain countrie.

—J. R. Norrie, at Glasgow Meeting, July, 1893.

Original.

A Card of Thanks.

To those who have so kindly remembered us, in the sad hour of our bereavement, we would say: We have met with an irreparable loss in, to us the untimely death of our dear Companion and Mother. Her place in our home can be filled by no other. Our family circle, which was so dear to us, has been broken, and we must for awhile be separated from one who was the comfort of our home. We feel sad and lonely now, and naturally wonder why [illegible] ness and [illegible] ted, [illegible] and have [illegible] our young and [illegible] hearts bleed and our eyes [illegible] tears when we realize our [illegible] happy days of the past, and think—"What might have been." Our sad loss came so suddenly. O, how uncertain is life! We mourn for our loved one, having no power to redeem. But while we thus mourn we take comfort in the [illegible] that one who has [illegible] soon them from the power of the grave; O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction."

Your many kind words and manifestations of warm sympathy have been encouraging and comforting to us in the sad and lonely hour of our bereavement, and we take this means of acknowledging the same, and thanking you kindly, for the many tokens of sympathy we have received, and may we continue to cherish sacredly, the memory of our dear one, whose loss we now mourn, until the heavens roll back as a scroll, our Savior appears, and we are permitted to meet our loved ones, clothed in "Immortal Youth."

Yours Truly,
L. E. Conner, and Children.

Which is Error?

A writer in The Restitution for August 2, after speaking of some errors of the Apostasy, mentions the theory of two natures blended in one as relating to man in general and Jesus in particular. [illegible] "All this is the outgrowth [illegible] monstrous error of the apostasy who confess not that either man or 'Jesus Christ is come in the flesh,' but in each case two natures blend—Divine and Human."

Another writer in same paper, July 26, says, "Let us therefore hearken to both classes of texts—those concerning his Divine nature as well as those concerning his Human nature." How are we to understand these writers? The first writer seems to regard the blending of these two natures in one as an error of the Apostasy, while the second writer regards this blending of the Human and Divine natures in Jesus Christ as a fundamental truth. Does he indeed mean to tell us that Jesus was Divine in nature and Human in nature at the same time? Does he seriously mean that Jesus was dead as a person and alive to raise himself from the dead while dead?

"When doctors differ who can decide." But let us hear them both through. You need make no apology, Bro. Editor, for the appearance of the article, there is a familiar name at the end of it and one we want to hear on this question of sonship.

Yours for truth,
A. J. Eychaner.

To the Brethren and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here, so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

[illegible]

DIED.

At his home, in Kosciusko Co., Ind. P. S. Stevens, husband of [illegible] Stevens of Gospel [illegible]. Deceased [illegible] N. Y., March 1, 18[illegible] [illegible] Indiana in 1839. [illegible] was married to Henrietta [illegible] of Ohio. By this union seven children were born four of whom survive. Later in life was married to Jane E. Spencer, [illegible] two children were born. [illegible]

[illegible] to come. [illegible] promises [illegible] from the world [illegible] the author of [illegible] through [illegible] pathway that leads to immortality. [illegible] pathway of life opened by the Prince of Life.

[illegible]

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names [illegible] here subscribed [illegible] truth and [illegible] salvation [illegible] several [illegible] Indiana [illegible] help. [illegible] often called [illegible] evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God, it may not be yours to use when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wines	[illegible]
J. L. Wines	[illegible]
Alfred B. Wines	5.00
Calvin Beagle	[illegible]

World's Fair Excursion Tickets.

Excursion Tickets to Chicago at one fare for the round trip for the adult [illegible] the Excursion rate for children under 12 years [illegible] by the Pennsylvania Company, Thursday, August [illegible] for train [illegible] Plymouth at [illegible] arriving Chicago [illegible] South Chicago, [illegible] and Englewood [illegible] World's Fair [illegible] Returning, tickets will be [illegible] scheduled to stop at destination except the Keystone Express departing [illegible] leaving Chicago [illegible] midnight of August [illegible].

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the traveling public and the announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run as they did last year, viz: leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph, Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:00 P. M. arrive Terre Haute [illegible] P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the Lake at $2.00. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 24 page tract, [illegible] important questions, by B. Wilson, [illegible] in this paper last October. [illegible] people to [illegible] much reason [illegible] this paper. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] post [illegible] stage.

[illegible] a Resort.

[illegible] Pennsylvania Lines [illegible] the Allegheny Mountains [illegible] the only [illegible] the Blue Juniata, the noted [illegible] Atlantic City, Cape May [illegible] New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Good facilities for a delightful journey [illegible] via this direct route. For detailed information [illegible] Pennsylvania Lines ticket agent or [illegible] F. Van Dusen, [illegible] General Passenger Agent, [illegible], Pa.

Combination Offer.

[illegible] Concordance, Price	$1.50
[illegible]'s Bible Dictionary,	1.00
[illegible]	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom, Where?	.10
Who is He?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism	.20
Discussion on [illegible]	.25
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, the [illegible]	.20
	[illegible]
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Sisters [illegible] making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single free gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Lyda L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously reported, $198.58

Efforts Appreciated.

The new train service on the Nickel Plate Road is giving universal satisfaction. On all sides are heard expressions of approval of the efforts which this popular road is making in the interests of the traveling public. Three fast trains are now running in each direction daily. Superb dining cars and through palace sleepers to and from New York, Boston and Chicago form part of the new equipment.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable response having been made to suggestion for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further [illegible] calls for ministerial help [illegible]

All who [illegible] the "Contingent Fund" [illegible] remittance [illegible] office. [illegible] will be [illegible] acknowledged [illegible] Restitution [illegible] of donations.

We whose [illegible] subscribed [illegible] Fund [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] have [illegible]

[illegible] Temple, [illegible]

[illegible] Dean, Dudley, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible], Pa.

[illegible]

One Fare [illegible]

Aug. [illegible] Sept. [illegible] and October [illegible] the [illegible] Wisconsin Central [illegible] rate tickets [illegible] points [illegible] North and South Dakota [illegible] privilege [illegible] points West [illegible] Paul and Minneapolis.

For full [illegible] address any [illegible] Agent [illegible].

[illegible]

[illegible] resorts in Northern [illegible] Regions are now [illegible] reduced rates via the [illegible] from all principal [illegible] points on [illegible] will be valid [illegible] For detailed [illegible] General Passenger [illegible].

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

[illegible]

[illegible] payable to the [illegible]

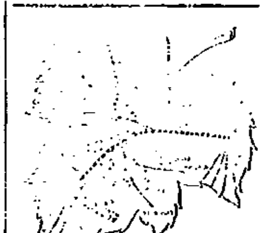
We cannot be responsible for the return of [illegible]

In ordering [illegible] the latest copy of the paper [illegible] only what you see advertised [illegible]

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your orders will be [illegible] promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connections at Terminals for all Points North, East, West and Southwest. Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE

[illegible]

[illegible] things that have [illegible] This book is published by [illegible] Toronto, Canada, but may be [illegible] of Elizabeth, [illegible] office. Price $1.25.

[illegible] By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We [illegible] of the new book of 115 [illegible] by William G. Moncrieff, [illegible] That Awaiting Age [illegible] Bro. Moncrieff is a writer [illegible] to our readers, and of undoubted [illegible] This book is paper covers, and sells for [illegible] and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

[illegible]

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 636 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, O., every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. [illegible] from a distance and all lovers of [illegible] cordially invited. Seats free.

[illegible] Church of God meet for worship at [illegible] the scriptures every Sunday at 3 p. m. All interested in Bible study are [illegible] to meet with us [illegible], California.

[illegible] The Blessed Hope, Ninth and [illegible] Philadelphia. [illegible] each Sunday at [illegible]

[illegible] Church has changed its place of [illegible] to the Van Buren Hall, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] St. Paul R. R. [illegible] miles east [illegible].

[illegible] Franklin Co., Neb. [illegible] Sunday [illegible] Franklin Co., [illegible]

[illegible] Blessed Hope of Adventists [illegible] public [illegible]

[illegible] Church of God at [illegible] every Sunday at 10 a. m. for [illegible] Sunday School [illegible]

[illegible] Wis. [illegible]

[illegible] Church of God hold [illegible] each Saturday [illegible] and Quarterly [illegible], Neb. [illegible] and all lovers of truth are [illegible] to meet with us. Bro. A. F. [illegible] J. J. Adams, Elders. [illegible]

[illegible] Church of God at [illegible], Mich., meet for [illegible] every first day, morning and evening, [illegible] every two weeks. Prayer meeting [illegible] day evening.

[illegible] at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., [illegible] Sunday school every first day. [illegible] every first and third Sunday [illegible]

[illegible] Church of God near Fisher, Mich. have [illegible] every second and fourth Sunday [illegible] every four weeks.

Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have [illegible] every four weeks. Elder [illegible] will have charge of these four [illegible]

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

[illegible]

* Daily except Sunday. †Daily except Saturday. [illegible] via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] making direct connection [illegible] arrive Kansas City [illegible] next morning, connecting at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and [illegible] for all passengers.

[illegible] 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with [illegible] trains for Sandusky, Bloomington [illegible] points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information, [illegible] C. R. Hughes, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R. R., Plymouth, Ind., or address

[illegible] CHAS. F. DALY,
[illegible] Manager. Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

[illegible] For St. Joseph.
[illegible] For South Bend.
[illegible] For Terre Haute.

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, [illegible] etc., address F. R. Hale, Agt., [illegible], Indiana, or

J. M. Chesbrough,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

[illegible] THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward. [illegible]

Eastward. [illegible]

[illegible]

J. E. Hayes, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to [illegible] New York. [illegible] in America. [illegible] in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. [illegible] Publishers, 361 [illegible], New York City.

NICKEL PLATE. [illegible]

[illegible] EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPING CARS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

[illegible]

[illegible] arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, [illegible] Clark streets, Chicago; [illegible] Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, [illegible] street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by [illegible] to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

[illegible] [illegible] HORNER,
Gen'l Supt., Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 [illegible] 31 NUMBERS.

Each number [illegible] from a new, fresh, popular and telling [illegible] branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	6 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall do my best to circulate it."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	3 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	4 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson,	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism so well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., Philadelphia, Pa.

Cheap Edition Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 22, 29, etc., 5 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2 per 100, $15 per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent post-paid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of [illegible] Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables [illegible]

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, [illegible]

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 23, 1893. NO. 32.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. K. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
Robert Hallimack,
R. D. Thompson,
J. D. Willey,
George Alleman,
A. K. Underwood.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40 }

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked, eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Sow Thy Seed.

Sow, though the rock repel thee
In its cold and sterile pride;
Some cleft there may be riven,
Where the little seed may hide.
Fear not, for some may flourish,
And though the tares abound,
Like the willows by the waters
Will the scattered grain be found.

Work while the daylight lasteth,
Ere the shades of night come on,
Ere the Lord of the vineyard cometh,
And the laborer's work is done.
[illegible]
[illegible]
God may the seed [illegible]
But another hand may reap.

Original.

The Son of God.

"All men should honor the Son, even as they honor the Father." Jno. v. 23.

Having shown that Christ is ONE with the Father, that He is called both Lord and God, and that we are commanded to worship Him: let us proceed to consider some further testimonies to his divinity.

4. "Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of noreputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men." Phil. ii. 6, 7. Would any Socinian, permeated by "the leaven of the Pharisees" and denying the divinity of Christ, express himself in such words as these of Paul? I think not. The Socinian dreads all testimonies of this kind, they require such labored "explanations" and forced "translations," with clippings and stretchings and interpolations: and even then they baffle him, and refuse to harmonize with his theory of mere-manism.

What glorious Being was this that "took upon him the form of a servant?" Was He not in "the form of God" before he was in "the form of a servant," or, "came in the flesh?" Evidently he was. Accordingly the margin of the Revised Version says the Greek signifies his "being originally" in the form of God. And being "equal with God" harmonizes with his claim that he and the Father are ONE: for although the Father says, "To whom will ye liken me and make me equal?" He also calls the Son "The man that is my Fellow." Isa. xlvi. 5, Zech. xiii. 7; Jno. x. 30; xiv. 10, 11. This divine unity of Father and Son is taught throughout the Scriptures.

5. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." Jno. i. 1. This proves his divinity most plainly, for the same Being that is called the Word, is also called GOD. Compare Rev. xix. 13, where our Savior is again called "The Word of God." And He was God before the human nature came into existence, for that nature is one of the "all things" that were "made by him." Logos (Word) is a noun of the masculine gender in Greek. The "him" in this third verse refers to the Word, as it does in verse 10, where the same idea is repeated,—"the world was made by him;" and in Colossians i. 16, "all things were created by him and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist;" and in Heb. i. 10, "Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundations of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thy hands." How could He have created all things unless he had been in the beginning and before all things? Thus we see that the inspired Paul and John were strictly harmonious and logical in their statements. Evidently they were not trimming their language to please the Pharisees of ancient, nor the Socinians of modern times.

The Word that existed in the beginning was, therefore, more than a mere promise or purpose—"the Word was GOD." And yet in THE RESTITUTION of March 8th I find this assertion, "what if something did pre-exist? We have no interest in or concern with it."

But if we have no interest in or concern with the pre-existent Word which in the beginning was God, then "we are of all men most miserable," and have "neither part nor lot with" Christ.

As a word reveals the invisible thought, Christ reveals the Father. "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him." Jno. i. 18. Even before the birth in Bethlehem it was "the Spirit of Christ" that revealed the Father's messages through the prophets, even the spirit of Him "whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting." 1 Pet. i. 11; Mic. v. 2. "From of old, from everlasting," are spoken of the Father in Hab. i. 12, and Psa. xc. 2. The commentary of Jamieson, Fausset, and Brown says concerning these terms "The terms convey the strongest assertion of infinite duration of which the Hebrew language is capable."

6. "Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am. They took up stones therefore to cast at him." Jno. viii. 58, 59. R. V. Instead of "was" the margin of the Revised Version reads "was born." This reading the Diaglott adopts into the text. So does Dr. Geo. Campbell's translation. And in Rotherham's translation the clause is rendered, "Before Abraham came into existence, I am."

And yet notwithstanding all the plainness of the Greek and of these honest translations, I find in THE RESTITUTION of June 28th such an assertion as this, "we know Jesus of Nazareth descended from Abraham and did not exist before Abraham."

But the doctrine of the existence of our Savior before Abraham is the doctrine of Christ's own lips, and the same John who records it says also, "Every one who goes beyond and does not abide in the doctrine of the Anointed One, has not God. He who abides in the doctrine, has both the Father and the Son." 2 Jno. 9. Diaglott.

The renderings of Smith and Nesbet, "Before Abraham is born, I am," and "Before Abraham comes about for himself I am existing;" as though the Savior were merely affirming His own existence before Abraham's future resurrection are unworthy of being called translations. They are wrestings of the Scriptures. 2 Pet. iii. 16. And besides they are refuted by the immediate context, for why should the Jews want to stone Him for merely affirming what was true of them all, namely, that they were living previous to Abraham's resurrection! Was there any Jew so ignorant as to deny that Abraham's resurrection was future? The Jews inquired, "Hast thou seen Abraham?" And the answer, "Before Abraham was, I am," plainly implied that He had.

But they, influenced by the thinking of the flesh, thought they "knew that Jesus of Nazareth did not exist before Abraham," and so they took up stones to cast at him. Jno. viii. 15, 59.

Scarcely better than Smith and Nesbet's, is the rendering by Young who compiled a concordance,—"Before Abraham's coming, I am." Translating the verb genesthai of the aorist tense by the noun "coming," he leaves it doubtful whether the said "coming" must be understood as past or future. But Rotherham says the aorist "always expresses past time."

7. "I am the root and the offspring of David." Rev. xxii. 16; v. 5. Christ, in His divine nature, is the root of David, for "without him was not anything made that was made." Jno. i. 3. But in the human nature He is the offspring of David. As to the one nature He is David's Lord, as to the other He is David's Son. Matt. xxii. 42-45. Thus He was "born of the posterity of David as to the flesh," and "designated the Son of God in power as to the Spirit of Holiness, by the resurrection of the dead." Rom. i. 4. Diaglott.

"By the resurrection he was powerfully manifested to be the Son as to his divine nature. The phrases, according to the flesh, and according to the spirit of holiness, are evidently antithetical, designating severally the Lord's human and divine natures." Hodges Outlines of Theology.

Is it not most evident that the root exists before the branch or offspring? "Thou bearest not the root, but the root thee." Rom. xi. 18.

If I were to write a long series of articles concerning Christ and describe Him merely as the "Offspring," but say nothing of Him as the "Root," my description would, at best, be but a partial and one-sided view.

8. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." Jno. xiv. 9. This great truth of "the doctrine of Christ" is repeated in Jno. xii. 45, —"He that seeth me, seeth him that sent me." And this agrees with the saying that God was manifest in the flesh," and the Word that was God in the beginning, "was made flesh and dwelt among us." Jno. i. 1, 14; 1 Tim. iii. 16.

9. "I am the first and the last, and the Living one; and I was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore." Rev. i. 17, 18; ii. 8; xxii. 13. R. V.

In Isa. xliv. 6, we read, "Thus saith the LORD [Jehovah] the King of Israel, and his redeemer the LORD [Jehovah] of hosts; I am the first and I am the last, beside [or, without] me there is no God." Also in Isa. xlviii. 11, 12, "I will not give my glory unto another. Hearken unto me O Jacob, and Israel my called; I am he; I am the first, I also am the last." This glorious title of Jehovah expresses His infinite duration, for what existence can begin earlier than the first, or endure longer than the last?

And the bestowal of this divine title upon the Son is reconciled by that key of harmony which the Son himself has furnished, saying, "I and the Father are ONE," and "All things that the Father hath are mine." Read Jno. xvi. 15; xvii. 10; iii. 35; Matt. xi. 27. In perfect accordance with this the next testimony to the Son's divinity says,

10. "In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." Col. ii. 9.

From Theos [God] is derived theotes [Godhead], and in the Greek lexicon of Liddell and Scott the entire definition of theotes is "Godhead, divinity, divine nature."

"The fulness of that divine nature is here contrasted with an empty and deceitful philosophy [verse 8], and the term bodily superadded, shows that God is in Christ not as he was in the tabernacle or temple, typically, but substantially, really, and truly."—A. Campbell, in Christian System, p. 22.

To say that in him dwelleth the Godhead would prove His participation of the divine nature. To say that in Him dwelleth the fulness of the Godhead would be a still stronger assertion of it. But saying that "in him dwelleth ALL the fulness of the Godhead," is an overwhelming emphasis that leaves no room for dispute. Nor will any one that truly "abideth in the doctrine of Christ" be disposed to dispute it.

In my next I hope to give a harmonious view of the testimonies which prove the human nature of our Lord.

WILEY JONES.

When the Devil sees church-members wrangling with one another, he knows it will be safe for him to sit down and rest.

Watching for a Chance to Desert.

A little paragraph caught my eye the other day: it said that "it seemed as if some professors of religion were always watching a chance to desert," and that "whether out or in the church they were not of much account."

How painfully true are the words! One deserts because of a difference of opinion between himself and a brother, as to the honesty of poor, famine-stricken men; another, because he loves the companionship of the gay, tippling crowd, and still another forsakes the house and the service of God, because he wants a decent burial. It presses upon my heart like the weight of a fearful nightmare, the thought of these: they seem to feel that it is only men that they are deserting, that no vows are broken, nothing lost to themselves, no injury done to the blessed cause of the Master by their actions.

But oh how the cause suffers! how the Master weeps! how the hearts of the faithful saints sink within them as they view the ruin wrought!

What if opinions do differ as to some trifling matter? We are linked to God, we are a part of the body of Christ. We cannot take ourselves away and the chain be whole, the body not suffer.

The sparkling wine cup may have its attractions now, but wait! oh wait until the judgment day—and then, deserting man, how heartbreakingly you will wish that you had stood steadfastly at your post, resisting the cunning wiles of the evil one.

It is sin that lures you away from God, it is the desire to do as you please and say what you please that takes you out of your place in the courts of the Lord.

But stop and consider—to desert is to be lost. You cannot have this world and the world to come.

If you gain this world, you lose the next, you lose yourself.

What of a few shining burial rags, weighed against an eternal weight of glory. Bury me uncoffined in a simple winding sheet but let me not lose the crown. Oh I want to be always in my place in the dear sanctuary of my God helping in my humble way to lead some poor struggling one out into the blessed light of the knowledge of God.

O to be unmoved! The day draws near, it hasteth greatly; who will be found "without spot and blameless" when it comes?

Stand fast in the Lord, brethren. May God help you not to desert.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

Selected.

The House of Jacob.

The angel Gabriel in announcing the begettal and birth of the Savior, to Mary the virgin of the house of David, said that "the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." "Much controversy has arisen as to the meaning of this promise; some contend that its fulfillment took place when Jesus the Christ ascended to the right hand of God, because, say they, David's throne was God's throne, and as Christ is sitting on God's throne, therefore the prophecy has been fulfilled in the only sense that God ever meant it should." This it must be confessed is putting a construction upon language that there is no warrant for; not a solitary instance can be found where prophecy has been fulfilled in this remarkable manner; on the contrary where prophecy is spoken of as having had its fulfillment, it has always been in strict accordance with the language used; hence, when the time came for the fulfillment of the prophecy concerning the meek and the lowly Jesus that he, the King of Zion, should ride on an ass into Jerusalem, it was literally fulfilled in the land of Palestine previous to his crucifixion. Whilst those who wish to support a preconceived idea thus change the use of language, a liberty they would not take with any book but the Bible, when the further portion of the prophecy is taken into consideration that "he shall reign over the house of Jacob," they experience a difficulty in explaining away the words "the house of Jacob." While they will glibly quote that "he is not a Jew which is one outwardly," "but he is a Jew which is one inwardly" and that there is a "spiritual Israel," they cannot say there is a "spiritual Jacob;" although they may say "that as Jacob's name was changed into that of Israel they are justified in substituting the one for the other. This might be accepted were it not for the fact that centuries after the change of Jacob's name into that of Israel, the angel Gabriel in making the promise to Mary the mother of Jesus distinctly uses the words "the house of Jacob." If he had meant the seed of Abraham by faith he could not have used the expression because it is not applicable to them. It appears to us as a very striking instance of the wisdom and foreknowledge of God in thus giving a promise that could not be mistaken excepting by those who are wilfully blind. When Christ says that we shall see "Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the Kingdom of God," it would be equally consistent to introduce "spiritual Israel" for Jacob, as it is in the passage under consideration, yet not any in possession of their senses would think of doing so. That "the house of Jacob," and "the house of Israel" refer to the same people, the fleshly descendents of Jacob, we believe because they are so used in the Scriptures, but never once applied to those who are the seed of faith. When a few of the things which are written concerning God's purpose in relation to "the house of Jacob" are taken into consideration, it will be seen that the idea that Christ is now sitting on "the throne of his father David," and reigning over "the house of Jacob," is a fallacious one.

An idea exists that the language of the New Testament requires a different construction put upon it to that of the Old, and so that to understand many things that are written in the Old concerning "the house of Jacob," it is necessary to recognize the construction of language peculiar to the New. From whatever source the idea came, it certainly was not from the New Testament, for we find in it the same expressions applied to the same things, and in such a way that they cannot be refuted; for instance, Jesus, in sending forth his disciples to proclaim the gospel of the Kingdom of God, told them not to go into the way of the Gentiles, but to go "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt. x. 6. Here the words "house of Israel" refer to the "house of Jacob," the children of Israel after the flesh, and could by no method of reasoning be construed to mean "spiritual Israel." Again we have the apostle Peter in addressing the seed of Abraham after the flesh, call them by the name "the house of Israel." Acts ii. 36. This goes to confirm what has already been shown, that it is false and unscriptural, to say that the New Testament language has to be understood in a different way from the Old, and shows most conclusively that where the words "the house of Israel" are used, or in whatever portion of the Bible they may be found, they apply to the same people, the seed of Abraham after the flesh.

The names Israel and Jew are applied to the children of Abraham by faith, whether they are so by nature or not, is readily admitted, but it is a remarkable fact that in the one or two instances where they are so applied, they are either done in contrasting them with Israel after the flesh, or written to them as Israel after the spirit, and in such a way that it is impossible for any unprejudiced person to fail to see that this is so. The apostle Paul says in his letter to the Ecclesia at Rome, that "there shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Rom. xi. 26. It is admitted even by those who place the peculiar construction upon New Testament language referred to, that the name Jacob as used here applies to Israel after the flesh, although they will contend that the Zion referred to in the verse is not the one spoken of by the Psalmist as being "beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth," but the church of the living God. We do not think they deserve any credit for this admission, because it is forced from them by the passage itself, for if they were to say that it meant "spiritual Israel," then it would clash with their idea of the church being Zion, because they would then have to say that "the Deliverer would have to come out of the Church (which they call "spiritual Israel" or Zion as it suits them), and turn away ungodliness from "spiritual Israel" which would be the height of nonsense. But how Christ, who is in heaven at the right hand of God, is "to come out of the clouds" and turn away ungodliness from Jacob is a mystery they cannot solve. How different the picture when the ordinary use of language, where not otherwise expressed, is recognized. Israel after the flesh were God's peculiar people; he had borne their iniquities for centuries, ever ready to forgive when they turned from their abominable practices to serve him, but when they filled up the cup of their iniquity by crucifying him who was anointed to be their King, he cast them off, but not for ever; hence Paul says that "blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." So that when the times of the Gentiles draw to a close, "the Deliverer will come out of Zion and turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

Because we believe these things will be literally fulfilled people call us "fools and fanatics." Are we fools because we believe that Christ, as already referred to, literally rode into Jerusalem on an ass in fulfillment of the prophecy to be found in Zech. ix. 9? "No, No," would be the answer; because they also believe it, or at least they profess to do. Then who are the foolish ones; those who look forward with joyful anticipation to the time when God shall "set his King upon his holy hill of Zion," placing him upon "the throne of his father David," that he may "turn away ungodliness from Jacob," and reign over "the house of Israel" for ever; or those who believe that Christ in some mysterious way comes out of the Church to do this work? But it is written that "the foolishness of God is wiser than man," and we verily believe it, and are content to be looked upon as fools for Christ's sake. Men may laugh and jeer now at the saints of the Most High when declaring his glorious purpose; they did so at their Master, "they laughed him to scorn;" but the time will come when "He that sitteth in the heaven shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision." Their laughing and jeering will be turned into dismay, for they will have to give place to the King of Israel, who will send forth his armies, composed of the house of Jacob, to destroy all who oppose themselves to the righteous laws that go forth from Zion, and in that day "many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways and we will walk in his paths," with the glorious result that the nations having been brought into submission "will learn war no more." In that day "the lofty looks of man shall be humbled, and the haughtiness of man shall be bowed down, and the Lord shall alone be exalted." In that day will Christ give unto his apostles, twelve thrones on which to sit and reign over "the house of Israel" which he promised to them previous to his death on a Roman cross. Thus then we see, in the brief glance that has been given to this interesting subject, that Christ has not yet sat on "the throne of his father David," but that in the time appointed he will do so, and reign over "the house of Jacob" according to the promise made to his Mother, previous to his birth, by the angel Gabriel. Let those who wish to be associated with him and his apostles when they reign upon the earth, and be amongst those who will come from all parts of it to sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of Christ, acquaint themselves with "the commonwealth of Israel," and "the covenants of promises," and they will no longer be "without hope and without God in the world," but will look forward joyfully to the time when Christ will return and "build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down," and "build again the ruins thereof," and "set it up." For they will then understand that God has declared through his servant the prophet concerning "the house of Jacob," that "it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and burst thy bonds, and strangers shall no more serve themselves of him: but they shall serve the Lord their God, and David (the Beloved—Christ—David's son yet David's Lord) their King, whom I will raise up unto them. Therefore fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed O Israel; for lo, I will save thee from afar and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid. For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee, though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee; but I will correct thee in measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished." They will then readily admit that such language could only apply to Israel after the flesh, and is in no way applicable to Israel after the spirit; and will be able to sing with the heart and the understanding the following beautiful hymn,

O house of Jacob, come,
And walk with us in light;
No more bewilder'd roam,
Like wand'rers in the night:
The Hope of Israel calls you near,
And Abraham's Shield and Isaac's Fear.
Oh! thou by tempests toss'd,
Revil'd, oppress'd, trod down,
In ev'ry region cross'd,
With grief familiar grown;
Scatter'd, and abject, peel'd, forlorn,
Thy name a taunt, thyself a scorn,
Though thou art fill'd alas!
And drunk with misery.
The cup begins to pass
To them that hated Thee.
And now we honor Israel's name.
Our God and Abraham's is the same.
Rise, Jacob, from thy woes,
Thine own Messiah see,
He whom thy fathers chose
Waiteth to pardon thee:
At his command we bid thee come;
Lost Israel, hasten to thy home.

—Glad Tidings.

The man of fifty thousand dollars who brings five dollars, twenty dollars, or one hundred dollars, to the altar of God and says, "That is all I have to spare," if he does not lie to God, Ananias never did. Tens of thousands are living in luxury spending millions for pride, vanity, gluttony, and sensuality, submitting a mere bagatelle to the use of the Holy Spirit, and yet flatter themselves that they are on the way to glory. Beware lest a worse fate than Ananias' overtake you!

Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
E. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 23, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

As there are five Wednesdays in this month, our next issue will bear date, Sept. 6, 1893.

WE conceive that the greatest and most dangerous enemies to Christ are those who pretend to be his friends, but are faithless of his doctrines and heedless of his precepts.

WE earnestly commend to our readers the article headed, "God Must Be," in the present number. In our opinion it is worth more than the subscription price of the paper, short as it is. It pricks many a bubble with a few pointed words.

QUEEN MARY, called the "Bloody," once asked John Knox, "Whom shall I believe since you interpret the Scriptures one way and the Catholics another, and who shall judge?" "You shall believe God who speaketh plainly in His Word; and further, that Word teacheth you, you shall believe neither one or the other." Well said, John Knox.

ROGER Bacon declared that the four grounds of ignorance were: "Trust in inadequate authority; the force of custom; the opinion of the inexperienced crowd; and the hiding of our own ignorance, with the parading of a superficial wisdom." Although this was written in the thirteenth century, it remains every word true at the close of the nineteenth.

DR. ALEX. MACLAREN says: "Two questions reduce all the world's wisdom to stark, staring insanity. The first is, "What are you doing it for?" And the second is, "And suppose you get it, what then?" Nothing that cannot pass the barrier of these two question satisfactorily is other than madness if taken to be the aim of a man's life.

JOHN Milton, the author of Paradise Lost says: "Man is a living being, intrinsically and properly one and individual, not compound and separable;—not according to common opinion, made up and framed of two distinct and separate natures as of body and soul, but the whole man is soul, and the soul man; that is to say, a body or substance individual, animate, sensitive and rational." Treatise on Christian doctrine V. 1, p. 250 251.

THE last page of the Bible in the Gilbert Island tongue upon which the Rev. Hiram Bingham has been at work for 31 years, was read a few weeks since in the composing and press-rooms of the Bible Society in New York. It is said that as Mr. Bingham read the words his voice trembled with emotion. He is the only man who has ever reduced a language to writing, completed a vocabulary, constructed a grammar, and translated the entire Bible and then revised the proofs.

"IN the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." The Book of God opens with this grand announcement: and Paul says: "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the Word of God," Heb. xi. 3. Paul took Jehovah's word for it; and we understand it just as he did, and by the same means. There are those who deny that this is Jehovah's word and undertake to explain how it was done. The Evolutionists say that away back in the ages there was a fire mist or star dust which cooled off into granite and was shaped into mountains, and valleys, and seas. But who made the fire mist? For a long time the Evolutionists thought they had found the very stuff out of which worlds were made—a nebula of simple gas. But presently spectroscopes were invented, by which they found that the nebula was not a simple gas, but a compound which had to be supplied from some other source, and so they had to shift their ground, which they have always had to do, and always will, till they recognize in the God of Israel, the Creator of heaven and earth.

THE following sentence is about as full as it could be with good things:—"The mission of greatness is to minister, not to master; to give, not to govern; and its sceptre is love, not force."

To E. B.:—In answer to your question, "What is a sect, properly speaking?" we reply, It is a body of people who have separated from others on account of doctrinal or other disagreement and followed a particular leader. "The word is derived from the latin secta, which comes from sequor to follow, hence a following. In this sense the apostles and their brethren were a sect, because they followed Jesus as their Master. But be it remembered the leaders tolerated no minor sects within."

THE following are recent utterances of the bishop of Winchester, England, which shows that the truth is spreading to some extent, amongst the clergy. Speaking on the Resurrection, he said, "If God raised Jesus, that at least is one instance of His willingness to raise the dead. Why should it be the only instance? And what is the good of it if it does not affect us? If he raised one from death it is at least conceivable that he will raise others from death; and such a resurrection is life and hope for the world......Rising from the dead implies life beyond the grave. To speculate about immortality, as apart from the resurrection, is both common and interesting, but it is outside of our subject. It may, however, be observed here, that the familiar expression, "immortal soul," has no place in holy Scripture, and our Lord seems to identify the promise of resurrection with the continuity of personal and continuous life... The fulfilment of God's purpose and the manifestation of God's righteousness, seems further to require a resurrection from the dead." We rather think so too, Mr. Bishop.

Blind Leaders.

The field secretary of the Home Missionary Society recently delivered an address at the Plymouth Congregational Church in Cleveland, on the Present duty of the churches to the cities. The reporter said he began by citing appropriate passages of Scriptures, one of which was, "And they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth." At the time these words were spoken, the preacher said, the city was not flourishing; bands of marauders prowled in them; and when Jesus beheld the great city of Jerusalem he wept; and can we not say that he weeps to-day as he looks upon the great cities of the nations? Let our readers read that magnificent pen picture of the good time coming, the 72nd Psalm, where these words occur, and say if a grosser misapplication of Scripture could be made. For salvation purposes a million of such missionaries would be utterly useless. As teachers of Good Morals, only are they of any account. Is it not painful to contemplate these self-appointed, well-fed world-converters when we realize that only the Gospel of the Kingdom Jesus preached is God's power to save those who believe it? They do not know what that Gospel is; and that proves they are blind leaders of the blind; and although their kind offices may now lift many out of the gutter, they all fall into the ditch by and by; Jesus says so. Truth alone sanctifies. It is uphill business to teach this, but while life and health permit, we will keep it up as opportunity offers. We want our readers to realize that in defining the condition of discipleship Jesus calls upon men to forsake ALL that they have and follow him; not only are houses and lands and friends included, if need be, but their false notions and vain hopes also. No one can be in Christ without entering by the door. No one ignorant of the gospel can enter by the door. That's where the introduction takes place—at the door. Climbers up some other way are not recognized. It is a solemn consideration, that if men do not accept what God offers them, they reject his invitations. Under these circumstances, is it any wonder he says, "I never knew you, depart?" True love will cause a called-out-one to faithfully point out the narrow way. It is a very inferior article, misnamed charity, which prevents an exhibition of the whole counsel of God. Besides that, it violates the positive command to speak God's Word faithfully.

Those whose minds have been lumined by the truth of God must remember that there is but one set of promises, therefore only one faith, and in the nature of things there can be but one hope, and to be without hope is to be without God, see Eph. ii. 12 and iv. 4-10. This applies to their loved and respected ones as well as themselves.

Christ's.

This subject is not likely to become popular in the present order of things, for it is just as true now as when Paul indited the words, "that all seek their own, not the things which are Christ's." What is such Christianity worth? Can we find its value quoted in the book of God? The faithful servant looks after the things belonging to his Master, and is interested in his welfare. Men's own things are temporal: Christ's are eternal. Oh, seek the things that are Christ's; if it is the first time you will be surprised at the result. Yes; seek Christ's estate first. It is the prevailing idea that this is heaven. It is generally thought that the majority of Christ's things are there. This is a great mistake. Christ's estate is land, not sky, as will be seen in the following article clipped from an old magazine for our readers: It says, "God said to Abraham on his arrival in the land of Canaan, unto thy seed will I give this land, and this seed is Christ." Gen. xii. 7; Gal. iii. 16. Hence God is speaking of the land of Judea in Is. viii. 8, where he calls it "Thy land, O, Immanuel." So if you seek the things that are Christ's, you seek a better country than you can now find on the planet, because flesh and blood claim all them; but when Christ takes possession it will be a heavenly country. Heb. xi. 14-16.

Such seekers are now strangers and pilgrims.

Will Christ possess the land of Canaan as it is now, or void? No, the kingdom of God, so long prayed for, will then come and be established upon it, for it is Christ's.

The whole House and Kingdom of Israel over which David reigned, God, in speaking to him, calls my kingdom, thy kingdom, and his (Christ's) kingdom. 2 Sam. vii. 12, 16. 1 Chron. xvii. 11. Therefore the twelve tribes of Israel must be regathered, and united into one kingdom again upon the mountains of Israel, before Christ can inherit the kingdom of God and reign over them in Mount Zion from henceforth even for ever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughters of Jerusalem. Ezek. xxxvii. 21, 22. Micah iv. 7, 8.

If you seek the things that are Christ's, you seek first the kingdom of God (Matt. vi. 33), and like Abraham, a city designed and built by God, the capital of it. For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come Christ's Jerusalem, the city of the Great King, a praise in the earth. Heb. xiii. 14. Matt. v. 35; Isa. lxii. 7. The city of the Lord, the Zion of the Holy One of Israel, the perfection of beauty, the joy of the whole earth. Isa. lx. 14. Psa. xlviii. 2.

If you seek the things that are Christ's, you look for the restoration of David's throne in Jerusalem; for it has been overturned until he come whose right it is, Christ, and the Lord God shall give it him. Ezek. xxi. 27. Jerusalem will then be the throne of the Lord. Jer. iii. 17.

The natural subjects of this glorious kingdom are the Jewish race, they are Christ's subjects, and his kinsmen according to the flesh.

But is the Holy Land all the territory that is Christ's? No, this is only the Edenic garden of Christ's dominion. He is the heir of the world, and the uttermost parts of the earth are his possession. Rom. iv. 13. Psa. ii. 8.

Will the nations upon it continue as they are now, or will they be demolished and their territory made a great park for Christ and his friends to roam in it at pleasure? No: the nations will be humbled, broken, and their purified remains incorporated into the empire of Israel. It will then be said: The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of Christ, and he shall reign from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth; all kings shall fall down before him; all the nations shall serve him. Rev. xi. 15. Psa. lxxii. 8, 11.

Israel is Christ's battle-axe and weapons of war, by which he will subjugate the nations; and the House of Judah is his goodly horse in battle. Jer. li. 20. Zech. x. 3.

Is this a substantial and durable inheritance? Yes; for the earth abideth for ever. Eccles. i. 4. Dan. vii. 14. The kingdom also is an everlasting kingdom. Jer. xxx. 17. Dan. vii. 27.

And the city a continuing one. Isa. xxxiii. 20. Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities; thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; not one of the stakes thereof shall be removed, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken.

Is there anything else to seek? Yes, Christ's House. It is written (Heb. iii. 5, 6), Moses was verily faithful in all his house as a servant; but Christ as a son over his own house; whose house are we if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

This is a permanent house—God's building, founded upon the rock Jesus Christ, and the gates of the grave shall not prevail against it. 1 Cor. iii. 9. Matt. xvi. 18.

The bodies of this house are members of Christ (1 Cor. vi. 15)—Christ's flesh and bones. For Paul says: We are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be of one flesh. This is a great mystery; but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Eph. v. 30, 31. Hence Jesus in speaking to his disciples said: Whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily, I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward. Mark ix. 41.

This is the flesh that the Father has given him to give eternal life to. John xvii. 2. This flesh comes to Christ (John vi. 37), and though it may return to dust will not be lost, but restored and raised up again at the last day. John vi. 39. But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits, afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. 1 Cor. xv. 23. It is crucified flesh like Christ's person. For they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. Gal. v. 24.

If after reflecting upon the result of our research you desire to become Christ's esteeming the reproach for his name greater riches than the treasures of the world, and resolve to try to manifest the character of Timotheus, by caring for the state of His little flock (Phil. ii. 20) then you must obey the command of Christ's apostle, in Rom. xiii. 14 Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof. If you wish to know how to comply with this request, Paul answers, By burial with Christ in baptism, Col. ii. 12. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. Gal. iii. 27.

In rendering this obedience you put off the old man with his deeds—the body of sin derived from Adam—and put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created him, even God: where Christ is all and in all. Col. iii. 11. For such are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise (Gal. iii. 29) of all the glorious possessions and unsearchable riches, which we have been but faintly delineating.

It all depends on the little word "if." For if ye be Christ's all things are yours; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

Be quick to recognize every kindly act, but slow to see an unkindly one.

August 31st, is the date of the Nickel Plate Road's next excursion to Chicago.

Selected.

A Change of Heart.

How often we are told that we as a people do not believe in a change of heart, and that vital piety is not a part of our religion. Nothing can be further from the truth. We are radicals on this point, and claim that before man can be saved, he must experience three changes, each of which brings him one step nearer the final rest. The mind is by nature clouded by sin and immoral deeds, and needs the light of the Gospel to illuminate the understanding, and to turn man away from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. When this is done he has met with a moral change, which at once calls out all the resources of his being for a new and holy life. Here then we have one change.

But the affections may thus be placed upon objects of purity and love, and the feelings be wrought upon by most holy impulses, yet the law demands obedience to its requirements, and he must become a citizen by loyalty. This brings another change, which constitutes him a legal heir to the inheritance.

Paul tells us of the third and final change. "Behold I show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, at the last trump, for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." Thus we see from this brief outline, that before a man can enter the Kingdom of God he must experience,

I. A moral change by the Gospel.

II. A legal change by becoming loyal.

III. He must have a physical change at the resurrection of the dead. We see, therefore, the injustice of saying that we do not believe in a change of heart, when the truth is, we believe not only in the change of heart, but in a complete change of the whole man. Then he will be pure and incorruptible, and fitted for the far more and exceeding and eternal weight of glory. May we all share in that glory through Christ Jesus."—H. V. Reed in Herald of the Kingdom.

Looking for his Return.

Passing the corner of Sixth and Plum streets, Cincinnati, a short time ago, our attention was called to a neatly dressed, respectable looking woman, who was standing a little distance outside the curbstone, anxiously looking down the street. We were informed that during the late war, her husband entered the army, and she parted with him on that spot. He, like thousands of others, never returned. The disappointment to his wife was more than she could bear. Reason gave way, and the idea of her husband's return took entire possession of her mind, and for years, almost every day, and till late in the night, through sunshine and storm, heat and cold, she had stood on the spot where her husband left her looking for his return. But, alas, she looks in vain. He sleeps his last sleep, and the sound of his returning footsteps will never greet her ears. Hope deferred has made her heart sick, and yet she clings to that hope with unyielding tenacity, and it is the all-absorbing ruling passion of her life. What an evidence of sincere devotion, of undying affection! And yet the longing desire of that smitten heart will never be realized.

Such are the hopes and expectations of the world, which are often doomed to disappointment. But the Christian's hope, unlike these, resting on a sure foundation, shall never be cut off. The Savior, before his crucifixion, surrounded with his sorrowing disciples, informed them of his departure from them; but he assured them that he would come again and receive them to himself, that where he was, they might be also. And when, from the Mount of Olives, he ascended in triumph to his Father, the angels assured his disciples that he would come again in like manner as they had seen him go into heaven. Ever since that hour such has been the expectation and hope of his people. The glorious appearing of Christ—his coming to be glorified in his saints, is a theme on which the Apostles dwell with peculiar emphasis. Paul assures us, that to them that look for him he will appear the second time, not a suffering Savior, to offer himself a sacrifice for sin, but as a glorious conquering Deliverer, to exalt and save his people. John declares that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. The great incentive offered by Peter to faithfulness in the ministry is, that when the chief Shepherd shall appear, they shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

The unbelieving and unfaithful may say, "My Lord delayeth his coming;" the foolish virgins may slumber and sleep, and scoffers may inquire in derision, "where is the sign of his coming?" Notwithstanding this, His footsteps are approaching, and in "the times and seasons which the Father hath put in his own power," the "sign of the Son of Man," shall appear in the heavens, and the cry shall be heard, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye forth to meet him." Then the expectant ones shall greet his appearing with joy, and enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Are we daily and hourly watching for our Lord's return? Are we constantly looking for his appearing and kingdom? The Savior himself exhorts us to be "always ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh." "What I say unto you, I say unto all, watch." Happy will that servant be, who, when his Lord cometh, he will find so doing.

So I am watching quietly
Every day.
Whenever the sun shines brightly,
I rise and say:
Surely it is the shining of his face!
And look unto the gates of His High place
Beyond the sea;
For I know He is coming shortly
To summon me.
And when a shadow falls across the window
Of my room,
When I am working my appointed task,
I lift my head to watch the door and ask
If He is come;
And the angel answers sweetly
In my home:
Only a few more shadows,
And He will come.

Conscience.

Every man is more or less conscious as regards the laws of his country, and if he is knowingly breaking any of those laws, he is not at rest. He may be less troubled than if the disobedience were in opposition to the divine commands, but still there must be a conscious feeling of disobedience, which in time brings unhappiness and misery. The victim of these fears of unrest and uneasiness, can sometimes hide his sin from all others but himself, and although he may himself suffer, upon thinking of past transgression, he can find peace from the fact that no one but himself knows it and no one can condemn him. He may have committed one of the foulest crimes capable of being perpetrated, but possibly he will still pass through life, and die without it ever being made known to others. So much for the unlawful act that is governed by human law. But how different is the amenability to the law of Christ, to the law of God. When we become responsible to that we place ourselves en rapport as it were with our King and Judge; who is infallible, and who rules the hearts of men; who is cognizant of all our acts and to whom all our thoughts and intentions are manifest. Should not the contemplation of these things create in us, that fear and reverence, and conscientious regard to all that we do, think, or speak, because we cannot offend without it being known to Him to whom all things are open and bare?—S. W. T.

Tobacco has spoiled thousands of the boys, inducing a dangerous precocity, softening the bones, and injuring the spinal marrow and whole nervous fluid. A boy who early and freely uses tobacco, never is known to make a man, in the true sense; he generally lacks energy of body and mind. Boys, if you wish to prosper in the world despise tobacco. Three young men formed a smoking club and they all died within two years. The doctor was asked what they died of. He replied: "They were smoked to death."

In the bleakest soils grow the richest flowers, and the loftiest and strongest trees spring heavenward among the rocks.

Always the Best.

The popular World's Fair Excursions via the Nickel Plate Road Another August 31st

Christ and the Old Testament.

"This argument cannot be escaped from. Jesus Christ rooted himself and his religion in the Old Testament. By that he himself elected to stand or fall. Even if we were outside of Christianity altogether, we should attach immense importance to the fact that he whom even infidels acknowledge as the greatest of religious geniuses should have owned the authority of the Old Testament, nourished his own life by it, and claimed to fulfil it. But to us, Jesus is the eternal Word, the wisdom of God, the first begotten from the dead. It is not merely in his earthly life that he attests the Old Testament. After he was nailed to the tree (after his resurrection) "beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded to them, in all the Scriptures, the things concerning himself." We return to this, after all cogitation: Whatever Jesus believed about the Old Testament, we must believe. We shall be found right in the end if we think thoughts of his thinking. Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." British Weekly.

Nickel Plate Road's Excursion August 31st, is your opportunity.

The Eighth Annual Conference, of the Church of God in Nebraska, will convene (the Lord willing) in the beautiful natural park at Cambridge, Furnas Co., Neb., Sept. 15, and continue in session ten days.

Everything considered this is the best location that can be found in this part of the country.

Brethren the success of this meeting depends largely on you. Will you lay aside your work and the cares of this life, and come and enjoy a week of pleasant, social intercourse with us?

Since we met one year ago, a great change has taken place in this country. A change that signifies in unmistakable terms the proximity of Gentile rule. It becomes necessary, therefore, that we meet together and by prayer, and exhortation strengthen each other, for these "perilous times."

We urge all who intend to camp on the grounds, to provide themselves with tents. Those who wish to buy one should notify the President, Alleas Adams, as early as Sept. 5th, and it will be on the ground for you by the 15th, at which time settlement can be made.

A well of good water is on the ground. Hay will be provided for teams. Those unacquainted in Cambridge should inquire the direction to the Park at the flouring mills, or the corner store.

We say again, come in the Spirit and endeavor to do valuable service for the Master.

J. J. CADY, SEC'Y.

Don't miss it. The Nickel Plate Road's Excursion to the World's Fair, August 31st.

To the Brethren of "like precious faith," greeting:

It will be noticed that the Church of God, known as the Northern Nebraska and Southern Dakota Conference, will hold their next annual conference near Carns, at the Rock Creek School House in Rock County, Nebraska, commencing Sept. 23, 1893.

All the brothers and sisters of the Abrahamic Faith are especially called to meet with us at this time. Come, brethren, one and all, as we see the signs of the times nearing upon us we believe truly that this age is drawing to a close.

WM. H. DENSON, SEC'Y.

The education of years. Ten days at the World's Fair. Take the Nickel Plate Road's Excursion August 31st.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Excursion via Nickel Plate Road to Chicago, August 31st.

Poetry.

Evening Hymn.

The light is come; like to the day
Depart not Thou, great God, away.
Let not my sins, black as the night,
Eclipse the lustre of Thy light.
Keep still in my horizon; for to me
The sun makes not the day, but Thee.
Thou Whose nature cannot sleep,
On my temples sentry keep;
Guard me 'gainst those watchful foes
Whose eyes are open while mine close;
Let no dreams my head infest
But such as Jacob's temples blest;
While I do rest, my soul advance;
Make my sleep a holy trance,
That I may, my rest being wrought,
Awake into some holy thought,
And with active vigor run
My course, as doth the nimble sun.
Sleep is a death; O, make me try,
By sleeping what it is to die;
And as gently lay my head
On my grave, as now my bed.
Howe'er I rest, great God, let me
Awake again, at least with Thee;
And thus assured, behold! I lie
Securely, or to wake or die.
These are my drowsy days; in vain
I do not wake to sleep again;
O come that hour when I shall never Sleep again, but wake forever!

—Sir Thomas Browne.

Original.

The Jew of To-day.

This wonderful people whom God in ages past selected from all other nations of the earth, and unto whom he committed the lively oracles, still exist as a social and distinct people from all others. As a race no other people would have existed as such up to the present time without divine interposition on their behalf. But, is there not a meaning in all this? There is, and the same prophet that said, "He that scattereth Israel shall gather him and keep him as a Shepherd doth his flock," and if they did not exist how could they be gathered from among the nations when their deliverer comes? From the same hand they have drank both blessings and curses. As they once said, "His (Christ's) blood be upon us and our children" have followed them to their remotest dwelling places, famine, pestilence, persecutions, and the sword have been their portion; but we rejoice to know that their cup is well nigh full and the set time to favor Zion is at hand. Only a few more desperate struggles under the reign of Anti-christ, then the Savior will make himself known unto his brethren. Then there will be such a mourning in Jerusalem as has never taken place before. See Zechariah 12th chapter.

Joseph was a type of Christ. It is a touching incident to read about Joseph revealing himself to his brethren. You will find the account of it in the 45th chapter of Gen. He could not look upon the face of his brethren without weeping, after they had so treacherously sold him to the Egyptians. And reader, picture to yourself the scene that will take place when a greater than Joseph is here revealing himself to his brethren, the Jews. Hear them ask him what are these wounds in thy hands? and hear the Savior answer, "those that I received in the house of my friends." Those words spoken prophetically so long ago, will soon become reality. When our Savior hung bleeding upon the cross he prayed for the forgiveness of his enemies. Why were they his enemies? Because he exposed their sins, and brought their evil deeds to light. This is not all my friends. The more immediate cause of our Savior's death was the good confession which he witnesses before Pontius Pilate. Christ had been accused of treason, had said that he himself was a king, and was arraigned before Pilate on that charge, although he had told them at one time that his kingdom was not of that age. Let us hear Christ's answer about this kingship. Pilate asked him, "art thou the King of the Jews?" Christ answered him, "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world." John xviii. 33-37. Had the Jewish nation believed on Christ at that time he would not have been put to death. They were right in looking for, and expecting a king. It was what God had promised them through his holy prophets, and he, (Christ) came at the appointed time, and the humble people believed on him as such, but the popular scribes and pharisees on account of his humiliation and humble birth, looked beyond his first, unto his second advent. Even his chosen disciples did not at first know that he was to die for the sins of the world. If Christ had entered upon his reign at that time there would have been no sacrifice for sins, no Bride of Christ to assist him in the government of the world, for, so sure as Adam possessed a bride, a helpmeet, just so sure will Christ have a helpmeet in the ages to come, which bride is now being elected by the gospel, or good news of this glorious kingdom soon to be set up upon the earth. But the election (Israel after the Spirit) will obtain it, and the rest are blinded. Have they stumbled that they should fall to rise no more? God forbid, but rather through their fall salvation is come upon the Gentiles, for, if the fall of them be the riches of the works and the diminishing of them, the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their fullness? Rom. 11th chapter. Please read the whole chapter. No, God has not cast away his ancient people whom he foreknew, but instead of them attaining unto rulership in the Kingdom of God, they will be the subjects ruled over by those elected out by the gospel who constitute the Israelites indeed; "Oh, the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God. How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out."

Backsliding has always been Israel's weakness, and it is even so to to this day. At Christ's first advent they refused to believe on him as their king, and at his second advent they will deny him the right to rule in the Kingdom, and expect to wrest it from him by force of arms. Hear our Lord's words to such, "Those mine enemies that would not that I should reign over them, bring them hither and slay them before me." It will be well for all such to heed the admonition given in the 2nd Psalm. "Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in him."

We hear so much said about Christian Churches, and what they are doing for the world, we admit professedly they are such, but possessedly they are not. Can a church be called a "Christian Church" which dis-believed one of the most essential and fundamental doctrines of Christianity taught by Christ himself, namely, "The Reerection by Christ of David's throne and kingdom over Israel of the flesh in the ages to come?" All who do not think that this is the rock upon which the gospel rests had better begin at once to search the Scriptures for themselves, for this is the rock foundation upon which the whole superstructure of Christianity rests as taught from Genesis to Revelation. Take this out of the Scriptures and you have nothing but confusion and chaos. Would to God that Israel was as zealous of the law of the Spirit of Life, (the gospel) as they are of the Sabbath law, (which Paul says are only shadows of things to come) and was nailed to the cross with Christ who is the head of the body (the church) and also Lord of the Sabbath Day."

S. V. Regal.

Selected.

The Second Coming.

"Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also."

The character of the author of this language is such that no one would think to change its meaning, and all admit that Jesus will come again. But as to the manner of his coming, people widely differ. We are told that death is the coming of Christ to every saint. If that be true, he came the second time very soon after his ascension. And as we only read of his first and second coming, we can not expect his coming in glory at the end of the world. "Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men for all that have sinned." Rom. v. 12. No sin, no death; no death, no gate to glory. But a moment's reflection will convince the reader of the absurdity of such an idea.

Then in what manner will Christ come? As people differ so widely in theology, we will give you the testimony of angels. "And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 11. Then if his ascension was literal, his coming will be literal. This agrees with Job: "Oh, that my words were now written. Oh, that they were printed in a book. Oh, that they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever. For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. And though after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold and not another; though my reins be consumed within me." Job. xix. 23-27.

David, the sweet singer of Israel, took comfort in this hope. "As for me, I shall behold thy face in righteousness. I shall be satisfied when I wake in thy likeness." Psa. xvii. 15. Isaiah says, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead. Come, my people, enter into thy chambers. Shut the door about thee, hide thyself, as it were, for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For behold the Lord cometh to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity. The earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." Isa. xxvi. 19, 21. This is one of the grand features of the coming of Jesus. The sleeping ones will live again. "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with all the holy angels, and then shall he reward every man according as his work shall be. Matt. xvi. 27. This event is near at hand. Remember the admonition to watch. "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."—F. M. Palmer.

Only a Stick.

Greatness is not usefulness. There are many things too great to be useful. What would a crowbar be worth in repairing a watch? Persons sometimes belittle themselves, and seem to regard themselves of no account.

Says Marion Lawrence to Sunday school teachers: "Don't allow yourselves to get discouraged in your work. One of my teachers came to me one day and said, 'I cannot teach this class, I am only a stick.' I replied, 'Do you know what the Lord did with a stick? He opened the Red Sea with a stick. He brought the water out of the rock with a stick. You go back to the class and be a stick, be a good stick. That is all the Lord wants of you.' The trouble is that we want to be something that we are not. If we are crooked sticks the Lord will find crooked places for us to fill."

No man should be discouraged about his place, his opportunities, or his calling, but each for himself should look to God for guidance, for help, for wisdom that cometh from above; and those who look to God with loving joyous trust, will find that he will never forget them or forsake them, but will guide their efforts to his glory and the good of other men. And the work of the small may be as useful as the work of the great, for it is not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts.—Safeguard.

◆

Life would be freed from some of its most painful features if men always acted to each other on a basis of real justice and intelligence, and left their small personal feelings and prejudices out of sight. A man's work ought to be judged by itself and for itself alone, and the strength of a man's position ought to rest solely upon what he is able to do. And yet most of us are constantly neutralizing the best work of others because it is not done in our way, and are constantly failing to do justice to others because of some small personal prejudice against them.

On Evil Speaking.

The practice of speaking slightingly of our friends and neighbors, of throwing their good qualities into the background and bringing their blemishes out into the full light, is one which obtains too often among well-meaning and religious people. So strong, indeed, is the general tendency to depreciate rather than to appreciate merit, to put the worst construction upon doubtful actions, and to impute the worst motives to good ones, that no person, however inoffensive and useful his life, can hope to escape censure. Those who have attained any eminence are by their very position considered fair objects for attack, while the lowly or unfortunate must not hope to escape. The worst of slander or evil speaking is that it requires next to no sustenance to keep it alive and flourishing. However small and insignificant the little rivulet of tittle-tattle, gossip, innuendo, detraction, seems at first, it often swells and grows to such proportions that character, reputation, happiness, the hope of a life-time, are swept away. The blunt fault-finder who attacks his friends openly, strikes them as it were in the face, odious though he sometimes is yet may occasionally be the means of doing good; but there is no such plea to be urged on behalf of the coward, who greets his acquaintances with fair words and smiles, but when their back is turned stabs or pricks them or shoots poisoned arrows at them in the dark.

Of the vice of slanders, or detraction we may say "whichever way we look at it, it is dangerous" to speakers and listeners no less than to the victim of their ill-will. It is besides so infectious that though one may be fairly good natured and have no particular wish to malign his neighbors, yet when he meets with one who is an adept at whispering and backbiting, he cannot resist the temptation of joining in the dissection of another's character. The safe plan therefore, in going through life, is to avoid as far as possible the society of anyone who either speaks against the absent, or does not defend them when attacked, and this not only because the habit is so catching, but because we may be very sure that where others are victimized we shall not escape, that when our backs are turned the moths will begin industriously eating holes in our reputation for kindness, cleverness, amiability or generosity, or any other trait of character exciting their ire or jealousy.

The most dangerous, because the most insiduous form of evil speaking, is that which while seeming to praise or defend really detracts. The speaker does not himself believe the report he circulates, but at the same time he manages to make others do so; for the general result of such innuendoes is, that the charge is admitted, while the excuse is ignored.

It is very commonly assumed that the indulgence to the foibles of others implies a leaning towards the same, but it is not so; we judge others commonly by ourselves, and the most innocent are, it will be found, generally the most tolerant, and least ready to believe in the existence of evil, and the old principle that the mind will only grasp what it brings with it the power to grasp, that those who look out for angles will see angles, while those who look out for curves will see curves. A backbiting spirit shows not only smallness of nature but ignorance, for culture enlarges the sympathies and keeps the mind supplied with subjects for thought more interesting than our neighbors' ways, manners, and opinions. To emptiness of mind rather perhaps than to malignity of nature we may trace the practice of evil speaking, gossip, and detraction; it is the indolent or ignorant mostly who are "not only idle but tattlers also and busy-bodies, speaking things which they ought not."

The Greedy Bottle.

A poor under-sized boy named Tim, sitting by a bottle, and looking in, said, "I wonder if there can be a pair of shoes in it." He wanted to go to a Sunday-school picnic, but he had no shoes. His mother had mended his clothes, but said his shoes were so bad he must go barefoot. Then he took a brick and broke the bottle, but there were no shoes in it, and he was frightened, for it was his father's bottle. Tim sat down again, and sobbed so hard that he did not hear a step beside him, until a voice said:

"Well! what's all this?" He sprang up in great alarm; it was his father.

"Who broke my bottle?" he asked.

"I did," said Tim, catching his breath, half in terror and half between his sobs.

"Why did you?" Tim looked up. The voice did not sound so terrible as he had expected. The truth was, his father had been touched at the sight of the forlorn figure, so very small and so sorrowful, which had bent over the broken bottle.

"Why," he said, "I was looking for a pair of new shoes; I want a pair of shoes awful bad to wear to the picnic—all the other chaps wear shoes."

"How came you to think you'd find shoes in a bottle?" The father asked.

"Why mother said so; I asked her for some new shoes, and she said they had gone into the black bottle, and that lots of other things had gone into it, too—coats and hats, and bread and meat and things; and I thought if I broke it I'd find 'em all, and there ain't a thing in it!" And Tim sat down and cried harder than ever. His father seated himself on a box in the disorderly yard, and remained quiet for so long a time, that Tim at last looked cautiously up.

"I'm real sorry I broke your bottle, father; I'll never do it again."

"No, I guess you won't" he said, laying a hand on the little rough head as he went away, leaving Tim overcome with astonishment that father had not been angry with him. Two days after, on the very evening before the picnic, he handed Tim a parcel, telling him to open it.

"New shoes! New shoes!" he shouted. "O father, did you get a new bottle? And were they in it?"

"No, my boy, there isn't going to be a new bottle. Your mother was right—the things all went into the bottle, but you see getting them out is no easy matter; so, God helping me, I am going to keep them out after this."

It Will Come.

You ask what? Why, the pulling of my ears; for I'm going to hammer away at these lazy, good-for-nothing, so-called Christian workers. They are no more fit to bear the name, than a pig is for a pet. "Work!" They don't know what the word means, let alone the fact. To call going to the weekly prayer-meeting, and making a prayer, or saying a verse, or speaking a moment, to call that Christian work, is like calling a day's work done, by the wagging of one's jaws to eat breakfast. Pshaw! Why not see the incongruity at once, and rate Christian work the same as other work. Where the element of toil and service and sacrifice enters; where by strength expanded, something is accomplished. Let us give you a bit of Christian work:

1. Take something out of your pantry to the poor.

2. Visit some sick person; take some fruit and cheer them with Scripture and prayer.

3. Ask your pastor for seven names of folks who have not been to church lately, and go see them and help them.

4. Call on some stranger in town and invite him over to your house to tea.

5. Think of some one who may be in trouble, and go and relieve him.

6. Raise the wages of men who are worth more than you are paying them.

7. Think out some good thing, that well digested and given to the people at prayer-meeting, will help them.

8. If it's hard work to be brief in your prayers and addresses—be brief—that will tell mightily.

9. See the church is cleaned up, if you have to sweep yourself.

10. Learn by heart Psalm 91. There is work that will tell big.

Grand Army Day,

At the World's Fair is Sept. 9th. Go on Nickel Plate Road's Excursion of August 31st.

God Must Be.

We re-produce the following excellent demonstration of God's existence from The Earth and its Evidences.

1. Either the universe had a beginning or not. If it had a beginning, that beginning was either caused or uncaused, and if uncaused, explain how there could be an effect without a cause, especially such an effect as the universe, with all the order, design, and life in it. To assert that the universe came into existence uncaused, of itself, by its own will, its own power, is to assert that it existed before it had existence: it willed its own being before there was a being or a will, it exercised power before it had any power at all. What monstrous supposition could be more monstrous? But if its beginning was caused, that cause must have been infinitely superior to itself, and a cause without a cause - God?

But if the universe had no beginning, or was not an effect at all but a cause uncaused, then all intelligence and life in it are due to itself, and it is self-dependent, without any superior or equal imaginable or known, and the universe must therefore be a god. But the universe consists of parts, the earth and sea, with all the beings animate and inanimate therein, the sun, moon, and stars. Now, if the universe be a god, is it all or certain parts of it only that are divine? All could not be gods, for the universe being a god on the assumption of having no beginning, those being unquestionably with a beginning are no gods. Man is not a god, for his beginning, according to modern science, is due to the ape; nor the ape or any other animal, because, according to science, preceded by plants; nor the plants, for they had no existence when the earth was a molten mass; nor the moon, for it, says science, proceeded from the earth; nor the earth, which was thrown off from the sun by the sun; nor the sun or stars, for their beginning was owing to the nebula. Here scientists stop. Have they at last found their god, without a beginning, the uncaused cause of all? But what is the nebula? Gaseous substance, all gas; and the god of scientists is all-gas.

2. Now, if we ask scientists how any natural event or phenomenon occurs or has occurred, the answer is invariably, "According to law." Then did the universe ever exist without law, and if so, how long? If laws had no beginning, they must be gods. If they had a beginning, either that beginning had itself a cause or not. If caused, what was the cause; but if uncaused, explain how the laws could come into operation without a cause? If changes or phenomena occur according to laws, are these laws the causes of such changes or phenomena? Does "law of nature" merely signify the fixed order in which phenomena occur, or do the laws themselves maintain that order? If they merely indicate order, then what is the cause of that order; and if the order is uncaused, explain how the universe has perfect invariable order, rather than continual disorder. Human laws are merely laws of human conduct, which may be either obeyed or disobeyed. If natural laws are rules for nature to obey, then how do you account for obedience so perfect and invariable as the scientists say? The earth, sun, moon and stars, are not surely intelligent beings capable of willing, and therefore they cannot obey as men do.

See Nickel Plate Agents, about World's Fair Excursion, August 31st.

"Every fool will be meddling." So says Solomon. How true it is we do not know at first. It takes time. And the mischief of the meddling is not apparent till experience opens her record. The iron rod will restrain the fool, and so contribute one element of the promised blessedness. The millennium of demagogic quackery and clap trap will be over when the reign of heaven-regulated wisdom begins.

Labor day, at the World's Fair is Sept. 4th. Take Nickel Plate Road's excursion of August 31st.

God loves a cheerful giver because giving is God-like.

Now at their brightest and best.

The Illuminations and Electric Fountains at the Worlds Fair.

God's Weather.

They use this term among the Danes, as applicable to a severe storm, or any great commotion in nature.

It seems so appropriate when we think of Him who sitteth in the heavens and ruleth over all things here below. It ought to make us less apprehensive and timid amid the violent disturbance of the elements; since it is "The Father" who orders or permits.

The phrase "God's weather," ought to be impressed on every heart. There is much of peevishness among Christians, with regard to atmospheric changes. If the prospect be for rain, we regret that the sun is obscured; and if the season be what our judgment pronounces "too dry," we worry over crops and prospects, and wonder if we shall ever have another shower. Irreverent remarks (often more thoughtless than wilfully impious) are made about the "clerk of the weather." Little children and adults alike indulge in this improper spirit and this disrespectful language. Few are without more or less guilt, and are too apt to forget that all weather is "God's weather."

A Good Creed.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead, but show it in acts of kindness; this fills their lives with practical considerations! Speaking approving and cheering words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them; the kind acts you mean to do when they are gone, do before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten their homes before they leave them.

If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they brought them out in my weary and troubled hours, that I may be refreshed and charmed and cheered by them; one would rather have a plain coffin without a single flower, a funeral without a eulogy, than a life without the sweetness of human sympathy and love. Let us learn to anoint our friends beforehand. Post mortem kindness does not cheer the burdened spirits. Flowers on the coffin soon wither and cast no fragrance backward.

Another opportunity. Don't miss this. Nickel Plate Road's excursion August 31st for the World's Fair.

Appointments.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Morrish, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. Hatch.

Especially low rates to the World's Fair August 31st via Nickel Plate Road.

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millspaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Now is the Time.

World's Fair Excursion via Nickel Plate Road, August 31st.

One Fare Excursion to Chicago via Nickel Plate Road August 31st.

[illegible]ficant Story.

A wealthy banker in one of our large cities, who is noted for his large subscriptions to charities, and for his kindly habits of private benevolence, was called on by his pastor one evening, and asked to go with him to the help of a man who had attempted suicide.

They found the man in a wretched house, in an alley not far from the banker's dwelling. The front room was a cobbler's shop; behind it, on a miserable bed in the kitchen, lay the poor shoemaker, with a gaping gash in his throat, while his wife and children were gathered around him.

"These people are starving!" exclaimed the banker, as soon as he caught sight of their pinched, wan faces; and while the doctor was busy sewing up the cobbler's wounds, he hurried away to procure fuel and food.

"We have been without food for days," said the woman, when he returned. "It's not my husband's fault. He is a hard-working, sober man. But he could neither get work nor pay for that which he had done. To-day he went, for the last time, to collect a debt due to him from a rich family; but the gentleman was not at home. My husband was weak from fasting and seeing us starving drove him mad. So it ended that way"—turning to the fainting, motionless figure on the bed.

The banker having fed and warmed the family, hurried home, opened his desk, and took out a file of little bills. All the large debts were promptly met; but he was apt to be careless about the accounts for milk, bread, etc., because they were so very petty.

He found there a bill of Michael Goodlow's for repairing children's shoes, ten dollars. Michael Goodlow was the suicide. It was the banker's unpaid debt which had brought these people to the verge of the grave, and driven this man to desperation; while at the very same time the banker had been giving away thousands in charity.

The cobbler recovered, and will never want a friend while the banker lives; nor will a small, unpaid bill ever be found on the banker's table.—Anonymous.

Trust God for future humanity. The world was not made in a jest, nor does the kingdom of God rest on a contingency. Faith, as well as love, casteth out fear. Two boys were talking together of Elijah's ascent in the chariot of fire. Said one: "Wouldn't you be afraid to ride in such a chariot?" "No," said the other, "not if God drove!" God drives the chariot of human progress, and it mounts as it advances. God is in his world, not outside of it. He is redeeming it from sin. He is making men. He is fulfilling his holy and beneficent purpose. Fear not, but believe and hope, for the power as well as the glory is his to whom be glory forever and ever.—Philip S. Moxom.

The temperance question is a part of the labor question. The complaint of the laboring man that he fails to receive a fair share of the wealth he helps to create is undoubtedly true; and when his scanty earnings are diminished by the wastes of intoxicants and tobacco, destitution and wretchedness are certain to overwhelm himself and family.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the Lake at $2.00. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

Conference Notice.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana, will be held at the Pleasant View Church in Warren Co., Ind., commencing Thursday evening August 24, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday.

At our last conference at Antioch, in June, a general invitation was extended through Brother Conner to all lovers of the truth; and as this will be the first conference held at that place let there be a liberal response, for it is the duty of all in the like precious faith to be there if possible. What if it does take a little time, and some of our means, it will only be a little sacrifice in the right direction.

The brethren there are desirous of having a good meeting and we hope they may not be disappointed.

As has been previously announced the way to get there is by way of the Wabash R. R., running through Peru, going to West Lebanon.

The place of meeting is a few miles from this point, but by sending word to Harry Evans Jr. at Hedrick, Ind., you will be met and cared for.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

To the Brethren and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here, so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

P. H. Boyk.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

G. A. R. Encampment.

On account of the G. A. R. National Encampment at Indianapolis, the L. E. W. R. R., will sell Excursion tickets Sept., 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th. Tickets good to return up to and including Sept. 16th, 1893. Fare for round trip $2.40.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by R. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen. 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 10 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

To the Mountain and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata, the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity. etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78

Cheap Home Visitor's Excursion. Thursday, August 17th, 1893.

On the above date the Lake Erie & Western R. R., will run their Annual Home Visitor's Excursion to Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Ohio, and intermediate points. The rates are so low that it will be cheaper to go on this Excursion than to stay at home; thus giving everybody an opportunity to visit their old home and friends, through the States of Indiana and Ohio.

Excursion train will pass Plymouth at 5:10 a. m. For further information see Agent L. E. & W. R. R.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittance to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.90

EXPENDITURE.

Previously used	$11.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Circleville, Ind.
I. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt, Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Truth Tracts [illegible] for distribution. 1. [illegible] and Kingdom of Christ, by [illegible], 10 100. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten [illegible], or assorted [illegible] ages of 100, 25cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 5c; 25 for 10c; 50 for [illegible]

[illegible] Creed.

Life and Death. A concise [illegible] treat of the two uses of these terms, to wit, at The days of [illegible]

[illegible] a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? [illegible] What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? [illegible] The above is the title of a [illegible] tract [illegible] each, [illegible]

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures [illegible]

Christ's Kingdom—Where is It? What is it? [illegible] Berwick, Pa. [illegible] To be had at this office [illegible]

The Gospel of Christ [illegible] the Church [illegible] a neatly printed pamphlet of 32 pages, by W. Hillis, of Manassas City, Pa. [illegible] strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an address on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send 10 cents for a copy [illegible] eight copies for $1.00.

The Heir of All Things. [illegible] This little book of 104 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the author [illegible] San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts., or free to those not able to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with [illegible] engravings, [illegible] maps of the Holy Land [illegible] pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the scriptures, including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the doctrine [illegible] by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 300 pages, price 40 cts, or four for $1. [illegible] Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott, B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the renderings of [illegible] and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references, new improved edition on large paper, cloth $4.00, leather binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift, J. H. Pettingell, With an introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 252 pages, neatly printed [illegible] This work [illegible] proves the doctrine of [illegible] Bound in cloth [illegible]

Cruden's Concordance [illegible] This work is too well known to need commendation [illegible] Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines, a reference manual, by Wiley Jones. 1.0 pages, cloth bound, for 35cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page, —"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 350 pages, cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Ca the Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 1?? pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 15 cents single copy, 3 for 40 cents; 14 for $1.50; 50 for $5.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Author at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 226 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 22 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, also their connection with the one Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families, What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 368 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "Things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 148 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject: "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 233 pages. 4th edition. Cloth, 25 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from the uses of the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 64 pages, 10cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 524 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O., every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of [illegible] are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and study of the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 [illegible] p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1215 Logan Avenue, San Diego California.

[illegible] of The Blessed Hope [illegible] Services [illegible] Visiting brethren always welcome [illegible]

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now meet in the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock, [illegible] every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on [illegible] street, as follows: [illegible] every [illegible]

[illegible] meet in Hall [illegible] LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at [illegible] Sunday School [illegible] Prayer and social meeting [illegible] evenings. W. A. Thompson, Elder.

[illegible] Church [illegible] Sunday School [illegible]

[illegible] Church of God at Andover, South Dakota [illegible] every Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. [illegible] Andover [illegible] St. Paul R. R. [illegible]

The brethren of God [illegible] Frontier Co., Neb., meet in Union Sunday School at school house [illegible] No. [illegible] Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening [illegible] We have [illegible] preaching but are [illegible] brother, [illegible] W. A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope of [illegible] Wash. This church regularly meets for public [illegible] every Sunday morning at [illegible] o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or [illegible] introductory letter, will be cordially welcomed. At present we [illegible] school house on top of the hill [illegible] school house [illegible] from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brown Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at [illegible] for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11 [illegible] prayers and exhortations are made to [illegible] All visitors address brother George Kuffe, [illegible] West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., [illegible] Sunday at [illegible] to break bread and [illegible] Wm. [illegible] Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold [illegible] social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly [illegible] the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. [illegible] Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. [illegible] every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table,

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 31, Passenger,	Leave	†11:15pm
No. 22,	"	†6:10pm
No. 26,	"	*4:21pm
No. 151, Local,	"	†12:25pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger,	Leave	†9:49am
No. 25,	"	†5:35pm
No. 27,	"	*3:15pm
No. 151, Local,	"	†12:25pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily except Saturday.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:22 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 8:35 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address
C. C. PARKER, Tfc. Manager.
CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:50pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 56 "	8:15pm	"
No. 54, "	10:05pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 54, "	11:50pm	"
No. 55,	4:14pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or
J. M. CHESBROUGH, Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

[illegible]

J. E. PANKS, Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R. R.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. ✻ SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address
L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't,
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts at publishers' rates. Any one coming in contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular and living treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I should like to see it circulated."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	15 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson.	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	10 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Edition Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc. 5 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid to the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Asters, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cts. for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
J. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors.
ROBERT HAIL[illegible],
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. O. WILLET,
GEORGE BLAKEMAN,
J. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS	One Year - -	$1.50
	Six Months - -	.75
	Three Months -	.40

The Restitution.

M.Joblin
4247 Woodland ave

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 6, 1893. NO. 33.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Our Hidden Leaves.

Oh the hidden leaves of life!
Closely f[illegible] in the heart;
Leaves wh[illegible] golden finger,
[illegible],
Leaves [illegible] start.

[illegible] which Hope would read the future,
[illegible] and charged with fate;
Leaves which calm [illegible],
While her fearless eyes [illegible]
On the legend, "Trust, [illegible]"

Leaves which grave Experience [illegible]
[illegible] charts;
Leaves [illegible],
[illegible]
[illegible].

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible].

Some [illegible] fairy pictures,
Half [illegible] half secret;
[illegible] frosted towers,
[illegible] colors, starry flowers,
[illegible] arabesques between.

Some [illegible] with liquid [illegible],
[illegible] with tears,
Some with [illegible] glowing
From a sunlit [illegible] flowing
Through the wilderness of [illegible].

Some are crossed with later writings,
Palimpsests of earliest days,
Old remembrance faintly gleaming
Through the thinking and the dreaming
Outlines dim in [illegible] haze.

One lies open, all unwritten,
To the glance of careless sight;
Yet it bears a shining story,
Traced in phosphorescent glory,
Only legible by night.

One is dark with hieroglyphics
Of some dynasty of grief;
Only God, and just one other,
Dearest friend, or truest brother
Ever read that hidden leaf.

Many a leaf is undeciphered,
Writ in languages unknown;
O'er the strange inscription bending
(Every clue in darkness ending)
Finding no "Rosetta Stone."

Still we study, always failing!
God can read it, we must wait;
Wait, until He teach the mystery,
Then the wisdom-woven history
Faith shall read, and Love translate.

Leaflets now unpaged and scattered
Time's great library receives;
When eternity shall bind them,
Golden volumes we shall find them,
God's light falling on the leaves.
—Frances Ridley Havergal.

Original.

Fortune-Telling, Use of Charms, etc.

In a story-book for children is the picture of a little, sad-faced maiden who has been trying her fortune with daisy petals. The divining words have been counted on the petals, and the last one is "thief." She looks frightened, for the story of her future is told, or that is what she in her childish simplicity has been taught to believe.

How foolish are such superstitions! What a pity they should live! Do you know from whence they come, dear girls? You will have to go back a long way in history to the lands of Chaldea, and of Canaan. Here were the teraphim, the oracle, the diviners, the spells of enchantment. Men and women sought to learn from these, what their fate would be in war or in wedlock. From the spirits or demons of the air they believed that knowledge would be given. But the command of the Lord to the people of Israel was, that "there should not be found among them any one that useth divinations, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consultor with a familiar spirit, or a wizard, or a necromancer."

"For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord."

The thistle-blossoms, the heated apple-seeds, the apple-paring swung around the head, the piece of wedding cake put under the pillow, the wish-bone over the door, the clover leaf in the shoe, the wrinkles in the palm of the hand, the tea grounds in the cup are all enchantments, come down from the heathen. Gypsy-fortune-telling is ancient divination. It is all wrong, all sinful. You, my dear young friends, have not thought of it in this light. You have only imagined it a pleasant pastime, and have laughed over the fun of going to the gypsy's camp, though dollar after dollar went into the enchanter's palm for yourselves and companions, not your own money either, but that of the dear Lord, who bought you with his precious blood.

You affect not to believe her story, yet affirm that in many cases she has "lifted the veil," and revealed truthfully what was coming to pass. But what if she has? It only proves that she is in league with the Evil One, and that her mysterious responses come from his vassals. You want no prophecies from the devil.

It was "because of these abominations," that the Lord drove out the nations from the land of Canaan, see Deut. xviii. 9, 10, 11, 12. It seems sinful to me to have a little baby measured because it is sick, or to send for a man or woman to say curious words over a sick person, or to put spells on a piece of paper and hide it for the cure of troublesome warts. I would not do any of these things, dear children of the King. It is not pleasing to our heavenly Father. "He hath not suffered us so to do." "Thou shalt not use such ointments" is his positive command.

"A people should seek unto their God" and "not to them that have familiar spirits," Isaiah says. We are to go to the Bible for light. There is truth in its words. To us, there should be no "Walpurgis night" nor "Halloween." We do not believe in saints as the Catholics do, and have no need to consult them, even if dead men and women could come up and reveal to us the dread secrets of the coming years. "The dead know not anything," is proof enough that they cannot help us. Be very careful therefore to keep aloof from all these defilements. Let fortune-telling alone. It may seem a little sin, but God disapproves, and that is enough. Saul disobeyed and it cost him his life. You may disobey and it may cost you yours.

Your loving friend,
S. Roxana Wince.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 4.

1. And Jesous full of sanctified Spirit returned from the Jordan, and was led in the Spirit in the wilderness

2. Forty days, being tried by the Diabolos; and he ate nothing in those days; and when they were ended he hungered.

3. And the Diabolos said unto him, If thou art a Son of God say unto this stone that it become bread (lit. a loaf of bread.)

4. And Jesous made answer unto him, It hath been written, not upon bread alone [illegible] man live.

5. And the [illegible] when he and led him up into [illegible] high mountain, showed him all the kingdoms of the inhabited (earth) in an instant of time.

6. And the Diabolos said unto him, To thee will I give all this official-power and their glory, because to me have they been committed, and to whomsoever I will I give it.

7. If then thou wilt do homage in my sight, it shall all be thine.

8. And he answered and said, It hath been written, To the Lord thy God shalt (lit wilt) thou do homage, and him alone shalt (lit wilt) thou serve for hire.

9. And he led him into Hierousalem and stood him upon the little wing (projection) of the temple and said unto him, If thou art a son of God, cast thyself down from here, For it hath been written, that he will enjoin his angels concerning thee to absolutely watch to guard thee.

11. And that they bear thee up upon their hands, lest perchance thou shouldst smite thy foot against a stone.

12. And Jesous answered and said unto him, It hath been oracularly said, Thou shalt (lit wilt) not make a test of the Lord thy God.

13. And when the Diabolos had finished every test he stood away from him until an appointed time.

14. And Jesous returned in the ability of the Spirit into Galilaia; and report went out through all the surrounding country,

15. And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

16. And he came to Nazareth where he had been brought up, and entered into the synagogue as was his custom on the day of the Sabbatic rites, and arose to read.

17. And there was given him a book of the prophet Hesaias: and he opened the book and found the place where it had been written.

18. The Lord's Spirit is upon me for the purpose for which he hath anointed me: To announce good tidings to beggars hath he sent me, to herald release to captives and sight (lit a looking up) to blind ones, to send away in release those who have been crushed.

19. To herald an acceptable year of the Lord.

20. And closing the book and returning it to the servitor he sat down, and the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed attentively on him;

20. And he began to say unto them, To-day hath this Scripture been fulfilled in your ears.

22. And they were all testifying to him, and wondering at the words of the grace that were going their way out of his mouth, and saying, Is not this a Son of Joseph?

23. And he said unto them, Ye will unanimously speak this parable unto me, Physician heal thyself. Whatever we have heard of as having occurred in Kapharnaoum, cause also (to occur) here in thy native place.

24. And he said, verily I say unto you, No prophet is acceptable in his native place.

25. Of a truth moreover I say unto you, many widows were there in the days of Helias in Israel when the heavens were shut up for three years and six months, when a great famine occurred all over the land.

26. And unto no one of them was Helias sent, except unto a widow woman in Sarepta of Sidonia.

27. And many lepers were there in Israel in the time of Elisaias the prophet; and no one of them was cleansed except Naiman the Syrian (Suros.)

28. And all in the synagogue were filled with anger when they heard these things.

29. And arising they cast him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the mountain whereon the city was built to hurl him down.

30. But he went through their midst and went his way.

31. And he went down unto Kapharnaoum a city of Galilaia, and was teaching them during the Sabbatic rites.

32. And they were astounded at his teaching, because his word was with official-power (or qualification for office.)

33. And in the synagogue there was a man who had a spirit of an unclean demon, and he shouted with a great voice,

34. Ea (let be) what is it to us and thee, thou Nazarene Jesous? Hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee, who thou art, the Saint of God.

35. And Jesous reproved him saying, Be muzzled and come out of him. And the demon throwing him down in their midst came out of him having harmed him in no respect.

36. And great awe came to be upon them all and they talked with one another saying, What is this word, because he directeth with official power and ability the unclean spirits and they come out.

37. And a report of him went out into every place of the surrounding country.

38. And he arose and went from the synagogue into the household of Simon. Now Simon's mother-in-law was confined with a great fever, and they asked him about her.

39. And he stood over her and reproved the fever and it left her, and straightway she arose and served them, (deacon service)

40. And while the sun was sitting, all, as many as had people who were weak with various diseases conducted them to him, and he laid his hand upon each one of them and healed (courtier-service lit) them.

41. And demons also went out from many shouting and saying, Thou art the Son of God. And reproving them he did not allow them to talk, because they knew that he was Christ.

42. And when it had become day he went out and went his way in a waste place, and the mixed multitudes sought him and came unto him and constrained him not to go his way away from them.

43. And he said unto them, it behooveth me to announce the good-tidings of the Kingdom of God to the other cites. Because for this purpose have I been sent.

44. And he was heralding in the synagogues of Joudaia.

COMMENT.

"Full of sanctified Spirit" instead of "the Holy Ghost" C. V. or "the Holy Spirit" R. V.

"Was led in the Spirit" instead of "by the Spirit" R. V.

"Tried" instead of "tempted" R. V.

"Of the inhabited" instead of "of the world" R. V.

"Instant of time" instead of "moment of time" R. V.

"Official-power" instead of "authority" R. V.

"Serve for hire" instead of "serve" merely R. V.

"Will" instead of "shall" R. V. This is prophecy not command.

"Oracularly said" instead merely "said" R. V.

"Shalt not make a test" instead of "shalt not tempt" R. V.

"Until an appointed time" instead of "for a season" R. V. Too indefinite.

"On the day of the Sabbatic rites" instead of "on the Sabbath-day" R. V.

"A book (or roll)" instead "the book" R. V.

"For the purpose for which he hath anointed me" instead of "because he hath anointed me" R. V.

"An acceptable year of the Lord" instead of "the acceptable year of the Lord" R. V. There may be and probably are other acceptable years of the Lord.

"Unanimously" instead of "Doubtless" R. V.

"Native-place" instead of "country" R. V. The place being in this case the little town of Nazareth, not the whole land of Palestine, which would be his country.

"Helias" instead of "Elijah" R. V. Which means "A child of the Sun."

"Sarepta" insted of "Zarephath" R. V. which means "Swept by a plague."

"Sidon" "a place of pomgranites."

"Turos (Tyre)" "a cheese-market."

"Elissaios" or "Elisaias" instead "Elisha" R. V. which means "One who turns about" referring no doubt to the incident of his conversion and call through the agency of Helias. Read the account. It was a sudden turn and his name expressed it appropriately.

"Naiman" "One who dwelleth indeed."

"Mountain" instead of "hill" R. V.

"During the Sabbatic-rites" instead of "on the Sabbath-day" R. V.

"Official-power" again instead of "authority" R. V.

"The Saint of God" instead of "the Holy One of God, R. V. This was one of the many Messianic appelations frequent in prophecy. "The Saint of Saints" is another.

"Be muzzled" instead of "Hold thy peace" R. V. Literal as well as much more significant.

"The demon" instead of "the devil" and "demons" instead of "devils" R. V. There is one Diabolos or (Devil) and hosts of demons or "legions we are told.

"Official-power and ability" instead of "authority and power" R. V.

"The sun was sitting" instead of "the sun was setting" R. V.

There are enough differences in this chapter alone to wreck whole systems of accepted theology. Verify them and see for yourselves.

Chas. Gardner.

Selected.

The Philosophy and Revelation of Man.

After man was created or formed it was necessary to make him live; but what is life? Life is not an entity, a real personality which enters man and causes him to move, or which leaves him at death. Life is an effect, and we regard it commonly as simply a state or condition of being, subject to the causes which regulate its continuance. Upon this broad basis all can agree. We say of a tree or plant in certain conditions that it is dead. Once it was green and vigorous, now it is dry and withered. Its functions have ceased, its power is gone, and its life ended, but who will contend that an entity has left it? Such an affirmation would meet the reproof of philosophy, and the calumny of good sense.

That which immediately precedes any effect with which it is connected we term its cause. Life being a compound effect, the cause must be compound, for it is an axiom in reasoning, that "like causes, like effects." As to the ultimate causes of life we may or may not agree, but we shall attack no opinion or demolish no theory without offering instead something better. We should approach the citadel of men's faith with care, wishing to do us we would have others do unto us in like circumstances. We should vie with each other in adorning the temple of truth. A wrong explanation of the causes of life have led to many mischievous errors. Eternal torment, Pluto's regions, and Purgatory for the reception of men at death, the dark caverns of the Mohammedan on the one hand, with the fanciful Elysium of the Pagans, and the imaginary heaven of the modern world, on the other, are but the fruits of a wrong apprehension of the real causes of life. The basis of all these doctrines, so inconsistent in themselves, and so very unreasonable in the extreme, is the Pagan notion that the cause of life is a superadded, intelligent, immaterial, and immortal entity, capable of imparting animation and intelligence by its mere presence, which acts upon the body and uses it as a machine, and through which it makes known its thoughts to the material world. This supposed entity they are pleased to call the soul. They tell us that the body is merely a lump of clay without the power of thought, feeling or volition, and that all motion and intelligence are but so many proofs of its presence; that every member of the body moves in obedience to its will; that it sits enthroned within the secret chambers of the brain, the monitor of our actions, and the cause of all our thoughts. It is further claimed that for some reason or other, it becomes dissatisfied with the body after a time, and leaves it, but it would be thenceforward a wanderer unless there was some place to receive it, hence the wits of men were set to work to seek it a dwelling place. The result is before us. Some have fixed up the Elysian fields, some Paradise, others the Seven Spheres, and yet others, the immaterial Heaven of the orthodox world. The theory is here fairly stated, and we wish, dear reader, to examine into the philosophy of the doctrine in the following pages. In order to do this, we will take an affirmative position, and invite criticism.

We have said that life is due to certain electrical causes. These causes obtain through the affinity of the elements composing man's body, and the air which he breathes; hence the more air breathed, the more vitality and animation, and these effects are always in direct proportion, to the amount of air entering the lungs. Remove the cause and the effect ceases - take away the breath of life and life is gone. This is in perfect harmony with the statement of Moses. When the creation was finished, all that was necessary was to breathe "Into his nostrils the breath of life,' and the result is that "man became a living soul." The only reason assigned why man lived is, that the breath was put into him: hence breath or air is the cause of life. A thousand immaterial souls put into man could never have made him live independent of air. There was something real needed to start the machinery of the body, and what was so potent as the oxygen contained in the air? If air is not the cause of life, why the spacious air cells in the lungs? Why should man breathe at all? How beautifully the Scriptures accord with the philosophy and facts in the case. Prof. Youman, the great chemist and philosopher says, "The relation of animals to the atmosphere is of the most direct and vital nature. All the peculiar processes which take place in the animal structure, and which we call life, are set in motion by atmospheric oxygen. Its effect is exerted upon the body through the medium of the respiratory organs. The action of oxygen is exactly of the same nature in all animals......Air enters the lungs, fills and distends the numberless little air-cells. The enclosing membrane is overspread with the finest net-work of capillary blood vessels. Penetrating the membrane, oxygen enters the blood and passes through the arteries to all portions of the body. ......From the foregoing considerations it will be seen that the influence of air is all-controling over the human constitution; it is the first condition of vitality, the immediate impelling power of life. Any one of its elements breathed alone would be fatal; any other proportions would be dangerous, but mingled as they are, how bland, how balmy, how salutary they become! It presses upon us with the weight of tons, bathes the sensitive passages, distends the filmy membranes of the air cells, and flashing through into the blood, it sweeps forward into the inmost depths of the system, corroding and consuming in its progress the living parts, and yet with such marvelous delicacy are all these things accomplished that we remain profoundly unconscious of them. Science has shown that there is a deep life-import in the never-ceasing rythmic movements of inspiration and expiration, but it can add nothing to the simple grandeur of the primeval statement that the Creator 'breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul.' "

Force is never lost although it be convertible. Heat is a force. All chemical change is attended by heat which may readily be changed to galvanism or electricity as Groves' experiment clearly demonstrates. Vital force is produced by chemical change in two ways, first by the food, second by the air and blood, thus furnishing the electrical conditions to which life is due. The oxygen of the air readily unites by chemical affinity with the carbon of the blood in the lungs and various tissues of the body, thus exciting heat and electricity consequently life. Let the air be shut off from man or the other animals, and what is the result? Life ceases; and why? For no other reason than that the cause of life has been removed. If man possesses a superadded intelligent, immaterial, indestructible and immortal soul which is the cause of life, could not the body live on, even though respiration had ceased? Facts are against that hypothesis as well as the Bible. To believe that nugatory proposition requires too much assumption. Truth is simple, and facts are eloquent. Revelation requires no such inordinate credulity. Philosophy speaks of the phenomena and relations of real substances. It assumes nothing but present facts from which to reason, while the theory of the soul does not, nor can it furnish us with a single fact. Could such fact be furnished, even then propriety would suggest that proof is needed to show that it is the cause of life. There is no difference in the life possessed by the different animals. Do not all animals live? If it is necessary for man to have a soul in order to live, is it not just as necessary for all other living things to have a soul? That man is superior to the rest of creation is true, but his superiority over the rest of the animal creation is to be found, not in the fact that he has a soul, but in the lofty position the Creator assigned him in the scale of existence. Had God made any other animal superior to man, surely it would have been above him, but man was made superior to the rest, and to inquire why God thus created him is to question this wisdom in the arrangement of the scale of life. From the smallest and most insignificant infusoria to intelligent man we see a gradual ascending scale, and if we suppose man to possess an immortal and invisible soul because he is the highest in the great chain of animal life, the horse would have possessed one had God finished the creation with him. In this system we have but to suppose that creation ended with the monkey, he being highest, therefore, would possess a soul. In like manner we could stop with any one as we ascend and thus furnish a soul to the highest, no matter where it ends. However significant and important the air may be as the primary cause of life, it is not the only cause. Air would be inadequate to produce life unless it could act upon or through some agent. The intimate relation in which the blood and air are placed in the lungs, afford abundant opportunity for osmotic action, and together with the wide range of affinity possessed by oxygen for the constituents of the blood demonstrates the wisdom of the assertion that man became a living soul when God "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life." The blood possesses all elements necessary for chemical action, hence no life without blood, for "the life of all flesh is the blood thereof." Seeing that life is due to material causes, and not to an immaterial soul, we shall be prepared in our next to inquire after the soul.

A. J. Eychaner, in Herald of the Kingdom.

John Ruskin has never been ranked among the so called temperance fanatics, but few ever used stronger language than he in the following: "Drunkenness is not only the cause of crime, but it is a crime, and if any encourage drunkenness for the sake of the profit derived from the sale of drink, they are guilty of a form of moral assassination as criminal as any that has been practiced by the bravos of any country or age."

Christians who boast that they have no fighting against the flesh and the devil, may rest assured they are far from the cross.

[illegible] STAFF:
[illegible] of the C. P. Association.
[illegible] JOSLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 6, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

THE article on "The Philosophy and Revelation of Man," from an esteemed brother, has not spoiled by keeping 23 years; but will richly repay for a careful perusal. *

Politics—what is it? A scrimmage for power in the interest of personal ambition, with a little philanthropy thrown in to gain votes. We cull this definition from an English paper, and think it about right.

As the days come and go and leave their record, it is well to remember that our various actions prove us to be either worthy or unworthy of eternal life, and that our probation will soon be over. Brethren and Sisters all, let us be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." There is no risk about wages in his employ. Heaven's banks cannot fail; its paper is never protested, nor its promise ever discounted.

IN the 10th of John Jesus makes use of a number of natural facts to illustrate spiritual things. "The sheep hear his voice, (the shepherd's voice) and he calleth his own sheep by name and leadeth them out. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him, for they know his voice. And stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him, for they know not the voice of strangers. The Shepherd's voice is what Christ has said for the guidance of men, but in our opinion his voice includes all that previous messengers have said. Besides the words which come from his own lips he refers us to Moses and the prophets and the Psalms, through whom, as we read in Hebrews i. 1, God spake in times past. "If ye believe not his writings (Moses') Now shall ye believe my words?" "The Scriptures cannot be broken." The Scriptures must be fulfilled. Then utterances bind all God's messages to us in one great bundle, collectively they are the voice of the Spirit. *

Our Troubles.

Even earnest and devout children of God often seem to act as if God could not be troubled with anything but big trials, big sources of vexation:—that he must not be troubled with the thousand and one little irritating incidents that occur every day, and cause troubled looks and anxious thoughts and furrowed brows. This is by no means as it should be. None of our trials are too trifling to heed. Great as he is, he is not too great to be mindful of our hardships. Though he remembers we are dust he treats us as his children, and we may be assured that he cannot be indifferent to whatever blackens or brightens the existence of his children. Our earnest advise is to "cast all your care upon him," loved one, "for he careth for you." Don't forget the little word all, for when it says all it means all. Do not show a want of appreciation of your privileges as children—lay hold of them. And by holding to them habitually, you will be certain of their sustaining power in great emergencies. These are troublous times we know; and there are many things to distract the mind, and ruffle the temper; but the Divine recipe is watchfulness and prayer. This is addressed to all, because all have to battle with the flesh, or it will gain the ascendency.

Child of God, there is heavenly help to do the right; to try to do without that help is to slight God's offer, and take the imminent risk of being sucked into the wordly vortex. Having entered by the door, Jesus says to you, as well as his immediate disciples: Lo, I am with always." Who hear fear with such a helper? With such a hand to grasp, and clasp, and strengthen, and sustain, what cause have you for fear? Why, even danger is safety, and sorrow is joy, and labor is rest, and conflict is peace, while we feel the clasp of his all conquering hand." What a tower of strength has the soul that trusts him!

Beloved scattered ones, we are persuading you to hand over to him your petty worries as well as your crushing difficulties, and then, clear above the din and conflict around you will hear the sweet voice of Jesus, saying, "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you;" we apprehend that this was what kept him calm amid all the storms that burst upon him. If you realize that Jesus meant it, when he said, "I am with you always," and that you are always in his hallowed company, it will elevate your thoughts, curb your tongue, quell your passions, purify your affections, ennoble your aspirations, and so quicken the moral perceptions and strengthen faith, that you will pass beyond the clouds and storms to the Paradise beyond. *

Selected.

A Review of the Past Three Months.

[illegible]

To those students of Prophecy, who are looking for the speedy appearing of the Savior, the past three months have been more or less (according to faith and watchfulness) somewhat of an exercise in patience. Because the great European war is delayed, are students and watchers of "the Book," to become dismayed, and filled with fear that "the end is not yet?" (Matt. xxiv.) Not at all; nor do the signs continue even as they were, but daily and hourly, according to the headings of our public press, these signs of the coming storm thicken and intensify in Europe. We behold the German Emperor and his Chancellor fighting with all the imperial force and persuasion for an army appropriation, which will further exhaust the resources of the empire in the hope of deferring the "Inevitable Conflict." We see the Socialists of the same country openly proclaiming in the Reichstag, that William wishes to increase the army because he fears them. The clay thus asserts itself against the iron of lawlessness against monarchy. In France we behold the laboring masses largely socialistic and anarchistic, endeavoring to overthrow the existing government. Clay and iron again mixed, and antagonistic, for Republicanism in France is but nominal.

Spain is in constant dread of Anarchistic upheavals. Italy struggles in the throes of a financial scandal, and Leo the crafty is regaining rapidly temporal power, for the Holy See.

Russia is watching all parties with lynx-like observation, and if opportunity allows will sieze Bulgaria, and the Pamir country; though I believe she will not.

Austria is coquetting with Russia, and is growing weary of the Triple Alliance. The Southern German States are discontented with the Prussian claims; and unrest, uncertainty and apprehension, brood over the whole Continent.

Any day the military volcano may erupt, and the writer believes that it very soon will.

England is fully occupied with an attempt, which if successful, will not only throw the royal population in Ireland under the control of their hereditary enemies, but place the government of that island under the immediate power of Leo the crafty. Home Rule a fact, will also place imperial affairs under the same management.

In America we are having a financial crisis, due to greed for rapid accumulation of wealth, done upon a paper basis, and no one can yet foresee the end, only thoughtful business men do clearly view a semi-reign of terror, if failures continue, manufactories shut down, and thousands upon thousands of men with families are thrown out of employment. Homestead and Buffalo will be light events indeed compared with what may follow. Why? Because it is true that in America respect for law is on the wane.

Lynchings and horrible crimes abound; and the abrogation of law, and the breaking up of business, by illegal methods, and violence, and fraud, have been witnessed by the laboring masses, through the working of the "trusts," so-called, during the past fifteen years. President Cleveland was right in his inaugural when he advocated their suppression. Either this: or revolution and riot. Frightful storms with great loss of life, are reported all over the Union. Divorces multiply, and suicides scarcely excite a remark.

As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the days before the coming of the Son of man. Violence then filled the earth. And it needs but a superficial observer to-day to note the suppressed excitement in all nations and individuals; as well as to realize the universal spread of violence in action, despite the proud boast of our nineteenth century civilization of "Peace and safety."

Cruelty to children in England, to soldiers on the continent, and an increasing carelessness as to the condition of the poor in this country, are self-evident samples of the truth set forth.

The whole of the States in South America, are either fighting or preparing for war; and the Brazilian republic's "life of four years" growth has culminated into a military despotism.

China, Russia, France, Great Britain, are all at the present, discussing the gobbling of Siam by France. We will know the issue probably before this paper appears in print. Four hundred and fifty thousand miners in England expect to strike this week. The Khedive of Egypt is striving with all his little might to make trouble for England, in that country.

One hundred and twenty-six banks have failed throughout America during the two central weeks of July. No one can tell the termination of the financial crash, and men's hearts are failing them for fear.

Railroad accidents through carelessness, fires and fatalities, cyclones, and earthquake disturbances, increase. Formality in religious life is visibly on the increase, and church attendance lessens monthly. Sunday is no longer in America a day of rest and prayer, but chiefly devoted to secular amusement. Dr. Josiah Strong says in "Our Country:" "Immorality and crime also are increasing much more rapidly than church membership. That is, the dangerous and destructive elements are making decidedly greater progress than the conservative. Our churches are growing, our missionary operations extending, our benefactions increasing, and we congratulate ourselves on our progress. But we have only to continue making the same kind of progress long enough, and our destruction is sure."

In a quotation from "Dying at the Top," by Rev. J. W. Clokey, D. D., he says: "The National Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association has sent out a printed statement, in which I find but 5 per cent of the young men throughout the land, are members of the church. That only fifteen out of every hundred attend religious services with any regularity; and that seventy-nine out of every hundred never attend church at all. Of the 5,000,000 young men, in the United States, over 5,000,000, are never, or practically never inside of a Christian church." It is also well known that the increase of the heathen population of the world has been more than quadruple that of Christ in countries, so-called, since 1800, while the increase within Christian communities of "infidelity, spiritualism, theosophy, false philosophies, satisfaction in formalism and ritualism, as well as actual crime, far exceeds the forces working and striving to advance the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus."

Thus "The Apostasy" of 2 Thess. ii. is most emphatically taking place throughout Christendom; many, many of our clergy also are denying the full or plenary inspiration of Scripture.

To the superficial examiner, or one who may be devoting much time and thought to Christian work in particular, but within narrow lines; our world may seem to be progressing in righteousness; but to the student of the Bible, who beholds the preliminary signs, which Scripture states are to precede the second advent of our Lord, all present and fulfilled, or fulfilling, before our eyes, to-day, as well as the actual presence in partial completion, in Christian lands, of "The Apostasy," which is to precede that glorious coming, the future is ominous in the extreme, and their cry necessarily in all truth must be "Behold the Bridegroom cometh." "The Judge standeth at the door." Purify yourselves even as he is pure. Watch! that "Ye not being in darkness," may know the day of his appearing (1 Thess. v.) and thus may we be enabled to meet Him, at His coming. B. O. Kinmore, in [illegible] Herald.

Praise Ye the Lord.

This expression is often used by the Psalmist and there are many portions of his writing which have characterized [illegible] heart traveling [illegible] mountains and [illegible] creation [illegible] The old earth [illegible] and dreary. Yea, she [illegible] of iniquity, [illegible] her borders and [illegible] her soil. But her day of purification by fire is near. Peter declares, "The earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." The Psalmist (David) had imperfections, for he was mortal, yet he had many grand and sublime thoughts which are on record, calculated to [illegible] up and comfort the [illegible] heart. [illegible] morning [illegible] dawn [illegible] faith [illegible] waiting [illegible] coming of Christ.

Some have been long waiting his return with strong faith [illegible] the [illegible] shows, all glory to His blessed name [illegible] family Bible [illegible] in the [illegible] looked for [illegible] dawn, and God's people with the King [illegible] Praise [illegible] who has so accurately marked the tokens in his Word of Jesus' return. We can see its fulfillment plainly in the earth and in the heavens. How can we but [illegible] praise and shout our month [illegible] in saying, "Behold, he cometh, he cometh to judge the earth. He shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth." Shall we fear the foes of our souls? Nay, verily, our leader, the head of the church, the Lord Jesus Christ, declares: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Then let us fear not, for he will bring us home. Praise the Lord.

God took the little shepherd boy to slay the bear and the lion, and then sent him after the monarch of the Philistine host, whom all Israel feared and spoke before. Little David would not accept a military shield to help him, but took a few little pebbles from the brook and his sling. He then let the people know there was a God in Israel. Goliath fell, and David took the lofty man's sword from its sheath, and standing on his body lowered off his head. Trembling one, fear not the face of clay, but fear God and work righteousness and shame the wicked one. Be a valiant one in the cause of your Redeemer. The time has fully come for us to use boldness in preaching Jesus, and to hold fast whereunto God has called and be wise. "For whoso is wise and will observe these things, even they shall understand the loving-kindness of the Lord." Psa. cvii. 43.

We cannot straighten the many mistakes of early life, but we can and must, if we have not already, make an unreserved surrender unto him who has bought us with his own precious blood, whereby we are not our own but belong to Jesus, adopted into the family of the saved. And by patient continuance in well-doing we shall wear the victor's crown when he whose right it is to reign shall come and take his throne. The long promised and long-looked for day is before us. Now shall we stop and dally with these fading things of this old wornout earth, when just before us one is promised where the people will never die. There all are healthy, shining far beyond youthful beauty, made all immortal. My heart responds, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." Praise is comely, and praise is due our God for his manifold grace and glory. O who will let the days go by and heed not the heavenly call. Consider now, ere it be too late. The Master calleth for thee, and soon all will be over and we stand in the judgment. S. [illegible] in Crisis.

Nickel Plate Road again offers special rates to the World's Fair Sept. 11th.

Are there any Signs that the Coming of Christ is Near?

There must be such signs, otherwise the words of Christ would have no meaning, when he spake to his disciples thus, "When ye see these things come to pass, then know that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi. 31.

There are such signs revealed in various parts of the Scriptures. They consist of and are recognizable in certain phases or features of the state of things among men and nations just prior to the appearing of Christ and preparatory for that event. They are:

1. A general state of preparedness for war amongst the nations of the earth.

Proof. "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; prepare war, wake up the mighty men, [illegible] beat your plowshares into swords and your pruninghooks into spears [illegible] the day of the Lord is near." Joel iii. 9, 10, [illegible] "to gather them together to the war of the great day of God Almighty. Behold I come as a thief." (Rev. xvi. 14, 15.)

2. A great increase of knowledge of all sorts, accompanied with much traveling.

Proof. "Seal the book, even to the time of the end. Many shall run to and fro and knowledge shall be increased." (Dan. xii. 4.)

3. Decline and overthrow of the Turkish empire as a preparation for Israel's return to their land.

Proof. "The great river Euphrates (symbolical of the power owning that river at the time of the end, viz., Turkey) and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east may be prepared." (Rev. xvi. 12.) "At the time of the end . . . the king of the north shall come against him like a whirlwind with chariots and with horsemen and with many ships and he shall enter into the countries and shall overflow and pass over. He shall enter also into the glorious land (now in the occupation of Turkey.)" (Dan. xi. 40, 41.)

4. Recovery of Palestine from its long desolation of generations, and partial resettlement of the Jews in the midst of the land.

Proof. "In the latter years, thou (the northern invader) shall come into the land that is brought back from the sword and is gathered out of many people against the mountains of Israel which have been always waste, but it is brought forth out of the nations and they shall dwell safely all of them. . . . the land of unwalled villages . . . the desolate places now inhabited . . . the people gathered out of the nations which have gotten cattle and goods and dwell in the midst of the land." Ezek. xxxviii. 8, 11, 12.

5. Disappearance of the Pope's temporal power over Christendom, and the consumption of his dominion.

Proof. "And he (the priest-monarch of the Roman system symbolized by the Little Horn with eyes on the fourth or Roman beast seen by Daniel in vision) shall speak great words against the Most High and shall wear out the saints of the Most High and think to change times and laws, and they shall be given unto his hand for time, times-and-a-half (literally, 1260 days, standing for years) but the judgment shall sit and they shall take away his dominion to consume and destroy it unto the end." Dan. vii. 25, 26. "There was given him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies, and power was given unto him to make war forty and two months" (42x30 equals 1260 days or years. (Rev. xiii. 5).

6. The preponderance and imperial aggrandizement of Russia in the capacity of protector of certain nationalities in Europe and Asia.

Proof. Gog, Prince of Rosh (Russia, wrongly translated chief in the English version). Meshech (Muscovy) and Tubal (Tobolsky) I will bring thee forth with all thine army . . . Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them, . . . Gomer and all his band, and the house of Togarmah of the north quarters and all his bands, and many people with thee. Be thou prepared . . . Be thou a guard unto them . . . It shall be in the latter days." (Ezek. xxxviii. 3, 7, 16). See also Dan. xi. 40, 45.

There are certain other signs, but space here does not allow of their notice. There is only room to ask and briefly answer the question which naturally arises in reference to this exhibition of the signs.

IS THIS THE TIME?

Is this the time in the world's history when these signs are to be looked for? The answer is yes, for these reasons: they belonged to "the time of the end" (Dan. xi. 40). The time of the end has been appointed (Dan. viii. 19). The "end" in the case of the end of certain days (Dan. 12). The days represent years (Ezek. iv. 6.) shows the fulfilment of the seventy weeks' prophecy in Dan. ix. 24-26. The years represented in these cases are expired, viz: the 1260 years of Papal ascendancy, dating from A. D. 610, and the 2300 years of Israelitish downtreading, dating from the apex of the Persian power—see the vision of the ram and goat Dan. viii. Therefore we are in "The time of the end," and are justified in looking for the appointed signs of the Lord's return and they are all fully developed before the eyes of such as are able to discern.

"Blessed is he that watcheth." Jesus. Bible Finger Post.

Conference Report.

According to announcement, the Church of God, of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana, held the Annual Conference at Pleasant View, in Warren Co. Ind., beginning on Thursday evening, August 24 1893, and continuing over the following Sunday. Visitors from Argos, [illegible], Macy, Chicago, Wellington, Russell's Mills, Rensselaer, Rochester and LaFayette were present, and helped to make the meeting a success.

Ministers present were: S. T. Cook of Reese's Mills; J. F. Wagoner of Rochester; N. H. Geiselman of Argos; J. L. Wince of Pierceton; J. E. Conner of Macy; all of whom took part in the preaching.

The business meeting was held on Saturday afternoon, and the Secretary being absent, Harry Evans was elected Secretary, pro tem. The minutes of the last meeting were read. Brother Conner corrected the number of accessions received by him from 21 to 28, and they were approved as corrected.

The treasurer's report showed:

Previously reported	$190.00
Amount received	6.32
Amount paid out	16.00
On hand	181.22

The report was accepted as read.

The election of officers resulted in the reelection of all the officers: J. F. Wagoner Pres., J. L. Wince Vice-president, A. C. Roberts Secy, [illegible] Boggs, Treasurer.

The following resolution introduced by Bro. Conner and discussed by Brethren Geiselman, Conner, Wince, Evans, and Railsback, was carried. Resolved: That we favor the organization of a "Young People's Society of Loyal Workers," and recommend that the question be considered at our next conference to be held in Plymouth in November. Business meeting adjourned.

The entire series of meetings were full of interest and an enjoyable time was had by all in attendance. The preaching was exceptionally good and we trust that the "Light of Gospel Truth" which they held up may guide many into the harbor of safety.

At the close of the Sunday night meeting two sisters manifested a desire to go with us to the Kingdom of God, and were baptized by Bro. Conner on Monday morning. May they ever walk circumspectly before Him, and at last have a place in that Kingdom which we believe is near at hand.

HARRY EVANS,
Sec'y., Pro. Tem.

Choice of trains on the Nickel Plate Road's excursion to the World's Fair Sept. 11th. Superb new Service on the Nickel Plate Road. Rates as low as ever.

If thou art little, press to Him because thou art little; if thou art wearied, lean against him because thou art wearied. Art thou strong? exult in thy strength, and call him with all thy heart, "Father." But let nothing thrust thee from him. Pusey.

The time to visit the Fair is now. The Nickel Plate Road will run a low rate excursion Sept. 11th. Three trains in each direction daily.

Christ's Call for Present Activity.

"Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh the harvest? Lift up your eyes, and look upon the fields, for they are white already to harvest." John iv. 35. In these words Jesus sought to impress upon the minds of his disciples the importance of immediate activity on their part in the work he had given them to do. They had been sent to reap, but dallied on the plea that the harvest was not ripe. Probably they intended to reap at some time, but were not ready for the work just now. One excuse after another came up to procrastinate their work. These disciples did not differ much in this respect from people nowadays. Many well-meaning Christians think they will do something for the cause of Christ, but are waiting for opportunities to do something great, not being willing to do the little things. Others wish to do something, but cannot seem to do the work that is before them every hour. To do the first thing that comes to hand, is the way to labor successfully for any cause. No matter what the work may be, the present is the time to do it. Jesus so teaches in his lesson before us.

His reference to the condition of the fields is full of meaning. When the fields are white labor must be bestowed upon them or much of the harvest will be lost. The same law holds good in moral life. The church must gather in souls to-day or the harvest will be diminished just as the natural harvest is lessened by standing in the field beyond the appointed time. Figuratively speaking, the fields are white. Sinners are becoming anxious about their soul's eternal welfare. Men's hearts are failing them, and every Christian fails in doing his or her duty. There are scores of people in every community who are waiting for a personal invitation from friends to come to Christ. A "God bless you" and a cordial hand-shake would often prove more helpful to some discouraged one than the most gifted exhortation or prayer. There is work enough for each one to do. Opportunities for doing good confront us everywhere. Speak to some fellow-traveler about his eternal salvation. Visit the homes of the poor and the distressed, and there tell the story of the cross. With a little work on the part of each one of God's children great results might be wrought. The prodigal might return and the lost sheep be found. Some say they are not able to do much of anything for their Master. Don't mind about that. The weakest has no valid excuse for idleness. The command is, "Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive." The promised reward is indeed great. "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."
Henry G. Drew, in Crisis.

If there be a thorn in the foot, the back boweth, the head stoopeth down, the eyes look, the hand reaches to it, and attempts its relief; in a word, all the members partake of the good and evil with one another. "So, then, we are members one of another."

Nickel Plate Road excursion to the World's Fair Sept. 11th. One fare.

The letters that spell rights are the letters that spell duties. Beecher.

Take the Nickel Plate Road's excursion to the World's Fair Sept. 11th.

Duty comes to us as something hard, and we shrink from it. No one is a large man if he does not feel that his duty is larger than himself. McKenzie.

Heavy East Bound Travel.

On account of growth of eastbound business, the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate a new through express on Sunday, Sept. 3rd. Palace Sleepers Chicago to Buffalo and direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

One fare excursion to Chicago via the Nickel Plate Road Sept. 11th. Choice of trains. Superb new service.

Poetry.

The Crowning Day.

The crowning day is coming,
When our blessed King and Lord
Will come in power and glory,
All his servants to reward;
Those who long have waited for him,
And have made their garments white,
Will have fellowship with Jesus,
And are walking in the light.

Yes, the crowning day is coming,
When the lame will leap for joy;
The deaf ones then will music hear,
And the dumb their tongues employ.
The [illegible] ones, who have never seen
The wonders of their God,
Will [illegible] with delight will view
[illegible] spread abroad,

Yes, the crowning day is coming,
When the rightful David's Heir
Will take the throne and Kingdom
[illegible] the earth redeemed and fair.
[illegible] all the seed of Abraham
Will then the land possess,
And every knee to Jesus bow,
And every tongue confess.

All that day is swiftly coming,
When the shadows all will flee;
Not a cloud or gloom and darkness,
Nevermore will sorrow be.
There we'll bask in Eden's sunlight,
Drinking endless pleasures in,
Saved in glory, then forever
Free from the blighting power of sin.

Soon, our blessed Christ is coming —
What a soul-inspiring thought!
Coming to redeem his loved ones
That his precious blood has bought,
All his jewels, special treasures,
That are hidden under ground,
How they'll burst the bars asunder
When the seventh trump shall sound.

Oh that crowning day is coming,
Yes, the time is drawing nigh,
When dear friends will meet in glory,
And they'll never say good-bye.
Oh! how sweet will be the greeting
On that resurrection morn;
What a blessed day of meeting
When a nation will be born.

Yes, the day of light is coming,
When no longer will the pure
Look as through a window darkened
Toward the future, now obscure;
But will gaze with clearest vision
On the glories now in store,
When they reach that world of splendor
On that grand immortal shore.

—G. L. Fee.

Original.

The Two Covenants.

"And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone." Deut. iv. 13.

"And Moses called all Israel and said unto them, Hear O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them and keep and do them. The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, who are all of us alive this day." Deut. v. 1-2-3.

We find the ten commandments called a covenant. The Sabbath given in this covenant was not given to their fathers. Seventh Day Adventists admit this to be the first covenant, which they call his law, in Ex. xx. 3-17. Bible Readings, page 312 and 313.

Hear the prophet Jeremiah,— "Behold the day is come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the House of Israel, and with the House of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith the Lord." Jer. xxxi. 31-32.

How is it Paul? But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises, for if that first covenant had been faultless, (ten commandments covenant) then should no place have been sought for the second." Heb. viii. 6-7. "For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: (not in tables of stone) 10th verse. In that he saith, a new covenant he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away. Verse 13, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, chap. xii. 24.

Jesus is not the mediator of the first or old covenant, but when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, or first covenant, that we might receive the adoptions of sons. Gal. iv. 4-5.

"My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you. I desire to be present with you now, and to change my voice; for I stand in doubt of you. Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law? For it is written, that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a free woman. But he who was of the bondwoman was born after the flesh: but he of the free woman was by promise. Which things are an allegory: for these are the two covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar." Gal. iv. 19-20-21-22-23-24.

So, then, brethren, we are not children of the bondwoman but of the free, verse 31.

"Stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." Gal. v. 1.

"Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ manifested by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart. And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward." 2 Cor. iii. 3-4. "Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away;" verses 6-7. "And not as Moses, which put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not steadfastly look to the end of that which is abolished:" But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old testament (or covenant) which vail is done away in Christ. But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is upon their heart. Nevertheless, when it (ten commandment keepers) shall turn to the Lord, the vail (or blindness) shall be taken away." Verses 13-14-15-16.

It seems to us, this is very plain. We find in Deut. iv. 12-13 the ten commandments called a covenant. This must be the first, or old covenant. Seventh Day Advents say it is. Any way it was a part of it, and no getting out of it, and it waxeth old and ready to vanish away, which Paul says is done away and abolished. I know what it is to get the vail partly on. Lord pity those who get it wholly on. I have played all around the dark pit, for awhile one foot in, but when I would reach up to Paul he would pull me out. Sabbath keepers, (breakers) cannot prove sabbath-keeping obligatory on us, and keep clear of the old ten commandments covenant, which was faulty, which gave cause for the new, or better promises.

M. L. Adams.

Dear Restitution:

We are reminded so often of the extreme shortness of this present life and the necessity of most earnest work while the day lasts, for soon the night cometh wherein no man can work. Wife and I were invited by the Grand Army boys last Decoration day to speak for them, as we had done several times before, and to lend a helping hand in scattering flowers on soldier's graves in remembrance of our heroic dead who gave their lives for their country. Then soon after we were invited to go about one hundred miles from home to deliver the memorial address for the Odd Fellows in remembrance of their beloved dead, so we were reminded, the king of terrors the greatest enemy of humanity, no rank, society or wealth is exempt, the law that consigns us to the tomb is inexorable. No appeal for relief from the law that consigns us to the grave and the thousand million that tread the earth to-day will pass away like the footprints on the sand, the flowers we scatter with human hands on mortal graves. O how soon they wither and die. Where are the graves of the prophets, where are the graves of the martyrs forgotten by men, but not one forgotten by the loving Master, who said I am the resurrection and the life. Our heavenly Father has been marshalling and drilling his own elect who have cried unto him day and night. He has heard every groan, watched every tear, millions have given their lives in the awful conflict of the ages. They have fought and died in hope of a better resurrection for an undying crown, for a kingdom that cannot be moved. Can we say with our beloved Sister Winer, we have sold all to buy the field, an eternal home in the new earth. No halfhearted work will answer the Master. May our sacrifices and offerings be complete and acceptable when the Master comes to make up the final account. Remember the great Captain has no deserters. Every one must keep step, no faltering in his army, he that will save his life shall lose it. Remember if we get the prize we must fight for it, remember we must give all diligence, it will take all to buy the field, but if we win we may pluck not the fading flowers with mortal hands but the unfading flowers from life's fair tree and walk amid the groves of Eden made fragrant with the perfume of undying flowers and drink from the river of life, and behold the city of our God, and bask in the light of an endless day, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain. Then in view of this glorious state let us pray. Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

Yours striving to overcome,
B. W. Woodward.

Editor Restitution:

In Saint Paul's day he was in the habit in his letters to the brethren to give some of his experience, so here goes a little of mine. I once enjoyed the privelege of being enclosed in a sheep cote, but the shepherd being stronger than I caused me to be pushed under the fence because I could not swallow and digest all that was handed out as meat in due season. Nevertheless in my humble and isolated situation, I have not been left without wholesome and palatable food to satisfy my hunger and thirst after righteousness. Although without religious association of any kind, the Bible my daily companion has given me nourishment and strength to bear my affliction, weakness and reproach: and raise me a little above myself, my greatest enemy.

I am glad and thankful that The Restitution of late has shown more liberality towards those who hold with me on the subject of the coming antichrist. Where charity prevails, discussion may be profitable. Difference of opinion among us on so many Bible subjects is so great that one may ask the question, Who (if any) are now being led by the one spirit? The promise was that He should lead Christ's disciples into "all truth," that is, I conclude the truth on all Bible subjects therein stated, as things that must come to pass. I for one must conclude that not a few of us must have been led either by our own spirit or some teacher in our search for the Truth, else why so much difference of opinion. Brethren the time is short and precious; let us love one another.

J. D. Sheridan.

Dear Restitution:

You will find enclosed the money for one years subscription for the paper.

I am quite rejoiced to know that there are some who believe in the promises of God made unto his children. Who have believed and accepted Christ our Redeemer, who has promised to give us eternal life at his coming. Glory to His Holy Name, for we shall see Him for ourselves, and not for another. When we shall be glorified and live rejoicing every day. When we shall have the pleasure of the company of the glorified saints. When all who are striving daily to deceive in all their dealings one with another, will be done away with. When we shall behold Him who suffered for our sins, and we shall behold the King in His Beauty.

When I go into the churches and hear their ministers miss-quote Scripture to make what they call, an intelligent audience, believe lies, it makes me tremble. Sometimes I have a mind to take up my hat and walk out of the church. I asked a Methodist Minister some weeks ago, how he could say the Lord's Prayer and not believe in it? He said, I often think of it, for the prayer was spoken by the Lord to instruct His disciples. He admitted that he could not get over it.

William Ivey.

Selected.

Jerusalem.

If you are of the popular temper, you will feel no interest in the subject of Jerusalem. Nay, worse, you will make sport of it, and pour ridicule on those who introduce it to your notice.

But if you are of the uncommon temper of those who do not only professedly accept the Bible as the Word of God, but carry out that profession, in the daily study of the Bible, that it may be understood, and thoroughly received into the mind, in its light and comfort, you will be greatly interested in the subject of Jerusalem.

Perhaps you say: "I am as much a believer of the Bible as you: but I do not see why I should be interested in Jerusalem." Think again: read again: and perhaps you may not only feel interested in Jerusalem, but come to see that you must be interested in her, in order to be well-pleasing to God.

1. Jerusalem is the place which God chose to place His name there (Deut. xii. 11; 2 Chron. vi. 6.)

Is not this a circumstance that would make every friend of God feel an interest in it—even if nothing more were to come of it? "A mere historic interest?" you say. Oh, much more than that. However, we pass on to what you may feel to be weightier.

2. Jerusalem is the city of Christ. "Thy King cometh unto thee" is the language of prophecy addressed to Jerusalem (see Zec. ix. 9; Matt. xxi. 1-7). Because Jerusalem was his city, he forbad his friends to swear by it (see Matt. v. 35). If the city was so sacred in Christ's estimation, as to lead him to prohibit his disciples from the familiar use of its name, ought it not to have a place in your reverence and affection? You say, "sentimentally, perhaps." Come closer, and your feelings on the subject will grow stronger.

3. The manifestation of the glory of God upon earth in the coming day appointed (when the glory of Yahweh shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea), is associated with the future of Jerusalem. Proof:

"Be glad and rejoice forever in that which I create: for behold I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her nor the voice of crying." (Isa. lxv. 18).

4. Jerusalem, now down-trodden and in affliction with her children, is divinely assured of happier days in God's word of prophecy. Proof:

"Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins." (Is. xl. 2).

"Awake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury. . . . Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city; for henceforth, there shall no more come unto thee the uncircumcised and the unclean. Shake thyself from the dust; arise and sit down O Jerusalem; loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion. (Is. li. 17; lii. 1-2).

Jesus says: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." (Luke xxi. 24.) Can you be indifferent to a consummation foreshown in the prophets and recognised and emphasized by Jesus in this way? If so, what say you to the next proposition?

5. If you are to have any part in the salvation God has promised, it will be as a lover of Jerusalem and in connection with her restored glory in the Holy Land. Proof:

"Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her all ye that love her. Rejoice for joy with her all ye that mourn for her, that ye may suck and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations: that ye may milk out and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. For thus saith the Lord, Behold I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream: then shall ye suck: ye shall be upon her sides, and be dandled upon her knees. As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you: and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. And when ye see this, your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb; and the hand of the Lord shall be known towards his servants, and his indignation towards his enemies." (Isa. lxvi. 10-14).

6. At that time, the throne of Jehovah shall be established in Jerusalem. Proof:

"At the time, they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord." (Jer. iii. 17).

"The Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem." (Is. xxiv. 23).

7. The divine glory will thenceforth be established in Jerusalem for ever. Proof:

"The name of the city from that day shall be, the Lord is there."

"Thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down. Not one of the stakes thereof shall ever be removed." (Is. xxxiii. 20.)—Bible Finger Post.

The Humble Poor.

There are many little deeds of kindness that Christians should watch for an opportunity to bestow upon the poor and needy. You can look around you on every hand and find some that are poor and lonely, working hard to get an honest living, patiently waiting for some change to take place that will bring joy and gladness to their sorrowing hearts. You can read the very expression of sadness upon their countenances. They are not hard to find, nearly every village has one or more. If your village is free from the humble poor, just visit the alms-house and see what you can find.

Did you ever stop and think that the poor were the chosen people of God, poor in this world but rich in faith? How Jesus loved them, fed them, healed their sick, raised their dead to life again. They believed him then, they believe him to day. They mean the kingdom of God, and he has promised it to them, for he said, "The meek shall inherit the earth." It is very evident to all that they do not possess it now, but are earnestly longing, patiently waiting, and prayerfully watching for the great judgment day, when every one, both great and small, rich and poor, humble and proud, will receive their just reward.

How a few kind words spoken at the right time and in the right place will cheer the weary one. A pleasant smile or a hand-shake will do them good if it is well seasoned with love. Perhaps the oil in the cruse or the meal in the barrel needs replenishing, and a little help in that direction would be well. The Savior says, "Let him that hath two coats give one to him that hath none," or words to that effect. Have we taken an account of the stock in our wardrobe lately? The Word says, it is better to give than to receive. If we give in the right way we get a blessing every time. But, alas, how often we give to them that have a plenty, that we may also receive a gift, instead of looking for the recompense at the resurrection of the just.

I believe that if Christian people would pay more attention to the deserving poor, the Lord would bless them a hundred fold every time. Jesus says, "Feed my Lambs." Are we complying with the command? May the dear Lord help us to be faithful and do every known duty, and at last hear the Master say, "Even as ye have done it unto the least of these my little ones ye have done it unto me. Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."—Chas. E. Haynes, in Crisis.

Excursion to the Worlds Fair via the popular Nickel Plate Road Sept. 11th. Choice of trains. One fare for the round trip.

Growing.

The Nickel Plate Road will on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, increase their train service by the addition of a new though east bound train by merging the Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Buffalo accommodation trains into a new through express with sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo. Other important changes. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

The Compassion of Christ.

It is a boundless subject. The proofs of his compassion are endless, running through the whole period of his public ministry. Compassion seems stamped on his every act; it is in the element in which he lived; and shines bright in all he did and said; no matter where we turn in the history of his public life; the circumstances may vary, but the stamp of compassion is ever there. It breathed out his words to the fallen woman, "Go and sin no more." Who can measure the depths of tenderness in the words, "Weep not" as addressed to the sorrowful widow of Nain. Spoken by some one else they might wound instead of heal, but coming from him, they are balm to the wounded spirit. "Weep not!" why weep not? Because I will restore your lost one. "Young man I say unto thee arise." Sympathy embodied in action! The tears he shed at the grave of Lazarus are not confined to those immediately concerned, they come down to us as well, full of potency to comfort and console. His tears, his pangs, his groans, his entreaties, his prayers, his promises, all testify to the boundlessness and intensity of his sympathy. His forbearance towards his enemies, his tenderness to his disciples, his yearnings for the obdurate dwellers in Jerusalem when he wept over the doomed city, and his last prayer, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do," all go to testify to this one, leading, prominent feature in his life. The history of his life might be condensed in this one word Compassion; Divine Sympathy.

And when week after week we come around this table to commemorate his dying love, let us remember his words spoken on the night when he instituted the memorial supper. "This is my commandment that ye love one another, as I have loved you," John xv. 12. And the words of Peter, to whom the charge was given, "Feed my lambs." "Finally be ye all of one mind having compassion one of another. Love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous." He had compassion on the ignorant, and taught them many things; compassion on their sickness, and healed them; compassion on the lost and gave his life to redeem them, and the saddest thing of all is that all this love and sympathy is slighted, and Christ has to say to-day as of old, "Ye will not come to me and have life," John v. 40. And we should little exemplify his spirit were we content to meet around this board on the first day of every week, wrap the mantle of indifference around us, as if the number of called out ones were complete, and make no effort to raise the fallen, and instruct the ignorant. If we do forget some things let us not forget Christ's compassion on the blind and ignorant, and do all in our power for their instruction and enlightenment, and pray God to bless our efforts, and having done so, we can then the better enjoy this family gathering, conscious of having done our duty to the Stranger and the Alien,—remembering that in time past we were of their number, and not forgetting God's command to ancient Israel, "Love ye therefore the stranger, for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt." Deut. x. 19. —R. McLauchlan, in Truth.

It is a pleasure to note the addition of another through train to the already competent train service of the Nickel Plate Road. It will leave Chicago about 8:30 a. m. and reach Buffalo at 3 or 4 the following morning. Through sleepers Chicago to Buffalo. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

A single bee, with all its industry, energy, and innumerable journeys it has to perform, will not collect more than a single teaspoonful of honey in a single season, yet the total weight of honey taken from a single hive is often from sixty to one hundred pounds. A profitable lesson to man of great results from united labor.

The superb new train service, of the Nickel Plate Road is at the disposition of patrons of their World's Fair low rate excursion Sept 11th.

DIED.

Died, August 13th, 1893, at Central Lake, Antrim Co. Mich., of paralysis, Sister Eunice Sweet, aged 80 years.

She was the mother-in-law of Bro. Henry Chamberlain with whom she had lived for a long time. She was born in 1806 near Utica, N. Y. The name of her parents was Greenman. She was married in 1831 to Nelson Sweet, moved to Sandusky, O., in 1836.

Four years ago Bro. Chamberlain requested me to come to his place, nearly 200 miles north of this city (Grand Rapids) and baptize his mother. She never had joined any church, but with the help of her son-in-law and The Restitution she had learned and believed the "Gospel of Salvation," and "the Gospel of the Kingdom," and desired to be baptized for "the remission of sins."

Since her baptism, she has sought the future glory, honor, and immortality by a patient continuance in well-doing, trusting the promise of eternal life at the first resurrection.

At her funeral on the 15th of August, her many friends gathered to show their respect to the deceased, and hear the one hope of the Christian calling that she had cherished. I had answered the telegram by hastening to the place to explain that hope to the people, and to comfort the mourners with the same inspired words of promise that the apostles used to comfort the afflicted Christians in their day. I hope the divine word spoken will open the eyes of at least some who heard it, and that there will be a re-union of the entire family in the Kingdom of God.

E. Hoyt.

Charles H. Moore, born March 22, 1828, in North Bradley, Wilts, England, died August 9th, 1893, in Byron township, Kent Co., Mich., in the sixty-sixth year of his age.

Bro. Moore embraced the faith and was baptized by the writer about 17 years ago and has ever since been an ardent lover of the truth. No tongue can describe his horrible agony for many years, caused from a fever sore which finally poisoned his blood, terminating in death. He leaves a widow, nine children and many other relatives and friends who will greatly miss his counsels and kind words. No truer neighbor and friend than he, no husband and father ever loved his family better. O how their hearts ache at this work of the enemy.

Several of his family have embraced the gospel faith and we can pray as he often did that the rest may soon see the beauty of a saving hope, that when the father comes again from the land of the enemy, they may all meet in that glad gathering.

The funeral sermon was preached by the writer to a large and attentive audience. Text Heb. ix. 27. Bro. Moore was a member of the Odd Fellows' order which performed the opening and closing ceremonies.

B. W. Woodward.

Little Scott Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa O. Ross, was born Dec. 12, 1892. Died Aug. 20, 1893, aged 8 months, and 8 days.

This was the only child. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.

N. H. Geiselman.

Eli W. Deemer was born in Hancock Co., Ohio, August 10, 1836. He was married to Sallie Brown, Oct. 27, 1859. Died August 21, 1893, aged 57 years, and 11 days.

He was a great sufferer for several years with a cancer on his face. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn his loss, besides many other relatives and friends. He was a good husband and father. Funeral services by the writer.

N. H. Geiselman.

New Through Train.

The Nickel Plate Road announces that commencing Sunday, Sept. 3rd, Train No. 4, running between Chicago and Cleveland, and No. 8 running between Cleveland and Buffalo, will be merged into a continuous through train, leaving Chicago about 5:30 a. m. and reaching Buffalo between three or four o'clock the following morning.

The equipment of this train will embrace standard smoking and day coaches and sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo for all points east.— Sept. 27.

[illegible] and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here, so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

P. H. BOCK.

The Eighth Annual Conference, of the Church of God in Nebraska, will convene (the Lord willing) in the beautiful natural park at Cambridge, Furnas Co., Neb., Sept. 15, and continue in session ten days.

Everything considered this is the best location that can be found in this part of the country.

Brethren the success of this meeting depends largely on you. Will you lay aside your work and the cares of this life, and come and enjoy a week of pleasant, social intercourse with us?

Since we met one year ago, a great change has taken place in this country. A change that signifies in unmistakable terms the proximity of Gentile rule. It becomes necessary, therefore, that we meet together and by prayer, and exhortation strengthen each other, for these "perilous times."

We urge all who intend to camp on the grounds, to provide themselves with tents. Those who wish to buy one should notify the President, Almus Adams, as early as Sept. 5th, and it will be on the ground [illegible] you by the 15th, at which time settlement can be made.

A well of good water is on the ground. Hay will be provided for teams. Those unacquainted in Cambridge should inquire the direction to the Park at the flouring mills, or the corner store.

We say again, come in the Spirit and endeavor to do valuable service for the Master.

Bro. Geo. Moyer, of Iowa, will be with us to preach the Word.

J. J. CADY, SEC'Y.

To the Brethren of "like precious faith," greeting:

It will be noticed that the Church of God, known as the Northern Nebraska and Southern Dakota Conference, will hold their next annual conference near Carns, at the Rock Creek School House in Rock County, Nebraska, commencing Sept. 23, 1893.

All the brothers and sisters of the Abrahamic Faith are especially called to meet with us at this time. Come, brethren, one and all, as we see the signs of the times nearing upon us we believe truly that this age is drawing to a close.

WM. H. DEMSON, SEC'Y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Morish, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Grant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. HATCH.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Commencing July 23rd the L. E. & W. R. R., will sell tickets to Chicago and return via Michigan City and the Lake at $2.00. Tickets good going on any regular train, and good returning until Oct. 31st 1893.

What Kind of "Church of God" is This?

In "Our Hope" an "Advent Christian" paper, a correspondent writes: "I met Bro. Prenett, battling with the enemy. He has been preaching the A. C. faith about eight months. He was converted under my preaching about two years ago, when he was connected with the so-called "Church of God" and they cast him aside for fearlessly declaring the resurrection and the sleep of the dead, for he loves the truth better than sectisms."

The supporters of THE RESTITUTION belong chiefly to "Churches of God;" but they cannot be those referred to, for they would not "cast aside" any one for the reason given.

Can the Editor or any correspondent, throw some light on this matter? If there are two bodies of people, one called "The Church of God," and another composed (more Scripturally) of "Churches of God,"—that is local churches so named—is there no way of distinguishing those who "cast aside" the preacher in question from the others?

QUERY.

[This probably refers to the so-called "Church of God" the organization of which is accorded to Elder John Winebrenner, formerly of the Old German Reformed Church, and dates back to 1830, with origin near Harrisburgh, Pa. —ED.]

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millsdaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Travelling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.80. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.65.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania lines, or J. E Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

To the Mountain and Ocean Resorts.

The advantages peculiar to the Pennsylvania Lines make them the desirable thoroughfares to Bedford Springs, Altoona, Ebensburg, or any of the delightful summer havens in the cool Allegheny Mountains. By no other route can Cresson, the ideal retreat on the crest of that romantic mountain range be reached, as the Pennsylvania is the only line direct to it and the only one leading past the Pack Saddle and the Allegrippus, round the famous Horse Shoe Curve and along the Blue Juniata, the richest of America's scenic gems. For reaching Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Sea Girt, Elberon, Ocean Beach, Berkeley, Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or any of the numerous watering places that dot the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Maine these lines are particularly desirable. For a trip to the Adirondacks, the Catskills and resorts in Northeastern New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, exceptional facilities for a delightful journey are offered via this direct route. For detailed information please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $108.78

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Cheplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas.
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sirclevill[illegible], Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

Tourist Tickets to Cool Retreats in the Lake Region.

Tourist tickets to resorts in Northern Michigan and the Lake Region are now for sale at reduced rates via Pennsylvania Lines from all principal ticket stations on this desirable route. The return limit will be valid during the season. For details please apply to your nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank-draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

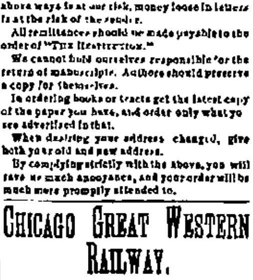
We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Set[illegible] for wide distribution. 1. The [illegible] and Kingdom of Christ, by [illegible] 1869. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nuggets of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 20 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c, 50 for 25c; [illegible]; 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By R. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, [illegible] the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe, a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. [illegible]. The above is the title of a 16 page tract. Price 5 cts. each, 12 for 50 cts., [illegible] for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scripture, together with [illegible] upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, editors, lex[illegible] and [illegible], price 5c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a [illegible]. Can be had at this office [illegible].

The Gospel of Christ Notwithstanding the Traditions of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 32 pages, by W. D. Dillon, of [illegible] City, [illegible] strong appeal to thinking people. It shows the [illegible] about the New Heavens and New Earth. Send 10 cents for a copy postpaid or eight copies for $1.00.

The Hel[illegible] of A I. T[illegible] [illegible].

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary, [illegible] with 776 pages, price $2.50.

JESUS CHRIST, His Paternity, [illegible] Nature [illegible]. 100 pages, [illegible] Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott, B. Wilson. [illegible] with an Interlineary [illegible] translation, [illegible] Vatican Manuscripts, [illegible] explanatory foot notes [illegible].

The Concordant [illegible] with an introduction [illegible].

Cruden's [illegible] Concordance, [illegible] price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's [illegible] Greek [illegible]. By Wiley Jones. [illegible] pages, Cloth bound, for 10cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. [illegible] The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the [illegible] an Appendix [illegible]. This work contains 200 pages, cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 100 pages neatly printed and bound, one will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 5 for 60 cents; 12 for $1.00; 50 for $5.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 156 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 500 hymns. To this is added 51 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cts. per copy; 4 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $3.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and Adam's Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 363 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about sixty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. O. Moncrief. We have received an invoice of the new book of 133 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 304 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 75 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meaning of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 24 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 455 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and search the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1245 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of the Blessed Hope, No. [illegible] Spring Garden St., Philadelphia. [illegible] Sunday [illegible].

The [illegible] Church has changed its place of [illegible]. They now occupy the Van Buren Hall, located in the corner of Madison street and [illegible] Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock every Sunday. Visiting Brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings [illegible].

[illegible]

Local Time Table.

[illegible] Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 21,	Passenger,	Leaves	11 16pm
No. 23,	"	"	[illegible]
No. 25,	"	"	5 47am
No. 151,	Local,	"	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 22,	Passenger,	Leaves	10 42am
No. 20,	"	"	[illegible]
No. 24,	"	"	12 03am
No. 152,	Local,	"	12 15pm

[illegible] except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] making direct connection with C. & A. for trains arriving Kansas City [illegible] connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with L. E. & W. trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. H. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. Ry., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager. CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt. Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE,

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52,	Ex. Sun.	12:52pm	For St. Joseph
No. 56	"	5:58pm	"
No. 54,	"	10:26am	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51,	Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 57,	"	12:42pm	"
No. 55,	"	4:45pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or J. M. CHESBROUGH, Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains Central Time.

Westward.
Pittsburgh lv.	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]
Crestline ar	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
Ft.Wayne	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Chicago ar	[illegible]

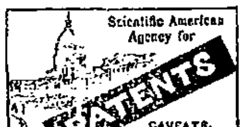
East ward.
Chicago lv	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
Ft.Wayne	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Crestline ar	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]
Pittsburgh	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager. E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent, PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

[illegible] EVANS, Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for



CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

[illegible]

THROUGH TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates to Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Lake Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, [illegible] and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

[illegible] WILLIAMS, Gen'l Supt. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.

CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular article bearing on the [illegible]. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. 6 cts.
2. Facts in History and Prophecy. [illegible]
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible. [illegible]

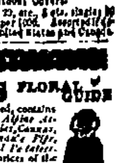
[illegible]

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these." Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers [illegible]. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE



For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased every lady last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cts. for Guide, which can be deducted from first order.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 13, 1893. NO. 34.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
Robert Railsback,
W. D. Thompson,
J. H. Willey,
George Allerman.
A. R. Underwood.

TERMS	One Year	$1.50
	Six Months	.75
	Three Months	.40

WEAVING.

Yes, I'm a weaver, and each day
The threads of life I spin,
And be the colors what they may,
I still must weave them in.

With morning light there comes the thought,
As I my task begin—
My Lord to me new threads has brought,
And bids me "weave them in."

Sometimes he gives me threads of gold,
To brighten up the day;
Then sombre tints, so bleak and cold,
That change the gold to gray.

His love, alas! I oft forget
When these dark threads I spin,
That cause me grief and pain, but yet
He bids me "weave them in."

And so my shuttle swiftly flies,
With threads both gold and gray;
And on I toil till day-light dies,
And fades in night away.

On when my day of toil is o'er,
And I shall cease to spin;
He'll open wide my Father's door,
And bid me rest within.

There safe at home in heavenly light,
How clearly I shall see
That every thread, the dark, the bright,
Each one had need to be!

—J. I. Cuthbert.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 5.

1. And it came to pass while the crowd was pressing upon him and listening to the word of God, and he was standing along side the harbor of Gennesaret. (a place that begets sweeping storms).

2. He saw two small boats also standing beside the harbor, and the fishermen had gone out of them and were washing their nets.

3. And embarking in one of them which was Simon's (a sneerer) he requested him to put out a little from the land; and sitting down he continued teaching the multitudes from the boat.

4. And when he had ceased talking he said unto Simon, put out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught.

5. And Simon answered and said unto him Master (lit. boss) we have toiled all the night through and taken nothing; but at thy word (lit. oracular word) I will let down the net.

6. And when they had done this they enclosed a vast multitude of fish, and their net was being rent:

7. And he beckoned to their associates in the other boat to come and take hold along with them; and they came and filled both the boats so that they were sinking.

8. And when Simon Petros saw it he fell upon his knees to Jesous saying, Depart from me, because I am an obdurate sinner, Lord.

9. For awe had taken possession of him and of all those with him, on account of the draught of the fish of which they had taken hold along with them;

10. And likewise also Jacob and Joannes, sons of Zebedaios who were Simon's partners; and Jesous said unto Simon, Fear not, from now on thou wilt be a taker of men alive.

11. And when they had conducted the boats to land they left everything and followed him,

12. And it came to pass while he was in one of the cities, lo indeed there was a man full of leprosy. And when he saw Jesous, he fell on his face and besought him saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst cleanse me.

13. And extending his hand he touched him saying, I will, Be thou cleansed, and straightway the leprosy left him.

14. And he told him to say nothing to any one. But go, show thyself to the priest and offer for thy cleansing even as Mouses hath directed for testimony for them.

15. And the word concerning him spread all the more; and vast crowds came together to hear him and to be healed from their weaknesses.

16. And he was accustomed to withdraw unto waste-places and offer votive-prayer.

17. And it came to pass on one of the days, and he was teaching. And some Pharisees and teachers of the law, who had come from out every village of Galilia and Joudaia and Hierousalem were seated, and the Lord's ability was for him to heal.

18. And lo men (of influence) bringing a man who had been paralized and they sought to bring and place him before him.

19. And not finding any way of bringing him through the crowd, they went upon the roof and let him down through the tiles along with the little bed into their midst in front of Jesous.

20. And when he saw their faith he said, Man, thy sins are remitted thee.

21. And the scribes and Pharisees began to converse saying, who is this person who is talking blasphemies? Who can remit sins except God alone?

22. And Jesous fully knowing their reasonings answered and said unto them. Why are ye reasoning with your hearts?

23. Why is it easier to have said, thy sins be remitted, than to have said, arise and walk?

24. But that ye may have perceived that the son of man hath official-power to remit sins upon the earth, he said unto the paralytic, I say unto thee arise and take up thy little bed and go thy way to thy house.

25. And straightway he arose in their sight and taking up that upon which he was lying, he departed to his own house, glorifying God.

26. And astonishment laid hold of them all and they glorified God and were filled with fear saying, we have seen paradoxes to-day.

27. And after these events he went out and beheld a tax-gatherer by the name of Leueis, seated at the custom-house. And he said unto him, Follow me,

28. And leaving everything he arose and followed him.

29. And Leueis made a great reception for him at his house. And there was a vast multitude of tax-gatherers and others who were reclining with them.

30. And the Pharisees and their scribes were murmuring to his disciples saying, why are ye eating and drinking with the tax-gatherer and obdurate sinners?

31. And Jesous answered and said unto them, the well have no need of a physician, but those who are ill, (lit have themselves in a bad way).

32. I have not come to call justified ones, but obdurate sinners to repentance.

33. And they said unto him, Why do the disciples of Joannes fast frequently and offer supplications and those of the Pharisees likewise; but thine eat and drink?

34. And he said unto them, Ye cannot make the sons of the bridal-chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them.

35. But days will come, and whenever the bridegroom shall have been taken away from them, then will they fast in those days.

36. And he spake a parable to them, no one cutteth a patch from a new outer-garment (a himation) and putteth it upon an old outer-garment. But if he does, he will cut the new and the patch that is from the new will not harmonize with the old.

37. And no one putteth new wine into old wine-skins. But if he does, the new wine will rend the wine-skins, and it will have been spilt and the wine-skins lost.

38. But they put new wine into new wine-skins.

39. And no one when drinking old wine wanteth new. For saith he, the old is most serviceable.

COMMENT.

"Master" here is one word for "boss," or "overseer and "Lord" or "teacher." I call attention to this again: for the C. V. and R. V. have treated all three of these words as synonymous or equivalents which become very misleading to the doctriniare.

We have here a good illustration of the difference of meaning and idiomatic use by the two words meaning "associate" and "partner." In the first place Peter beckons to his associate fishermen in the other boat to come to his assistance in the haul of fish or "to take hold along with them," (them being himself and his partners).

These namely Jacob and Joannes are next referred to specially as "partners." In the first instance metochoi is used and in the second koinonoi.

"Obdurate sinner," by this term Peter means that thus far he has never made any attempt to be as good as he knew how—that he is not pious nor trying to live up to his convictions of right. It is the opposite of "justified one" and takes in all who have not at least "chosen the better part" or made the requisite "good confession" which we all owe to God and the world. This confession is the least we can do to "commend" (not "bless") God to the world as our "Creator," "Redeemer" and "Benefactor," and "the obdurate sinner" includes all this class as well as those who who "curse" him to his face. "All who are not for me are against me" zeal even to "offensive partisanship" is God's first prerequisite. Then add to your zealous faith "courage." For God knows you will need it. And then "comprehension." For there is a great deal to comprehend in order to avoid narrowness and bigotry, and so on in the step "upward." But blessed thought it is upward and not downward, however toilsome and difficult.

"A taker-of-men alive" instead of "fishers of men," C. V. The word is used not only of fishing; but of trapping and hunting and even of taking men alive as prisoners of war, and has a very profound esoteric or parable meaning here.

"Weaknesses" instead of "diseases."

"Pharisees" a sect who wore the "pharos" a peculiar outer-garment and resembled in this respect as well as some others one of the monkish orders of the present day.

"And the Lord's ability was for him to heal" instead of "the power of the Lord was with him to heal" R. V. A very different thought you will perceive when you stop to think it out. Not that the Lord's ability was not always present as an energetic power of Jesous; but that the outward manifestations of it varied according to God's wisdom and will, which agrees with other Scriptures on this subject on this particular occasion the "energy" energeia manifested itself in power to heal." On other occasions to perform other extraordinary acts like changing the water to wine or reawakening the dead to natural life again, etc.

"There is one spirit but diversities of gifts" and "manifestations."

"Men of influence" and "a man" here is a good illustration of the idiomatic use of the two words in Greek for "man." No doubt the "men" here were well-know citizens or leading-men in this community and who were doing what they could to show their faith in Christ's ability, to heal this "man" some humble citizen who could not get to the front himself and whom they perhaps reasoned would be beneath the great teacher's notice without their personal intervention. At any rate it is "their faith" that Christ recognizes here as an instrumentality in accomplishing the direct result.

"Are remitted thee" instead of are "forgiven" C. V. and R. V. one a legal idea, the other a sentiment.

"Reasoning with your hearts" instead of "reason ye in your hearts" R. V. This intended to be a reproof of the too prevalent form of reasoning in all ages and communities wherein the emotional nature sways the verdict rather than enlightened reason and the judicial faculty.

"Official-power" instead of mere "power" here again R. V. This distinction if observed carefully in the reading of the Scriptures will alone relegate to the bats and the owls, whole libraries of medieval theological reasoning.

"Paradoxes" instead of "strange things" R. V. Every intelligent reader knows the difference between a paradox and some other "strange things." If he doesn't he can look it up in an unabridged dictionary.

"Lewies" is the origin of all the Lewises in the world. They are all in some way related to the original Leweis or Lewei: but a good many of them have forgotten their original sanctification.

"Justified ones" instead of righteous. "There are no righteous, no not one" was said of all mankind except one who came later and he was accounted and treated as a sinner, although God is going to justify him or assert the fact of his righteousness to the whole cosmos of the heavens and the earth and "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess it in due time."

"Sons of the bridal-chamber" like the expression "sons of thunder" a trope with an esoteric significance.

The term "himation" or outer-garment here used because he is speaking of a "patch" that would be readily observed in its inharmonious effect.

"Most serviceable" instead of "better" C. V. and "good" R. V. because that is the true meaning of the author, even though it does put a powerful weapon in the hand of the moderate tippler and the anti-prohibitionist.

Chas. Gardner.

The Treasures of Snow and Hail. Isa. xxxviii. 22-23.

To unravel prophecy, some knowledge of Ancient and Modern History is absolutely required, as also a general understanding of the broad aims that underlie the actions of really great statesmen.

All great wars and political movements rest in objects generally concealed behind the pretexts furnished the public.

The belief that the coming of Christ cannot be much longer delayed is strongly advocated by some whose opinions are worthy of the greatest respect, nevertheless they may be incorrect.

The question is yet open to honest doubt whether matters are sufficiently ripe for that event.

It is singular how small attention is usually given to the lost tribes (i. e. by most) in watching the signs, and yet, these people must be in existence somewhere, and that too as a nation and political power.

"Fear not, oh my servant Jacob, saith the Lord, neither be dismayed oh Israel, for I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee, etc.," Jer. xxx. 4-11.

"If heaven alone can be measured and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, I will also cast off all the Seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith the Lord." Jer. xxxi. 35-37.

"Like as I have brought all the great evil upon the people (Israel and Judah v. 30) So will I bring upon them all the good that I have promised them." Jer. xxxii. 32.

Notice the distinction between Israel and Judah, they are not confounded together.

Gog is to come up against the land of Israel and from that day forward "Israel shall know that I am the Lord their God." Ezek. xxxix. 22. "Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem." Zech. xiv. 14. This rather implies that the ten tribes will be the most numerous and probably politically powerful. Nevertheless Judah will do her share.

The inference is, that prior to the coming of our Lord the whole twelve tribes will be represented in the Holy Land, living in unfortified villages, apparently suspecting no danger and possessed of wealth in cattle, silver and gold, and no doubt other resources. Ephraim (the ten tribes) shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim. Isaih xi. 10-13.

All this is future and when it comes the world will know it. All suppositious fulfillments of prophecy resting on dubious and obscure proofs should be regarded with suspicion. What God promises plainly, it is natural and right to suppose he will fulfil as plainly.

The prognostication of a dark day given as a sign to the people of Palestine, for example, would be puerile to suppose satisfactorily fulfilled by the occurrence of an unusually foggy day in an obscure part of another continent, where the vast majority of people would never even hear of it.

God has promised to "assemble the out-casts of Israel" and gather together the dispersed of Judah, and will make them one nation upon the mountains of Israel and one king shall be king to them all and they shall be no more two nations, etc." Ezek. xxvii. 15-23.

This has, beyond all cavil, not been fulfilled. When Gog makes his onslaught, all the twelve tribes will be there to oppose him, by their representatives at least.

So far, all prophecy has been fulfilled (where completed) literally and not figuratively, it is therefore neither logic nor common sense to expect any change in this rule in the future.

At present the Jews and Israelites are not gathered in Palestine under the necessary conditions.

Anti-christ has not yet been revealed, the Lawless One, whom the Lord shall consume with the brightness of his coming. The ground is preparing for him, but is not yet fully ripe.

The Turk is not yet driven out of Europe, though staggering insecurely in the out-skirts.

The four Ancient Monarchies, Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome must be in existence or the stone cannot smite and destroy them.

The Gold Kingdom, Babylon (Assyria) is now represented by Turkey. The Silver by Persia, the Brass by Greece (restored 1827,) and the Iron by Italy or Rome, restored in 1870 by the King of Italy overthrowing the temporal power of the Pope and reigning in the City of Rome.

Still all these are but feeble representatives and further changes may be looked for. Political convulsions that will consolidate and render these kingdoms more permanent and formidable.

There are however other sufficient reasons for believing the advent may be delayed.

The prophecies relating to this event dwell much on the enormous multitude of the invading hosts, "like a cloud to cover the land, thou and all thy bands, and many people with thee." Ezek. xxxix. 8. Zech. xix. and elsewhere.

The enormous amount of the weapons of Gog serving seven years for fuel, and other references such as the burying of the host, and the barbarous character of the war, the pillaging, the mal-treatment of the women, the carrying into captivity as slaves, and the general tenor of the descriptions all point to something not of the common, and to vast armies, supplemented by hordes of unscrupulous auxilliaries, lusting for rapine and loot, imperfectly under control and wanting in European strictness and discipline. Something in short far beyond any former experience.

In a conversation between D'Israeli and Prince Gortzshakoff, the two Statesmen agreed that at some time not far off, Europe was in danger of being overrun by vast hordes of Asiatics as in the past.

Hitherto their ignorance and barbarism and the superior advantages of civilized Europe had held them in check.

In the future these Asiatics will become wise and civilized, without being Christianized, and when drilled in European tactis, armed with the best weapons, commanded by modern representatives of such world conqueros or Genghis, Vhen, Attila, Timur Lung (lame Tom) the Tartar, and Mohomet, there is no practical reason why, with the advantage of over-whelming odds they may again over run the civilized world as they have done in the past, the more so as they have no reason to love us, and Russia will probably league with them.

Both great statesmen, Russian, and British recognized the danger, and admitted the impossibility of European disarmament on this gound alone, if no other, and it will be found that few recognize the numerical feebleness of civilization and it is an invariable rule the bigger the fool and the greater the ignorance, the more infatuated the self confidence.

As the old boatman remarked in a squall, when shortening sail in face of the remonstrance of his passengers, "Them as knows nothing, fears nothing."

No country in the last thirty years has made as great steps in improvement as British India, and few know about it but the officials.

She is crazy on the subject of education and that on the European basis.

England maintains enormous armies there (much larger than she openly admits,) educating them in war, and the same may be said of Russia in Northern Asia, and the Turks are renowned for their fighting qualities, China and Japan are not far behind.

The Russians and the Anglo Saxons are the only two civilized nations extending and waxing rapidly.

France, Germany, Austria, and the smaller states are every year falling behind, even when increasing to some extent in numbers. At the present rate of increase they must ere long fade into comparative insignificance beside these two giant races.

War, internal dissensions, anarchy, and misrule may break up these states. They may form a confederacy of European States under the Anti-christ and make a league with Russia, or the latter by diplomacy or conquest may gain control over most of them when weakened.

China and her millions have played no active part so far in the great world. The same may be said of the Anglo Saxons in America.

Yet God makes nothing without a purpose, and their great part is yet to come.

The United States like China has endeavoured to live entirely for self, taking no part in the great drama of the world. This cannot last long—it is at the best but a hot house policy of cheap politicians, and is in opposition to the designs of God.

Nations with him are like men, he has made them for a purpose, when they fail through neglect of his ordinances he leaves them to perish in their own corruption, or destroyes them outright.

This nation passed one danger honorably, she is now tottering on the imminent verge of a worse crisis, on a much grander scale, complicated by anarchy and religious ambition.

Probably while this is being adjusted Europe will be undergoing similar experiences and vast changes. After this we may look for the mustering of the forces of Gog, the great persecution, Armageddon and the second coming of Christ as Conqueror and King Triumphant.

H. T. Baker.

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal Resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The same Cry and the same Want.

The harvest is great, the laborers are few, and the calls for help are many. From a preacher's letter in an Adventist paper:

Here is another "cry." "I have become very poor in this world's goods, having met with a failure of crops for three years and had to sell everything I had to pay debts. I was compelled to leave my lovely home and seek something else for a living. I did think I would not try to preach much this summer, but the Master says, 'Go work in my vineyard, and as the harvest is ripe, and the laborers are few, I was induced to go trusting in the Lord for my living."

Another has been sick three months and himself and wife have to teach school in order to pay doctor's bills.

Thus one by one, or rather by the half dozen, preachers so much needed have to revert to secular work. Reader! are you even in a remote degree responsible for this state of things, even among the "churches of God?" If so, God will judge.

Unus.

Poor for Christ's Sake.

If any class of preachers should be liberally supported while at work, and provided for in sickness and old age, they are those who for conscience sake, refuse good pay, and good positions in the wealthy sects rather than keep back God's Truth, and allow their hearers to suppose they are in accord with the man-made creeds of those willing to receive them. You reader, are building up error with money out of your pocket to support teaching you know to be eroneous and mischievous, while you know also that the proclamation of the Gospel of the Kingdom is being hindered for want of the money you keep in the other pocket.

Of course it is pleasant to be called "liberal" for helping other denominations, and it "helps business" but when business ends, and other denominations are judged and condemned for the error they propogate, and the truth they suppress, or pervert, or persecute, then where will you stand?

You cannot stand on both sides of the throne in that day.

Frater.

No Lesson Book Like the Bible.

There is no lesson book like the Bible. You will find out that part of it was written by a shepherd, and part by a soldier; part by kings, and part by fishermen; part by a doctor in his study, and part by a herdsman on Judah's hills. You will see that some part came straight from heaven in dreams of the night—now on the golden couch of a palace, and now in a bare, cold prison cell like Paul's. And though you live to be old—this is the wonder—you will never once open that book without coming on something that seems quite new.

* * *

It is the hand of God that weaves the pattern which he requires in the web of noble lives; and thus even by those dispensations which seem most afflictive he is preparing us so that we best do his work, which is and ought to be our own.—Farrar.

tution!

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 13, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

"GIVE attendance to reading" was a divine command. If we wish to be well grounded in the truth, safe against popular and pleasant errors we must read. If we let the Word dwell in us richly no wind of doctrine will ever shake us. "Root;" "grow," "increase," "build," and "abound," are the Spirit's terms which press home this duty. If we do nothing but antagonize the alien we feed the intellect at the expense of spirituality. If we do not build up we are not fit down-pullers. •

"MR. EDITOR, please tell in THE RESTITUTION, what you think about Flattery?" M. P. Ans. Opinions have little value, and when divine testimony is furnished it should never be resorted to. By reference to Ps. xii. 3, you may find an answer you can depend upon. As plain as words can make it, it is sin, because it is false praise. But honest commendation must not be confused with flattery, as apostolic practice proves. See 1 Thess. ii. 5; 1 Thess. i. 7; Phil. iv. 14-16; 1 Cor. xi. 2; and xi. 2; Col. i. 7; Eph. vi. 21. See also testimony of Jesus, Luke x. 42, and Rev. ii. 2-5. •

The Coming Struggle.

As those who call upon Jehovah are enjoined to give him no rest till he establish, and make Jerusalem a praise in the earth; and as a promise of prosperity accompanies the command to pray for the peace of Jerusalem, it is of course a matter of intense interest to the Brotherhood to know what is said and thought by those destined to play important parts in the struggle sure to come after the unparalleled preparation now in progress. From a German paper by way of England we learn of the publication of a work at St. Petersburgh, the author of which has collected every pamphlet and newspaper from Germany that were calculated to throw any light on the German view of the situation. The object of the writer of this work is first to arouse a spirit of hatred toward Germany, and to controvert the hopeful views of Germans as to a successful issue of war with Russia, and secondly, to present the Russian forces in array, and bespeak for them in the next campaign an unimpeded "walk over." Besides this another Russian writer, (Kasak) has published a work entitled "Sarmatikus and Antisarmatikus." It is well known that Antisarmatikus and Kasak are the pseudonyms of two Russian officers of high rank actuated by hatred against G[illegible] and seeking to inflame their co[illegible] with the same sentiment. [illegible] is said that at present the [illegible] the ear of the [illegible] party is a grow[illegible] and their counsels may prevail at any time. These writers say that a feeling of hostility between France and Russia and try to explain away the circumstances which resulted in Russia and France being opposed to each other. France and Italy have only been enemies from misunderstandings, while England and Austria are real foes, and all Russia's troubles in the Balkan peninsula are attributed to the policy of Bismarck. They say public opinion in Germany, and especially in Austria, is hostile to Russia, and is designed for the promotion of the programme of Bismarck, viz: to drive her back to Asia. The frustration of this design, by peaceable means, they say, is impossible. The question whether Teuton or Slav shall take the first rank in Europe can only be decided by blood and iron; and if the hour of bloody retribution for German hostility should strike sooner than the Western Powers calculated, it is not Russia's fault. In a word we see it is the ambition of Russia to disrupt the German Empire and stand forth as the dominant power. In the military part of the work they aim to show Germany that she will have to put forth tremendous efforts, and make great sacrifices yet before she can hope for success in a struggle with Russia. They say that in the case of mobilization the Russian Minister can call into the field from ten to twelve millions—enough to annihilate the German army weakened to guard the forts on the frontiers.

These writers say Russia has never before entered upon an European war properly prepared. She is assailable only on the west, and so has mobilized nearly all her troops on that frontier in time of peace. She has eight independent railways through the heart of the empire, fed by numerous branches, to concentrate them on Poland. Her plans can be carried out with perfect security by means of fortresses and swamps on the whole western frontier, and it is easy to see from this that Russia can strike with her whole force when she pleases.

The outcome predicted is this: The march of the victorious army on Vienna and Berlin will be followed by a congress at Moscow or St. Petersburgh where terms of peace will be dictated. Germany must relinquish the right bank of the Weichsel to Russia, the left Bank of the Rhine to France, the German Empire dissolved. Austro-Hungary surrenders Galacia, Buckowina, Dalmatia, and Hungarian Servia to Russia, together with its rights in Bosnia and Herzegovina. These provinces will be awarded to Servia and Montenegro, and even Roumania may come in for a share if she behaves satisfactorily during the war. From this compilation our readers will be able to study the new map of Europe as projected by Russia, and compare it with the views of Russia's destiny as published and extensively discussed more than thirty, ah, forty years ago by students of prophecy. It is quite evident that Russian preparations have kept pace with all nations, and she seems to be so naturally situated as to be able to concentrate all her forces as no other power on earth can, and from a human standpoint merely, would point to a commanding position among the great powers. But God is the disposer. Let us be on the watch. •

Original.

No God.

Did you ever wish, little ones, that there was no God so you could do just as you pleased? I hope you never have for it is a very wicked wish. Suppose we talk for a little while about a world without a God and imagine if we can, what kind of a place it would be. Let the great Creator's care be withdrawn from our sun and moon and earth, his dear guardian angels be sent to some other sphere, the precious Bibles and Testaments, and all the good books and papers be gathered up and carried away: the laws of the nations that have been taken from the Bible, repealed, and love and justice and mercy live no more in the hearts of men. And how do you think we should get on? It takes an engineer to run a railroad train. If there is no engineer on the engine to guide it, all the cars go to destruction and the people are killed. So there must be an engineer to guide our planetary system,—Jupiter and Saturn and Venus and the earth, that with many more worlds go riding round the sun, and with it, sweeping in a great circular path through the heavens. God has engineers for all his cars,—but what if he should take them away? The cars would all run off the track and burn up or be broken in pieces. There would be no one to keep the sun giving us light, and when winter has gone the beautiful green things would not spring up out of the earth. Grain might be sown in the fields, but there would be no harvests. No flowers would gladden our eyes, no sweet cherries ripen on the trees, no tempting berries peep out from bush or vine. The cooling, pleasant showers would no longer fall. And when God's books, God's papers, and God's laws were taken away, every body would do as they pleased, and be bad and selfish and cruel.

There would be no prayer, no singing of holy songs, no gatherings to worship God. The dear churches would be torn down, the preachers and teachers would all go to work at something else, and the children would run wild on the streets. Would such a world be a nice place to live in?

You could not tell your young friends they were taking all your treasures away, for there would be no law forbidding the taking of property from others. It is God that guards in all things. The earth is his and he made it, the sea also and all the great mountains and the little hills. The cattle on all the wide plains belong to God. He owns every thing, he controls every thing. We don't want to live in a country where God is not. We want to know that He is, and that every thing will go on right, if we love him and try to do his will. He does not ask us to do things that will harm us or that will make us wretched and miserable, but only such as will make us happy and noble and beloved. He wants us to keep out of the wrong paths, because doing wrong will lead to our ruin.

To drink poisonous drinks, such as rum and whiskey and brandy will wreck our health and destroy our minds; to swear and lie and steal will make us despised and disliked among men and will unfit us for the beautiful country that God is by and by going to give to the good.

We want to live in the Paradise that is coming, we want to have the company of the angels, and see the dear Savior who died that we might come out of the grave to life eternal. So we want God to be here. We want him to watch over us all the time. We do not want his Book nor his laws to be taken away. We want to learn more about him, to understand what he says and to obey his commands.

We want the dear Savior for our Savior, our very own, that when he comes we may share in his glory and rejoice in his salvation.

Some of you have no God, you have not taken him for your God, you have not obeyed. You have no Christ, no Savior, no angelic ministers to watch over and care for you. Are you not afraid? How long are you going to wait? You know what you ought to do. Do not delay, come to Jesus now.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

Selected.

Is Heaven Our Home?

This question would be answered in the affirmative by the vast majority of professing 'Christians,' but if they were asked for proof of their affirmation, it would be of a very hazy character; indeed, if closely pressed they would nullify it by saying that "the heaven of their hope would be destroyed at the end of the world."

The purpose of this article is to affirm that "the Heavens" will be the eternal home of those who are found faithful at the judgment seat of Christ. Not the heaven where Jehovah dwells, but the one that will have been established by "His well-beloved Son" when he reigns over a conquered world at peace.

To clearly demonstrate our affirmation it may be necessary to ask what do the words "Heaven" and "Heavenly" mean? The first, Nutall tells us means "Sublimity; supreme felicity, great happiness." The second, "resembling heaven, supremely excellent." The next point will be to ask the question, and answer it, in what sense is the word "heaven" used in Scripture and amongst men? That heaven is used in the Scriptures to speak of the elements, and also of the dwelling-place of the Most High, no one, who believes them to be an infallible revelation will deny, but that it is also used to speak of a political state of things existing upon the earth can be easily shown. For instance, we read of the prophet Isaiah seeing in vision God addressing the children of Israel thus, "Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth" (Isa. i. 2): and again, in speaking of a new order of things which should so excel the Mosaic "heavens and earth," that they should not be remembered nor come into mind, says, "For, behold I create new heavens and a new earth." Isa. lxv. 7. And again, we read God saying "My sword shall be bathed in heaven; behold it shall come down upon Idumea." Isa. xxxiv. 5. These are sufficient to prove to any unprejudiced mind that the word "heavens" is used in Scripture in speaking of a political state of things. And when we quote from a human source the use of the word, we will see at a glance to what particular portion of the political world the term "heavens" is applied.

A writer in the London Daily Telegraph, speaking of the French Revolution, writes as follows: "To have admitted that the annals of their own country contained any names of which a Frenchman could be proud, or recorded any deeds which he might emulate, would have been to blaspheme the 'new heavens' and to insult the 'new earth' which the revolution had created." Here too, we see the word "heavens" is applied to the rulers, and "the earth" to those who are ruled.

And so it often is in the Scriptures, and by learning this [illegible] much of the difficulty which surrounds apparent contradictions will disappear.

Can we find, then, a revelation in the Scriptures of truth of a political state of things having a heavenly or heaven-like character which is to be the eternal dwelling-place of the faithful of all ages? Because, if so, then the affirmation is sustained that "heaven" is the home of the righteous.

The Apostle Paul, in writing to the Ecclesia at Rome, tells them that the characteristics of "the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit." Rom. xiv. 17. Bearing in mind the definition already given of "heaven" and "heavenly," we have here then a kingdom of a heaven-like character "righteousness,—peace—joy," and when we call to remembrance the beautiful prayer that the Lord Jesus Christ taught his disciples, we see that when "God's kingdom comes" it is "that His will may be done on earth as it is in heaven." And surely when this is fulfilled, the characteristics of that kingdom will be righteousness, peace, and joy. On turning to the prophecy of Daniel, we find, that when "God's kingdom has come," or, in other words, when the time arrives for the setting up of a kingdom "by the God of heaven" that "shall break in pieces and consume all other kingdoms, and stand forever," it is to become the possession of "the saints of the Most High." Dan. vii. 27. This is in perfect harmony with the Apostle James, for he writes, "Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?" James ii. 5. The Apostle Paul, in writing to his "dearly beloved son Timothy," says that "The Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom." 2 Tim. iv. 18. Thus we see that when God's kingdom has been established upon the earth it is to be given to "the saints of the Most High," and "God's will is to be done on earth as in heaven. Hence Paul looked forward to it as a "heavenly or heaven-like kingdom" in which he hoped to participate, although he knew that he and all other saints has to pass through "much tribulation" before they could "enter into the kingdom of God." Acts xiv. 22. We find that a special position is assigned in this heaven-like kingdom to "the twelve apostles of the Lamb;" for he promises them that "in the regeneration," when he "sits on the throne of his glory," they "also shall sit upon twelve thrones judging (ruling) the twelve tribes of Israel."

He also promises all who wish to reign with him, that if they overcome, as he also overcame, that he will grant that they shall sit with him on his throne. We find that he overcame by "being faithful unto death." At all times, and under all circumstances, he was ever ready to do the will of his Father; although "tempted and tried in all points as we are, yet he was without sin." "No guile was ever found in his mouth." He ever remembered that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God;" and thus, as the Captain of our salvation, he was made "perfect through suffering." He developed a heaven-like, or heavenly, character by a perfect obedience even unto death, "for the glory that was set before him, and is now ascended to the right hand of God, where he is waiting until his enemies shall be made his foot stool, when he shall return, and "all the holy angels" with him, to sit upon the throne of his glory" "the throne of his father David" as promised to his mother by the angel Gabriel when announcing to her his birth. Hence we find that those who wish to reign with him in the "new heavens," which shall be erected when "Jerusalem will be a rejoicing and her people a joy," have also to develop a "heavenly character;" for we find the apostle Paul in writing to the Corinthian ecclesia, saying, "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly (heaven-like) 1 Cor. xv. 48. Those then who wish to be participators in the glories of the future "heavens" must overcome like their Master, remembering that unless they develop heavenly character they will be unfit to become associated with him when his "dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." This can only be done by obeying the first command of Him whom they wish to call Master; namely, Seek "the kingdom of God and his righteousness" and continue "patiently in well doing, seeking for glory, honor and immortality," and "eternal life" shall be their reward, and they shall shine forth as suns and stars in the kingdom of their Father, and will judge the poor with righteousness, riding in "the heavens" with him who hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, "King of kings and Lord of lords," having been purified and made white in the blood of the Lamb, and made by him "Kings and Priests" to reign upon the earth, and filling it, from their high and exalted position as the sons of God in power, with His glory "as the waters cover the sea." P. A. H.

Teaching of the Early Church on Immortality.

It is often stated that "conditional immortality" was not preached until the end of the second century at times since, but never before. A serious mistake is made here, for Barnabus, who died A. D. 90; Hermas 101; Justin 106; Ignatius 107; Polycarp 147; Justin 161; Clement 212; and Arnobius 305, were all believers in "conditional immortality." It was the doctrine of the immortality of the soul that "was first taught in the Church towards the end of the second century" instead of "conditional immortality."

"If you defile your flesh, you will not live."—Hermas.

"He who chooses other (evil) things shall be destroyed."—Barnabus. (Constable on "Future Punishment.")

"All the days of the world, from Adam even unto this day, are passed away, but they who have been made perfect in love have, by the grace of God, obtained a place among the righteous, and shall be made manifest in the judgment of the Kingdom of Christ. For it is written, Enter into thy chamber for a little space till my indignation shall pass away; and I will remember the good day, and I will raise you up out of your graves."—Clement Bishop of Rome.

"Be vigilant, as God's athlete. The meed (prize) is uncorruptible, and life eternal."—Ignatius of Antioch, in his epistle to Polycarp.

To the Trallians thus: "Jesus Christ was truly raised from the dead by His Father after the manner as he will also raise us up who believe in Him, by Jesus Christ, without whom we have no true life."—Ignatius.

"This venerable Christian, who had heard the Apostle John, displayed the greatest fortitude during his terrible sufferings, and died with the fullest assurance that He whom he loved would raise him up at the last day. His prayer at the stake, as reported by Eusebius, shows very clearly what were his hopes of a future life, and upon what they were based:—"But he (Polycarp), closing his hands behind him, and bound to the stake as a noble victim selected from the great flock, an acceptable sacrifice to Almighty God, said: Father of Thy well-beloved and blessed Son Jesus Christ, through whom we have received the knowledge of Thee, the God of Angels and Powers, and of all creation, and of all the family of the righteous, that live before Thee, I bless Thee that Thou hast thought me worthy of the present day and hour to have a share in the number of the martyrs, and in the cup of Christ unto the resurrection of eternal life, both of the soul and body, in the incorruptible felicity of the Holy Spirit, among whom I may be received in Thy sight this day, as a rich and acceptable sacrifice, as Thou the Faithful and true God hast prepared, hast revealed and fulfilled. Wherefore," etc. Polycarp; Whitmore on "Immortality," pp. 10-11.

"God shall raise all from the dead, and appoint some incorruption"—Justin (Constable on Future Punishment, p. 91).

"They are debtors" (Constable, p. 90). And again he asks, "How can he be immortal, who, in his mortal nature, did not obey his Maker." Irenaeus iii. xx. 2; iv. xxxix. 2. (Constable, p. 258).

Theophilus, Polycrates, Lactantius, Clement Alexandrinus, Arnobius, Martin Luther, and William Tyndall were believers in conditional immortality.

The immortality of the soul was first brought into the Church in the end of the second century. The very first who can with truth be brought forward as holding it in the Church in those days is Athenagoras. He lived from about A. D. 127 to 190. He was born at Athens; was educated there in the philosophy of Plato; became a Christian, and settled at Alexandria, where his great object seems to have been to show that Christianity and Platoism were one and the same in substance. He argues: "As God's end cannot be defeated men must live for ever, be he good or evil, miserable or happy. Hence, he concludes, "that as the wicked must live for ever, they must meet with an eternal life in misery." Resurrection of the dead c. 12-13-14-15.

"Death cannot happen to the to the soul."—Athenagoras (Constable p. 90.)

We also find Tatian who died about A. D. 200; Tertullian 235; Hippolytus 240; Athanasius 273; and Augustine 430, all believing in eternal life for the wicked.

Origen, who died A. D. 253, believed in the extinction of evil; and the Scriptures bear him out. But he erred most fatally as to the means. By believing in the immortality of the soul he was obliged to promise restoration (life) where God had promised death. Therefore we have four theories before us:—

1. Immortality of the righteous only, and to be given after the resurrection.—This was believed in until after the middle of the second century.

2. That all men have immortal souls, and they must live somewhere (in heaven or in hell) for ever.—Athanagoras A. D. 190.

3. That immortality is obtained at conversion, and that the soul sleeps with the body between death and resurrection.—This was first taught by Tranaeus, who died A. D. 202.

4. That all will ultimately be saved.—Origen 253.—A. B.

Consolation of the Scriptures.

"Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." Do we obey this injunction?

What portion of the Scriptures are we to search?—"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

The study of the Bible is therefore a duty, and in the performance of this requirement of God, great blessing and much consolation are realized. There is no position into which a person may be brought where there are not portions of Scripture which may apply, bringing peace and joy both in prosperity and under adverse circumstances. This proves the truthfulness of the words:—

"Earth hath no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."

When wearied with the cares of this life, the comforting invitation is "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Have you been tempted to sin, and yielded? and when discouraged have you been encouraged to repentance by the passage: "Like as a Father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him"? Have you experienced the joy of the texts: "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool;" and "Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away?"

If far from home, a stranger in a strange land, not one familiar countenance, when a sense of your loneliness comes upon you, what rejoicing comes from the promise, "Lo, I am with you!"

While languishing on a bed of sickness and suffering, have you been enabled to endure it with patience from the assurance, "My grace is sufficient for you," and proved the truthfulness of the Scripture, "The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness?"

Have you been called upon to see some loved one placed in the cold and silent grave, and been comforted by the words, "Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted?" And, if that loved one be a child of God, what sweet peace comes from the thought of the resurrection morn, when "shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave where, is thy victory?"

If persecuted, consolation is found in the passage: "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you."

Such experiences draw one nearer to God, and make him appreciate the consolation of the blessed Bible, and cause him to realize the importance of the injunction, "Search the Scriptures." Happy indeed is the child of God who heeds this injunction! Even though in the furnace of affliction, great joy and peace have they! The Lord has promised them his presence and protection clear through to the end, so the Christain can look trustingly forward, even to death's door, and say: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me." "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

* * *

Theology hath nothing new in it, except that which is false. The preaching of Paul must be the preaching of the minister to-day. There is no advancement here. We may advance in our knowledge of God's revealed truth; but it stands the same, for this good reason—that it is perfect, and perfection cannot be any better.

At his home near Curtisville, Tipton Co., Ind., on July 31, 1893, Elijah Headly, aged 71 years, 7 months and 23 days.

He had been a member of the "Church of God" for over 17 years, having been immersed on the 14th of May, 1876. He leaves a widow and two sons to mourn his loss. Our brother was an old settler of Tipton County, and was respected for his honesty, sobriety and truthfulness. He died believing in Jesus and the Resurrection. We sorrow not as others which have no hope.

His brother,

AMOS HEADLY.

Harvest Excursion via Pennsylvania Lines.

Harvest Excursion tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines to authorized points to the west, northwest, southwest and south at reduced round trip rate on Sept. 12 and Oct. 10th, good returning 20 days from date of sale. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent.

Poetry.

Not Yet.—John xiii. 7.

Not yet thou knowest what I do,
O feeble child of earth,
Whose life is but to angel view
The morning of thy birth!
The smallest leaf, the simplest flower,
The wild bee's honey-cell,
Have lessons of My love and power
Too hard for thee to spell.

Thou knowest not how I uphold
The little thou dost scan;
And how much less canst thou unfold
My universal plan,
Where all thy mind can grasp of space
Is but a grain of sand;—
The time thy boldest thought can trace,
One ripple on the strand!

Not yet thou knowest what I do,
In this wild warring world,
When prince doth still triumphant view
Confusion's flag unfurled;
Nor how each proud and daring thought
Is subject to My will,
Each strong and secret purpose brought
My counsel to fulfill.

Not yet thou knowest how I bid
Each passing hour entwine
Its grief or joy, its hope or fear,
In one great love-design;
Nor how I lead thee through the night,
By many a various way,
Still upward to unclouded light,
And onward to the day.

Not yet thou knowest what I do
Within thine own weak breast,
To mould thee to My image true,
And fit thee for My rest.
But yield thee to My loving skill;
The veiled work of grace,
From day to day progressing still,
It is not thine to trace.

Yes, walk by faith and not by sight,
Fast clinging to My hand;
Content to feel My love and might,
Not yet to understand.
A little while thy course pursue,
Till grace to glory grow;
Then what I am, and what I do,
Hereafter thou shalt know.
—Francis Ridley Havergal.

Original.

McNew-Conner Discussion.

The discussion near Noblesville, Ind., between the above named parties August 15, 16 and 17 was brought about in the following manner: the little band of believers at that place had been harassed, annoyed and persecuted by the U. B. congregation until patience almost ceased to be a virtue, and after repeated attempts on the part of our brethren then to have the points of difference discussed, the U. B. people utterly refusing to risk a discussion with any of our older ministers it was finally proposed by our brethren to put forth a "mere boy in years and quite young in the ministry." This just suited the U. B. folks and a correspondence was entered into between Bro. Conner and Elder McNew a champion in the ranks of the U. B. ministers. Not anticipating any trouble with Bro. Conner but fearing the "boy" would be aided by older heads the rules formulated by McNew's moderator expressly declared that neither of the contestants "should be in any way aided in the discussion by other parties." To this the writer as Bro. Conner's moderator most cheerfully submitted, feeling well persuaded that the "boy" was abundantly able to take care of the truth, and the result of the discussion showed that this confidence was not misplaced. A word here as to the advantages of such discussions, some are opposed to this method of presenting the truth, claiming that debates only engender strife, and stir up stronger opposition. But after witnessing the effect of the truth when presented in a calm, courteous, Christian manner the writer is fully persuaded that a discussion properly conducted may result in good. We are satisfied that good has been done by this discussion. Each session was characterized by the best of order, and with a few exceptions the best of feelings was manifested by the speakers.

Two propositions were discussed, the first read as follows: Resolved that the holy Scriptures teach that there is an immortal entity in man that survives the death of the body in a conscious state."

McNew as the affirmant of this proposition began his first speech by presenting a rule that he declared should govern him throughout the discussion. The rule was this: "The Scriptures affirm of a 'part' of man what they do not affirm of the man as a whole being." This "rule" was most faithfully adhered to being intended to apply to the so-called dual nature of man. To sustain this assumed nature of man the usual resort was had to the "outward and inward man," the outward man the body, the inward man the "immortal entity." McNew having defined immortality as a "changeless" condition was confronted with Paul's declaration that the "inward man" (McNew's immortal man) was renewed day by day, and the significant question was submitted to McNew "how could a 'changeless being' be renewed each day?" To this searching question Bro. Conner received no answer though pressing his opponent hard.

During the first speech the affirmant cited the passages in which the word immortality occurs, but for what purpose it was difficult to see unless it was to try to weaken their force when they would be cited by the negative. It is safe to say in regard to the attempts to prove the immortality of the soul that Solomon's words apply most forcibly, "there is nothing new under the sun." About the same texts are introduced, and about the same misapplications made by each advocate when he steps into the arena of discussion. In McNew's second speech the declaration was made "I will now tell you how man got immortality," and when every ear in the vast audience was open and eagerly listening for the proof he cited Gen. i. 26.

This he said was a clear proof that man possessed "immortality for he had shown that God was immortal, and man being made in his image must also be immortal." This seemed to some plausible enough until Bro. Conner showed the absurdity of such claim by simply reminding the affirmant that immortality was only one of several attributes of God, that he was omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent and if man being in the image of God necessarily had that attribute of God stamped upon him it would logically follow that "man had all power, that he possessed all knowledge and that he had the power to be every where." How disappointing it must be to intelligent people to be told that a proof of man's immortality will be given and when the text is cited no hint or intimation of endless life is given, not a term in the text that remotely hints at the doctrine of endless life. No wonder men and women are becoming skeptical on the popular belief.

As if conscious that he had not satisfied the audience that he had given them a clear proof of immortality, McNew triumphantly declared that he would give them a proof that could not be denied and cited the text "he that believeth on the Son of God hath everlasting life." This was loudly emphasized and seemed strong enough to end the discussion (in the estimation of some) but when McNew was confronted with the question "did he believe in the immortality of all men as his proposition affirmed, or had he abandoned that and was now going to prove that believers only were entitled to it." And no one in the audience could tell which of these positions McNew held, for he persistently refused to answer the question that was repeated again and again. That he argued both was clear to all, but as to which of the two he believed or whether he believed either of them he left the audience in ignorance. No doubt he had reasons for not answering the questions.

Bro. Conner admitted that believers had eternal life in some sense, for this the text plainly taught. But that they did not possess it in the sense of present possession was evident, because believers could and did die, for "he that believeth in me though he were dead yet shall he live" thus clearly establishing the fact that believers die. And when the 25th verse of the second chapter 1st John was read all could see just how believers could have eternal life. Simply the promise "this is the promise that he has promised us even eternal life," and when it was shown from 5 chapter of same book that this life was in the Son of God, and from Colossians that this life was hid with Christ (securely reserved) in God, and that when Christ who is our life (has our life) shall appear we shall also appear with him in glory, such a flood of light was thrown upon the texts that some were honestly convinced that McNew had misapplied these texts. McNew like all others who attempt to prove a present immortality of man seemed to think that any passage that affirmed a spirit in man was equivalent to affirming his immortality. His efforts in this direction displayed the recklessness with which some men venture into discussion. In his desperation. Job xxxii. 8, was misquoted thus "there is a spirit in man and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth 'it' understanding." Bro. Conner promptly informed the audience that the pronoun "it" was not in the passage, and then showed that the understanding was given to "them" (man in general) and not to "it" (the spirit). Bro. Conner very politely and courteously asked McNew to tell the audience what the antecedent of "them" was. The same request was also made as to the antecedent of "their" in the 6 verse of 9 chapter Ecclesiastes, "their love," whose love? Notwitstanding the fact that this request was urgently made in every speech that Bro. Conner made after these passages were cited McNew persistently refused to answer the reasonable request. A freind of McNew had given him an analysis of the passage in Job xxxii. 8. and this analysis was read by McNew, but its force was neutralized by a statement that outraged propriety, grammar, logic and good common sense, here is his statement: "this means that there is a spirit in man and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth "it" understanding." Only a determination to cover up the truth can cause men to act thus. Elder McNew had a happy faculty for trying to blunt the force of Bro. Conner's incisive logic by warm exhortations given by that impassioned eloquence that characterizes all revival ministers. But thoughtful people always distinguish between oratory and logic, between exhortation and argument. Suppose the passage did indeed affirm that God gave the "spirit" understanding. Would that prove immortality?

O consistencey, thou art indeed a rare jewel!

When Bro. Conner was asked to define the word spirit, the request was courteously complied with and its primary definition together with some secondary uses was given. Then much precious time was worse than wasted by McNew, turning the primary definition into ridicule by applying it to texts that would appear to give it a most ridiculous use. This course is not entitled to the charge of sarcasm, it is simply a "trick in discussion" an attempt to throw dust. McNew seemed to think that argument consisted in the multiplicity of texts and attempted to smother his opponent by a formidable array of passages of their relation to the proposition under discussion. It was plain to be seen, however, that his main reliance was upon the orthodox Gibralters, "Thief on the Cross," "Rich Man and Lazarus," "Paul's Vision, Transfiguration," and kindred texts, every one of which where time was given were shown to be in complete harmony with all other Scriptures.

It is interesting in a hard-fought battle when the enemy is compelled to leave one after another of their strongholds and when at last only one defence remains to see with what desperation the enemy will try to hold the last fortification.

McNew chose the "Rich Man and Lazarus" as a forlorn hope, but like a drowning person grasping a straw, this defense was swept away. The truth dawned upon many in the audience that the two leading characters in that scene could not possibly be representatives respectively of the wicked and the righteous, there being no difference in the moral character of the two men, but as representatives of national privileges they become significant as showing their relative positions. To attempt to follow McNew in his circuitous course reminded one of the quaint description once given to an opponent,

"He wired in and wired out,
Leaving people still in doubt
Whether the snake that made the track,
Were going south or coming back."

The second proposition in which Bro. Conner affirmed the destruction of the finally impenitent was a triumphant vindication of the great central truth of the Bible touching their destiny "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." Unfortunately a word was suffered to go into the proposition that ought not to be used in describing the destiny of impenitents. It was the word "annihilation" and Bro. Conner consented to its use solely upon the condition that its secondary definition as given by Webster should be understood. But it is far better to use Bible words to express Bible truths. Bro. Conner's method of handling this proposition fully met the approval of all lovers of truth, the proofs being presented in a logical manner, and the objections so promptly met that all could see that truth was the great object in view. Instead of a multitudinous array of texts (which might have been used) he selected a few and fortified them as he advanced his line of argument. The golden text being Rom. vi. 23. "The wages of sin is death," and coupling with this Ezekiel's declaration, "The soul that sinneth it shall die." This with James i. 15. showing when and why this penalty was inflicted. Then taking Webster's primary definition as the disputants had agreed that Webster's definition should be admitted (primary) then cited Eccl. ix, 5, 6 to show the condition in death as one of unconsciousness. Then Matt. xxv. 46 to show the duration of the punishment, and John v. 36, that they "should not see life." The argument was clinched by two citations from Psa. xxxvii. 10 and 20. That they "should not be," but should consume into smoke. A strong negative argument was well employed from Psa. cxxxix. that a search in all the universe of God would fail to find a place where God was not, and as the wicked were to be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of God, there could not be found a place where the wicked could exist, and it was shown that a time was coming when his "place" would not be, and finally that the sinner himself should not be. To this overwhelming testimony and unanswerable logic McNew simply interposed the unscriptural definition of death as "a separation," and also gave as the punishment for sin a "two-fold" penalty—physical death and spiritual death. To this Bro. Conner rejoined that if physical death would kill a physical being and all agreed that it would, surely spiritual death would kill a spiritual being, and that after all the pretended opposition McNew was only affirming the proposition.

Intelligent men and women saw the contrast between the simple truth of the Bible that needs no special pleading, and the forced constructions that must be put upon the same word in trying to sustain a false doctrine.

The conviction was forced upon the thoughtful hearers that McNew was determined to antagonize the Scriptures by arraying one class of texts against another. No attempt was made by him to harmonize his views of endless life in misery with the plain declarations of the Bible that the wicked should die, be destroyed, burned up, be consumed, perish, be as nothing, not be, everlastingly destroyed, be reduced to ashes, all of which expressions must be tortured into the service of such to prove endless life, eternal existence in pain, a doctrine so repulsive to the best feeling of humanity that it has driven thousands into infidelity, some into insanity and many into total indifference to the Bible. A tree that bears such fruit cannot be a good tree and all intelligent people know that such fruits are the result of teaching the doctrine of endless life in pain.

It is to be regretted that arrangements could not be made to report the discussion in full. It was talked of, but the expense was greater than could be guaranteed. The report herewith submitted is from brief notes hastily taken during the discussion and through pressure of other matters delayed until memory fails to retain the vivid picture made at the time. The writer believes that he but voices the sentiment of the friends of truth who heard the discussion in saying that we all feel that we can confidently risk the defence of the truth with Bro. Conner. He has acquitted himself nobly, winning golden opinions even from the opposition. An incident occurred during the discussion that deserves notice in this report. An intelligent gentleman arose and requested the speakers to follow the discussion with a discourse from each "telling him and others what to do in order to meet God in peace." This man being a member of the U. B. church gave a deep significance to the "Macedonian cry." What a comment on the teaching of these blind leaders of the blind.

J. F. Wagoner.

The Sabbath.

Editor Restitution:

Please find space in The Restitution for this article on the Seventh Day Sabbath as we see so many people that are trying to force a law upon the Gentiles during this Gospel Age. It is high time that we begin to diligently search the Word of God for truth. Come now let us reason together.

In the first place we learn from the Holy Scriptures that the children of Israel was a typical people, types and shadows pointing to Christ a better sacrifice to come.

The law given by Moses to the children of Israel on Mount Sinai was an added law till the Seed should come to whom the promises were made, and that Seed was Christ. See Gal. iii. 10. Wherefore then serveth the law. It was added because of transgressions till the Seed should come to whom the promise was made, and it was ordained by angels in the hand of a Mediator. The law given to the Children of Israel was a national law, given to govern and rule that people only. Neh. ix. 14. And madest known unto them thy Holy Sabbath, and commandest them. Precepts, statutes, and laws by the hand of Moses thy servant.

Now let us see Neh. x. The names of them that sealed the covenant. Read all the chapter.

Now see Col. ii. 16. Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of an Holy Day, of the Sabbath Days which are a shadow of things to come, but the body is of Christ.

Rom. x. 4. For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

Gal. v. 1–18–23. Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

But if ye be led by the Spirit ye are not under the law.

Meekness, temperance, against such there is no law.

Heb. vii. 10-22. For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did by the which we draw nigh unto God.

By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament.

Heb. viii. 7. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. Please read the the rest of the verses in the same chapter. 8–9–10–11–12, and note the 13th verse.

Ex. xxiv. 12. And the Lord said unto Moses, come up to me into the Mount and be there and I will give thee tables of stone and a law and commandments which I have written that thou mayest teach them.

Luke x. 27–27. He said unto him what is written in the law how readest thou?

And he answering said, thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself.

Ex. xxxiv. 27–28. And the Lord said unto Moses, write thou these words, for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.

And he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights, he did neither eat bread nor drink water and he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

Gal. iv. 21–22–23–24. Tell me ye that desire to be under the law do ye not hear the law?

For it is written that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bond maid the other by a free woman.

But he who was of the bond woman was born after the flesh but he of the free woman was by promise.

Which things are an allegory for these are the two covenants the one from the Mount Sinai which gendereth to bondage which is Agar.

The Prophet Hosea declared that all the Sabbaths of Israel should cease.

Hosea ii. 11. I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feast days, her new moons, and her sabbaths, and all her solemn feasts.

2 Cor. iii. 13. But if the ministration of death written and engraven in stones was glorious so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance which glory was to be done away.

And not as Moses which put a veil over his face that the children of Israel could not steadfastly look to the end of that which is abolished, verse 14, but their minds were blinded, for until this day remaineth the same veil untaken away in the reading of the Old Testament which veil is done away in Christ.

2 Chron. ii. 4. Behold I build an house to the name of the Lord my God to dedicate it to him, and to burn before him sweet incense and for the continual shew-bread, and for the burnt offerings morning and evening on the sabbaths and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts of the Lord our God this is an ordinance forever to Israel.

Col. ii. 14. Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was contrary to us and took it away nailing it to his cross.

Gal. iv. 10–11. Ye observe days and months and times and years.

I am afraid of you least I have bestowed upon you labor in vain.

Now we learn in the blessed Word of God that the sabbath given to the children of Israel by Moses on Mount Sinai was a national sabbath given as a memorial of their deliverance out of the Egyptian bondage.

Isaiah i. 13–14. Bring no more vain oblations incense is an abomination unto me. The new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with it, is iniquity even the solemn meeting.

Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth, they are a trouble unto me, I am weary to bear them.

Hosea ii. 11. Now we learn that this law was a law of sin and death do we not know that this same law killed and crucified our blessed Savior? Yes, he gave himself as a ransom for the sins of the whole world.

Yes, the second Adam, the Lord from heaven is coming back to this earth again, and when he comes he will restore all that was lost in the first Adam. Yes, he will restore the kingdom back to Israel. We see that God is gradually working out his great plans and purposes, throughout all the ages past, fitting and preparing a way for the blessing of the nations of the earth at that great and notable day of the Lord's coming. We see that God has always had a perfect law of love from the creation of man as we read in God's blessed Words of Life at creation. In the beginning he made man perfect after his own image but Adam broke God's infinite law in the Garden of Eden and was driven out of the Garden, and God pronouced upon Adam death as the penalty of that violation.

We see again that God's great plan and purpose has been gradually working out a way through the past ages that he might finally bring his fallen creatures to a perfect knowledge of his great infinite law of love, and this is to be done through his beloved Son.

The first sabbath given at creation was a type of the great antityre of rest at the end of the restitution age, a rest promised to the people of God.

Gen. ii. 2–3. And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made.

Let us notice the Lord's prophetic periods as we see that the Lord's days are marked in periods, as one day is with the Lord as one thousand years, or one age. Now we see the Lord's days marked thus in sevenths, being the sacred number of the Scriptures. Monday one age. Tuesday one age and so on.

When the seventh trump shall sound the Lord from heaven shall come.

Turn to Heb. iv. and read from the 1st to 11th verses and see how we are to enter that rest.

We read in the Scriptures that the Jewish age has had its duration, and its harvest, and passed out, and the new covenant has taken its place, based upon better promises.

This new covenant is God's law of love, for love is the fulfilling of the law.

My dear seventh day people, can you place your finger on one of the ten commandments that mentions love, or can you show me any place in the New Testament where ever our Savior or any of the apostles gave any commandment as a Sabbath or a Holy day to keep if you can? If we follow the example of our Savior and the apostles, we should not esteem one day above another.

My dear readers, and learners of the Word of God, I will say that I expect to enter God's sabbatic period at the final restitution age. During the Gospel age we are entering his rest by complying with the conditions of God's blessed Words of Life, and in the final restitution age we shall be blessed in the new heaven wherein dwelleth righteousness. Oh, blessed rest promised to the people of God in that age to come.

Wm. H. Denson.

God values no man by outward excellencies, but by inward graces. —Flavel.

TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.
Some of the Advantages of the Most Desirable Route.

Of the railways centering at the World's Fair City none have better demonstrated ample ability and facilities for handling large crowds expeditiously, safely and comfortably than the Pennsylvania Lines. This system of railways has two principal arteries running to Chicago which are tapped by laterals reaching all over Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. The main lines stretch in direct routes from Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, and the intermediate territory, touching all the principal cities and towns, from which through trains run without change to the very gates of the World's Fair. During the past year the tracks of this system have undergone extensive improvements, the train service has been augmented, and the policy of the Pennsylvania to promptly adopt every plan or device conducing to the welfare of its patrons is conspicuous in these improvements. In addition to being the most direct route to Chicago from the territory traversed by them, these lines offer among other things the following advantages for a delightful journey to the World's Fair:

More through daily trains to Chicago from this locality run over the Pennsylvania Lines than over any other railway. The equipment includes Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars and clean and comfortable modern coaches, embodying every comfort for a pleasant trip. The only rock-ballasted roadbed from this vicinity to Chicago is the Pennsylvania, so that there is no annoyance from dust, and the solidity of the tracks, comfortable cars and enjoyable scenes through which the trains pass add to the delights of a ride over it.

Passengers have the privilege of leaving through trains at South Chicago, Grand Crossing or Englewood. These are practically World's Fair stations, as they are almost within the shadow of the gates to the grounds, which can be easily reached by a ride of a few blocks in street cars. They are also in the midst of the hotel and boarding house district adjacent to the World's Fair, so that passengers who may have engaged accommodations near the grounds can easily reach them, and have their baggage transferred with the least delay and discomfort, as baggage will be checked from and to South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood. The main station of the Pennsylvania Lines in Chicago is the Chicago Union Passenger Station on Canal street, between Adams and Madison streets, in the midst of the business portion and near to the principal hotels, and passengers may go with their baggage to that station if they do not desire to leave trains at South Chicago, Grand Crossing or Englewood.

Under the present schedule through trains run as follows over the

"Fort Wayne Route."

Leave Plymouth.	Arrive South Chicago.	Arrive Grand Crossing.	Arrive Englewood.	Arrive Chicago.
6.49 pm	8.52 pm	8.59 pm	9.05 pm	9.30 pm
3.23 am	5.48 am	5.54 am	6.00 am	6.25 am
7.23 am	9.21 am	9.29 am	9.35 am	10.00 am
2.15 pm	4.40 pm	4.48 pm	4.55 pm	5.20 pm

At all the stations mentioned will be found courteous employes who will cheerfully furnish any desired information and direct passengers to certain streets or avenues upon which their hotel or boarding house may be located. Visitors will find special information bureaus of these lines on the Exposition Grounds, one being located on Midway Plaisance, in the Adams Express Company's Building, and another in the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's individual exhibit building near the 64th street entrance. Time cards, map, and any information pertaining to trains, can be obtained there. The city ticket office of the Pennsylvania Lines is located at No. 248 South Clark street, corner Jackson, and at this office, as well as at the Union Passenger Station on Canal street, between Adams and Madison streets, time cards and information can be obtained and sleeping car accommodations secured. Mr. H. R. Dering, Ass't General Passenger Agent, will be found at No. 248 South Clark street, and an application addressed to him will be promptly responded to by that gentleman or one of his representatives to aid passengers in arranging details of a trip.

Rates over the Pennsylvania Lines for the World's Fair have been reasonable since its inauguration. The regular round trip rate to Chicago, good returning thirty days, is $4.60 from Plymouth. Some days before the opening of the Fair a round trip rate of $4.10 was made from this point. This rate is for tickets good going any time before Oct. 31st and good returning until Nov. 5th. Besides the above there is a special excursion rate of $2.55 round trip from Plymouth for the special coach excursion run periodically, and which are duly advertised. This is also a ten day limit rate. It will be seen that the concessions in fare have been arranged to suit all tastes and requirements, the privileges enjoyed being employed as a basis upon which to make the reductions, and considering the superior service and advantages offered, the reductions have been liberal. Information on the subject can be obtained from any Pennsylvania Line ticket agent, or by addressing F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

[illegible] are a file that rubs [illegible] of self-confidence.—[illegible]

God-sent sorrow is an angel in mourning. But any sorrow that we may rightfully escape is not God-sent.—Garrett.

A good way to have conscience untormented is to have it undefiled. He who made you clean within will also keep you calm within.—Seeker.

The wise man preserves in his own bosom the sacred flame which enlightens him, though winds may blow and tempests roar without.—Plotinus.

Why should I start at the plow of my Lord, that maketh deep furrows on my soul? I know he is no idle husbandman. He purposeth a crop.—Rutherford.

If prayer speed not, we must be sure that the fault is not in God, but in ourselves; we were but ripe for mercy, he is ready to extend it to us, and even waits for the purpose.—Trapp.

All truly concerned men learn little by little that what they are consecrated to is not joy or sorrow, but a divine idea and a profound obedience which can find their full outward expression not in joy, not in sorrow, but in the mysterious and inseparable mingling of the two.—Phillips Brooks.

A gentleman traveling in a stage-coach, attempted to divert the company by ridiculing the Scriptures. "As to the prophecies," said he, "in particular, they were all written after the events took place." A minister in the coach, who had hitherto been silent, replied, "Sir, I beg leave to mention one particular prophecy as an exception. 2 Peter, iii. 3, 'knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days, scoffers.' Now, sir, whether the event be not long after the prediction, I leave the company to judge." The mouth of the scorner was stopped.

New Through Train.

The Nickel Plate Road announces that commencing Sunday, Sept. 3rd, Train No. 1, running between Chicago and Cleveland, and No. 5 running between Cleveland and Buffalo, will be merged into a continuous through train, leaving Chicago about 8:00 A. M. and reaching Buffalo between three or four o'clock the following morning.

The equipment of this train will embrace standard smoking and day coaches and sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

Terre Haute and St. Joseph Trains 55 and 56.

Taking effect Monday, June 12th, 1893, the Vandalia Line will run daily except Sunday, fast trains 55 and 56 between Terre Haute and St. Joseph. During past seasons these trains have found great favor with the travelling public, and this announcement therefore will be received as a bit of good news. These trains will run about as they did last year, viz—leave Terre Haute 1:00 P. M., arrive St Joseph Mich. 7:30 P. M. Leave St Joseph 2:40 P. M., arrive Terre Haute 9:45 P. M. For complete schedule of Vandalia Line trains address any ticket agent of that line, or Chas. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $1.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Growing.

The Nickel Plate Road will on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, increase their train service by the addition of a new though east bound train by merging the Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Buffalo accommodation trains into a new through express with sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo. Other important changes. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

Appointments.

To the Brethren and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here, so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

P. H. Hoax.

The Eighth Annual Conference, of the Church of God in Nebraska, will convene (the Lord willing) in the beautiful natural park at Cambridge, Furnas Co., Neb., Sept. 15, and continue in session ten days.

Everything considered this is the best location that can be found in this part of the country.

Brethren the success of this meeting depends largely on you. Will you lay aside your work and the cares of this life, and come and enjoy a week of pleasant, social intercourse with us?

Since we met one year ago, a great change has taken place in this country. A change that signifies in unmistakable terms the proximity of Gentile rule. It becomes necessary, therefore, that we meet together and by prayer, and exhortation strengthen each other, for these "perilous times."

We urge all who intend to camp on the grounds, to provide themselves with tents. Those who wish to buy one should notify the President, Almus Adams, as early as Sept. 5th, and it will be on the ground for you by the 15th, at which time settlement can be made.

A well of good water is on the ground. Hay will be provided for teams. Those unacquainted in Cambridge should inquire the direction to the Park at the flouring mills, or the corner store.

We say again, come in the Spirit and endeavor to do valuable service for the Master.

Bro. Geo. Moyer, of Iowa, will be with us to preach the Word.

J. J. Cady, Sec'y.

To the Brethren of "like precious faith," greeting:

It will be noticed that the Church of God, known as the Northern Nebraska and Southern Dakota Conference, will hold their next annual conference near Carns, at the Rock Creek School House in Rock County, Nebraska, commencing Sept. 23, 1893.

All the brothers and sisters of the Abrahamic Faith are especially called to meet with us at this time. Come, brethren, one and all, as we see the signs of the times nearing upon us we believe truly that this age is drawing to a close.

[illegible] E. Denson, Sec'y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Moriah, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. Hatch.

Heavy East Bound Travel.

On account of growth of east-bound business, the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate a new through express on Sunday, Sept. 3rd. Palace Sleepers Chicago to Buffalo and direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Jolidan. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Getschman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millspaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $168.78

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Leonard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

It is a pleasure to note the addition of another through train to the already competent train service of the Nickel Plate Road. It will leave Chicago about 8:00 A. M. and reach Buffalo at 3 or 4 the following morning. Through sleepers Chicago to Buffalo. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published $61.00

EXPENDITURE.

Previously used $14.20

J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,

J. F. Wagoner's direction $17.00

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 50 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sircleville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by [illegible], in 1860. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 35cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; 20 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Have you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Stanley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5c. each, 15 for 50c., 30 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 44 pages, price 20c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at [illegible], Pa., by [illegible], 16 pages. Lately. Can be had at this office at 10c., each, 3 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Traditions of our Fathers. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. Hilliker, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Hope of All Tal ges. Carrie Williams. This title of book of 219 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the author, Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary, a dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, and more than smaller illustrations, Smaller maps of the Holy Land in the time of Jesus, the Travels of Christ, and general maps of localities mentioned in the Bible. Bound [illegible] pages, price $1.50.

Jesus Christ. His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews. [illegible] lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 104 pages, price 30 cts. or four for $1, postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the interpretations of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; Library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 251 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price $1.25.

Cruden's Concordance (Cambridge). This work is too well known to need commendation. Every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, of the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 123 pages, cloth bound, for 25 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas, Title page, "The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 320 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 65 cents; 12 for $1.20; 50 for $8.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Author at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 156 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 600 hymns. To this is added 43 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each; 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say that subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Saith and Allite Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 328 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into twenty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 148 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 161 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 25 cts a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, The Teachings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, [illegible], invisible, incorruption, [illegible], forever, everlasting, eternal, [illegible], as gathered from their use in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 12 pages, [illegible].

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, [illegible] cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 426 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1845 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Sixth and Spring Garden Sts., Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsay Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastors residence 1910 Kling Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting, they now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m., every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. S. H. Getschman, every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every third Sunday in the month, also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in Hall northeast corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Th[illegible] evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at Doyle's for Sunday school and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any be there passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., in Mill Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meet [illegible] Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 32 in Frontier Co. and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Almus Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. [illegible] Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope" of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars run very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to one Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, O.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. G. Wilson, Elder; Kuss Sipple, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. P. Hanson and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich. meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves	...	11:41pm
No. 22,	...	[illegible]
No. 25,	...	[illegible]
No. 151, Local,	...	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger, Leaves	...	[illegible]
No. 29,	...	[illegible]
No. 27,	...	12:03pm
No. 151, Local,	...	11:10pm

† Daily except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 8:00 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 6, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with C. & A. trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager.

CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.

Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	[illegible]	For St. Joseph.
No. 66	[illegible]
No. 64,	[illegible]	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	5:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53,	[illegible]	"
No. 55,	[illegible]	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. E. DALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

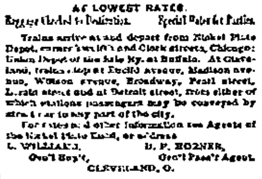
Westward.		9	3	1		47
Pittsb'gh lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	47	47
Ft Wayne ar. / lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eagle Lake				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hamlet				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Davis			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke				[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	[illegible]	9 30	6 25	5 20	[illegible]	[illegible]

Eastward.	20	22	8	4	36	40
	AM	AM	PM	PM	PM	PM
Chicago lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]			[illegible]	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]				[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]				[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eagle Lake	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]				[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]				[illegible]
Ft Wayne ar. / lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsb'gh ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
	PM	AM	AM	PM

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager,
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. F. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.



Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Wilson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't.
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall do my best to circulate it."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson.	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Food for Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as them."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 5 cts. single; 30 cts. per doz.; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cts. for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 20, 1893. NO. 35.

M Joblin
824 Woodland ave

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT HAILEBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. D. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40 }

Poetry.

"It is the Lord."

"It is the Lord," 1 Sam. iii. 18; John xxi. 7.
"The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof."—Psalm xxiv. 1.

It is the Lord who only doeth wonders!
He sits enthron'd in majesty on high.
And speeds the lightning's flash and rolls the thunders
Along the stormy sky!

It is the Lord: "The sea is His, He made it,"
Its angry tempests and its seething waters;
"His hands prepar'd the dry land" and stay'd it
With its ten thousand shores.

He wraps the winter in its robes of whiteness;
He [illegible] spring its verdure and its showers;
He gives the summer all its warmth and brightness,
Its wealth of fruits and flowers.

He crowns the autumn with a crown of [illegible];
And [illegible] from her fruitful soil
He [illegible] the earth her harvest tribute render
Of corn and wine and oil.

He blessed the sowers when they went to scatter
The precious seed on valley, hill, and plain;
And sent the rain, the early and the latter,
Upon the swelling grain.

He blessed the reapers who went forth to gather
The ears which He had ripen'd from above;
And so His deeds show our heavenly Father
To be a God of love!

[illegible] O'er all the boundless earth,
[illegible] will enthrone universal king,
And [illegible] immortals through the eternal ages,
To Him thanksgiving bring.

[illegible] is meet, right, and our bounden duty,"
For constant mercies constant praise to lift
To God, the Author of all life and beauty,
The Giver of each gift.

Selected.

Our Future King.

The majority of the British nation recognize in the Prince of Wales their future king, because he is the eldest son of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and heir apparent to the throne of Great Britain. Because in the natural course of events he will attain to that high and exalted position, providing revolution nor death steps in to prevent it.

On a recent occasion when he was opening one of the bridges which span the river that runs through this mighty metropolis of a mighty Empire, amongst many other mottoes that were shown by the loyal inhabitants of the locality where the ceremony took place, was one that specially attracted my attention. The words were these: "God bless our Future King." Although recognizing the obligation that is upon us to be subject to the powers that be, yet we do not recognize in him "our Future King." He, by reason of death, although he may reign for a time, will soon pass away; but "our Future King" is one who, when he ascends his throne, will never be removed by death; the grim tyrant will never be able to lay its cold and icy hand on him, for he has conquered death and the grave; death hath no more dominion over him. This king has been promised for ages past, but he has not yet taken unto himself his great power and reigned; nevertheless at the appointed time he will ascend his promised throne and become universal monarch. It undoubtedly is thought a great and mighty honor to stand associated with the King of a mighty empire, like Great Britain; but it will not last; it is only for a little while at best, for death is in the world and has no respect of persons; rich and poor must submit when he approaches; all the wealth that is in the earth cannot stay his hand one solitary hour. Yet men will do their very best to attain to such exalted positions, transitory though they be, and will cast aside as a worthless thing the offer to become associated with one who has not only conquered death, but who will bestow upon all who love and obey him, a nature that will endure forever, and permit them to be his associates through endless ages.

To tell men and women that they, though poor and lowly now, may become kings and reign upon the earth for a thousand years in righteousness and peace with the Son of God, the man Christ Jesus who trode this vale of tears as God's Lamb to take away the sin of the world, and who has been exalted to the right hand of God as a Prince and Savior, where he is waiting until his foes shall be made his footstool, is to meet with scorn and derision from them with but few exceptions, although they profess to recognize the book that so clearly teaches it as being from God. The rich as a rule, will not even deign to listen, being contented—or professedly so—with what they now possess; but the day is coming when their lofty looks will be humbled, and the Lord alone exalted.

This Future King of ours is at present the Prince of Peace, but in due time he will manifest himself as the Lion of the tribe of Judah, and take possession of his throne. The first promise referring to the kingly position of this Mighty Potentate, whose dominion is to be "from sea to sea, from the river unto the ends of the earth," is contained in the words "thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies" (Gen. xxii. 17). This promise was made, amongst others, to Abraham, "the friend of God," and refers to none other than Jesus Christ; for the apostle Paul says that "to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ" (Gal. iii. 16). The next mention of this great and glorious King is in the blessing of Judah by his father Jacob, when prophetically speaking he declares "The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until (when?) Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the nations be" (Gen. xlix. 10). That this also refers to Jesus Christ is evident from another prophecy relating to him which is as follows. —"Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the Lord. And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and shall be my people; and I dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me unto thee" (Zech. ii. 11). Here then is "the gathering of the nations" to Christ spoken of by Jacob, and the way in which this is accomplished is shown by God through the prophet Micah, when he says—"But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation; neither shall they learn war any more" (Micah iv. 1-3). War is the great curse of the human race, but this "our Future King," when he "possesses the gate of his enemies" makes an end of it for ever, and through him, by means of everlasting peace and righteousness, all nations of the earth shall be blessed.

Jehovah has sworn unto his servant David, "the man after his own heart," that "Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations" (Psalm lxxxix. 4). The apostle Peter in referring to this, says "Therefore (David) being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne" (Acts ii. 30). From this and much more testimony that could be advanced, we gather that this "our Future King," will reign in Jerusalem on the throne of his father David over "the house of Jacob for ever;" and when he ascends his throne, upon God's "holy hill of Zion," he will ask of him "the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession," and will grant him his request, compelling all kings to fall down before him and all nations to serve him. We further gather, as this interesting subject is investigated, that those who believe in this glorious gospel of God's, and obey his commandments, become heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, and that to those who overcome he (Christ) will "give power over the nations;" and although they shall rule with an iron rod, yet it will be one of love, for in justice and in mercy will they rule the world; for the characteristics of that reign will be righteousness, peace and joy, and every temporal and spiritual blessing that humanity requires will be abundant, and righteously dispensed by the Christ and his immortal Bride. Those desiring such honor and glory conferred upon them must follow in the footsteps of him they recognize as their "Future King." He was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," he had "not where to lay his head;" his path was a thorny one, full of sorrow and suffering, ending in a cruel death upon a Roman cross; but all this he endured for "the joy that was set before him," and for his faithfulness even unto death God has conferred upon him the Crown of Life, and invested him with the power to bestow upon all his faithful ones the like precious gift—the robe of immortality. But it is only those who endure as good soldiers of Christ to the end of their probation, and who deny him not will be permitted to reign with him, for the apostle Paul says, "if we suffer, we shall also reign with him: if we deny him, he also will deny us" (2 Tim. ii. 12); and again he says it is "through much tribulation" the saints are to enter the Kingdom of God. Those then who wish to be associated with this "our Future King," when he shall be "King of kings and Lord of lords," must recognize him now as the one who is appointed of God to be the "one King over all the earth," and "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world," walking as children of the light, and who will exalt them from the lowest depths of poverty and wretchedness to the highest positions in his kingdom, when the Prince of Wales and all other potentates will have passed away; giving them the privilege and honor of reigning with him when "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.

What a gracious offer Jehovah makes unto the children of men a nature like unto his own if they believe his gracious promises, obey his commandments, walking as children of the day, who in the midst of a crooked and perverse world, keep themselves unspotted from it, and whom he will in due time permit to stand around the throne of his beloved Son and sing "thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth" (Rev. v. 9, 10).—P. A. H.

* * *

As the lark sings sweetly while she soars on high, but is suddenly silenced when she falls to earth, so is the frame of the soul most delightful and divine while it keepeth God in view by contemplation; but, alas! we make there too short a stay, and lay by our music. Hazlitt.

What is a Soul? Can it Die?

These are questions which appear on the face of them so simple that any one professing to belong to any religious body would readily volunteer an answer.

Whilst most of the sects are pleased to differ upon almost every other point of Bible doctrine, yet upon this "soul" question they are all agreed (with, perhaps, one or two exceptions.)

Suppose it can be proved beyond contradiction, and in a way which will commend itself from clear Bible testimony, which cannot be twisted to mean anything else, that the "sects" are wrong upon this point, and that their teaching is not according to the Scriptures of truth? Why then the whole structure of the so-called Orthodox Religion must be built upon a false foundation, for this immortal-soul theory is the basis of what is commonly known as orthodox religion; and yet there is not a single passage of Scripture which speaks of the soul as being immortal, never-dying, etc., but there are a very large number which speak of the soul as being subject to death.

The great mistake people make in searching the Scriptures to ascertain the "truth" is by going to the Bible with preconceived ideas and trying to harmonize the Bible with their ideas, instead of trying to harmonize their ideas with the Bible. It is an understood fact that if a person who had never seen the Bible were to read it for the first time without preconceived notions, he would not find this immortality of the soul theory upon any of its pages.

Let us put the matter to a test by first taking an authority which is outside the Bible, and secondly by the Bible itself.

The "Emphatic Diaglott," by Benjamin Wilson is an acknowledged authority; he gives the true rendering of the Greek and Hebrew words from which our word soul is taken. He says the Hebrew word Nephesh of the Old Testament occurs about 700 times, and is rendered soul 471 times, and the same word is also rendered a man, a person, self, me, anyone, breath, heart, mind, appetite, the body (dead or alive,) lust, creature, and even a beast, for it is 28 times applied to beasts and to every creeping thing. The Greek word Psuche of the New Testament corresponds with Nephesh of the old; it occurs 105 times, and is rendered soul 58 times, and life 40 times; the same word is also rendered mind, us, you, heart, heartily, and is twice applied to the beasts that perish.

Perhaps it may be worthy of notice that in all the 700 times which Nephesh occurs, and the 105 times of Psuche, not once is the word immortal, or immortality, or deathless, or never dying found in connection as qualifying the terms.

And again, speaking of the word "immortal," he says, "It does not occur once in the original, and only once in the common version. (1 Timothy i. 17.) Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honor and glory forever and ever, Amen. Where it ought to be rendered incorruptible, and is applied to God."

It may be worthy of notice, also, that the word immortality is mentioned but 5 times in the Scriptures; once, that God only hath it, (1 Timothy vi. 16;) once, that we should seek for it, (Romans ii. 7;) once, that it is brought to light through the Gospel, (2 Tim. i. 10,) and twice, that it is not to be put on until the resurrection. (1 Corinthians xv. 52, 54.)

It is very clear, upon the authority of the "Emphatic Diaglott" that the Scriptures nowhere speak of man as having an immortal soul, but that the soul is the natural body, in other words, the soul is the body, and the body is the soul.

Having taken an authority which is outside the Bible, let us now look inside, for help in deciding the first question:

WHAT IS A SOUL?

Num. xxxi. 28. Levy a tribute unto the Lord, of the men of war, which went out to battle, one soul of five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, and of the asses, and of the sheep.

Prov. xix. 15. Selfishness casteth into a deep sleep, and an idle soul shall suffer hunger.

Jer. ii. 34. In thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents. I have not found it by secret search but all upon these.

Lam. i. 11, 19. All her people sigh, they seek bread; they have given their pleasant things for meat to relieve the soul. I called for my lovers, but they deceived me, my priests and mine elders gave up the ghost in the city, while they sought their meat to relieve their souls.

Lev. v. 2, 4. If a soul touch any unclean beast, or a carcass of unclean cattle, or the carcass of unclean creeping things, and if it be hid from him he also shall be unclean and guilty, or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him, when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these.

Job xxxiii. 22, 28. His soul draweth near unto the grave, and his life to the destroyers, he will deliver his soul from going into the pit, and his life shall see the light.

Psalm xxx. 3. O Lord thou hast brought up my soul from the grave, thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit.

Prov. vi. 30. Men do not despise a thief if he steal to satisfy his soul when he is hungry.

It will be seen from the testimonies quoted, that both persons, beeves, asses, and sheep are souls, and that the soul can be idle, and that souls have blood in them, and that souls can be hungry, and that souls can touch something, and that souls can swear, pronouncing with their lips, and that souls can go into the grave, and that souls can come out of the grave.

Very many more testimonies could be added, but perhaps these are sufficient to show that the soul is a natural body.

It will be seen by this time, how simple a matter it will be, to prove the second question, "Can a soul die?" since we have such clear Scriptural ideas upon the first question; but in order to show how very explicit the Scriptures are upon this point, let us see a few of them in proof of

"CAN A SOUL DIE?"

Josh. xi. 11. And they smote all the souls that were therein, with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them; there was not any left to breathe.

Psalm lxxviii. 50. He made a way to his anger; he spared not their soul from death; but gave their life over to the pestilence.

Acts iii. 23. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.

Psalm xxii. 29. All they that be fat upon earth, shall eat and worship. All they that go down to the dust shall bow before him, and none can keep alive his own soul.

Rev. xvi. 3. And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it became as the blood of a dead man, and every living soul died in the sea.

Psa. xxxiii. 19. To deliver their soul from death, and to keep alive in famine.

Josh. x. 28. And that day Joshua took Makkedah and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the King thereof he utterly destroyed, them and all the souls that were therein. See also verses 30, 35, 37, 39, 40.

Ezekiel xxii. 27. Her princes in the midst thereof are like wolves ravening the prey, to shed blood and to destroy souls to get dishonest gain.

Ezekiel xiii. 19. And will ye pollute me among my people, for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, to slay the souls that should not die, and to save alive the souls that should not live?

Ezekiel xviii. 4, 20. Behold all souls are mine, as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth it shall die.

Many other passages could be produced to show that the soul can die, nay, but that it must die, but it certainly cannot be necessary, after the great amount of Scripture quoted.

On the principle that the soul is immortal, all the passages referred to, and all belonging to that class, have no meaning in fact, by this doctrine, a large portion of the Bible becomes meaningless.

The question may be asked, "Is there nothing beyond this present life, is there no way out of the grave?" Oh yes! there is a future a glorious reality, for those who identify themselves with Christ as his brethren, and who are of the household of God. This is brought about by the resurrection. There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust, Acts xxiv. 15. We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things in body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. (2 Corinthians v. 10.)

But the object of this paper is, to show that the soul is a natural body, and that it can die; it is commended to the unbiased reader with the hope that he will

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES."

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." Paul.

Where their Worm Dieth Not.

The passage (Mark ix. 44) from which the above quotation is taken, instead of disproving conditional immortality, proves it plainly. This solemn declaration of Christ is not an original saying of His. It is quoted word for word from Isaiah lxvi. 24. Isaiah says, "They shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me; for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh." A moment's glance shows us that both the worm and the fire are alike, external and distinct from the subject on which they prey; and, also, that what both prey upon are not the living but the dead. The allusion, says Bengel, "is to dead bodies, which are the food of the worm and the funeral pile." Isaiah frequently uses the image of "the worm," but it is always in connection with death. What he means is, "The moth shall eat them up like a garment, and the worm shall eat them like wool." The one text explains the other. This fearful image conveys the idea of hell, as the cleanser of God's world by the utter eternal destruction of the wicked. These words of Isaiah, endorsed by Christ, assert a state of eternal death and destruction; not one of eternal life in hell as the destiny of transgressors in the world to come. Isaiah xxxiii. 14: "Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burning?" The answer is to be found in verse 15: "He that walketh righteously, etc. It does not refer to life in misery, but to the eternal extinction of life; the irrevocable loss which the wicked will bring upon themselves. Those who are spoken of in verse 11, are the people spoken of in verse 12, who "shall be as the burning of lime, as thorns cut up shall they be burned in the fire." Jude verse 7: "Even as Sodom and Gomorrha. . . . are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire." That fire is not burning at the present time, although it is called an "eternal fire." It is the vengeance, or the destruction, that is eternal punishment; the fire was eternal in its effects. We read of eternal judgment in Heb. vi. 2: Who will suppose that Jesus will continue to judge? It will only be the decision that will always exist.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Did Paul Believe in Annihilation of the Wicked?

It will, I have no doubt, be agreed that Paul believed and taught the same on this as James and John. John says "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life (zoen) and he that believeth not on the Son shall not see life (zoen)" John iii. 36. James says "For what is your life (zoe)? It is even a vapor that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away" James iv. 14. Paul says "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life [zoe] Rom. ii. 7. We will now see what Paul meant by "destruction," whether it is loss of life or not. "If any man defile [gr. Phtherie, Mar. destroy] the temple of God, him shall God destroy [Phtherie]." 1 Cor. iii. 17. It is the same Greek verb which first, here, signifies "defile," and afterwards "destroy." The first is the sinner's guilty act; the second is God's punishment, hereafter by destruction. This verb in its composite form has also the same two senses, while it intensifies the force (Diaphtherio). It signifies to "destroy utterly" to "kill" as well as "to lead astray" and "corrupt." Shrevelius's Gr. and Eng. Lexicon defines it "to corrupt, destroy, ruin, debauch, violate, pollute, defile, consume, waste, ravage, and kill." In the book of the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which is so frequently and so vainly supposed to teach the eternal torment of the wicked; it is used to describe future punishment, where John tells us that God will "destroy them that destroy the earth" Rev. ii. 18. The verb occurs twice in this passage, and is in both cases translated "destroy." This ought to have been the same as in 1 Cor. iii. 17. The Vulgate has carried out the true sense as translated in the Douay Version: Shouldst destroy them who have corrupted the earth.

The Resurrection.

In the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage" Matt. xxii. 30, that is, in the state to which the dead rise. Again, "they that have done good (shall come forth) to the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil to the resurrection of condemnation;" that is, one class come out of the grave to one resurrection-state, and the other to another resurrection-state. It is testified that Paul preached Jesus and the resurrection. Acts xvii. 18. This could not mean that Paul simply preached the act of rising from the grave. The mere act of rising from the grave is not necessarily a good thing. Lazarus and the son of the widow of Nain arose from the grave, but not to the resurrection (state) preached by Paul. They merely received a renewal of mortal life. The wicked of a certain class will rise from the grave, but the act of rising will not be to them a gladsome event, but the contrary, they would prefer to be left in the oblivion of the tomb. Everything depends upon the state to which the rising from the grave is the introduction. Paul preached the resurrection-state of incorruption and immortality. To this state the dead have to rise. The mere act of rising is not the resurrection. It is involved in it; it is a part, but as employed in the Scriptures it required the state after coming out of the grave to be added, before the idea expressed by the word resurrection is complete.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 20, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

"IMMORTALITY is life manifested through an incorruptible body." •

A SELFISH person leaves behind him scarcely any traces of his existence, and is forgotten as if he had never been, except by those who have suffered through his ruling trait. Selfishness is its own curse. He who does no good gets none. •

OPPOSITION to the truth is often beneficial, it sends us back to the grand old Book to make sure we are right; and having again tested our faith we are strong as a lion. In this way both investigators and their hinderers further the cause of truth. •

"WHATEVER you think proper to grant a child, do it at the first word, without any importunity whatever and never make any conditions. Grant with pleasure; refuse with reluctance, but let your refusal be irrevocable. Let the particle no, be a wall of brass which a child will not try his strength against many times. •

THE pleasures of this world are so transitory and fleeting that it seems a crime for a man to fritter away his days in frivolous pursuits, or set his whole mind upon what may be mist or vapor before tomorrow's sun shall go down. We are often astonished that the uncertainties of life, and the dark veil which shuts off man from the future, and the ignorance of what it may bring forth, do not have a more salutary effect upon men and women otherwise wise. •

"HE that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption." The term corruption, in Greek and English, has two meanings, moral depravity and putrefaction. In this Scripture we may be sure the first meaning is not intended, because it would not be good sense to say "He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap depravity." So, then it means putrefaction, as the concomitant of death,—literal destruction. The same word is used in Rom. viii. 21, 1 Cor. xv. 42, 50; Col. ii. 21; 2 Pet. ii. 12. •

"MERCY and truth have met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other," saith the Spirit. Truth had pronounced the doom of the sinner; mercy could do nothing for man until a way was opened by Jesus, the new and living way. Mercy and truth now meet in man's redemption. No righteous peace existed from the killing of Abel by Cain. The weaker always went to the wall—submitted to the stronger right or wrong; peace on no other terms was possible. Besides the righteousness of God obtainable through faith in the Anointed now, there is a righteous peace for both individuals and nations in the near future, when every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree, with none to molest or make him afraid. •

LUTHER made a noble plea for testimony and reason at Worms in 1521, when he said, "Since, Great Ceasar, and illustrious princes, you require a specific answer, this is my decision! Unless I am convinced by proof from the sacred writings or evident reason, I cannot recall anything that I have written or taught, for I cannot do anything that would wound my conscience." He might have stopped there, perhaps, to his present advantage, but he went on, "On the other hand I have no faith in the Roman Pontiff and mere councils, and do not regard them as of authority, for they have frequently erred, and contradicted themselves in their decrees, and are liable to misjudge and be deceived." This was the citadel of Luther's strength, and it should be ours. These were the weapons used by Paul. We read, "Paul as his manner was, went into the synagogue to the Jews and reasoned with them out of the Scriptures, opening and alleging." •

WE hope our readers will find our bill of fare instructive, comforting and strengthening, as no pains are spared to make the paper helpful to all. •

"THE wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is Eternal Life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. vi. 23. Does sin pay in death, and God give life to the same class of recipients? No! Death settles accounts with sin's laborers; and God gives Eternal Life to his children. The life in the case is qualified, but the death is not, it is simply death. Reader, would you receive the gift, believe and obey the gospel; if you do not, the wages will be yours." •

HEB. vi. 12, has been brought up to prove that the departed saints as disembodied spirits have entered upon their reward in heaven. This must be a mistake because it plainly contradicts another passage in the epistle. Heb. ii. 13 says, "These all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promises; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. Heb. ii. 39, 40. What this text teaches, is, that the faith and patience of these worthies have placed them in the company of those who inherit the promises, not the blessings promised. •

IN one of the Baird series of lectures in the established church of Scotland, on "The Immortality of the Soul," the lecturer contended that Christianity appealed to nature for the first evidence of Immortality, and as the buttress of his argument quoted these words of the Master in support of the dogma: If it were not so, I would have told you. An advocate must be reduced to great straits when he drags such a text into his service. This is an insult to intelligence and common sense; but it shows the blind credulity of men long under influence of the clergy. To have been applicable to the case in hand this passage should have read, "If your soul had not been immortal, I would have told you." The contest warrants no such conclusion. The Scripture is wrested. •

QUESTION:—"Will you please explain how Christ had power when he was dead to raise himself?" And if this was not the power, what was it? F. B.? Ans. The word rendered power, is exousian and means not only power, but authority, right, liberty, privilege, etc.; thus, in John i. 12, "But to as many as received him, to them gave he power [the right or privilege] to become the sons of God," etc. Again in Heb. xiii. 10 we read, "We have an altar, whereof they have no right—exousian—to eat" etc. Christ received power, right, authority or privilege to lay down his life and to take it again, from his Father; and the uniform testimony of all the apostles is, "that God raised up Christ from the dead." Christ voluntarily laid down his life; God promised to raise him up, and to do it early, before corruption set in. In view of that promise, Christ, when expiring, committed his life to his Father, and his Father restored him to life the third day. There is nothing in the Scriptures to warrant the idea that Christ raised himself from death. Such a view would virtually deny the resurrection. •

PEEVISHNESS is a corroding malady and eats and eats till the vitality is gone. We do not know if it be induced by provocation or example, or whether it be the result of ill health, or heredity;—perhaps all combined contributed in some cases to form this loathsome canker. Plainly it is the duty of those professing godliness to check this disease in its incipient stages and prevent the discord sure to follow in its train. Peevishness indicates that a person is living to himself, and is dissatisfied with the outcome; and in the case of one who has named the name of Christ, it betokens a weak faith and a flickering hope,—and all this for want of food; he is starving for want of nourishment with rich stores within his reach. Yes; peevishness tells the sad tale that the flesh is asserting itself, and preventing communion with God and resort to his Word. When faith brings the future near hope is in the ascendant in spite of tears and pains and crosses. God help us to see the means he has provided, and then we shall realize that the promise that his grace shall be sufficient for us is as true as every other. •

News Items and Comments.

The following are items of news interesting to Believers of the Truth, culled from one day's telegrams.

France is irritated against England for interfering in Siam affairs, and threatens to raise the Egyptian Ghost again.

Some say this fuss is made to draw the attention of the press from the reviews and sham battles of the German Emperor (with the Crown Prince of Italy at his side) in Alsace and Lorain.

The Russian fleet is to visit Toulon in October and a great deal is made out of this fact, but some think Russian friendship means hard cash, and what lends support to this idea is the fact that French bankers will put a 4 per cent loan upon the market about that time.

France was alarmed by the bold assertion of Emperor William recently, that Alsace and Lorain would be held forever by the German sword.

There were three shocks of earthquake in Bucharest on the 10th.

The Lake Shore train was held up at Kendalville, Indiana, and by means of rifles and dynamite the express car was entered, the safe blown open, and many thousands of dollars stolen, the engineer shot through the chest, and the express messenger shocked and deafened by the explosions.

Both cavalry and the police are required to maintain order in the mining districts of England where the men are out on a strike.

Bold robberies both day and night take place frequently in Cleveland; and there has been rioting among the unemployed.

The Parliament of Religions assembled at the World's Fair on the 11th. It was a heterogeneously mixed multitude. "His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons in a clear voice and words of touching simplicity pronouncing the invocation to the Deity." It is said, all the great beliefs of the world are represented," but we doubt if the belief of the Gospel of the Kingdom of God was included. We feel warranted in saying it had to take a back seat in that crowd. It was essentially anti-christian and Pagan in its makeup, but it was an assemblage as never was, the papers say; and we add the hope it may never be again. But its grand object eclipses everything; it was to show how important are those things upon which all are agreed, and how comparatively unimportant are the differences of creed; and the result of the parliament is expected to be, that what is fundamental will be emphasized, and accidental and superficial differences will be thrown into the background. What a farce! All the Great Beliefs of the World. Here are Confucians, with their ethical philosophy, in no sense religious, making no pretense to faith and hope; here are representatives of Brahmanism whose God was born in a golden egg, the germ of which came from the "undiscernible." This child was Brahma, who lived in the egg a whole year, then divided it into two parts by his mere thought; and out of these two shells formed the heavens and the earth, placed the sky, the eight regions, and the eternal abode of the waters in the middle. We can hardly help wondering how the Catholics, and Episcopalians, and Presbyterians, and Baptists, and Independants who call themselves Christians propose to even things up with heathens, or of what they will divest themselves in order to be in full fellowship with Pagans. Our opinion is that the heathen will make no concessions. To say we "wonder" was a slip of the pen. The papers say the object of the parliament is to show how unimportant are the differences of creed. The plain English of this is, that in Paul's day "The Gospel of Christ was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," but now we are in a new dispensation, and can believe what we please, or nothing if we please, and so exalted to fellowship with heathens. Either this, or the leading Divines(?) are confessing that their creeds have no connection with the Bible. Again, the object of the Parliament is to show "how important are those things in which we all agree." We challenge them to show the agreement of all upon one item even of the faith once delivered to the saints. They may all agree that it is necessary to be good; we can imagine no other universal platform for them; and this of itself sets aside the divine method, "By Grace ye are saved, through faith;" and bases the whole matter upon Works; and as they decide what the works are to consist of there is little use for the Scriptures.

Make a note of the tremendous efforts now being made by the Papists to ingratiate themselves with the people. Only a few days ago the Papal Legate delivered a patriotic address in which was a message from Leo to the effect that Americans must go forward with the constitution in one hand and the Bible in the other, and the vast concourse shouted themselves hoarse. Against this put their systematic and persistent effort to keep the Bible out of the Public Schools, or to divide the school fund because the Bible is read in schools. Yes; the Jesuits will allow the closed Book to be carried in the hand in this country, because that will not hurt them; but read it they must not. •

Stirring up Pure Minds.

It is always in order to remind each other of their duties and privileges, because the surrounding of all are opposed, both to the truth in the abstract and its practice. In these times of declension we should stick closer and closer to the Word of our God. What a vast store house of comfort and warning and exhortation and promises it is. As if not to leave us to do as we may, he must urge us to press on to the Goal, unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. As we familiarize ourselves with it we can readily find something to suit our case, no matter what it is. Sometimes we derive comfort from the manifested love and

TENDERNESS OF GOD

the Almighty Father toward his children who are striving to do his will. Sometimes we come upon the needed warning or rebuke—especially to the halting, flickering ones—those practicing some sin, which if not confessed and forsaken will be fatal to their hopes of Eternal Life. Sometimes we are admonished to walk as becometh saints, and directed to the sinless one in whose footsteps it is our greatest privilege, as well as our most important duty to walk, and to keep our eye steadily on the Author and finisher of our faith;—who for the joy set before him, endured the cross,—despising the shame, and is therefore seated at the right hand of the throne of God. Sometimes on opening the Book we come upon the language of prayer—prayers we would do well to imitate in spirit, in length, in style, in fervor and in subject. We need to breath out of hungry and thirsty souls the petitions for just what we want—divine favor and succor. Opening the Book again we find the

LANGUAGE OF PRAISE

and lofty ascriptions of adoration—the most elevated form of worship. On looking again into our Father's will we are forcibly reminded of the frailty of our own nature; and are reminded that our foundation is in the dust;—that we are but as the grass, and so fade as a leaf; that we are of the earth, earthy, and that in a little while the grave will claim its prey if the Lord long delay his coming. Then again we are directed to the Eternal and unchangeable One whose days never cease. On opening it again we are tenderly invited to cast all our cares upon the Lord that careth for us, and remembering we are dust, pities "like a father, and that we have a great High Priest who passed through the same ordeal and is therefore touched with the feeling of our infirmity. And then, still again we are pointed on to our

REDEMPTION FROM DEATH

and exaltation to the divine and glorious nature, and the abolition of every curse, and every sorrow, and every pain, and every tear. Glorious prospect! Reach out the arm of faith, loved ones and then, even amid the trials and vexations of this life you can by faith live in a realm of glory. It is necessary to remember the declaration of the Spirit that no man liveth to himself; that our daily actions are telling their tale and producing their effect for good or ill. This should induce the utmost care and lead us to exercise ourselves unto godliness, help us to be patient, sober, honest, unselfish and forbearing unto all men. Children, neighbors, brothers and sisters watch us; but above all a record is being made in heaven.

GOD LOOKS US THROUGH

and through so that there is not a moment but what he can say, "I know thy works," and it is according to works the reward is to be given. This is the sowing time, sowers to the flesh reap corruption, but sowers to the spirit reap life everlasting. Here is the encouragement to sow to the spirit—everlasting life, the most desirable thing in the universe—the Great God could think of nothing greater or better than a share of his own

DIVINE NATURE.

We would all give all we have for it a thousand times over, but it cannot be obtained in that way—a faith which works by love and purifies the heart will ensure this boon without money and without price. God help us to keep up the conflict with the world and the flesh for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. May the reaping season soon come. Amen. •

Original.

Everyday Life.

"Those who help somebody, please God, and make people happy, are the only sort of people who ever do great things," says Mrs. George Archibald, in an article written for the children. It is true, little ones. The stairs to great deeds, and a good and honorable character can only be climbed by taking the little steps.

I know a young girl, who is maid of all help on a farm. She takes care of the baby, milks the cows, and washes the dishes. Uncounted steps are taken every day, yet her pay is only 80 cts. per week. Out of her meagre wages, the unselfish child has purchased a dress for her blind sister and a belt and a fan for her mother, some aprons, and for the toddling brother some pretty blouse waists and dresses.

She is only twelve, but she sees the sore wants in the home and puts her own needs and desires away, that she may do her little mite for the loved ones. She does not murmur because the drinking father does not supply the lack of clothing, but works bravely and cheerfully herself. And the same unselfish spirit shines out in all seven of the brothers and sisters. The little boys lead the blind girl, tenderly and carefully about, and she in turn dresses and cares for the little baby. It is doing the things that interfere with self, that makes the little Christian. It is singing,

"O the new, new song
I shall sing it soon."

to please Auntie, though you are so tired, and do not want to sing it.

It is giving up the games that you like to play, to play others with a cross and selfish playmate. It is watching for chances to rest somebody, to help old ladies and old men; it is ruling your spirits, being sweet and good to hateful people, and patient under all disappointments.

It doesn't make you Christians just going to church and Sunday-school, listening to preaching, saying your lessons and singing beautiful hymns. You must live like Jesus every day. When Jesus called Simon, and said "Come, follow Me," he meant that Peter was not only to go where he went, but that he was also to quit doing all the bad things that he had been doing. He was to follow or to make a pattern of the life of Jesus. Jesus told no wrong stories—Peter must not tell any. Jesus did not swear, nor drink strong drink, nor quarrel,—to follow Jesus, Peter must not do any of these things. He must be kind to all men, he must teach them what Jesus had taught to him. And this is what you must do. Then will God approve your conduct. You will learn the beauty of true living and will be glad and rejoice at being a helper with Jesus, though it be but in the humble sphere of home.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

The Judgment.

I have an idea that the judgment is more of a choosing out, than a trial, as so generally believed. This was brought to mind by hearing a friend, who is a large breeder of horses, hunting dogs and fancy poultry, say that "the offspring inherited more or less of the vices of parents, and it was foolish to whip and try to correct them of such vices that came to them so naturally. The only way to secure a good, clear stock yard was to select parents of well known good character from which to fill your yards." We too often think and talk of what we wish the Kingdom of God to become, and who besides ourselves we wish its inhabitants to be.

The Almighty God is the Creator of all, and can he not with justice say: "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?"

Adam did not receive the gift of life, but through disobedience he was sentenced to death, and transmitted the death penalty to all of his posterity; consequently all men die. Jesus was created for the express purpose of redeeming mankind from death inherited from Adam, and for the remission of personal sins of those who call upon his name, for to Him "all power was given;" and He will be, or now is, "the judge of the dead and the living." "Many be called, but few chosen." At His coming, will not his choice be already made of those of whom he wishes to make up his Kingdom, and without any more trial than being raised from their graves, or, if alive, changed by his word, into immortal beings, while those not chosen, will remain unconscious in their graves, and those alive subject to natural death? We are taught from the Word, that the future state of man will be a happy one, and that sin will be banished from the earth, even the curse will be removed from the ground, so that we may well believe that when Christ comes to "make up his jewels," he will only select those who will be in harmony with his government, and this without injustice to any, for, "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?"

C. V. S. WILSON.

Look Here.

If baptism is designed to represent Christ dying on the cross as some claim, then who does the administrator of baptism represent? Not his friends surely, as they had withdrawn from the sad and sorrowful scene until his enemies had done their cruel work, then they return and take charge of their dead friend, and Savior, and tenderly bury him away. Buried with him in baptism wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead. Col. ii. 12. Then if baptism is a burial as stated above, why not let it represent or be like his burial and his resurrection? Then we have a fitting likeness of facts.

T. E. ADAMS.

Aaron Krieghbaum was born in Stark Co., Ohio, in the year 1851. Died at his home two miles west of Argos, Sept. 7, 1893, aged 42 years, 3 months, and 9 days.

At an early age he moved with his parents to this county, in which he lived up to the time of his death. In the year 1871, July 6, he and Miss Rebecca Wickizer were joined in marriage. To them were born three children, two girls and one boy. The little girls preceded the father to the tomb.

We visited him several times in his illness, and always found him patient and cheerful, and anxious for the reading of the blessed Word, and prayer, and had he lived just a little longer would doubtless have embraced the Gospel in its entirety and been sanctified thereto by his obedience, but death came too soon.

In the death of this man the community has lost a good citizen and neighbor, the wife a loving husband, and the little son a good father. Funeral services were held at the house after which we laid him away.

N. H. GRISELMAN.

Christian Endeavor Day at the World's Fair the 25th. Take the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursions Sept. 21st, 23rd or 26th.

Selected.

Our Unshaken Confidence.

"For our light affliction which is but for a moment worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. While we look not at the things which are seen, but the things are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." Though we meet trouble on every side, yet we are not distressed; though perplexed, yet not in despair; cast down, but not destroyed; for the hope of the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is an anchor to our soul, and will reveal in us great glory. It hath not entered into the heart of man the good things which God hath prepared for those who love him. It is the love of God that constrains us; for while we were yet sinners Christ died for us. We do not live unto ourselves, but unto Him who died for us, and rose again, that through His resurrection we might be raised to immortality. We are at ease concerning his promise, for He is faithful who hath promised. God's light hath shined in our hearts. We have the same spirit of faith, for we walk by faith, not by sight. We have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty; are new creatures in Christ; followers of Him, if we are pure. We are dishonored, yet honored; deceivers, yet true; sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; have nothing, yet possessing all things. We have come out from among the world. God is our God and Father, and we are His sons and daughters. Now, having all things, let us cleanse our hearts from all vileness, that our lips speak no guile, perfecting holiness in the fear of God. Let us fight the good fight faithfully. Jesus is the Captain of our salvation. He is all love and care, and when the great day of peace appears, He will not forget us; we shall share with Him the victories; and when the great victorious army surges up the golden streets of the New Jerusalem; when God is all and in all; when we reach the Eternal City, then shall we join the glad chorus, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, and to Him who hath redeemed us by His blood, be praise forever. Amen and amen.

What must a Person do to be Saved?

He must believe the gospel and all things pertaining to Christ, and be baptized in water for remission of sins.—John iii. 5; Mark xvi. 15-16; Acts ii. 38-41. The right faith and obedience is necessary. Christ's blood atones for only those who will believe and obey His gospel. After obedience they then become the Seed of Abraham and heirs according to the promise made unto him. Gal. iii. 26, 29; Gen. xiii. 14-17. Abraham was promised this earth and true Christians will have the same and eternal life. Matt. v. 5; Rev. v. 9.—W. H.

God's grace comes with dispatch, and if thou art drawn by God, thou wilt run after God, and not be talking about delays.—Spurgeon.

Some friendships are made by nature, some by contract, and some by souls.—Jeremy Taylor.

When we oppose what God loves, we reject Christ.

At last after many postponements Indiana's Day at the Fair has been settled for Sept. 27th. The best way to reach Chicago is via the Nickel Plate Road. One fare excursions Sept. 21st, 23rd and 26th.

World's Fair Excursion.

$2.55 round trip to Chicago from Plymouth via Pennsylvania Lines, Sept. 30. For train leaving at 8:37 A. M., children under 12 years of age one-half the above rate. Tickets good returning ten days from date of sale. For details apply to J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent.

For the Odd Fellow's Columbian Demonstration at Chicago Sept. 25th to 27th and the special exercises at the Fair Grounds Sept. 26th, take the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursions Sept. 21st, 23rd or 26th. Superb new train service.

Poetry.

Build Well.

High on the granite wall, the builders, toiling,
Heaved up the massive blocks and slabs to place,
With sweat and streaming brows and straining sinews,
Under the summer's blaze.

And higher yet, amid the chills of autumn
Tier upon tier, and arch upon arch arose
And still crept upward, coldly, wearily,
'Mid winter's sifting snows.

From stage to stage up springs the master builder,
Instructing, cheering, chiding here and there;
Scanning with scrutiny severe and rigid
Each lusty laborer's share.

Aloud his voice to those most distant shouting
Through the hoarse trumpet makes his orders swell;
Or utter words like these to rouse and hearten,
"Build well, my men, build well."

The ropes are strong and new and sound the pulleys;
The derrick's beams are equal to the strain;
Unerring are the level, line and plummet:
Let naught be done in vain!

"Build that these walls to coming generations
Your skill, your strength, your faithfulness shall tell;
That all may say, as storms and centuries test them,
The men of old built well."

And ever thus speaks the Great Master Builder
To us where'er our "journey-work" may be;
"Whate'er the toil, the season, or the structure, Build well—build worthily!"

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 5.

"As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak." 2 Chron. xviii. 13.

It seems from the context to the above text that Ahab, king of Israel, desired Jehosophat, king of Judah, to join him in a warlike expedition to Ramoth-gilead, but Jehosophat suggested that it would be best to enquire of the Lord about it first. Ahab called for four hundred of his false prophets, and they prophesied good, and said: "Go." "But Jehosophat said, Is there not here a prophet of the Lord besides, that we might enquire of him?" Ahab replied that there was, "but I hate him, for he never prophesied good unto me." But Jehosophat insisted that a messenger must be sent to him. The messenger went, and said unto the prophet: "Behold, the words of the prophets declare good to the king with one assent; let thy word I pray thee, be like one of theirs, and speak thou good." The prophet of the Lord replied: As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak."

With regard to the popular apostasy in our day, how often are we exhorted: "Let thy word I pray thee, be like one of theirs?" and how few have the courage to stand up boldly and declare: "As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak?" The apostasy in the time of Ahab was anxious that the Lord's people should harmonize with them, and all speak the same thing, and it is even so, now, and if we refuse, they will in effect use the words of Ahab: "I hate him: for he never prophesied good unto me, but always evil."

I was present at a recent religious service, in which the leader had been speaking of "new methods of Christian work." A minister arose and said in substance: "I am suspicious of these new-fangled ways, I believe the old ways are the best, even the ways and preaching of Jonathan Edwards." "Yes," I said to myself, I believe the old ways and preaching are the best, even the ways and preaching of Jesus and his apostles, and not those of Jonathan Edwards, for there is no similarity between the two."

At the door of the house where the above service was held a paper was circulated called The Ram's Horn, from which I made the following extracts:

"Death is the open door to immortality: that, while to live is Christ, to die is gain? Away with gloom and trepidation! Away with Charon and the Styx! Death is not a river, black and turbulent over which some imperious ferryman must carry us. Death is the summit of life, the end of striving, the brow of the mountain, gaining which we see Paradise and Eldorado."

The apostasy avers, that "Death is the open door to immortality." Will you "let thy word I pray thee, be like one of theirs," or will you say: "Even what my God saith, that will I speak?" "God saith:" "But it is now made manifest by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, (the open door to immortality) and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." If the apostasy relies upon "death" as "the open door to immortality," and Christ hath "abolished death," by making immortality attainable through the gospel, they are in rather a bad fix.

Again; the above paper avers: "Death is the summit of life," "gaining which we see Paradise, and Eldorado." Just think of it! according to this apostate sheet, if we gain death we reach "the summit," height, yea, even the very apex of life, and "see Paradise" as well. Will you "let thy word I pray thee, be like one of theirs," or will you say: "Even what my God saith, that will I speak?" "My God saith:" "In death there is no remembrance of thee," "death cannot celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth," "I have set before you life and death, (the summit of life) blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live." If "death is the summit of life," "gaining which we see Paradise," would it not be better to reverse God's Word, and say "choose death," in place of "choose life?" If "death is the summit of life," it is something to be sought for and desired. I will submit another extract from the Ram's Horn which teaches us how we may secure death, which it says: "Is the summit of life."

"Brother, if you are a transgressor of God's law and a rejector of his truth, death is on your track. Turning away from the light may sometimes make you feel safer, but it will bring no security to your feet. The Old Book is right, and it declares that "the wages of sin is death."

Another extract from the same paper declares "the Christian's death is an actual triumph:"

"There is too much of the dark and damp and chilly associated with the passing of a soul from earth to heaven. We speak of the "Dark Valley of Shadow" and "The Death Angel with Sable Wings," and the writer at least can scarcely outgrow the disquieting reflections proved by the old lines of the hymn:

"When this poor frame Lies mouldering in the clay."

The Christian's death is an actual triumph, but there are few Christians who do not anticipate that triumph with chill forbodings."

"Will you let thy word I pray thee be like one of theirs," or will you say: "As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak?"

"My God saith," triumph comes not at death, as saith the apostasy, but at the resurrection of the dead to life:

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkle of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Is it not a very strange proceeding to thank God for a victory over death if it is "the summit of life?"

How comes it that these people teach so directly the reverse of God's Word? Is it not that they believed the serpent in preference to God? and consequently, in harmony with the serpent they aver: "Ye shall not surely die"—"Ye shall be as gods?" And with regard to Christ he is declared to be God himself, divine in his nature, and was ever self-existent, but for a brief period of time he assumed a nature which was part human and part divine. The Divine Word says: "Many deceivers are entered into the world who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." There is a vast difference between coming "in" the flesh, and coming into the flesh. We read that Jesus came "in" the flesh, or was flesh, being born of the flesh. The apostasy tells us about a Jesus called: "God the Son, the second person in the holy trinity," who entered into flesh, by means of birth through Mary "the holy mother of God," and thus the second person in the trinity became enveloped with flesh. The thought that a real living person could thus enter woman, and come into the world again by means of natural birth, clothed with a flesh body, passes comprehension, and can hardly be entertained except by those who accept superstition and call it faith.

With regard to the origin of Jesus, the Word of God is very decisive and plain. The dual nature taught by apostates is not once hinted at. We read: "The word was made flesh and dwelt among us." How plain and simple, so simple that a child could not misunderstand it. Were it not for divinity tinkerers called Doctors of Divinity there could be no confusion at all. If such men would become M. D.'s instead of D. D.'s they might do less harm.

If they would pay attention to the testimony of Jesus himself, the very person whom they claim became a recipient of this dual birth, they would find their diagnosis quite defective, and must needs call another consultation. Jesus says: "That which is born of the flesh is flesh," and nothing else at all. And likewise, "that which is born of the spirit is spirit." The Divine writers never blend the two together. The Divinity Doctors are the ones who do that work. The doctrine of two natures by one birth is the foundation rock upon which the apostasy is built.

The Blessed Word further says: "We have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth we know him no more." 2 Cor. v. 16. This testimony brings both natures to view and separate, as to time, as all other Scriptures do. If his nature had been divine and human—Spirit and flesh, we could no more say: "We have known Christ after the flesh," any more than we could say we have known him after the spirit. Violence to the plain construction of language must be resorted to in order to sustain a doctrine which is adverse to common sense and Revelation.

The above quotation unmolested by Divinity tinkerers is in harmony with the general scope of the Divine Word, as for instance: "That was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural: and afterward that which is spiritual."

Again, in Heb. v. 7: "Who in the days of his flesh," etc. There could be no propriety in making reference to "the days of his flesh," in contrast with the nature he now has, if his nature at that time was divine as well as human. An aged man may refer back to the days of his youth, but no one for a moment would suppose he could be young and old at the same time, and yet there is as much sense in a man being old and young at the same period, as there is of his being divine and human.

A recent meeting of the W. C. T. U. of Chicago, was addressed by a lady from Glasgow, Scotland, she said: "I am glad I am spirit, I defy death." What a stronghold the lie of the serpent has upon the apostasy. It is sad, but sadder still when those who reject the doctrine as far as men is concerned, and yet claim that Christ was made both human and divine. The doctrine does great violence to the burden of the testimony found in God's Word, and makes the atonement of none effect, because it required the death of the Lamb of God, which could never take place if Jesus was God clothed in flesh. God cannot die. The death of the flesh that enveloped God, won't answer. "I am he that was dead," says Jesus, by the personal pronoun I, he means to say it was I, my own literal person which died, and not simply a fleshly shell. The law could not have been filled even by the death of a half of Jesus, and if he existed as a person before he was born, and that person was God, he never died at all, for it is not possible for God to die, and hence the atonement was never made, and we are unsaved. This is just the position that baneful error brings us to.

The "Mother of Harlots," and her daughters set aside a large mass of clear Scripture testimony, and substitute in its place one passage which by so many is imperfectly understood, and that is John i. 1, 2: "In the beginning was the Logos, and the Logos was with God, and the Logos was God. This was in the beginning with God." Diaglott.

Here is a difficulty. It twice states that the Logos was "with" God, and then states that it "was" God. How can any one conceive of that which is "with" a person being literally the person. We can easily conceive of the "word" being "with" God, in "the beginning," and of that "word" receiving its accomplishment in the birth of Jesus, "and the Logos became flesh and dwelt among us." Why was Jesus called "the Word?" Newcome, in his translation says: "Jesus, the Son of God, is called the Word by him." The main difficulty consists in the "Word," being called God himself. He could not have literally been God, possessing an undying nature, because he could not have died to consummate the plan of redemption, therefore some other rational explanation must be found. Is there such an explanation? there is.

In the explanation the idea that he was literally God, possessing a divine or eternal life cannot be thought of, because if that is so, then every one of us is as yet unsaved for reasons already given.

There are many good reasons why he should be called God representatively. In several cases where angels bore the name of God, and represented him, on missions, they were called "God," and spake with the authority of God. In Exodus we read: "Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions; for my name is in him." Think of an angel exercising the prerogative of God. The reason he was clothed with this power, is found in the expression: "For my name is in him." Jacob wrestled with an angel, and said: "I have seen God face to face." This language is just as plain and decisive as the phrase in John: "and the Logos was God," and Jacob had only "seen God face to face," representatively. In Exod. xxxiii. 11, we read: "And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend." What language could describe personal contact better than this, and yet it was only representatively. See verse 20: "Thou canst not see my face: for there shall no man see me and live."

Jacob says: "I have seen God face to face." While this language appears so plain and literal, yet he had not seen God only through another, in a representative sense. Jesus says: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." John xiv. 9. Now read John i. 18: "No man hath seen God at any time." How can such opposite statements be reconciled? If Jesus was really the God who existed in the beginning and created all things, those who had seen him had literally seen the Father. In seeing Jesus they had seen the Father in the same sense that Jacob (a man who could not see God) had "seen God face to face," only more so, for God was in him (by his spirit) reconciling the world unto himself. He manifested the Father in the flesh. He spoke and commanded with the authority of the Father. His spirit dwelt in him without measure. If an angel in which was the Father's name could be called "God," why not the Son of God who represented God in a grander sense than any angel ever did? And yet he was not God in a physical sense although in the "form of God," or the express image of his person." "He who bears the "form," or "image" of another person, cannot be that person to whom he bears a likeness, any more than a person that is "with" another can be the person he is "with."

"In the beginning was the Logos, and the Logos was with God, and the Logos was God." "In the beginning" he was "with" God only as the Logos (Word) and was "with God" in that sense alone. When spoken of simply as the Word as in this case the Diaglott does not use the personal pronouns, but the neuter gender "it," a word that is used with regard to an object. In the fourteenth verse is where the "Word," became a person, and after that he is spoken of as a person, and not as the "Word."

As a special representative of God, he could say: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father," but not in a physical sense for that as we have already seen would make God's Word contradict itself, as no man hath seen God at any time, but he has been seen as God's representative, for he manifested or represented him in the flesh, and surely he was as much entitled to be called God as a representative angel was. It is a dangerous doctrine to teach that Jesus the Lord did not "come in the flesh," but preexisted as God, and as the literal pre-existent God entered Mary, and by natural birth became enveloped with flesh, and entered the world. Such teaching is positively dangerous and unsafe, because the atonement is made void, as a preexistent immortal God could not die to ratify the covenant, as "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world."

As for me, I say: away with every phase of the apostasy of the woman, which sits on the seven hills. "As the Lord liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak."

W. H. Wilson.

One Fig Tree.

It has no doubt puzzled my young friends not a little, to know why Jesus should seek for figs on a fig tree, when "the time of figs was not yet." To understand the passage, we want to know all about the fig tree, the different species, and when they ripen their fruit. Mr. Thompson says, "he has plucked ripe figs from trees on Lebanon in the month of May," and Lebanon is 150 miles north of Jerusalem where fruit would ripen a month later than in the sheltered vales of Olivet. This was from the early kind that bears large, green colored figs.

It was early in April that Jesus saw one "fig tree afar off having leaves," (notice in the margin, in Matt. xxi. 19, it says "one fig tree"). It was not time for the general crop of figs to be gathered, but this one tree had leaves, and when the leaves of the fig tree appear it is a sign that the fruit has come, for the figs "come with the leaves and even before." So, early as it was in the season, the fact that the "one fig tree" had leaved out was an indication that fruit was there.

But when Jesus had traversed the long weary distance, he found "nothing but leaves." It was a barren, worthless tree, was condemned of our Lord, and in some mysterious way was caused to die. This "one fig tree" seems to be a type of the Jewish people.

A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruit thereon and found none. Then, said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, "Behold these three years I came seeking fruit on this fig tree and finding none; cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground? And he answering said unto him, Lord let it alone this year also till I shall dig about it and manure it. And if it bear fruit, well, and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down."

Jesus preached three years to his people, he enriched them with the knowledge of life, but they bore no fruit as a nation, and after the death of Jesus the Romans came upon them, their beautiful temple was burned, their beloved city destroyed, and they themselves were carried away, and scattered among all people: was not the fig tree cut down? But that same dear fig tree,—the Jewish people,—is growing once more, and putting forth leaves. Though persecuted for long ages and persecuted still, (in Russia) it is that they may go back to their own land. The Jew is favored now of God, by being given wealth and knowledge and power. From this we know that the summer time of glory is soon to be here, and it makes us very glad. But we have said enough for this time and will now bid you good bye.

S. Roxana Winck.

The Contingent Fund.

To the Household of Faith, Greeting:

We are all interested in the "contingent fund," and its grand and noble mission.

We also read in the dear old Restitution, of the isolated brethren, their hopes and their sorrows; and through these columns we learn of the great work of our earnest brethren in Iowa and Nebraska, of the Quarterly and Yearly Conferences, in these, and many other states.

In many cases they need help. Able, earnest, exemplary men to help hold up the banner of truth.

Now I wish to make a suggestion, that all the brethren, not just a few, but all far and near; contribute liberally to the "contingent fund," until it is sufficiently large, so that each state, at their yearly conferences, at least, may draw from the fund help to defray the expenses of some able brother to assist in the work. It would certainly bring about a more united effort, and add much to the interst of the meeting. "In Union there is Strength."

Nancy Barber.

Dear Restitution:

Your weekly advent is always hailed with pleasure, and we delight to read the many reports of Gospel meetings in different localities. So we a little band, only a very few, dwelling in the vicinity of Neodesha and Dun, Kan., wish to tell the brethren and sisters of the outlook of truth in this part of Kansas.

We are poor in this world's goods, but we are glad the door is still open, that others may gain an entrance into the Bridal Chamber. For this reason we throw our mites together, that we might be able to get the truth before the people.

Bro. Foore of Parsons, made us a visit the first Saturday in July, and remained with us over Sunday, preaching three discourses. Several seemed much pleased, and expressed a desire that he should come again, therefore, we secured his services again for the fourth Sunday in August. It had rained the night before and Sunday morning it was still raining which made it unfavorable for meeting, nevertheless there was a fair crowd and I trust some good may result

Our Brother chose for his subject a "Correct Division of the Word," which he handled as a true workman, and showed the danger of preaching any other gospel than that which Paul preached, and which he declared was the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth.

After the morning service we took our baskets and all had dinner together, after which we read, talked and sung. In the evening we surrounded the Lord's Table, and partook of that feast which the Master said, "as oft as ye take of it ye shew forth the Lord's death till he come."

Bro. Foore's subject at night was "The Spirit Birth," showing the nature of the two families. First the natural, afterward the spiritual. The first Adam created of the dust of the ground, standing at the head of the natural. The second Adam the Lord from heaven standing at the head of the spiritual family, and in order to an inheritance in the Kingdom of God, man must bear the image of the heavenly Adam, by being born again of water, and of spirit, and come forth from the grave with an immortal nature at the coming of the Life Giver.

There was a good attendance throughout the meeting, but what the harvest will be we cannot tell. Surely there are some in our beautiful Fall River Valley that will leave the vanities and frivolities of this fast fleeting age, and fly to the ark of refuge ere the coming storm strikes their frail bark. O may the message of Life ride on till every one is called out, not only the great and high, but also those of the highways and hedges, the call is for them too.

We shall, (the Lord willing,) still continue in our quiet way to do all we can, handing papers to our neighbors, and speaking a word for the Master as we find it expedient. Perhaps we may assist some one to gain eternal life.

O Church of God, are you all awake, are your lamps trimmed and burning, are you ready for that cry, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him? If some have grown drowsy, will you not be wise and heed the warning given by our Lord. "Watch and pray for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

Brother Foore will be with us again the fourth Sunday in Sept. Come one and all, and let us have a good time together.

Your sister in the one hope,

Sallie Bl[illegible]

Conference Notice.

The annual meeting of the northwest conference of the "Church of God" will convene at Mountain Side School-house near Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, commencing Friday evening Oct. 20, 1893, and continue through the week.

A general invitation is extended to all lovers of the truth, and we sincerely hope many will avail themselves of this one more opportunity of hearing the Word of God expounded by those who have made it a study for years. Therefore we earnestly entreat all that have an interest in the cause of the Master to lay aside work and make a little sacrifice if need be and come and help us make this meeting one to be long remembered.

To the isolated brethren and sisters who may not be able to come, I would say, we would be glad to hear from them by letter. Let them give us a word of exhortation and cheer that will do us good. Such letters read in our conferences do more good than they may think. Teams will be in Portland Friday, at one o'clock, at the National Hotel, for those wishing to be conveyed to the place of meeting. If we receive no letters there will be no teams there. We understand that Brother Geo. W. Young will be with us to labor in the interest of the meeting.

Brethren, another conference year has almost passed away. Do you feel as I do today, that

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

Almira Brooks, Sec'y.

MARRIED

Brenner,—Cronkhite.—At the home of the groom, Sunday, Aug. 23. 1893, Mr. Elijah Brenner, and Miss Della Cronkhite, both of Warren Co., Ind.

On that bright Sunday morning, in the presence of a few relatives and friends, did these two highly respected young people change their relationship to each other, and take upon themselves new obligations. May they enjoy many bright and happy days together, ever remembering their vows to each other, their obligations to their Master, and at last share the glories of the "Marriage Supper of the Lamb."

L. E. Conner.

After the Fair is over, you may be sorry that you did not go when you reflect on such opportunities for reaching Chicago cheaply as are offered by the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursions. The next will be Sept. 21st, 23rd and 26th. Three trains each way every day. Tickets good returning ten days. Go now and take in the special exercises in connection with Indiana Day the 27th.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

On account of the I. O. O. F. Columbian Demonstration at the World's Fair, Sept. 25 27th, and Christian Endeavor Day Sept. 25th, special low rate excursion tickets to Chicago will be sold from ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines, Saturday, Sept. 23d. the low rate excursion tickets will be good in coaches of all regular trains of that date and will be good returning until Oct. 2d. inclusive. For details see hand bills or apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent.

Pilgrims to the Fair should remember the Nickel Plate Road's low rate excursions to Chicago. Nine days at the Fair. Choice of three trains going and returning. One fare for the round trip, September 21st, 23rd and 26th.

So Say We All.

"It is a remarkable fact," said a Boston newspaper man to me yesterday, "that the dining car service on the various railroads only begins to be good when you get west of Chicago, whereas the farther east you get, the worse you are served, with one notable exception...the Nickel Plate Road." * * * "I was agreeably surprised by the dining car service of the Nickel Plate Road. It compares well with the best service on the western roads." "That was a high compliment, and I mean to let my townsmen know of the good repute in which at least one Cleveland road is held by strangers."—The lounger in the Cleveland Town Topics.

Selected.

The Kingdom of God: What is it?

The kingdom of God is to have a king, and he is to have associate kings and rulers to assist him in the government of the nations; for we read, "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God." And to the Jewish people it is said, "I will make thine officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness." The call to-day is for God's kingdom. When Peter was brought before his Jewish brethren, charged with preaching the gospel to the Gentiles, James stood up and said: "Simeon hath declared how that God at first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name; and to this agree the words of the prophet, as it is written, "After this." After what? After "taking out of them a people for his name." "After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and will build up the breaches thereof, and will build it as in the days of old" (Acts xv. 16; Amos ix. 11). For what? "That the residue of men might seek after the Lord; and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord who doeth all these things." Here then is why the good news of God's kingdom is called the gospel. When the disciples were sent to preach the gospel they were told to preach the kingdom of God. This is what all true believers of the gospel believe and teach, a real kingdom, Jesus the King and the saints the rulers of the kingdom. The kingdom is to be an everlasting kingdom, and we are told by Daniel that "the time came that the saints of the most high took the kingdom and the dominion under the whole heaven." It was to be an everlasting kingdom that should never be destroyed nor left to other people. Other people had to leave their kingdoms, for they were mortal; but when the Lord Jesus and his risen saints take the kingdom they and it will endure for ever. God's kingdom was to bless all nations, but as yet it has not done this, for as yet it is only in embryo; but when the Lord Jesus takes unto himself his great power and reigns, when he takes unto himself the government of the world and pours out the judgment upon the nations foretold in the Book, then the people will learn wisdom at the rebuke of the Lord: "For he shall rebuke strong nations afar off, and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks * * * neither shall they (the nations) learn war any more." At this time there will be no necessity for one to say to his brother, "Know the Lord, for all shall know him from the least to the greatest." Every man shall sit under his own fig tree, none daring to molest or make him afraid. "The knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea."

Prayer.

Prayer is a haven to the shipwrecked mariner, an anchor unto them that are sinking in the waves, a staff to the limbs that totter, a mine of jewels to the poor, a security to the rich, a healer of disease, and a guardian of health. Prayer at once secures the continuance of our blessings, and dissipates the cloud of our calamities. Oh, prayer! Oh, blessed prayer! thou art the unwearied conqueror of human woes, the firm foundation of human happiness, the source of ever enduring joy.

God never has built a Christian strong enough to stand the strain of present duties and all the tons of to-morrow's duties and sufferings piled up on the top of them. —Cuyler.

Growing.

The Nickel Plate Road will on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, increase their train service by the addition of a new though east bound train by merging the Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Buffalo accommodation trains into a new through express with sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo. Other important changes. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

Appointments.

To the Brethren and Sisters scattered abroad:

We expect to have a religious gathering at Fonthill, Ont., to commence on the evening of Sept. 22, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday, and we cordially invite all who love our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to meet with us, and enjoy a feast with us. We expect an enjoyable time.

We will try to entertain all who may come.

Fonthill is in the County of Welland, about 12 miles west of Niagara Falls. We hope those who may attend the meeting will try to be here at the commencement. If those who intend to come, and do not know how to get here, will write to me on the subject I will inform them. We would like to hear from those who expect to be here so that we can make provision for their entertainment. I remain yours for the Truth.

P. H. Bock.

To the Brethren of "like precious faith," greeting:

It will be noticed that the Church of God, known as the Northern Nebraska and Southern Dakota Conference, will hold their next annual conference near Carns, at the Rock Creek School House in Rock County, Nebraska, commencing Sept. 23, 1893.

All the brothers and sisters of the Abrahamic Faith are especially called to meet with us at this time. Come, brethren, one and all, as we see the signs of the times nearing upon us we believe truly that this age is drawing to a close.

Wm. H. Denson, Sec'y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Moriah, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. Hatch.

New Through Train.

The Nickel Plate Road announces that commencing Sunday, Sept. 3rd, Train No. 1, running between Chicago and Cleveland, and No. 8 running between Cleveland and Buffalo, will be merged into a continuous through train, leaving Chicago about 8:30 A. M. and reaching Buffalo between three or four o'clock the following morning.

The equipment of this train will embrace standard smoking and day coaches and sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Heavy East Bound Travel.

On account of growth of east-bound business, the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate a new through express on Sunday, Sept. 3rd. Palace Sleepers Chicago to Buffalo and direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

Harvest Excursion via Pennsylvania Lines.

Harvest Excursion tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines to authorized points to the west, northwest, southwest and south at reduced round trip rate on Sept. 12 and Oct. 10th, good returning 20 days from date of sale. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 11, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millspaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $198.78

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$10.00
H. L. Vickery,	10.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

It is a pleasure to note the addition of another through train to the already competent train service of the Nickel Plate Road. It will leave Chicago about 8:30 A. M. and reach Buffalo at 3 or 4 the following morning. Through sleepers Chicago to Buffalo. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east. Sept. 27.

CONTINGENT FUND."

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will [illegible], and the fund disbursed as [illegible] requested. Publication to [illegible] of amounts of donations [illegible].

We whose [illegible] are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the [illegible] subscribed, the fund thus [illegible] to be employed in [illegible] calls to baptize persons, who being isolated from the brethren are unable to secure the [illegible] of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00

EXPENDITURE.

Previously used	$11.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas.
J. [illegible] ner's direction	$15.00

T[illegible] Important Questions.

A [illegible] 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by R. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 10 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sioclevílle, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Hoyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cudy, Holbrook, Neb.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons [illegible] should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk. Money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

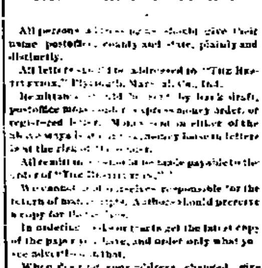
We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for their own.

In ordering [illegible] get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls. Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The [illegible] Coming and Kingdom of Christ, by [illegible] 1860. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 30 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c, 20 for 15c, 50 for 25c, 100 for 40c.

Are to Come out a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe, a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Stanley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5 cents; 15 for [illegible], 50 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism [illegible] taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with [illegible] upon the subject, from the most learned [illegible] [illegible]

The [illegible] Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? [illegible]

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Trinity [illegible] a neatly printed pamphlet of 27 pages, by W. [illegible] of [illegible] City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an address on the new Heavens and New Earth. Send [illegible] for 6 copies postpaid, or eight copies for 10 cts.

The Role of All Things. Cyrus Wellman. This little book of 11 pages set in above named subject [illegible] may be had from The Restitution office, or of the author [illegible] Sau Diego, Cal., for 25 cts., or free to those unable to pay.

[illegible] the Bible [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Lees Words, or the Scriptures in Hebrew and Greek. A Concordance [illegible] words which throw important light on great doctrines [illegible] By Wiley Jones, 175 pages, cloth bound, for 1 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By [illegible] Title page, "The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation and an Appendix including [illegible] subjects, in brief. This work contains 240 pages [illegible] Sound, price $1.00.

Cate [illegible] of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday School, by Mrs. C. [illegible] The [illegible] brief synopsis of the [illegible] taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains [illegible] pages, neatly printed and bound, 25 cents, or [illegible] to any address postpaid [illegible] for $1.00; 50 [illegible] Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for terms or to the Author at [illegible] Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 256 pages, has [illegible] paper, from good clear [illegible] type, followed by twenty four pages of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 25 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 25c [illegible] 4 copies for $3.00; [illegible] copies [illegible]. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities [illegible] to churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated is the covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism. It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. H. V. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and circulated until this little 32 page tract [illegible] the most effective missionary that can be circulated. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The [illegible] and Themes for [illegible] and Miscellaneous Papers [illegible] Revealed Purpose of God concerning the Earth and Adam's Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Resurrection, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 400 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a [illegible] in England [illegible] also contains some forty one lectures, and an additional of about fifty pages of "things that have [illegible] sayings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. H. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 118 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 718 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 25 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, [illegible] spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 32 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen. 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 696 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 7 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1845 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Ninth and Spring Garden Sts., Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsey Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 1910 [illegible] Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. N. H. Geiselman every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every first Sunday in the month, also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in the [illegible] corner [illegible] and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Tuesday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, [illegible] day of the week at [illegible] Sunday School and [illegible] o'clock for devotional services. Any [illegible] passing through the city are cordially invited [illegible] with us.

The Church of God at Aberdeen, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., at [illegible] Hall, [illegible] on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., go to [illegible] to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb. [illegible] Union Sunday School at school house in district No. [illegible] in Frontier Co. and have prayer meeting every Friday evening [illegible] among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother [illegible] comes as often as he can. Wm. [illegible] W. A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to the church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill, [illegible] school house, and [illegible] from Seattle.

[illegible] brethren of the Church of God at Bristol [illegible] meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Knife, [illegible] or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, O.

The Church of God [illegible] meet every Sunday at 2.30 p. m., to break bread and [illegible] Wm. H. [illegible] Elder; [illegible] Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold [illegible] social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and quarterly conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth, are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. P. H. [illegible] Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. [illegible] for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 2, Passenger, ex. Sun.	[illegible]
No. 22, "	[illegible]
No. 24, "	[illegible]
No. 152, Local, "	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, ex. Sun.	12:45am
No. 23, "	1:55pm
No. 25, "	12:10pm
No. 151, Local,	11:15pm

[illegible] except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. [illegible] arriving Kansas City 8.25 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Mississippi River for all passengers.

Nos. 2, 10, 12 and 13 connect at Tipton with [illegible] trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. H. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y, Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager.

CHAS. F. DALY, Gen Pass Agt, Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 54, Ex. Sun.	12:25pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 74,	5.45pm	"
No. 56, "	10:48pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:30pm	" "
No. 55, "	4:47pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

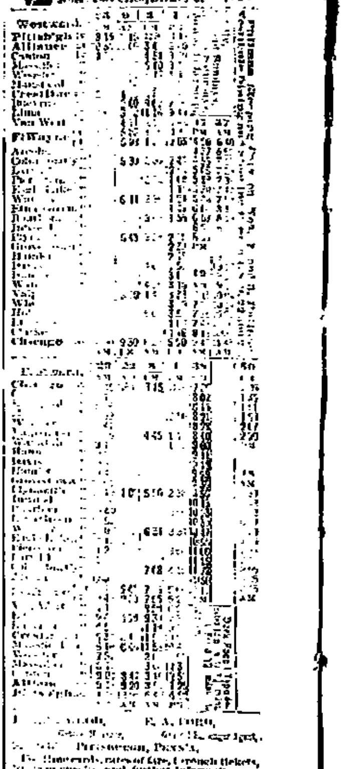
ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry. Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.



J. [illegible], E. A. FORD, Gen'l Manager, General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Penn'a.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis RR.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. & SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Wilson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

[illegible] WILLIAMS, Gen'l Supt.,
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number contains in pamphlet form a new, fresh, forcible and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Scandinavian, "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall do my best to circulate it."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	5 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to O. T. Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Gazing, Patterson,	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	10 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White,	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity,	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey,	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey,	5 cts.
24. Food for Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey,	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey,	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey,	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
29. Searching the Scriptures, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism,	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 2 cts. single; 50 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Asters, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Cushman's Fife, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flower and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Chestnut Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors. It is the Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden [illegible] cents for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 27, 1893. NO. 36.

M Joblin 634 Woodland ave

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
[illegible] Rattenbach,
W. D. Thompson,
J. H. Willey,
George Allenan,
A. R. Underwood.

TERMS	One Year - -	$1.50
	Six Months - -	.75
	Three Months -	.40

Poetry.

Today and Tomorrow.

Today is mine. I hold it fast,
Hold it and use it as I may,
Unmindful of the shadow cast
By that dim thing called Yesterday.

Tomorrow hovers just before,
A bright-winged shape, and lures me on,
Yet in my zeal to grasp and know her,
I drop Today—and she is gone.

The bright wings captured lose their light;
[illegible] now weeps, and seems to say,
"I am Today—oh, hold me tight;
Ere long I shall be yesterday."

Original.

The Son of God.

"And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us." Jno. i. 14.

"The two expressions—"The Word was God, and the Word became flesh" must be received and believed with equal candor and fairness by every one that truly desires to "abide in the doctrine of Christ." When taken together they agree precisely with other testimonies where his divinity and humanity are joined together in the very same kind of connection. Thus Isaiah says, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given, and His name shall be called The Mighty God." Isa. ix. 6. So does Matthew speak of him as a Child, a Son, and God with us. Matt. i. 23.

"This expression, the Word became incarnate, has been thought by some, not implausibly, to have been pointed by the evangelist against the error of the Docetae, who denied the human nature of Christ, supposing him to have been a man only in appearance; and the expression 'The Word was God' (verse 1), to have been pointed against the Ebionites, who denied his divine nature, affirming that he was no more than a man."—Dr. Geo. Campbell.

History informs us also of another sect called "Gnostics," who rejected our Lord's humanity, and denied the resurrection of the body, imagining that everything corporeal is essentially and intrinsically evil. The "Comprehensive Commentary" says, "Their beginnings are to be traced even in the apostolic times, and they are distinctly opposed by the apostle John." Vol. v, p. 655.

Thus we find that Pharisees, Ebionites, and Socinians have rejected the divinity of the only begotten Son of God; and Docetae and Gnostics have rejected his humanity. But that he united both natures in one person is clearly taught by prophets and apostles. He, being divine, partook of human nature in order that we, being human, "may become partakers of the divine nature."

"For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." 1 Tim ii. 5. The Greek mesitees denotes "one that is in the middle, a mediator, peacemaker." A mesitees intervenes between two parties at variance, in order to reconcile them: and even in merely human transactions it is desirable that a mediator be a representative of both parties. The Lord Jesus is, therefore, most beautifully and wonderfully suited to be the one and only Mediator between God and men, for he is not only Mediator by office, making peace and reconcilliation, but is also mediator by nature, combining divine and human attributes in one person. Thus he can speak as divine from God to man, and as human from man to God.

It was fit that the mediator should be truly man, for the following six reasons, (1) In order that he might be "under the law," and to render his obedience, temptation, suffering, and death possible; for, as God, he could not die, and without shedding of blood there was no remission. Gal. iv. 5; Luke iv. 1-13; Heb. ix. 22. (2) That sin might be atoned for and reconciliation made for it in the same nature that sinned; and that the devil might be destroyed by one having the same nature that the devil had sought to destroy. Heb. ii. 14; Gen. iii. 15. (3) That all the promises relating to the seed of the woman, the seed of Abraham, and the Son of David might be fulfilled in the one mediator. Gal. iii. 16; Luke i. 31-33. (4) That he might be a holy and righteous man, free from all sin, original and actual, and thus offer himself "without blemish and without spot" to God, to take away the sins of men and be the advocate for us. 1 Pet. i. 19; 1 Jno. ii. 1. Adam was placed under the law of Eden, but only for a short while was sinless and incurred none of its penalties. Our Advocate was born under the law and was ever sinless. 1 Pet. ii. 22. (5) "In all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful High Priest," and sympathise with his people in their temptations and trials. Heb. ii. 17, 18; iv. 15, 16. (6) That in his glorified humanity he might be the head of the glorified church, and so be "the first-born among many brethren." Rom. viii. 29.

The "all" things in which he was made like unto his brethren must, of course, be interpreted consistently and harmoniously with other Scripture. It would be a serious mistake to suppose that "all" never has any exceptions. None of his brethren was "the only begotten Son of God," none of them was "without sin," none of them was born of a virgin, none of them had the spirit without measure (Jno. iii. 34; Col. i. 19), "none of them can by any means redeem his brother." Psa. xlix. 7. Many other examples can be shown where "all" has its exceptions, as, "all the cattle of Egypt died" of the murrain, yet some were left for the hail that soon followed (Ex. ix. 6, 19, 25); "the hail smote every herb of the field," yet we read that the locusts ate "every herb of the land, and all the fruit of trees which the hail had left." (Ex. ix. 22; x. 15); "servants obey your masters in all things" (Col. iii. 22); "ye shall be hated of all men" (Matt. x. 22); "all Judea and all the region round about Jordan went out to John and were baptized of him," but the Pharisees and lawyers, of whom there were many in Judea, were "not baptized of him." Matt. iii. 5, 6; Lu. vii. 30. Webster says of "all," "This word, not only in popular language, but in the Scriptures, often signifies, indefinitely, a large portion or number, or a great part." If the advocates of a second-chance or "larger-hope" delusion would learn this they might see that when the angel, 1800 years ago, spoke of "glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Lu. ii. 10), he did not mean that the then deceased heathen idolaters will yet have those tidings preached to them. "The wicked shall be brought forth to the day of wrath," and idolaters to the lake of fire, not to the "great joy" of a millennial chance. Job. xxi. 30; Rev. xxi. 8. As many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law…in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men." And this is according to Paul's gospel, however discordant it may be to the modern "larger-hope," which "goes beyond and does not abide in the doctrine of the Anointed One." Rom. ii. 12, 16; 2 Jno. ix., Diaglott. Even of that great nation who for 1800 years have groped in blindness, and are "beloved for the Father's sake," only a remnant shall be saved. "If the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, it is the remnant that shall be saved." Rom. ix. 27, Revised Version. This utterly refutes Russell's favorite theory about "billions," for the sands of the sea are billions, and are employed to illustrate the lost of Israel. And if billions of Israel could be lost, why might not billions of heathen also, and that in perfect harmony with eternal mercy, truth, and justice?

Let me remind brother W. H. W. that my first article expressly states that "the Father and the Son are distinct persons," and that the Son is "the Second Person of the divine nature." I know not of any one, no, not even a Trinitarian, who claims that they are one person. I have clearly shown the difference between nature and person, and the need of distinguishing between them.

Now, concerning our glorious and wonderful mediator, it was fit also that he should have a divine nature (1) That he might reveal God and his salvation to men; for the only begotten Son "is in the bosom of the Father," and "No one knoweth the Son, save the Father; neither doth any know the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal him," Matt. xi. 27, R. V., and Jno. i. 18. (2) That "through the eternal Spirit" (or, through the divine nature attended by the Holy Spirit which he had without measure), he might "offer himself without spot to God," making an offering of such indefinite dignity and merit that "we are sanctified by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." Heb. ix. 14; x. 4-10. The unblemished body, miraculously "prepared for" the divine and pre-existent Word, was at first "a natural body," and afterward, by resurrection, "a spiritual body." 1 Cor. xv. 46. (3) It was also fit that he should be God, so that in worshiping and trusting in him because only of his divine attributes, we might not be chargeable with idolatry. Jer. xvii. 5. There can be no proper ground of worship except the possession of divine attributes. Hence, the first mention (if I mistake not) that we have of his being worshiped by the disciples is accompanied by the explanatory avowal, "Of a truth thou art the Son of God." To this title they had learned to attach a higher significance than Socinians do. Matt. xiv. 33, with Job ix. 8, and Prov. xxx. 4. Consult further Matt. xxviii. 9, 17; Lu. xxiv. 52. (4) And that the prophecies which ascribe to him both divine and human titles might all meet and be fulfilled in him. 2 Cor. i. 20.

Proof that the two natures combined in the one person of Christ is found in the fact that sometimes human actions and attributes are affirmed of him where he is designated by a divine title, as, when we read that God, i. e., the divine person who is at once both God and man, gave his blood for his church, i. e., died as to his human nature: and that "the Lord of glory" was crucified. Act xx. 28; 1 Cor. ii. 8. See also Matt. i. 23; Luke i. 31, 32; Col. i. 14-20. And sometimes divine actions and attributes are affirmed of him where he is designated by a human title, as, when we read of "The Son of man" ascending to where he "was before," i. e., to heaven where he was before as the divine Word. Jno. vi. 62. See also Jno. iii. 13; Rom. ix. 5; Rev. v. 8, 9, 10. And in many places both natures are referred to when it is evident that only one person was intended. Phil. ii. 6, 11; Heb. ii. 11-14; 1 Tim. iii. 16; Gal. iv. 4; Rom. viii. 3, 4; ix. 5; Jno. i. 14; Rev. xxii. 16.

Every merely human being has two distinct qualities—the mental and the physical—embraced in his single person, and co-operating in a manner incomprehensible to us. When we say that such a person thinks we speak of something done by his mental quality, and when we say that the same person walks we speak of something done by his physical quality. And this, though a necessarily imperfect analogy, may illustrate what the Scriptures say of Christ: for, actions belonging to a divine nature he does in virtue of his divine nature, and actions belonging to a human nature he does in virtue of his human nature. It was in virtue of his human nature that he died when both his human "soul" (the life), and his miraculously-prepared "body" were made "an offering for sin." Isa. liii. 10, 12; [illegible] 10. It was in virtue of his divine nature being one with the Father, that he had power to raise the temple of his body, or, to lay down his life and take it up again. Jno. ii. 19-22; x. 18. It is in virtue of both natures that he is "the root and the offspring of David." Rev. xxii. 16. It is, therefore, a well-known and perfectly proper form of speech whereby John records that "Jesus" was before Abraham, and "Jesus" was laid in the tomb, or "the body of Jesus" was laid in the tomb; and that our Lord says, "I am the First and the Last: I am he that liveth and was dead: and behold I am alive forevermore, Amen." 2 Jno. viii. 58; xix. 38, 40, 41, 42; Rev. i. 17, 18.

"Deity is Deity though he manifest his wisdom and power through mortal flesh. The mortality of the flesh does not necessitate nor imply the mortality of the Deity; nevertheless, Deity becoming flesh, and constituting a manifested individual, if that individual die, and be raised again to life, and Deity again enter into combination with the resurrected body, so as to transform it into substance like the divine essence; in other words, to make that spirit which was before flesh, and so exalt it to the Father, Deity may say, with the strictest propriety, 'I am the First, who was dead,' and yet, abstractly from the medium of manifestation, did never die."—Dr. Jno. Thomas, in "Eureka," Vol. 1, p. 87, 88.

It does not become us to attempt to explain how far the two natures meet and co-operate in the one personality of Christ, for although the Good Shepherd may be, so far as adapted to our present limited capacities, "known" (ginosko) of his flock; yet it is equally true that "no one fully knows (epiginosko) the Son except the Father." Matt. xi. 27, Rotherham's version. Paul, though so great an apostle, said, "Confessedly, great is the mystery of godliness," and "Now I know (ginosko) in part; but then I shall know fully (epiginosko), even as also I am fully known." 1 Tim. iii. 16; 1 Cor. xiii. 2, 12, Am. Bible Union. These renderings by Rotherham and the A. B. U. clearly exhibit an important difference between the two degrees of knowledge. Remembering, therefore, that "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble," we should with true "humbleness of mind" endeavor to "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and for ever. Amen." Jas. iv. 6; Col. iii. 12, 2 Pet. iii. 18.

WILEY JONES.

(Concluded.)

Wasn't She real Mean?

Who? Why, that woman who formed one of a great crowd in Chicago, the other day, attracted by the offer of bread to the unemployed and starving, and who after receiving an allowance, raised the cry that she had been robbed of six hundred dollars, and, on enquiry was found to be well off and the owner of two houses!

"Yes, indeed; she was real mean."

A man, too, found to possess three thousand dollars, applied for relief in the same way.

"Why, that was meaner still!"

Doubtless it was; but [would you believe it?] there are multitudes of such people crowding to the House of God to obtain a share of the Bread of Life for nothing, while they are just as able to pay their share towards the support of those who dispense it as the two persons above referred to.

Reading numerous articles, lately, appearing in different denominational papers as in THE RESTITUTION, leads me to call attention to these Chicago cases; for it too often occurs that preachers of the Word are invited to go to different places and minister to the people who are ready enough to gather and hear them, but allow them to depart without a cent of compensation, while abundantly able to aid them in carnal things even as they have been ministered to in spiritual things."

What was the 9th chapter of the 1st epistle to the Church in Corinth written for? Turn to it and see. It is plain enough. It does not say, those who preach the gospel are to starve by the gospel, but to "live" by it. And yet how many preachers are almost driven to that! They have too much self respect to ask for compensation or "pass the hat;" but quietly suffer, or perforce turn to secular pursuits. Are not the comparatively well-to-do chiefly to blame in this matter? Who says "inasmuch as ye did it not to these my brethren ye did it not to me?" Who says "none shall appear before me empty?" How often was Israel reminded of this, and, at last, charged with robbing God.

Are those "under grace" to do less, or give less, than those under the law?

The early Christians thought not so, but even "beyond their ability," aided Paul with their worldly means, while he preached the gospel; nor did they probably limit their gifts to the measure meted to a day laborer wielding pick or handling shovel, as in these "last days."

NON CLERICUS.

Dear Brother Underwood:

The good seed that dear Brother Wagoner has sown here in the Sunny South, those that fell in good ground is still springing up and growing in grace and knowledge of our Savior Jesus Christ.

I think he can claim his part of the 11th and 12th verses of the 5th chap. of Matt. Will the brother have to go to heaven to receive that great reward? Oh no! Our great Life Giver has promised to bring the rewards with Him when he comes.

There are six or eight of us that are going to make up an evangelist fund to send north for some brother to come and spend the winter and preach for us. I would be so very glad if some good Bro. would come. I think there could be a great deal of good accomplished here. Oh, I would be real happy to meet you all of like precious faith at one grand conference meeting.

I have read the good writings of the brothers and sisters until I feel like I am almost acquainted with them. Dear Sister Wince, I do love to read her good pieces so much.

The Seed of the Woman, by M. Joblin, I think is just splendid, also, Our Relationship to the Apostasy, by W. H. Wilson. There are many other contributors to the paper that have written good articles too numerous to mention that are very interesting and instructive. THE RESTITUTION is all the preaching we have of the one faith except occasionally, Bro. L. M. Crosby gives a lecture. He is a very pious Christian, he has done a great deal of good in this part of the country in spreading the truth.

Your sister in hope of Eternal Life when Jesus comes.

F. D. HAMBRICK.

Thoughtlessness is never an excuse for wrong-doing. Our hasty actions disclose as nothing else does our habitual feelings. Field.

Selected.

As He Went Away.

"This same Jesus shall so come again in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 11.

This was Christ's last message to the world as he ascended. Like some voyager sailing away from New York, and then at Sandy Hook sending back a messenger from the outgoing steamer to convey to his friends his very last good bye, and, we may be sure, his very tenderest and most important word; so Jesus on his ascension pathway, just as he was passing out of view of the dear earth for which he died, stopped for a moment on the borders of the cloud realm to send back one more message to the men he loved better than all the celestial beings that were thronging around him and welcoming him home. And this was the message, "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

How did he go? So will he come again. How did he go? He went visibly and personally before their eyes; so will he come again in visible and personal form. We shall see him and recognize him as this same Jesus. How did he go? He went away upon the clouds of heaven; so shall he come again "with clouds." How did he go? He went away with hands extended in blessing on their heads; so he will come again with blessing and hands extended to welcome us to his bosom. How did he go? He went unheralded by the world, and his very ascension unknown to any but the few waiting disciples that had been with him during the forty days after his resurrection. So he will come again as a thief; the great world will know nothing of his arrival—a few waiting ones will receive him and ascend with him on high. How did he go? He went, having finished all his work on earth for the time, to begin in heaven his mediatorial work; so he will come again after he has completed his mediatorial work, to sit down upon another throne, and reign over the kingdoms of this earth as King of kings and Lord of lords. His enemies thought he was still in his tomb, and so the world will rush on and say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" and ere they know the door will be shut, and it will be too late to enter to the marriage feast.

Once more, his coming was preceded by no great demonstration of the world in his favor, but just behind lay the cross and the tomb as the remarks of his rejection; so, when he comes again, a millennial world will not be waiting to welcome its King, but earth will be in array against him, and, "as it was in the days of Lot, so will it be when the Son of Man is revealed." And so the age is waiting for the parallel to be completed. The Master has had his time of love and rejection until he passed out of sight. His Church will follow his footsteps; and when she shall have finished her testimony, she in turn will pass out of sight to be with him in the air; and then the next age will begin.

And so we are waiting like the men of Galilee and steadfastly gazing up into heaven, for this same Jesus to return. And while we gaze with ardent hope, we are busy preparing for his advent by fulfilling the command which we find just a few verses before. "It is not for you to know the times and seasons which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost has come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." These are Christ's two last messages. The one respecting his coming, and the other, the world's evangelization, and they must ever lie nearest the heart of the Church, and contribute at once her grandest hope, and her most solemn and responsible trust.

The [illegible]

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Some sweet morn the day shall break,
Never more to sink in night.
Some sweet morn we shall awake
'Mid the everlasting light.

Some sweet day the end shall come
To our parting and our pain,
Some sweet day, we'll all go home,
Never more to part again.

Some sweet hour our mortal frame
Shall a glorious image wear,
Some sweet hour our worthless name,
All his majesty shall share.

Some sweet time we'll weep no more
O'er these scenes of sin and woe;
Christ shall reign from shore to shore
Heav'n come down to dwell below.

Some sweet day our tongues shall tell
All the story of his love.
Some sweet day our song shall swell
Loud and sweet as songs above.

Some sweet morn we'll see his face
And we shall be satisfied,
Some sweet day in his embrace
We shall evermore abide.

—A. B. Simpson.

Looking for that Blessed Hope.

"For our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ." Phil. iii. 20.

In the professing Christian world of today, we do not see any anxiety about the second coming of Christ. There is a universal indifference to it. One is reminded of the statement in the parallel, "Whilst the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept." Very few care about the approach of the bridegroom; very few believe in it. When spoken to about it, their language is practically that of the scoffers of whom Peter wrote, "Where is the promise of His coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." Ah, but the day comes when this apathy shall be rudely dispelled. "As a snare shall it come upon all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth" said Jesus. How is it that men are so blinded to the most obvious doctrine of the New Testament? Because, under the guidance of a false theory, they look upon death as the eternal settlement of every man for weal and woe, whereas death settles nothing. It consigns us to darkness and silence, to await the coming of Christ. This is the great settling time "when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ." Blessed are all they who are prepared for its arrival. Happy are they who "look for his appearing," thrice happy they who "love it;" for it is only to such that he is to "appear the second time unto salvation." O Reader! repent thee of thy worldly follies! Give heed to the message that speaks to thee out of the Bible. Learn the truth from its neglected pages, and casting thine errors and thy thoughtlessness behind thee give obedience to the heavenly requirements, and then wait with hope for the coming of the Son of Man, that thou mayest be His when he maketh up His Jewels.

Some things may be old, yet they are indispensable. Nothing new can take their place. The sun is as old as creation, but no new substitute in the way of light and heat can supercede it. The atmosphere is coeval and coextensive with nature; but no chemical combination is capable of dispensing with it as a source of life and well-being. In like manner the gospel is old; but as long as the human nature is corrupt and requires divine cleansing, and as long as creature power is inadequate to its purification, so long will the Gospel of Jesus Christ be an "all in all" to every man upon the face of the globe.—Presbyterian.

Behold a great wonder! God is on high: exalt thyself, he flees from thee—humble thyself, and he stoops to thee.—Augustine.

[illegible]ORIAL STAFF:
[illegible]ers of the C. P. Association.
E JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 27, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

GOOD counsel in evil times—such has the Bible been said to be, but it is a lamentable fact that few discern this till too late to profit by it.

"To covet is to drive away contentment; and peace of mind is not possible without contentment. This explains why God says there is no peace for the wicked.

WE observe a growing tendency to teach men how to behave toward other men and leave them ignorant of how they should act toward God. This starves one department of the mind.

SURELY his work will be before him when he comes, who has promised to come. When we see the vast improvements made in our life time and hear men glorify their own achievements we are apt to forget how low down in the scale of humanity two-thirds of mankind are yet.

THE Lamb in the apocalypse represents a man whose name comprehends the attributes of innocence and sacrifice for sin; that he who was once dead lives again, and it is understood that the seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth represents this living one as the depository of spirit nature for his whole household.

FROM late statistics we learn somewhat of the condition of the human race as a whole, and it goes to confirm the Book of God when it shows that nothing but a divine interposition will right up the wrongs of this sin-cursed earth. It seems that of near 1,500,000,000, only about 500,000,000 are well clothed, about one-third. Well clothed means that they wear garments of some kind that will cover nakedness. 250,000,000 habitually go naked, and 700,000,000 only cover the middle parts of the body. 500,000,000 live in houses. 700,000,000 huts and caves, and the remainder 250,000,000 or 300,000,000 virtually have no shelter for their heads whatever.

"I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee" is addressed to every obedient brother and sister, no matter what strait they are reduced to. If they suffer it is no evidence of being forsaken; it may be necessary although they may not think so. If the Captain of their salvation was made perfect through suffering surely they need perfection as much as he, and how can they expect the purification without the suffering seeing that is the divine method? The assistance and protection of mortal man is gratifying, but, oh, to be under the guidance and protection of the God of heaven—of Him who can turn a man's heart whithersoever he will (Prov. xxi. 1) who can make even our enemies to be at peace with us (Prov. xxi. 7.)

WE are Christ's Servants if we have given ourselves to him, brethren; and as he has given us his book of discipline to fit us for high office in his Kingdom, we neglect it at our peril. "Occupy, till I come," is a standing order. This refers to his business; it is as Master he enjoins this, and he enjoins it upon servants who voluntarily become such. What are we doing for him, is the question? If but little, we shall have but little reward; if nothing, no reward at all, because reward is according to works. The eyes of the Lord are in every place; and he is not unrighteous to forget our work (Heb. vi. 10.) Drones, and careless, heartless, profitless make-believers should ask and answer the question, "What are we doing for the Master who has done and is doing so much for us? It will be too late to reform when the Master comes. The advice of Paul is good for today, "My beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

IT has well been said that the approbation of an enlightened conscience is better than popularity with a multitude who may not know you well enough to form a correct estimate, or may judge by a standard that is not what it ought to be—infallible.

WEARY ones, tried ones, disconsolate ones, the walk of faith will soon be ended, the veil will soon be drawn aside; the darkness dispelled; the Son of Man is coming to right things up, and it is yours to steel your hearts against your wicked surroundings, and believe God in the dark.

Unity of the Spirit.

Eph. iv. 3 speaks of "endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace." Several questions suggest themselves here: How endeavor to keep the unity of the spirit? And what is the unity of the spirit? And what is the bond of peace? The answer of our vast and latitudinarian sects abounding in these days of fables, is that we should be united in spirit, however widely we may differ in sentiment. Over and over we hear it repeated that it matters little what we believe or how much we disagree in faith provided we are one in spirit. This is a grand and fundamental error.

1. Because a union of spirit is a necessary result or fruit of oneness of faith, and not vice versa. It is impossible for unity of mind or spirit to exist among those who entertain conflicting doctrines or faiths. Every theory in philosophy, morality, philanthropy or religion, true or false, has its spirit. Such spirit is the offspring, and partakes of the character of the theory that gave it birth; and there is no more unity between them than there is between the divided doctrine from whence they originated.

2. The context shows that oneness of doctrine is indispensable to unity of spirit. The apostle says, "There is one body," (in which the one spirit dwells, and which it never divides) "There is one spirit," (which dwells in this one Body. The spirit does not divide into many spirits, to suit the whims of the jealous, ambitious and domineering members. The word says "There is one spirit;" it is indivisible; and sad will be the fate of those who assume to divide the body and spirit.) "One hope of your calling." (The spirit has revealed but one hope for the one body.) "One Lord." (not two or more,—to retain his care, his lordship, then, we must remain in his body). "One faith." (Division argues another faith, and the fruit of that is another practice, and in the nature of things have another spirit.) "One baptism." (The one baptism is the burial in water of one who has lovingly believed the gospel of life from the dead to inherit the kingdom promised of God, and has repentance toward God.) It is an obedience to the faith that secure his pardon and adoption. Three distinct modes are called baptism. To say they are all really baptism is to charge the spirit itself with division instead of union). "One God and Father of all." (The members of this one body, taught by this one spirit, inspired by this one hope, governed by this one Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Head of the body, which possesses the One Faith, and has been united to Christ their One Lord, by this One baptism. Oh! what a divine family! But

3. How endeavor to keep the unity of the Spirit? Answer, by possessing the spirit of, and practicing and teaching these great and fundamental truths. The belief in, and inculcation of, opposing doctrines or practices is a departure from the unity of the Spirit, and invariably results in divisions. Divisions stamp every such movement as of the flesh. How important, then, to know the doctrines of the Spirit and abide in them! By their power alone can we be sanctified and saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

4. The unity of the Spirit is to be kept in the bond of peace. What is the bond of peace? "Love," says one. Well, love is a pretty good bond of peace of itself, but back of love there must be some cause for love; but to follow that idea no further,—love is a bond of peace, but not the bond here referred to. We are coming now to the cream of the subject. The divine bond of peace is a chain of seven links, each having its own name: the first is one body, the second one spirit, the third is one hope, the fourth is one Lord, the fifth is one faith, the sixth is one baptism, the seventh is one God and Father of all, who is above, (that is, over all) and through all, and in you all. Nothing could be more complete. No congregation can be complete without this complete bond of peace. Where this bond of peace is allowed to do its work the one God and Father is above [illegible]. It says over and through all, and in all, for it says so. If in some of these links be not found, what is the lawful inference? Why, then God is not above, through or in such [illegible] are governed by the flesh. [illegible] have no [illegible] to be in the body.

But [illegible] it some who claim to have the one Hope, Lord, Faith, Baptism and God and Father, do not keep the unity of the Spirit? What, then, is the matter? This—they yield intellectual assent to God's truth, but they have not believed with the heart unto righteousness. The "Old Man" is still in control.

News Items and Comments.

Daring train robberies have taken place of late. Notably that on the Lake Shore, and one on a Mineral Ridge train, Michigan. It is reported that the messenger on the latter, is implicated with other railroad men, and that most of the money has been recovered through the confession of one of the principals.

A plot has been discovered to take the life of the Emperor of Austria while on the way to the army maneuvers, by [illegible] the Imperial train. A boy overheard a conversation and reported it to the authorities, who found nuts removed at the place mentioned, and so the catastrophe was averted, and the maneuvers took place before the Emperors of Germany and Austria, the Duke of [illegible], King of Saxony and other notables.

A revolution has taken place in Brazil, the Revolutionists apparently have full sway.

A mob lynched three negroes in New Orleans on the 16th, because they would not reveal the whereabouts of their brother, who recently shot to death Judge Estopinal while being tried for a trivial offense.

The Catholic Archbishop Hennesey was installed in office at Dubuque, Iowa, on the 5th with great ceremony in the presence of 2000 spectators.

An attempt was made to assassinate Editor Filitrael of the "Canada Review," who has lately been dealing with Roman Catholic doctrine and methods much to the displeasure of the clergy.

News from Italy is to the effect that the Italians are assuming a very hostile attitude toward the Pope, and threatening to exile him, and some who have thought that a union of the Greek and Catholic Churches will take place, and Jerusalem be made the Ecclesiastical Capital are regarding this antagonism as the beginning of the end expected.

An awful wreck took place on the Big Four Line on the 18th, eight being killed outright and a score of others severely injured.

The storms on the great lakes have been very destructive to life and property.

Yellow Fever in its worst form is epidemic at Brunswick, Georgia.

A family of six persons was foully murdered in Harrison Township, 12 miles from Washington, Indiana, on the 18th, the victims being horribly mutilated.

Since the vote on the Home Rule Bill in the House of Lords, England, the National Liberal Federation are giving that August Body notice that hereditary legislators will soon be a thing of the past. This is the kind of matter the press is loaded down with every day in spite of the Syren's Song of the World's conversion and the thousand and one panaceas for the ills of life. The humble believer in the oath and promise of Jehovah takes no stock in any of these expedients, knowing right well there is no hope of permanent improvement till the Master appears for those who are his, and place them in authority.

The pleasantest thing we have to report from a worldly standpoint, is, that with a partial return of confidence in the world of business, employment is furnished to some of the idle hands.

Selected.

China is in Training for War.

M. Henri Bryen, the correspondent of the [illegible] of Paris, at present traveling in China, gives the following account of the naval and military preparations which are going on in the Celestial Empire:

A fact of the highest importance, which seems to have escaped the notice of diplomatists, consuls, and the foreign residents of the East [illegible] to fight in China, is the [illegible] transformation of the old and childish methods of warfare so long in use in that country. The Chinese art of war has become thoroughly modernized, and tends to rival that of the Western nations. This illustrious man who has brought about this radical transformation is the Viceroy Li Hong-Tchang. It is at Tientsin that he is operating. Tientsin is the industrial center of war material, where the agents of Canet, Krupps and the Armstrongs enter into competion for the acceptance of their costly wares. In the tournament of the rivals the Germans have almost always carried off the prizes. At Port Arthur in the Province of Petchilli, there are splendid cruisers, battleships, and gunboats, built with all the recent improvements of naval science. It is noteworthy that a regular fleet has been created here in less than six years.

Since the last Franco-Chinese war the Celestials have opened their eyes. That great, sleepy people has become aroused. Li Hong-Tchang has rudely shaken off their night-covering. He has undertaken the task of waking them up thoroughly. He can claim the honor of having created genuine soldiers, organized in European style and armed with the improved modern rifles.

On visiting the Imperial Military School at Tientsin I had a chance to see the soldiers maneuvering. Their exercises had the trade mark of their training. Their movements, regular, stiff, and sturdy, and their heavy and noisy march, with automatic precision, clearly indicated that German instructors had been there. Li Hong-Tchang has reformed the army of China.

A German artillery officer, Maj. von Richter, has been commissioned by the Viceroy to organize the new army of the North, that is to say, in the province of Petchili. Another officer from Berlin is installed at the arsenal at Tikou, not far from the forts that command the entrance of the Pei Ho. Under his direction Chinese workman turn out enormous quantities of shot, shell, and schrapnel. The Krupp establishment supplies the forts and ramparts with guns of the latest pattern.

Such is the progress in China. The destructive industry is booming in that country. China is arming, and arming formidably, and her present aim is to find within herself the military resources and the war material that she was formerly obliged to procure elsewhere. She is erecting on different points of her immense territory numerous and important arsenals, workshops, and foundries, which change completely the national character of the country by modifying it in the European sense. The city of Han-Yang, an insignificant little place a short time ago, has now become, in less than a year, a military post of the first order, which is destined in the future to out-strip all the others. It is the center of great works and gigantic foundries, workshops, brickyards, and rifle factories.

From Han-Yang, which is the central and strategic point of the empire, a railway is about to be built which will join Pekin to the North and Canton.

All the material for the manufacture of small arms is at Han-Yang. It forms the model which the Chinese will rapidly learn to copy from. They will very soon be in a position to dispense entirely with the services of their European teachers.

The Arsenal of Nankin, which I was permitted to inspect, is a vast construction, entirely modern. It is supplied with all the modern machinery for the manufacture of engines of war; and from this place guns and rifles are abundantly supplied to the army. The rifles that are made at Nankin are something new. They are like our duck-guns, very heavy, and are handled by two men. But their range is extremely long. I have procured some of the cartridges of these guns. They are furnished with metallic cases.

This Nankin arsenal provides for everything. There are molds for shells of different sizes and forms, and one large section of the building is devoted entirely to the construction of the artillery of the fleet. I found there guns of the Hotchkiss, Maxim, and Nordenfeld patterns.

But it is not necessary to enter into further details and to multiply examples. What I have seen in the center of China exists also in the north and the south. Throughout the empire the manufacture of arms goes on with a feverish activity. China is working for war, and the time will soon come when she will be equipped with armaments equal in quantity and number to those of the greatest European nations.

The Reward Promised to the Righteous.

This is a prominent Bible theme, much spoken of by all the prophets. Righteousness consists in believing God (Romans iv. 3) and obeying his precepts (Colossians iv.). For God as a righteous taskmaster has promised those who fulfil this righteousness, a reward exceedingly great and precious (2 Pet. i. 1-4). Abraham was righteous (2 Pet. ii. 5), and to him God promised that he should have the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession. To inherit this promise he would also have eternal life as a consequence. The righteous are co-heirs with him (Rom. iv. 13-16), therefore their reward is much the same; though they have many additional promises. Jesus says that the reward is stored in heaven (Matthew v. 2); it is to be a place of honor in that kingdom which he is coming very soon to set up (Matt. xxv. 34). It is also that gift which every man wishes for, viz., Eternal Life (Matt. xix. 16-19). To this will be added Eternal Happiness; no more sighing, no more tears [Rev. xxi. 4]. David says that the Righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever. They are also beloved by God, who will protect them [Psalm lxii. 6]. Solomon says the righteous shall flourish and be recompensed in the earth (Proverbs xi. 31). Isaiah gives us a glowing description of their reward in his 11th chapter [also xli. and lxvi]. Daniel says that the righteous shall shine as the stars for ever [chap. xii.]. All these rewards are future but one that is the love that God has towards us, in guiding and protecting us in this dark, desolate world. But we know that the righteous will have a grand reward in a future age. Eternal life and happiness, living and reigning with Christ in unalloyed splendor and joy. It is beyond our feeble imaginations—we can look at it through a glass darkly—but then it will be bright as noonday.—G. Denny.

World's Fair excursion October 2nd via the Nickel Plate Road. One fare. Superb new train service.

Indiana Day.

Special Excursion Tickets to Chicago, account Indiana Day at World's Fair will be sold at low rate via Pennsylvania Line, Tuesday, Sept. 26th. Good to return until Oct., 5th inclusive, in coaches of any regular train scheduled to stop at starting point of ticket. J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent.

Don't miss the popular one fare excursion to Chicago via the Nickel Plate Road Saturday, Sept. 30th. Choice of trains.

There are questions which nothing can answer but God's love.—Denny.

Ireland's Day, will be celebrated at the Fair Saturday, Sept. 30th Take the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion.

The Gift of God.

If it is not a fact, and fact the Scriptures prove it is not, that we are ever living undying, immortal beings, of what use to the perishing sons of Adam is such teaching? It is useless, and not only useless, but positively harmful. It destroys the [illegible] doctrine, [illegible] of none effect. It perverts God's Word which he has declared he has magnified above all the attributes of his name. It conceals the truth that Christ is the Life-giver, that it can be obtained through him alone. It changes the Truth of God into a lie by teaching as its truth the serpent's lie, "Thou shalt not surely die." It denies that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation. It places man in a wrong position towards his Maker, and by consequence ignoring the life promised, they ignore the conditions upon which salvation is predicated. They thus reject the gospel and refuse allegiance to Christ.

The words of Solomon should be considered: "Whoso despiseth the Word shall be destroyed: but he that feareth the commandments shall be rewarded." For a person to obtain eternal life, it is necessary for him to walk in the footsteps of Christ. Apart from taking up his cross of patient suffering, and obediently following him in all things, there is no exemption from eternal death. Many walk whose end is destruction. Christ has taught us how to walk, and indicated the path in which to tread. He, in his life, has left us an example: for, though without sin, yet he was in all points tempted as we are. He was made perfect through suffering. He has become the Lord the Spirit, the Resurrection and the Life; but in the days of his humiliation, he, like Adam the first, was on probation for eternal life. He had to endure and overcome. Only by patient continuance in well doing could he obtain the consubstantiality with Deity, and become the Author of eternal salvation to the believer. But having overcome, being obedient unto death, he was at the right hand of God exalted to be a Prince and a Savior, death having no more dominion over him, but living for ever by the power of God.

Death had dominion over him once; and it was "in the days of his flesh" says the writer to the Hebrews, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears to him that was able to save him from death, that he was heard in that he feared. Christ had no previous eternal existence. His life was not underived. "He asked life of thee" is the record, "and thou gavest it him, even length of days for ever and ever."

Having obtained eternal redemption, being accepted as the first-fruits unto God of those that slept, he was changed from the mortal to the immortal by the "transforming energy of the radiant power of the eternal Spirit." Life, then, was treasured up in him to be reserved in the heavens on behalf of his brethren, to be brought near to them at his appearing and his kingdom. Jesus declared "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me." Hence, the life eternal, though given to the saints, is not yet theirs by possession. It is held in reserve for them. "Your life" says Paul, "is hid with Christ in God." "When Christ, who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." So that we conclude in the words of the apostle, "This is the record that God hath given unto us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." "Because I live," says Jesus," ye (my disciples) shall live also." Having himself triumphed over the grave, carrying captivity captive, the Son of God, through his glorious gospel, offers an undying existence to all who will seek for it in the way he has appointed. And they who obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, can die no more, but shall be as the angels that excel in strength.

All who are solicitous for the incorruptibility, life, majesty, and blessedness of the future ages of glory in Messiah's day, when he will rule the world in righteousness from Zion's holy hill, must believe the life-words he addresses to them, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness." Believe his gospel—the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, and be baptized for the remission of sins, [illegible] in his name, and with his power invested, encircled with his righteousness, fighting the good fight of faith, holding fast the confidence and rejoicing of their hope firm unto the end, they will have, says the apostle, "their first-fruits unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." For though "the wages of sin is death, the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

What Took Place on the Day of Pentecost?

On the day of Pentecost all the disciples were met together in one place. Suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a mighty wind, and it filled the place where they were sitting; and cloven tongues, like as of fire sat upon them, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit, which enabled them to speak in other tongues. There were Jews out of every nation under heaven dwelling at Jerusalem, and when they heard of this they were all amazed and marvelled, saying one to another: "Are not all these which speak, Galileans? how is it that we hear every man in our own tongue?" Peter, seeing they were in doubt, showed them that the apostles spake by the power of the Holy Spirit: that Jesus was risen from the dead, and had ascended into heaven. And that it was he who had poured down the same Holy Spirit and was the Messiah. He was a man known to them, and approved of by God, by the many wonders and signs which he did; and he was not crucified without the foreknowledge of God. The words of Peter had an effect upon the people that they cried: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" They were told to repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins, so that they, too, might receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. Many other words did he testify, all of which they gladly received, and about three thousand men were baptized. We are further told that they gave up all their possessions, and devoted their lives to the service of God.—Florence Mellares.

World's Fair Excursion, via the Nickel Plate Road Saturday, Sept. 30th. One fare for the round trip. Tickets good ten days including date of sale.

Dear Restitution:

One Brother Huddler, of Muscatine, Iowa, an earnest worker for the cause of Christ, came to Lanark, by call from Dixon, Ill., and preached over Sunday, Sept., 17-18. The attendance not being large, the meetings were closed on Monday night, but Bro. Huddler will remain with us through the week in visiting and in social meeting. It seems that each meeting is the best, for Brother Huddler is a genial man and makes the truth so plain none need ask for a better explanation.

From Lanark, he will go to Adaline and Plum River, for a short time. May the good work go on.

J. M. GLOTFELTY.

Nickel Plate Road, has another one fare excursion to the World's Fair October 2nd. Choice of trains. Tickets good ten days including date of sale.

There is about as much meanness to the square inch in the giving which takes place in the ordinary collections as is to be found any where on the earth. People enter the Lord's house, expect the great God to hear and answer their many prayers, bless them with his presence and power, give them love and joy and peace, bestow upon them such mercies as only He can give, and then at the close put a cent on the plate. Bless me! I don't wonder that some meetings are as void of juice and results as a gate post is of blossoms.

Sept. 30th, one fare excursion to the World's Fair from Fort Wayne and points west in Indiana via the popular Nickel Plate Road. Choice of three trains going and returning.

One fare to Chicago and return, via the Nickel Plate Road Monday, October 2nd. Tickets good on all trains.

Poetry.

Groping in the Dark.

THE PETITION.

Lo! Great Mystery! who shall say
What once hath [illegible] of this poor clay?
For [illegible] by His hand with potent skill—
Mind, matter, soul and stubborn will.
[illegible] death,
[illegible] leave this fleeting breath;
Not one of all the countless throng
Who [illegible] lived and died and [illegible] long.
[illegible] the great [illegible]
[illegible] may be yours and mine
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] but clearer [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] fear,
[illegible] our blessings here,
[illegible]
[illegible] the dogmas of the [illegible]
[illegible] by erring sects and schools
[illegible] with their rules,
[illegible]
[illegible] and then the part
[illegible] this stupendous plan,
[illegible] Infinite, and Man.
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] darkness the unknown
[illegible] the secret of Thy throne.

THE REPLY.

[illegible] mystery [illegible] shall say,
[illegible] of this poor clay,
[illegible] with potent skill,
[illegible] mind, and will;
Earth [illegible] a second birth
[illegible] "Earth to Earth."
[illegible] the mighty host,
Who [illegible] and died and suffered most,
[illegible] God a great decree
[illegible] therefore yours and mine!
[illegible] this new way
[illegible] on one way:
[illegible] but sure as sight,
[illegible] dark clouds of [illegible];
The [illegible], the dread, the trembling fear,
The thought that [illegible] our blessings here.
Now, [illegible] minds, whose bolder sway
[illegible] dogmas of today,
[illegible] by erring sects and schools,
[illegible] with their rules.
[illegible] Thee as thou art,
[illegible] and then the part
[illegible] this stupendous plan,
[illegible] Infinite; and Man.
[illegible] revealing [illegible]
To those who walk in heaven's light,
The [illegible] mystery of His throne,
Which [illegible] ages [illegible] made known.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 6.

1. And it came to pass during the second-first Sabbath (sabbatic-period) that he was going his way through grain-fields; and his disciples were plucking the heads and eating, shelling them with their hands.

2. And certain of the Pharisees said, Why are ye doing what is not permitted during the sabbatic-rites?

3. And Jesous answered and said unto them, Have ye not ever read that which David did when he and those who were with him hungered?

4. How he went into the house of God, and took and ate the loaves of the offering, and gave to those with him, which it was permissable for the priests alone to eat?

5. And he said unto them, the Son of Man is Lord of the sabbatic-rite.

6. And it came to pass during another sabbatic-period that he went into the synagogue and was teaching, and there was a man there, and his right hand was withered.

7. And the Scribes and the Pharisees were covertly watching him to see whether he was healing during the sabbatic-period, that they might find something to accuse him of.

8. But he knew their thoughts and said unto the man who had the withered hand, arise and stand in the midst. And he arose and stood.

9. And Jesous said unto them, I ask you whether it is permitted in a sabbatic-period to do good or to do evil? To save life (soul) or lose it?

10. And he looked around at them all and said unto him, stretch forth thy hand, and he did, and his hand was restored.

11. And they were filled with folly and discussed with one another what they should do to Jesous.

12. And it came to pass in those days that he went out into the mountain to offer votive-prayer, and he continued all the night long in votive-prayer unto God.

13. And when it had become day he summoned his disciples, and from them selected twelve whom he also named apostles.

14. Simon (a sneeror) whom he also named Petros, and Andreas (a manly man) his brother, and Jakobos and Joannes and Philippos (a friend of horses) and Bartholomaios (son of Tholomaios)

15. And Maththaios (taught of God) and Thomas (a wonderer also called Didumos a twin) Jacobos of Alphaios and Simon the one called a Zealot (or Zelotes) and

16. And Joudas Iskarioth who became a betrayer (or traitor.)

17. And going down with them he took his stand on a level place, and a vast crowd of his disciples and a vast multitude of the royal-people from all Joudaia and Hierousalem, and the other side of the river and from the sea-coast of Turos and Sidon, who had come to hear him and to be healed from their diseases;

18. And those who had been troubled with unclean spirits and who had been healed. (not the word above used for healing; but the word strictly meaning Courtier-Service.)

19. And all the crowd were seeking to touch him, because ability (power) was going out of him and he was healing them all.

20. And he lifted up his eyes and said unto his disciples, Blessed-happy, O ye beggars, because your's is the kingdom of God.

21. Blessed-happy ye who are hungering now, because ye will have been full fed; Blessed-happy ye who are lamenting now, because ye will laugh.

22. Blessed-happy are ye when men shall hate you and separate you from them and reproach you and cast out your name as a wicked thing for the Son of Man's sake.

23. Rejoice in that day and skip for joy. For lo your wages are much in the heavens. For in this wise did their fathers do unto the prophets.

24. But woe unto ye rich, because ye are having your advocacy.

25. Woe unto you, ye who have been filled now, because ye will hunger, woe unto you ye who laugh now, because ye will lament.

26. Woe, whenever all men shall have spoken well of you. For in this wise did their fathers unto the lying-prophets.

27. Moreover unto you who hear am I saying, love your enemies. Do well unto those who hate you.

28. Commend (con. trans. bless) those who curse you: offer votive-prayer for those who despitefully use you. (or wantonly insult.)

29. To the one who smiteth thee on one cheek yield also the other; and from the one who taketh thy outer-garment (himation) withhold not thy under-garment (tunic) also.

30. To every one who asketh of thee give, and from the one who taketh away thine own, ask it not back.

31. And even as ye will that men do to you, do ye likewise to them.

32. And if ye love those who love you of what is your grace? For the obdurate-sinners love those who love them.

33. And if ye do good to those who do good to you, of what sort is your grace? The obdurate-sinners also do the same.

34. And if ye lend to those from whom ye hope to receive, of what sort is your grace? The obdurate-sinners also lend to obdurate-sinners that they in turn may receive the like (treatment.)

35. But do ye love your enemies, and do good and lend to them, hoping for nothing in return, and your wages will be great and ye will be Sons of a Most High One. Because he is good (lit. most useful) to the ungracious and wicked.

36. Become pitiful even as your Father is one who pitieth.

37. And judge not and ye shall not be judged, (critical judging meant) and condemn not and ye shall not be condemned. (civil condemnation meant.) Release and ye will have been released. (Manumission of a slave meant.)

38. Give and it will have been given you, good measure pressed-down, shaken, running over will they give into your bosom. For with the measure with which ye measure will it have been measured to you in return.

39. And he spake a parable also unto them. Can a blind man guide a blind man? No, no, both will fall into the pit.

40. A disciple is not above his teacher. But every one thoroughly fitted will be as his teacher.

41. And why art thou looking at the splinter in thy brother's eye and dost not notice the beam in thine own eye?

42. How canst thou say unto thy brother, Brother, allow me to cast out the splinter in thine eye, and he not be looking at the beam in thine eye? Hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye, and then wilt thou see through to cast out the splinter in thy brother's eye.

43. Forsooth it is not a good tree that beareth bad fruit nor again a bad tree that beareth good fruit.

44. For each tree is known by its own fruit. They do not gather figs forsooth from acanthos plants nor a vintage from a bramble-bush.

45. The good man from out the good treasure of the heart proffereth the good, and the bad from out the bad proffereth the bad. For from a surplus of heart doth one's mouth talk.

46. And why are ye calling me Lord, Lord, and not doing as I say?

47. Every one who cometh unto me and heareth my words and doeth them I will show you to whom he is like.

48. He is like a man who was building a house and who dug and went deep and placed a foundation course upon the rock; and when a flood-tide occurred the current beat against that house, and was not strong enough to shake it, because it was well built.

49. But he who hath heard and not done is like a man who built a house upon the earth without a foundation course, against which the current beat and straightway it fell in and the ruin of that house became great.

COMMENT.

"The second-first sabbatic-period" (or Sabbath) instead of "sabbath" merely R. V. This term seems to have bothered the translators and commentators not a little. It is of course an idiomatic expression and a short way of saying a good deal. The commentators agree that the time referred to was no doubt the day preceeding "the first-fruits day" or the day of the "Dragma-Aparches" or "handfull-offering." But even the Jews themselves of the East and West have differed in regard to which of two days to observe, and one party has settled into an observance of both. According to the 23d of Leviticus it seems to have been made specific enough as it is said to be "the Day following the first" that is the first of unleavened and there were to be seven weeks numbered from it including the day following the last week to make the great pentecostal week or period, when they were to bring "first-products" as offerings, leavened-bread etc., of the new crop. Now the reader will observe that the lamb was slain or "sacrificed" more properly on the fourteenth of Nisan the first month of their new Mosaic year "during the evening shadows" that is from 3 to 6 P. M. As we reckon time of the 13th "the evening and morning" being their way of accounting a day, that is their fourteenth of Nisan begun on our 13th and ended at the same time on the fourteenth, they not reckoning time from twelve o'clock midnight as we do. This is what has confused so many commentators in their attempts to reconcile the antetype with the reality in Christ's experience. Then the fourteenth would not only be Pasha day for sacrificing the lamb, but also the regularly recurring Seventh Day Sabbath in the mouth Nisan. Christ then was crucified on our Friday and according to the record it occurred during the evening shadows between three and six o'clock that he was buried. The day preceding we are also told was "Preparation Day" and the day following this was "the feast of unleavened" or the fifteenth of Nisan was the first-fruits day" and as he was "the first-fruits" in reality of which this was a type we would expect he would be "lifted-up" or "raised" on this day with which fact the record agrees, and this makes our "Sunday" a first-fruits day if anything and not a seventh-day cessation from work observance at all, but an eighth day of whole-burnt offerings and libations of praise and thanksgiving, "fruit-offerings of our lips" as Paul puts it. Then the expression here used namely "the second-first Sabbath" is a short way of saying that this event occurred on the second Sabbath of the month Nisan, the day preceding the first of unleavened or the true pascha namely, or the fourteenth of Nisan. This makes the significance of Christ's teaching here all the more marked, occurring as it does on the very day designed to commemorate his own demise, and especially sacred still to the Jew.

"Loaves of the offering" instead of "shew-bread" R. V. & C. V. It was something more than mere "shew-bread." Study up the significance. For it is wonderful.

"The Son of man is Lord of the Sabbatic-rite" instead of "the Lord of the Sabbath" C. V. & R. V.

"Votive-prayer" instead of mere "prayer." R. V.

Notice the term "diseases" here is not the same term translated "diseases" previously in the C. V. & R. V. That term is "weaknesses."

"Skip" instead of "leap" R. V. There is the same difference in the Greek that there is in our language but the two words.

"Wages" instead of "reward" C. V. & R. V.

"Of what sort is your grace?" instead of "what thank have ye?" R. V. Too absurd a mistake for any scholar to make it seems to me.

"Good" or "most useful" instead of "kind" R. V. This a very misleading error to the polemic.

"Become pitiful" instead of "be ye merciful" R. V. Not the same thought by any means.

"Thoroughly fitted" instead of "perfected" R. V. There is another word for "perfect" used all through the Scriptures.

"And he" instead of "when thou" R. V.

"Acanthos-plants" instead of "thorns" R. V.

"Surplus" instead of "abundance" R. V. I may have an abundance without having a surplus.

"Flood-tide" and "current" instead of "flood" and "stream" R. V. Changes the location of this house in the picture from somewhere inland on the bank of a small stream to the sea-side with its tremendous tides and currents, and gives much more dignity and significance to the teaching.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Envy.

"Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous, but who is able to stand before envy?" Prov. xxvii. 4.

Envy is an evil affection of the heart, which makes men grieve, and fret at the good and prosperity of others.

It early develops in youth, and as a rule increases unless by some means conquered.

Is never entirely conquered without the grace of God, and a careful walk guided by his Word.

It lurks in families, creeps into the bosom of companions, and is hidden in the heart of every nation and organization.

Rachel envied Leah because of her fruitfulness, and because Jacob loved Joseph, the son of his old age, his brethren hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him. Envy led them to sell that young, innocent lad as a slave.

When almost a whole city congregated to hear the Word of God, by Paul, the Jews seeing the multitude were filled with envy, and spake against those things contradicting, and blaspheming. Acts xiii. 41.

When many signs and wonders were wrought among the people, the high priest rose up and with him the sect of the Sadducees, and were filled with envy.

Daniel it is stated "was faultless, and an excellent spirit was in him, he was faithful, neither was there any error found in him." Then why did the hundred and twenty presidents and princes, whom Darius set over the kingdom find fault when Daniel was preferred before them? Was it envy?

Pilate knew that for envy Christ the King of the Jews was delivered. It was envy that caused the chief priests and Pharisees to gather a council and ask, "what do we, for this man doeth many miracles? If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him, and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation. John xi. 47, 48. Every evidence had been given that he was the Christ.

Is it any wonder the wise man asks, "Who can stand before envy?" "Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous, but who can stand before envy?"

It is selfish and subtle. Wishing others evil is a deep pollution, it alienates us from the meek and lowly One.

This great evil is deeper hidden in the human heart than many others.

"A sound heart is the life of the flesh; but envy the rottenness of the bones." Prov. xiv. 30. Yes it is deeply rooted in the human heart.

"The Spirit that dwelleth in us (naturally) lusteth to envy." James iv. 5.

We see it plainly in others, but perhaps have forgotten to examine closely our own hearts.

Is there trouble; is there biting and devouring? let us search for envy. It may be hidden away so deep we have not found it. Eating and rotting our bones, sapping our very lives. O! search, search for it.

Why is it necessary to search our own hearts for envy? To help us to know why, let us commit the following verse to memory.

"Where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work." This sentence covers a great deal of ground.

The same apostle, beginning at the thirteenth verse, says, "Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you, let him show out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom, but if ye have bitter envyings, and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth."

Dear reader, have you and I been lying against the truth? Yes, if there is bitter envying and strife in our hearts we have. This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish.

But the wisdom that is from above, is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy, and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

Let us be admonished by Peter to lay aside all malice, and all guile and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings. 1 Peter ii. 1.

NANCY BARBER.

Revelation a Mystery.

To the teachers of popular theology, though learned in all the wisdom of the schools, the Bible is a very mysterious book. And if so to the leaders and teachers eminent in scholarship what must it be to the rank and file of the professed Christian Church but a sealed book on all the great doctrines of faith. Ignorant of the nature and destiny of man, how mystery, like a dark cloud, must hang over a large portion of the Divine Book. Add to this their false notions of the nature of the Christ and his relation to the Father, to the scheme of redemption and to man as a sinful creature, and the darkness is increased many times. How intensely dark it must be to these professed children of God when guided by false rules of interpretation, false grammer and false rhetoric, they call the church the kingdom of heaven, the eternal abode of the righteous and death the gate to endless joy, and the words "Zion" and "Israel," as used in prophecy and promise, drop their historical meanings, and are made to mean this rule touching the latter name in passages where curses are threatened; then, as a matter of course, these must belong to literal Israel(?)—All becomes a labyrinth of mysteries as they proceed to reject truth after truth, precious and vital to true Christian faith such as the promises to the fathers, the oath to David, the restored Israelitish kingdom, the royal priesthood of the church in the Age to come, the pre-millennial return of the Lord and the future blessing of the nations through the instrumentality of the Christ and his immortalized church, and subordinately through Israel. How we of the household of faith in the experience of past years rejoiced when the light of these precious truths flashed upon our minds and drove out the darkness of error, causing us to exclaim, "The Bible is a new book!"

JOHN L. WINCE.

For New York and Boston, take the Nickel Plate Road. Through sleeping cars to New York via either the West Shore Road or the Lehigh Valley Route from Buffalo. Through sleeping cars to Boston via the West Shore-Fitchburg Route. Superb new dining cars. Low rates.

Chicago day at the Fair, October 9th. Take Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion Oct. 2nd and be there.

Selected.

Signs of the Times.

APOSTACY

The apostate state of Christendom is a striking evidence of the nearness of the Advent. Christ propounded the question. "When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith on the earth?" This very question presupposes a departure from the faith apostolically delivered, and indicates a universal apostacy thorough and complete.

Concerning the apostacy, Paul writes to Timothy [1 Tim. iv. 1], "Now the spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter days some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." Isaiah testifies also that "When the Redeemer shall come to Zion, darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people;" and again [xxv. 7]. that it is Christ's mission to destroy from Mount Zion "the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations." This is described by Paul in these words [2 Tim. iv. 3]: "The time will come when they shall not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts will they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned unto fables." This has its glaringly painful fulfilment in our own days. All nations have drunk of Babylon's intoxicating draught. The union of the church and the world if complete, for whilst the wealth of the nominal Christian church is amazing, its worldliness is most evident. It ignores the gospel of the kingdom of God. It is in complete darkness concerning the personal coming and reign on earth of the Messiah.

The Bishop of Exeter, in his charge to the clergy of his diocese, at Barnstaple, made this admission:—"It seems to me that this article of our creed, 'He shall come again with glory to judge the quick and the dead,' is, amid the pressure and busy work of this nineteenth century too generally passed by. . . There appear to be but few laborious students of the word of prophecy amongst us. Men and women think and speak of death and Paradise and the eternity beyond—but for the most part on that which is the central theme of so many Old and New Testament predictions they are silent. . . . I believe one reason is the too general neglect of the word of prophecy. We have been too supine, too easily content to accept the bare fact of the second Advent and have failed to realize the momentous events which cluster round this crisis in the history of the Church and the world, which awakens so profound an interest in the heart of the humble and the reverent student."

And as with this, so with all other doctrines. The professing Christian world has subverted the faith once for all delivered to the saints, and has turned its ears unto fables. Examples of this may be seen in the teaching concerning Mariolatry, saint worship, Papal infallibility, natural immortality, eternal sin, eternal suffering, and an eternal devil; denial of the resurrection and the kingdom of God on earth.

SCOFFERS.

While the teaching of Christ is thus falsified, scoffers of every type abound. Truly the words of the apostle Peter [2 Peter iii. 3, 4] are fulfilled in our day: "There shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation."

WORLDLINESS.

And how well do the times in which we live correspond in worldliness of spirit with that which is to be the spirit when the Lord comes, as declared in Matt. xxiv. 38, 39: "For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away. So shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

THE END NEAR.

The application of these things to ourselves may be perceived from the words of Christ [Luke xxi. 28], when describing his coming with power and great glory: "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads for your redemption draweth nigh. And he spake to them a parable; Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; When they now shoot forth ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

Daniel said the vision should be sealed till the time of the end, and then the wise should understand. And in the parable of the ten virgins it is the wise who are prepared to go forth and meet the bridegroom. The wise constitute the bride, the lamb's wife. They are they who have accepted the word of Truth, and have thus become wise unto salvation through the faith which is in Christ Jesus. They form a company of intelligent believers espoused to Christ; who, though possessed of sin's filthy garments are one in mind; and in character pure and holy, "walking circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." Hence as a young man will only marry her to whom he is betrothed; so Christ will be united only to those who are betrothed to him. Those, therefore, who are not espoused to Christ cannot expect to go into the marriage feast. True, the character and moral life may be exceedingly good, but it is self-evident that to show the characteristics—the moral features of the bride, is not to be the bride herself. To obtain salvation and redemption, we must not imitate the bride, but must become the bride. We must be espoused to Christ.

Then let all honest and true-hearted accept his word, believe his truth—the life-imparting gospel—the gospel of the kingdom, the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth—and be united to him in the waters of baptism. Doing this they may look forward with joy to the time when the Lord shall come.

But if not espoused to Christ—if not of the bride—of what interest will they be to the bridegroom? And what then will be their position when the solemn cry goes forth to his waiting servants: "Behold the Bridegroom cometh; go ye forth to meet him."

October 2nd, another popular one fare excursion to Chicago via the Nickel Plate Road. Three trains each way every day.

An Exhortation.

My son, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee;

So that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding;

Yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding;

If thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures:

Then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.

Remember, the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion to the World's Fair Tuesday, Sept. 26th. Tickets good on all trains of the 26th and early morning train of 27th. The 27th is Indiana Day at the Fair.

Our world is full of men who never let their religious scruples interfere with their unlawful business.

For New York and Boston, take the Nickel Plate Road. Two through sleeping car lines to New York via either the West Shore Railroad or the Lehigh Valley Route from Buffalo. Through sleeping cars to Boston via West Shore Railroad and Hoosac Tunnel Route. Superb new dining cars.

A Special Notice.

Tickets sold by the Nickel Plate Road for the Chicago excursion Sept. 26th will be good on early morning train of Sept. 27th. Take in Indiana Day at the World's Fair.

[illegible]gdom Come."

[illegible] the promised hour,
[illegible] come with all restoring power;
[illegible], knowledge, spread; from pole to [illegible] the world the ocean waters roll.

Hope waits the morning of celestial light;
Time planes his wisdom for everlasting flight;
Unchanging seasons have their march begun,
Millennial years are hastening to the sun.

Seen through thick clouds by Faith's transpiercing eyes,
The new creation shines in purer skies.
All hail! the age of crime of suffering ends,
The reign of righteousness from heaven descends.

Vengeance forever [illegible] the afflicting sword,
Death is destroyed and Paradise restored;
Man rising from the ruins of his fall,
Is one with God, and God is all in all.

Dear Restitution:

You have been a constant visitor to me for eighteen years. When you first came to me Bro. H. V. Reed was editor, afterwards our dear gentle Bro. Chaplin who was a kind, courteous and cautious moderator, presiding over the varied contributions to your pages. I remember with pleasure and approval the stand he took on the question that is now again being discussed, a very important or weighty one, indeed—The nature of our Blessed Lord. As I read sometimes I think—Ah! Brother or Sister, you are only looking at one side of the glorious temple of truth, there are other sides to it. Our glorious Captain was not only "The Woman's Seed" but he was "The Son of God" in a way in which none other are sons of God. What need then for finite minds to so closely analyze, weigh and state with all the positiveness that ever characterized those other creed makers who said "He therefore that will be saved: must thus think of the Trinity" (creed of Athanasius). While reading the late articles on "The Seed of the Woman" while appreciating the ability and worth of the writer I have felt as I above said—and now here comes our Brother Wiley Jones to show us a little of the other front, thank you Bro. Jones. There need be no conflict—the same inspired writer who said that "he who confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is a deceiver and antichrist," insisted just as strongly that Jesus was "The only begotten Son of God." When therefore we can comprehend in some measure the divine nature, the passages that apply the term God to our blessed Lord and those which imply a pre-existence (not as Jesus Christ but as God) are intelligible, but if we sever these two aspects of the nature of our Lord we make confusion, and we would never use the words we find in the book to define our thought. Yours in hope of Eternal Life.

HENRY NEALE.

Fell Asleep.

Near McCune, Kansas, on Sept. 7, 1893, Kinsey Tarr fell asleep. He was born in Orange Co., Ind. June 26, 1842. He with his father and mother, moved to Martin Co., Ind., Oct 1852. There he worked on a farm until 1861. He enlisted in the 24th Ind., Vol., and served three years, one month and nine days, or, through the war. He returned home August 1864, and in Sept., 1865, he was married to Sarah E. Bell. In the year 1868, they moved to Crawford Co., Kan., where they resided until death separated them. He died suddenly on the morning of Sept. 7, of heart trouble. I baptized Brother and Sister Tarr about 22 years ago, and they have ever been faithful to the cause. He was a good husband and father, very sympathetic with the poor. He will be missed by a great many people. The writer addressed the large audience assembled at his funeral, from John xii. 24. He leaves besides his wife, three children and many friends to mourn his loss.

JOHN FOORE.

World's Fair Excursion.

$2.65 round trip to Chicago from Plymouth via Pennsylvania Lines, Sept. 30. For train leaving at 8:37 A. M., children under 12 years of age one-half the above rate. Tickets good returning ten days from date of sale. For details apply to J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent.

Heavy East-Bound Travel.

On account of growth of east-bound business, the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate a new through express on Sunday, Sept. 3rd. Palace Sleepers Chicago to Buffalo and direct connection at Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

Appointments.

The annual meeting of the northwest conference of the "Church of God" will convene at Mountain Side School-house near Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, commencing Friday evening Oct. 20, 1893, and continue through the week.

A general invitation is extended to all lovers of the truth, and we sincerely hope many will avail themselves of this one more opportunity of hearing the Word of God expounded by those who have made it a study for years. Therefore we earnestly entreat all that have an interest in the cause of the Master to lay aside work and make a little sacrifice if need be and come and help us make this meeting one to be long remembered!

To the isolated brethren and sisters who may not be able to come, I would say, we would be glad to hear from them by letter. Let them give us a word of exhortation and cheer that will do us good. Such letters read in our conferences do more good than they may think. Teams will be in Portland Friday, at one o'clock, at the National Hotel, for those wishing to be conveyed to the place of meeting. If we receive no letters there will be no teams there. We understand that Brother Geo. W. Young will be with us to labor in the interest of the meeting.

Brethren, another conference year has almost passed away. Do you feel as I do today, that

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

ALMIRA BROOKS, Sec'y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Moriah, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. HATCH.

New Through Train.

The Nickel Plate Road announces that commencing Sunday, Sept. 3rd, Train No 4, running between Chicago and Cleveland, and No. 8 running between Cleveland and Buffalo, will be merged into a continuous through train, leaving Chicago about 8:00 A. M. and reaching Buffalo between three or four o'clock the following morning.

The equipment of this train will embrace standard smoking and day coaches and sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

Harvest Excursion via Pennsylvania Lines.

Harvest Excursion tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines to authorized points to the west, northwest, southwest and south at reduced round trip rate on Sept. 12 and Oct. 10th, good returning 20 days from date of sale. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent.

Growing.

The Nickel Plate Road will on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, increase their train service by the addition of a new though east bound train by merging the Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Buffalo accommodation trains into a new through express with sleeping cars Chicago to Buffalo. Other important changes. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millspaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Combination Offer

Cruden's Concordance, Price	$1.50
Smith's Bible Dictionary,	1.50
Future Probation,	.25
Letter to a friend,	.10
Christ's Kingdom. Where is it? What is it?	.10
Doctrine of Baptism,	.20
Discourse on Foundation Work,	.05
What was the Sabbath?	.05
Jesus Christ, His Paternity, etc.	.30
	$4.05
Will send all post paid for	3.00
You Save	$1.05

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$108.78
"From a Friend."	1.00

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

It is a pleasure to note the addition of another through train to the already competent train service of the Nickel Plate Road. It will leave Chicago about 8:00 A. M. and reach Buffalo at 3 or 4 the following morning. Through sleepers Chicago to Buffalo. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east.—Sept. 27.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund." please send remittances to THE RESTITUTION office, Plymouth, Ind. and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to [illegible],
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sireville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago. Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the reader.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls. Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by [illegible], in 1860. 3. Immortality. 4. [illegible] Son of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 50 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; 20 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? [illegible]. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5c. each, [illegible] for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 11 pages, price 5c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is It? What is It? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at [illegible], Pa., July 19, 1891, by [illegible]. Can be had at this office at 10c. each, 3 for 25c., or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Traditions of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. [illegible], of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight [illegible] for $1.00.

The [illegible] of All Things. Carrie Williams. This little book of 16 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from THE RESTITUTION office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land in the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST.—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being two lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 100 pages, price 40 cts., or four for $1 postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the readings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an Introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of [illegible] pages, neatly [illegible] bound in cloth. This work exhaustively treats the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price [illegible].

Cruden's Concordance Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation—every Bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 125 pages, cloth bound, for 15cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page.—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 250 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 5 for [illegible]; 12 for $1.50; 50 for $5.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from THE RESTITUTION office, containing 150 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 23 pages of Hymns for children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 24 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 126 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 146 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 252 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 35 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 64 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 486 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 3 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1345 Logan Av., San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Ninth and Spring Garden Sts., Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsay Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 1510 Elting Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the Van Buren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

[illegible] Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in [illegible] on Michigan street, as follows: [illegible] by Bro. S. H. Geiselman, every [illegible] Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every 3 at [illegible] Sunday school every [illegible] social meeting every Thursday [illegible].

[illegible], Plymouth, Ind., meet in Hall [illegible] Michigan and LaPorte streets. [illegible] every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday [illegible] prayer and social meeting [illegible] W. D. Thom, com. Elder.

[illegible] Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at two o'clock for Sunday School and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles west thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 33 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from one to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Almus Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. [illegible] Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of Westseattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at [illegible], Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at [illegible], where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Kniffe, Recorder, or B. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Elmer Style, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly meetings are held the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Hr[illegible] and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dalton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves .... †11:45pm
No. 22, " " .... †5:10pm
No. 24, " " .... †[illegible]
No. 150, Local, ... †[illegible]pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves .... †9:49am
No. 22, " " .... †5:53pm
No. 25, " " .... †12:00pm
No. 151, Local, " .... †[illegible]pm

†Daily except Sunday, *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:22 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. for train arriving Kansas City 8:35 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 6, 16, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, CHAS. F. DALY,
Tff. Manager. Gen Pass Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun. ..12:26pm For St. Joseph.
No. 54 " 5:32pm "
No. 64 " ......10:53pm For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun. ...... 5:30am For Terre Haute.
No. 53, " ......12:30pm " "
No. 55, " ......4:40pm " "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

[illegible]

Westward.	[illegible]
Eastward.	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, E. A. FORD,
General Manager, General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES.

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

[illegible] WILLIAMS, B. F. HORNER,
Gen'l Sup't. Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS. Each number containing [illegible]. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. [illegible] English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall do my best to circulate it."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. [illegible]
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible. [illegible]
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament. [illegible]
5. The Bible Triumphant. [illegible]
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses." [illegible]
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers. [illegible]
8. Corruptions of the New Testament. [illegible]
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H. [illegible]
10. Scientific Hair-Splitting. Patterson. [illegible]
11. Geological Evolution. [illegible]
12. The Origin of Life. [illegible]
13. Darwinism. [illegible]
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White. [illegible]
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H. [illegible]
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H. [illegible]
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H. [illegible]
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H. [illegible]
20. Rule for Skeptics to Credit, by H. L. H. [illegible]
21. [illegible]
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey. [illegible]
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey. [illegible]
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey. [illegible]
25. The History Veiled, by W. Ramsey. [illegible]
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey. [illegible]
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H. [illegible]
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H. [illegible]
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism. [illegible]

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism so well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 6 cts. single; 50 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Asters, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cts. for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N.Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 4, 1893. NO. 37.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
[illegible]
W. P. [illegible]
J. H. [illegible]
[illegible]
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS: One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - - .40

Poetry.

Watching for the Morning.

When the shadows gather,
And the night grows deep,
And the weary eyelids
Cannot close in sleep;
Mid these hours of sadness,
With their solemn warning,
Comes that song of gladness:
"Watching for the morning."

When the morning clouds spread
Over the azure sky,
And the howling wild winds
[illegible] storm is nigh;
When the [illegible]
[illegible] the heavens [illegible],
[illegible]
"Watching for the morning."

[illegible] has stolen
[illegible] and cheer from thee;
And the careworn spirit
Writhes in agony;
[illegible] of sorrow,
[illegible] warning,
[illegible]
"Watching for the morning."

Years are gliding onward;
Oh, how fast they fly!
Wasting life's fountain,
It will soon run dry.
[illegible]
[illegible] death with scorning;
[illegible]
Watching for the morning."

Though the shadows gather,
And the night grows deep,
And the weary eyelids
Close in death's long sleep;
Through this night of sadness,
With its solemn warning,
Comes the song of gladness;
"Watching for the morning."

Watching, watching, watching!
Lord, how long, how long?
When shall break the shadow?
When burst forth the song?
Haste, O blessed daybreak,
With thy bright adorning;
Let the joyous lay wake,
"Morning! Lo! The morning!"

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 6.

"This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." John xvii. 3.

The gift of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord, so eagerly sought after by every true follower of the Lord Jesus, will be the greatest blessing that can possibly fall to the lot of mortal men. Hence, it is of the highest importance to learn how it may be secured.

Let me call special attention to the text at the head of this article. If eternal life is desired, a certain degree of knowledge must be attained. You must know "the only true God, and Jesus Christ." Besides a knowledge of "Jesus Christ," "the only true God" must be known. The true child of God knows only one "true God." A portion of the apostasy knows two Gods, and others three Gods—"God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost." "the triune God." Instead of the Lord Jesus ascribing to himself the title of "God the Son," he addresses the Father as "the only true God," and who should know better than the Son of God as to how many Gods there are? If he was equally God along with the Father, how could he say the Father was "the only true God?" If you wish eternal life he requires you to know himself, whom the Father hath sent, and "the only true God," a belief in a dual or triune God wont answer at all, it must be "the only true God."

On this point, the Father bears explicit testimony, he says: "I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God." Read again in 2 Sam. vii. 22: "Thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like thee, neither is there any other God beside thee." What better testimony can any one desire, than that our God is the "first" one, and the "last" one, and beside him "there is no God." There is no room here for either a dual or a triune God. The apostasy says that "God the Son," was with the Father, before creation. Let us take the testimony of the Father once more, and see if he had any other God in company "with" him. See Deut. xxxii. 39: "See now that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me." In harmony with this read Isa. xlvi. 9: "I am God, and there is none else."

The phrases "God the Son," "the triune God," the "second person in the trinity" or the "second person in the divine nature," are as foreign to the Sacred Writings as the phrase "immortal soul." But we do read of the "one God," and the "one Lord Jesus Christ," but we never read of him as the "one God." See 1 Cor. viii. 4, 5, 6: "That no one is God but one. For though there are indeed, Gods so-called, whether in heaven or on earth; * * * yet to us there is but one God, the Father, out of whom are all things, and we for him; and one Lord Jesus Christ." (Diaglott.) From this passage we learn that "there is but one God," and that one is "the Father," and "one Lord Jesus Christ," which is not included as you see as "the one God," "the Father," but has his own position as the "one Lord Jesus Christ." The same thought is contained in the text at the head of this article: "This is eternal life to know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." Jesus Christ could not possibly be "the only true God," as he is presented as an object of knowledge distinct from "the only true God." For further evidence, see 1 Tim. ii. 5: "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man (not the God) Christ Jesus."

It is a self-evident fact that the "mediator between God and men," could not possibly be the God he mediates "between." This must be evident to all.

See also Eph. iv. 4, 5, 6: "There is one body, and one spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all." Here again, we have the "one God and Father," as distinct from the "one Lord." As has already been seen, the sacred penmen always draw a sharp distinction between the "one Lord," and the "one God and Father," the two are quite distinct both in person and in work. The Father is spoken of as the "only true God," and the Son as the "mediator between God and men," and this "mediator," the Scriptures call "the man Christ Jesus." The apostasy would call him: "the (God) man Christ Jesus," a title never found in the Holy Scriptures. If Jesus is the "one God," as we are told in the following language: ["The Son is not a separate God and Savior beside or without the Father, for they are one,"] does he stand as a "mediator" between himself and men? When men once depart from the plain simple teachings of God's Word they are led into all sorts of foolish and contradictory extravagances.

Teachers who declare "the Son is not a separate God," from the Father, affirm "that the Father is the First, and the Son is the second person of the divine nature." Now, if the Father is one person, and the Son is another, and the Son is God, as well as the Father, then there must of necessity be two Gods as a first and a second person would indicate. The simplest school child is aware that one plus one equals two. Trinitarians go somewhat farther and say that three gods equal one god. A theology which by necessity has to indulge in such bad arithmetic may well be doubted.

A multiplicity of gods is adverse to Scripture teaching: See Psa. lxxxvi. 10: "Thou art great, and doest wondrous things; thou art God alone." If he is "God alone," he certainly cannot be one of a company of either two or three gods. Depend upon it the solid truth is, he is "God alone," as the Bible says.

See also Isa. xxxvii. 16: "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone." No triune god can be brought in here, as "thou art the God, even thou alone."

The same language is also found in 2 King xix. 15: "Thou art the God, even thou alone." The testimony is so abundant, that it must be true that he is "alone" in his position as God.

In Isa. xlvi. 8, this question is asked and answered: "Is there a God beside me? Yea, there is no God; I know not any." There is no room for any other god here, "I know not any."

See Deut. iv. 35, 39: "he is God; there is none else beside him. He is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else." If there is "none else," as the Bible says so often, then those who affirm that there are either two or three more beside him have to set the Scriptures at nought. See Mark xii. 29. "The Lord our God is one Lord," says Jesus, a strange speech for him to make if he is God also? See verse 32: "Thou hast said the truth; for there is one God; and there is none other but he." The personal pronoun "he," refers directly to the Father. "There is none other but He." If this is so, how comes it that some say that there is "God the Son," and "God the Holy Ghost," in addition? The words, "God the Son," "God the Holy Ghost," and "the second person in the divine nature," are as foreign to the Bible as any phrase can possibly be.

In court, the evidence in a cause is summed up, and the jury is directed to bring in a verdict according to the preponderance of evidence.

The cause we are now considering, is: "Does the Bible warrant a belief in one, or in a plurality of gods?" That we may decide as to the preponderance of evidence, I will briefly sum up the evidence presented in this article.

1. "That they might know thee (a personal pronoun relating to God) the only true God."

2. "I (the Father) am the first, and I am the last: and beside me there is no God."

3. "There is none like thee (God) neither is there any other God."

4. See now that I, even I, am he, (I is in the singular number) and there is no God with me." (The apostasy says there are two Gods "with" him).

5. "I am God, and there is none else."

6. "That no one is God but one." (Not three).

7. "Yet to us there is but one God, the Father."

8. "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." (Why not say the God Christ Jesus.)

9. "One God and Father of all."

10. "Thou art great, and doest wondrous things; thou art God alone."

11. "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone."

12. "Thou art the God, even thou alone."

13. "Is there a God beside me? Yea, there is no God; I know not any."

14. "He is God; there is none else beside him."

15. "The Lord our God is one Lord."

16. "Thou hast said the truth; for there is one God; and there is none other but he."

The evidence presented, is but a portion of much more which we have not room at present to give. In answer to all this vast army of evidence, you are asked to believe that "I and my Father are one" God, in other words, it takes two Gods to make one God. It is all an assumption that Jesus meant that he and his Father constituted one God, he does not say so, and it is evident he did not so mean it, when he said: "Neither pray I for these alone, but them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one." John xvii. 20, 21, 22. Hence, whatever unity existed between the Father and the Son, all believers can participate in the same unity "Even as we are one."

W. H. WILSON.

Conditional Immortality.

"Who (God) will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well-doing seek for glory, honor and immortality; eternal life." Rom. ii. 6 7.

Here are three valuable objects to be sought for in a particular way, with the promise of the gift of eternal life to all who seek for the glory, and honor, and immortality in the way pointed out.

What is the glory to be sought? "For our citizenship is in heaven from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." Phil. iii. 20 21.

When Christ, who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory. "Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth, fornication and all wickedness." Col. iii. 4. "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." At the right hand of that glorious throne he will set his sheep, and say unto them, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

We are to seek the glory of a celestial body. At death "It is sown a terrestrial body, it is raised a spiritual body." 1 Cor. xv. 44. "And as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." Natural bodies of flesh and blood may become heirs of the Kingdom of God by faith and well-doing, but, "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption." Not until the resurrection of the just, or the change of the living saints, can they inherit the Kingdom of God. 1 Cor. xv. 50. Says Paul, "Behold I show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, at the last trump, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed." This great and glorious change of the sleeping, or dead saints, and those alive at the second coming of Christ, must precede the inheritance of the promised kingdom, which will be glorious beyond our conception. "Beloved, now are we the Sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John iii. 2. These Scriptures give us a glimpse of the glory we should seek.

We should also seek for the honor that cometh, not from man but that which cometh from God. Jesus says, "If any man serve me, him will my Father honor." John xii. 26. "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess before my Father which is in heaven." Matt. x. 32. "Also I say unto you, whosoever shall confess me before men him shall the Son of Man confess before the angels of God." Luke xii. 8. He that overcometh the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels." Rev. iii. 5.

The highest honors of this world are soon laid in the grave and will bear no comparison with the future honor of God, the Lord Jesus, and the Holy Angels, and will not end with death, but will be connected with eternal life. Our text teaches us to seek for immortality also. What is it? It is the opposite of mortality. It is the life of a spiritual, incorruptible, immortal body that comes into existence by the first resurrection of the "blessed and holy," or by the sudden change of those in Christ, who are alive at his coming. Here are two classes of believers who have sought for immortality in the way directed by Jesus and his apostles. After the death of her brother, Martha says to Jesus, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died." Jesus said unto her, thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Jesus saith unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" The dead believers shall live again by the same power that raised Lazarus, while the living believers will be changed and never die. This agrees with the testimony of Paul as found in his epistle to the Thessalonians, iv. 13. "But I would not have you to be ignorant brethren concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him, (or as he "brought again from the dead the Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of Sheep.") Heb. xiii. 20. "For this we say unto you by the Word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain shall not prevent (go before) them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 1 Thess. iv. 13. "These words" contained the only hope and comfort that these afflicted Christians had in the death of their Christian friends, that distinguished them from the heathen world around them.

When will the seekers for immortality find it? Not at death, but at "the better resurrection." "For since by man came death, by man will come also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive, Christ the first fruits, (was made alive) afterward they that are Christ's, (will be made alive) at his coming" "For this corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality." That is to transpire at the sounding of the last trump. "So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written death is swallowed up in victory." "But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Here is a promised victory over death and the grave for which every mortal man should be very thankful and seek for immortality to be "put on" at the coming of the Life Giver.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the works of the Lord, forasmuch ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." 1 Cor. xv. 33. The Apostle finishes thus his long and strong argument for the resurrection hope, with the exhortation to his brethren to be steadfast and not moved away from the hope of immortality at the resurrection which some in the Church at Corinth denied.

What is it to seek for the promised glory, honor, immortality? Seeking implies a strong belief in the value of the things sought and a strong desire to obtain them, with a full purpose of mind to use the necessary means—"a ceasing to do evil, and a patient continuance in well-doing."

Why should we seek for immortality and the glory connected with it? Because we need it. If we had it already we need not seek for it. We must seek for and find immortality in order to gain eternal life. This mortal must put on by the first resurrection or a sudden change, the great blessing of immortality, or the second death will be our portion.

What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his own life eternal? R. V. The redemption or salvation of the body is the true source of everlasting life. Paul says, Rom. viii. 23, "We groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption, to-wit, the redemption of our body, for we are saved by hope." The redemption of the body is the true salvation, and it cannot be therefore gained through this life, but, for a helmet we may wear "the hope of salvation." 1 Thess. v. 8.

Jesus says, when ye see these things, lift up your heads for your redemption is nigh. "And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory." Luke xxi. 27. It is added, "when these things (signs) begin to come to pass, know that the Kingdom of God is nigh at hand." What a cluster of the grandest events are just before us! The second glorious coming of the Son of Man in a cloud, the resurrection of "the blessed and holy." Their being fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body.—The finding of immortality and eternal life by all living and dead—who have sought for it by a patient continuance in well-doing! Eternal redemption from death, which will be so great a salvation, and an inheritance of an everlasting kingdom "under the whole heaven." Dan. vii. 27. "I saw in the night visions, the Prophet Daniel declared. One like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of Days, and they brought him near before him, and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages, should serve him." He is told "these great beasts which are four are four kingdoms which shall arise out of the earth." But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess it forever, even forever and ever." Dan. xiii. 7. In fulfillment of this prediction, the four universal kingdoms, Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome have arisen one after the other as literal kingdoms. Will they not take a literal fifth kingdom? What does the Apostle John say? "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xi. 15. Then the literal kingdoms of this world will be the Lord's literal, [universal] kingdom. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection, for they escape the second death and reign with Christ 1000 years before the rest of the dead live again. Rev. xx. Shall we not seek the glory, and honor, and immortality of that kingdom by complying with the conditions of the promised immortality and first resurrection, and the reign with Christ over the nations, when "the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever." Luke i. 32. That reign of Christ and the saints will be supremely glorious. "Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his Ancients gloriously." Isa. xxiv. 23.

E. HOYT, Sr.

Report of Labor.

It has been a long time since I gave the brethren a report of my labors; but I have not been idle. I spent the winter months working as evangelist for the N. W. conference, and the summer keeping up regular appointments in my field of labor.

Last Sunday we held a grove meeting with basket dinner at Lake Shore. It is one of the most beautiful places for meeting that I have ever seen. The seats are arranged on the side hill facing Lake Vancouver, and the speaker's platform. A beautiful grove of young fir trees makes a good shade; while a level plat lies on the hill just above where there are two long tables to accommodate the congregation at dinner time. This ground has been permanently prepared and seated by Bro. Secrest on his farm, and is much more pleasant for meetings in hot weather than a house.

After we had given a discourse on the Name and the method of taking it upon us, and eaten an all-together dinner, we went down to the lake and five believers who were satisfied that they could not gain salvation in their own names were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. This made thirteen that have received baptism during the summer months at my regular appointments, as follows:

June 18th preached one discourse at Sherwood Oregon. Three were obedient.

July 16th gave a discourse on the relation of principle truths to fellowship. At home appointment (Scholls Ferry Or.), one obeyed.

Aug. 6th talked on baptism at Flatwood (Manor, Wash.) at 11 A. M. and immersed three; preached again at three P. M.

Aug. 13th went to my regular appointment at Sherwood examined principle truths, and their relation to baptism in one discourse. One was obedient.

Aug. 27th held the meeting referred to above at Lake Shore (Vancouver Wash.) and baptized five, believing and teaching that as many as are baptized into Jesus Christ are baptized into his death, therefore (for that reason) we are buried with him by baptism into death that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father even so we also should walk in newness of life.

One may plant and another water, but it is God that giveth the increase. So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase.

Oh how much more good might be accomplished for the cause of Christ if all would meekly work in the unity of the spirit and the bonds of peace with an eye single to the glory of God, not being contentious concerning those things that have no bearing upon our salvation, but in humility of mind and poverty of spirit prefering one another and forbearing one another.

W. L. SKEELS.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

[illegible]titution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
[illegible] of the C. P. Association.
[illegible] JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 4, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

A GOOD deal is said in religious literature about morality, but it is often so said that one gets the impression that the writers forget that the morality of an action is determined by the motive that prompts it. •

WE see by an exchange that Mr. Maxim, an English inventor, has nearly completed a flying machine with large, rigid supporting surfaces stretching over 100 feet from tip to tip of the so-called wings, and is propelled by twin propellers like those of ocean steamers. •

IN answer to the question as to whether drugging or restraint of the drink habit are ever curative, we would say we do not know; anyway it is rather out of our line, but we may venture to give our opinion that wherever there is a cure, it is due to organic change of the brain. We make no charge for this. •

GOETHE once said, "I will listen to any one's convictions, but pray keep your doubts to yourself. I have plenty of my own." We are grateful to Goethe for putting it so tersely: it would be well if people generally treated doubters of the chronic order in this way. Not a few seem to pride themselves on their doubting proclivities. •

WE read the other day of a Polish artist residing in Rome who had an exceedingly intelligent terrier dog which he left with a friend while on a journey. Day and night the dog went to the station exactly at train time, and never missed one, showing that he had the time sense as well as affection and memory. Meanwhile he became so depressed that he would not eat, and would have died had not his owner been notified of his condition and returned to save his life. •

Boys and girls should be very careful about forming habits. The power of habits firmly fixed is tremendous. Thousands of lives are sacrificed to habits almost imperceptibly formed, but which gradually gains complete control of its victims. We once read of a young lady who declared it to have been the hardest struggle of her life to break off the habit of biting her nails. She succeeded at last by beginning with one finger and cultivating one nail till it had grown to a proper length, and then treating another and another in the same way until all except one were in perfect shape; and after days of entire abstinence she would occasionally find herself viciously gnawing away at the poor little finger. And we have been acquainted with a person long in the habit of using foul language who would unconsciously give vent to his feelings in an unbecoming way, and one too, we are persuaded, that he regretted. Duplicity, untruth and many other like traits will ruin ones prospects in this life and forever deprive one of future life if allowed to become deeply rooted. Boys and girls, look well to yourselves and see that you form and acquire the habit of right thinking, feeling and doing. •

Living Waters—Water of Life.

"Will Bro. Joblin please tell us through THE RESTITUTION what he understands by the waters that issue from under the threshold of the future temple. Are they literal or figurative? And have they any connection with the living waters of Zechariah xiv. 8, and Rev. xxii. 1?" ENQUIRER.

We are glad the question is put in that way, because we can say what we understand about it without appearing dogmatic. And any one else is invited to do the same in a well considered article.

First, then we remark, Ezekiel, Joel and Zechariah speak so circumstantially of the living waters, giving the exact locality of the fountain that we are compelled to believe it to be literal. It was at the south side of the altar, and from under it they came, and made their way under the east gate of the temple, and from thence on eastward. Four measurements were made in 4000 cubits, where they had become impassable. After a certain distance these waters flow in two channels, one toward the Dead Sea, and, discharging into it, healed it, so that fish live there as if there had been nothing the matter with it. The other stream finds its way to the Mediterranean Sea. We do not see how these geographical particulars can be set aside, as they must be, if it be read figuratively.

Literally read, it makes Jerusalem a literal sea port on rivers as literal as the Ohio or Mississippi. And happily Zechariah helps us to understand how this is to obtain. In chap. xiv. 4, we are informed that the Mount of Olives is to be rent in two, and a great valley formed; and, inasmuch as it presently says living waters shall go out from Jerusalem, we think it a lawful inference that these flowing waters find an outlet here, into the Jordan and on to the Dead Sea. Returning to v. 5, we find that the valley of the mountains reaches unto Azal which is on the shore of the Mediterranean sea and doubtless forms the channel of other stream. We cannot but believe these waters to be literal: and the purpose of Jehovah to be served by these physical changes would seem to be to make Jerusalem accessible by water, because, between the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea there is a depression of more than 1300 feet and the waters of the sea would fill the newly-formed very great valley. But important as will be these physical changes to the city of the Great King, we apprehended that these literal things were figurative of, or symbolical of something more. The waters came from a "holy place inaccessible to flesh and blood, and had healing properties. The waters of the Ohio or Mississippi or the Danube would not heal the Dead Sea any more than the Jordan's had been able to. We, therefore, think that what Ezekiel saw of these waters pointed on to the Revelation made to John on Patmos. Rev. xxii. 1, Where he was shown "a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and the Lamb." Ezekiel saw the Dead Sea healed and teeming with life; but John saw "the sea of dead nations, or nations who had been dead in trespasses and sins, walking in the light of the New Jerusalem which is composed of those from among men who have become Divine in nature

In a word, we understand that the pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, is His Almighty Spirit "by which he creates, regenerates, makes glorious, and subdues all things to himself." Hoping this may be helpful to Enquirer, we dismiss the subject. •

"The Boomers."

We were deeply affected on reading of the desperate earnestness of [illegible] "Boomers" to secure a few [illegible] of the public domain, some [illegible] of fatigue, and [illegible] fever, and fire. Oh, [illegible] they made for a piece of land to raise their bread upon for a few days, or months, or years at most; and on which they will die long before they have fixed up the homesteads to suit them.

When the Government issues an order for homesteads, what desperate efforts they make, what sufferings they endure, what energy they expend—all for 160 acres of land, for aught they know, so poor as to be a perpetual curse to them, and which they are not certain to own for a day. But when the Great God reaches down to us with the offer of an inheritance forever, and that, too, where all the ills incident to this life will have passed away forever—no more sickness, sorrow, poverty, pain, parting, disappointment, and death will no more afflict, and when the glory of God shall inundate the earth—When all this is offered by the God of all grace and truth, they either pay no attention to it, or, else despise the riches of his favor, or, or,—or what? Do not believe him. And not to believe a person is to count him a liar.

When we publish the exceeding great and precious promises, and men do not take steps to secure them, it is because they do not believe them to be made in good faith. This is as true as it would be if Mr. Rockefeller were to offer a thousand dollars to every needy person in the city who would believe the promise of it, and only the unbelievers fail to apply for it. Every believer would be on hand in good time. Would to God we could reach some hungry soul with the Bread of Life, and God's offer of an everlasting home. If we could catch the eye of one who is saying, "Oh that I knew where I might find him," we would say to him, the Word is with thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that is the Word of Faith which we preach. If you accept the Gospel of Christ you will surely find Christ; who is sweetly saying from heaven, "he that overcometh shall inherit all things;" all things; isn't that enough? Wont that satisfy you? Do you realize that the Son of God's love died to make it possible for you to reign in life by the Anointed Jesus? Don't you remember reading of one who said, "I am come that they might have life?" It was Jesus. Don't you remember one sadly saying, "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life?" It was Jesus. Don't you remember one weeping over Jerusalem, and sorrowfully saying how gladly he would have gathered them as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wing, but they would not, and now their house is left unto them desolate? It was Jesus. And don't you remember some one saying, "Come unto me all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest, take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls?" Well, it was the Blessed Jesus. He has been pleading ever since, is pleading now. The rest he offers now, would prevent this morbid craving for land and houses and cattle and ten thousand other things that would gratify the flesh; and besides that, there is the Great Sabbath-keeping ahead that will far more than make amends for any privations it will cost in this life. Yes; Jesus was awfully in earnest about such as you when he plaintively said, "ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." All other blessings are utterly valueless without life. but we find it just as Jesus did—they will not take the Water of Life when it is offered without money and without price. A strong delusion has taken possession of them, they either think themselves whole, or, feeling the need of a physician, almost invariably apply to those who have never graduated in the School of Christ,—have no diploma bearing his signature. This is the result of ignorance of what they themselves are, and what God's purpose in relation to them is. Not knowing where they came from or where they are going to, think themselves wise while perishing for lack of knowledge; and while fancying themselves rich, are in fact spiritually starving to death.

This reminds us of an incident that occurred on the Southern Atlantic Ocean. The Captain of a vessel sighted a signal of distress flying in the distance, and noble-hearted seaman that he was, bore down toward the distressed ship, and putting the speaking trumpet to his mouth, hailed her with intense interest, to know what was the matter. The answer that floated back to him was, "We are dying for water." On hearing this the Captain shouted back, "Dip it up then! There's lots of it all around you; you are not in salt water, but in the mouth of the Amazon River—dip it up." Ah, these were words of life. They were perishing for lack of water while unconsciously sailing on the world's mightiest river. Is not this parallel to the case in hand? Thousands around us are famishing for want of the Water of Life, while Jesus not only stands ready to dispense it, but is crying, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink."

The Amazon is a mighty river sure enough 150 miles wide at its mouth, and so vast is the volume of water discharged into the ocean, that it either repels or overlays the ocean for some 50 geographical miles, and hence does not mix with the salt water for that distance. It is said to drain 2,330,000 square miles of territory, and affords with its tributaries no less than 50,000 miles of inland navigation. But this is not the river we want our readers to think about after they have laid the paper aside;—no;

"There is a river, whose the waters flow,
O'er earth's boundless surface, waste for all woes;
Its streams are all healing, there's life in each wave;
Oh, try it and prove it, 'tis mighty to save."

This river is Jesus, the once crucified, but now glorified Son of God and Son of Man. To see his face and be made like him it is necessary to believe and obey him before he comes. By all the love of God and of Christ we beg our readers not to forget that. Those who care really only go to the Supper of the Lamb. He is coming soon. "Be ye also ready."

We seem to have drifted clear away from the Boomers, but as we cannot think of a better suitable caption we will let it stand, and try to close this article by asking the believers if they are Boomers? Are they spreading the sails of the Gospel ships to the utmost stretch? Are they fighting the battle against the apostasy, or resting on their oars? Are they dealing in clear-cut truth or a compound of truth and error? Are they dazzled by the gilded picture of time and sense, or keeping their eye on the mark of the prize? The Master calls upon you to watch; are you watching? You will all want to die the death of the righteous, but this involves living the life of the righteous. A devout soul sinking into the arms of death was asked by his affectionate and almost heart broken wife if he knew her. No; he was too far gone for that, but being asked if he knew Jesus, he said, oh, yes! I have known him a long time; he is my best friend. He is here with me now." If it is Jesus when we go to sleep, and Jesus when we wake, Jesus in the intervals of business, Jesus when we are sad and Jesus when we are glad, Jesus when we are sick, Jesus when we are well, Jesus when we are rich, Jesus when we are poor, Jesus when we are young, it will be Jesus when we are old. Jesus, Jesus when we descend into the dark valley, and blessed be his holy name it will be Jesus when the trumpet sounds, when the graves are opened, when the new name is stamped upon us, when the crowns are distributed, and when the Song of Victory is sung, it will be him who has washed us in his own blood and made us kings and priests to God. Amen and amen. •

Selected.

Prayer.

Prayer is a part of acceptable service to God, and prayerfulness a part of character which is estimable in his sight. It is important to keep this in mind, because in our search for "sound doctrine," we are apt to allow intellectual activity to triumph over the practical use of the truth we dig out. There is a danger of the truth failing to beget the actual relationship to God which finds its nature and strengthening exercise in the act of prayer. This danger is greater because of the prevalence of foolish devotion among the professed Christians of the times, who seem to think, like the Pharisees of old, that they shall be heard for their much speaking, and for the vehemence and extravagances of their address. The extreme to which popular ignorance has gone in this matter, (and in this we include the college bred, equally ignorant leaders of this ignorance, of all sects and denominations,) has driven some minds to the opposite and not less fatal extreme of abandoning prayer altogether. This is a lamentable result which we would fain try to mend. Prayer is the necessary act of a mind in harmony with the Father. It is a duty expected, an act which affords pleasure to God, and which reacts profitably on the mind qualified by enlightenment to engage in it.

It may not be a waste of time to cite a few Scriptural evidences on the subject. The first we have to note is the prayerless characteristic of those who are abhorred in the sight of God. Their state of mind is represented in the following question put into their mouths: What is the Almighty that we should serve him; and what profit should we have, if we pray unto him? Job xxi. 15. It may suit the time of sunshine to indulge in such wantonness against God; but when God enters into judgment—when the time of his patience is past, when after long holding his peace, he breaks forth to cry and devour at once. Isa. xl., they will in frantic terror, feel the folly of their course, and seek too late to redeem the hours of mercy and tranquility accorded to them in these times of the Gentiles. "Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom." "Fools hate knowledge," Prov. xv. 21. With brazen confidence, they sow their wild oats to reap a bitter harvest. The mocking words will yet ring in their ears, Prov. i. 24-25.

The righteous present a contrast to the ungodly in this matter. Daniel, a man greatly beloved, bent his knees three times a day in supplication before God, Dan. vi. 10, and that there is profit in the act, is proved by the Spirit's designation of God in Psa. lxv. 2. "The hearer of prayer." James testifies that the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man avails much: which is in accordance with Christ's statement, that whatsoever is asked in his name in faith, agreeable to God's will, will be granted. It is stated in Prov. xv. 8, that the prayer of the upright is the delight of Jehovah, and in verse 29, that He hears the prayer of such. The temple of Mosaic times was called "the house of prayer," and the sense in which this is affirmed is evident from 2 Chron. vii. 15, Mine eyes shall be open, and mine ears attend unto the prayer that is made in this place.

David, the man after God's own heart, says, "I give myself unto prayer," Psa. cix. 4. Coming to the record of Christ's life, we find that he frequently went apart for the same purpose. It is said in more than one place, "He continued all night in prayer to God," Luke vi. 12. The disciples asked that they might be taught to pray, and Jesus gave them a model to guide them in their invocations of the Deity. He also told them, that when they prayed, they were not to stand out ostentatiously before men like the religious pretenders of their time, but were to retire to the privacy of their closets. God delights to be addressed by those who intelligently fear him and hope in his mercy and will in due time openly manifest the secret relationship they cultivate in secret prayer.

Example and precept abundantly show the duty and efficacy of the act. The company of the disciples, in all about 120 persons—"continued with one accord in prayer," Acts i. 14. and of the believers who were added to the Lord it is said "they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine, in the fellowship, and in breaking of bread and in prayers, Acts ii. 42. Paul exhorted the Thessalonians (1 Epistle v. 17) to "pray without ceasing" the practical meaning of which is exemplified in the case of Cornelius the Centurion, of whom it is said "He prayed unto God alway." Acts x. 2,—not that every moment of his life was devoted to prayer; for as a military commander, a great part of his thoughts would be occupied with military duties, but as a matter of daily habit, he waited upon God in private prayer, which as it afterward transpired, found favor in heaven, and in conjunction with his consistent demeanor, led to an angelic visit to direct him into the way of life. He was one of those who acted on the lesson taught by Jesus (Luke xviii. 1) "that men ought always to pray and not to faint." The apostolic injunction is "In every thing give thanks and by prayer and supplication, make your requests known unto God, Phil. iv. 6. Paul, in almost every epistle, alludes to the observance of this duty on his part, and bespeaks the prayers of those to whom he wrote on his own behalf.

There need be no want of subject matter for prayer. The incomprehensible greatness of God fully realized will inspire sentiments that will freely find utterance from the mouth that leads from an abundant heart. The common mercies of life in a state of existence, when thousands are in a state of deprivation, will move the chastened mind to gratitude towards the Mighty being who has all the exigencies of life under his control, and who was intimated a special guardianship in such matters in relation to those who fear his name. The human uncertainties with which we are surrounded, will prompt a petition for divine guidance in the walks of life. The extraordinary manifestation of God's favor in providing a sin-covering in Christ, and inviting us through him to friendship and life everlasting, will incite the profoundest thanksgiving wherever the unsearchable riches of Christ are heartily appreciated; and the sense of present weakness and frequent short coming, will beget prayer in every mind thirsting after righteousness, while the sad spectacle and painful experience of a world lying in wickedness, opposed to the true source of happiness, and involved in its endless attendant train of miseries, will move the heart to pray for the consummation of God's purpose to bring all things into harmony with himself, by the manifestation of his judgment, and the establishment of his kingdom.

Steam Engines in the Holy Land.

A network of railways will soon be extended through Palestine, from Egypt to Damascus, the trains passing en route the tomb of Rachel and the tower of Ramleh, flying through Joppa and along the coast to Jerusalem, where there is a neat little station. Joppa you will remember as an ancient seaport of Palestine, and was at one time the harbor of Judea, when it was fortified by Simon. Josephus speaks of it as the haunt of pirates, and on this account it was destroyed in the Jewish war. It would now be an insignificant place were it not for its commanding sea front, which gives it advantage over any seaport east of Alexandria.

In the immediate vicinity stands the pride of Joppa—the new railroad depot which was formerly opened with imposing ceremonies by the Governor of Jerusalem, Ibrahim Hakki Pasha. A grand banquet followed the opening, and the Sultan's special envoy, who had been sent in advance to see that the terms of concession were strictly observed, was a leading guest. The engineers of the new road who made the surveys and directed the building operations are nearly all Europeans. Not in many generations has Joppa seen such a gala day as that upon which the new railroad was officially opened for passenger traffic. It was interesting to observe how the various nationalities regarded the enterprise. The Turkish officials, accustomed to Western ideas, regarded it is a source of prospective revenues.

The townsmen, Syrians, Moslems, and others, went in mobs to the depot to inspect the puffing engine and its tender, and remarked in amazement and superstition how it could move of its own accord, drawing the heavy cars behind it. As it moved away, with a shrill shriek of the whistle, the women and children put their hands over their ears and screamed, while the Arabs scampered away badly frightened.

From Joppa to Jerusalem the distance is about thirty-six miles by cars, and the trip requires about three and one-half hours. Through a beautiful open country the road enters the famous plain of Sharon. In the distance the little village of Beth-Dragon is barely visible, and is not of sufficient importance to warrant a depot. The plain surrounding Ramleh is still infested by robbers, but the advent of the railroad will tend to lessen these desperadoes. The next station of interest is at Lydda, now called Ludd, where the Apostle Peter and friends once lived. It is reached through dense orange groves. The ruins of the old church erected in honor of St. George are plainly discernable, as are also the artistic heights of Ajalon and the distant Judean Mountains. A short distance beyond a group of Bedouin horsemen stand awaiting the arrival of the train, but their statuesque pose is interrupted by an ear-splitting whistle, which so terrorizes them that they put out in all directions, the riders clinging with difficulty to their saddles. We pass solitary ruins; villages and hamlets miserable in appearance, like most of the places in Palestine; past Samson's old fighting ground and battle-fields, now nearly forgotten; then the hills of Judea loom up ahead, and then the engine stops at the gate of Jerusalem. The trains run from Joppa to Jerusalem twice a day, and in no place in the world can there be more history crowded into three hours of travel.

There is now a great railway system in the course of construction which will girdle the Holy Land from one end to the other. A French company has secured a concession for a line from Beyrout to Damascus, and has already commenced work on a narrow-gauge road. An English syndicate is now building a railway from Haifa to Damascus, which will be about 140 miles long, starting from Haifa, finding its way along the northern base of the range of Carmel to the plains of Esdraelon, through the valley east of Nazareth. Leaving Mount Tabor, it will cross the River Jordan on a trestle and then the point known as Majameh, where the little Jordon joins the great river. At this point the road will border on the southern shore of Galilea, and almost without a curve along the famous wheat region, biblically known as the plains of Bashan; thence to the southern gate of Damascus. This road will undoubtedly prove of the greatest interest to Syria in an agricultural and commercial way, finding a means for placing upon the Eastern market the rich products in which that section abounds. Chicago Tribune, Oct. 1, 1893.

Tracts! Tracts! Scatter Tracts!

Friends! let me urge you all to supply yourselves with an assortment of tracts based on, and quoting the Scriptures for proofs.

Look over THE RESTITUTION list and select a supply of the best.

Carry them about with you and hand them, with a kind word, to those you meet, with an offer of more. If you have the Truth, let others share it.

Leave it not in the power of any to say to you in the day of judgment, "You had the Truth; you knew it, and gave me no opportunity of knowing it."

The Truth is a trust, a talent, for which we must tender an account.

Tracts often preach while we sleep.

Lately persons have been known to sit up half the night searching the Scriptures to see if certain things they had been taught by traditionists were true, and whether statements made in certain tracts were to be found in the Scriptures quoted.—Scatter Tracts!

SEED SOWER.

"Fret not thyself because of evil doers."

We can make ourselves and others very unhappy by making too much importance of the wicked doings and designs of evil men.

What is the best course to pursue? Dwell especially on the shortness of their time, and the purpose and providence of God in their destruction. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither like the green herb.

Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him. Fret not thyself in any way to do evil.

When you feel like fretting read the 37th Psalm and it will quiet your spirit.

CHAS. BOARDMAN.

Luther used to teach his children to read the Bible in the following way: First to read through one book carefully, then to study chapter by chapter, and then verse by verse, and then word by word; for he said: "It is like a person shaking a fruit tree; first shaking the tree and gathering up the fruit which falls to the ground, then shaking each branch, and afterward each twig of the branch, and last of all looking carefully under each leaf to see that no fruit remains. In this way, and in no other, shall we also find the hidden treasures that are in the Bible.

Kind words and actions never die. They are treasured up in the minds of those to whom they are addressed and for whose special benefit they are done as cherised legacies. They may serve them in time of need, and, better than all; may lead them to the blessed fountain of all good. Sometimes they may appease our wrath, allay undue and unnecessary excitement, and bring us into close and tender relationship.

Poetry.

Recompense.

"Unto him who hath shall be given,"
Said the Savior in those of old, -
"[illegible] him who hath shall be given
[illegible] all within God's great fold.
[illegible] where his mercy dwelleth
[illegible] within the world.

[illegible] who hath not shall be [illegible]
Said the [illegible] great Teacher, [illegible]
[illegible] what he hath [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] safely holds it
[illegible] be taken from him who [illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Original.

Easily Satisfied

In Gospel Messenger of June 15th, 1893, J. B. Garver, who holds that the dead are unconscious, advises the editor of said paper to change the heading of his obituary notices to make it agree with his teaching that the dead are conscious, as set forth in a previous number of the paper. The heading is "Fallen Asleep." The editor says: "It is not necessary to write a long explanation of a plain question like this." The parable of the rich man and Lazarus, and Moses appearing and conversing in the scene of the transfiguration is the proof adduced to settle the question and put an end to the controversy, and closes by saying, "The proof is so clear that a child may understand it." The question is settled on the assumption that spirits of dead men are real personalities capable of suffering, enjoying, acting and conversing. Thus we have an account of four persons who are known to have been conscious in death. An inquisitive child would want to know how these persons could be asleep and wide awake and conscious at the same time; and how the editor of the Messenger knows that the spirits of these dead men were present in these scenes and did and said what he affirms of them, when the inspired record does not once mention spirit in connection with these cases; and the Bible student who thinks and is gifted with a critical turn of mind could and would raise many weighty objections to a theory that settles questions of this kind by assumption of false premises and coolly ignoring all that God's Word teaches concerning man in the state of death. The editor may be satisfied with this easy way of disposing of this troublesome question of life and death that is pressing itself upon the attention of the thinkers of these last days, but not so with the honest inquirer after truth. He is not to be silenced by an appeal to a parable in proof of a proposition no where in all the Bible affirmed in plain unfigurative language. Inference is not to be set against, and overrule positive statements. The editor of the Messenger, to uphold Satan's doctrine "Thou shalt not surely die." sets himself squarely against plain statements. He says, "the dead are conscious," that they know, and converse with one another. God's Word affirms that: "The dead know not anything." Eccl. ix. 5.

The contrast is between the living and the dead. The former know one thing in particular "that they shall die," and many things in general, they can swear and fear an oath and offer sacrifice, have evil and madness in their hearts or minds; then where do they go and what of their condition? After that they go to the dead says Solomon (3 v.) and there they know not one thing—"not any thing." How hopeless their condition. "For to him that is joined to the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion." v. 4. The editor thinks that the dead lion is better than the living dog, but not so thought the wise man. Who or what is the personality, the individual self concerning which in both life and death Solomon affirms these things in broad contrast. Touching the living dog and dead lion, all are agreed except Rev. Mr. Puck who thinks there is a spirit lion that lives right on in spite of what appears to be death; so the real lion does not die and the dog is placed by him on the same footing, and Solomon's contrast of living dog and dead lion is spoiled, for by Mr. P's theory both are alive—one here and one there. The editor of the Messenger argues from the supposition that the spirit of man separate from the body is the personality, the "thou" addressed by the hope of reward or the fear of punishment. The 10 v. of this same chapter spoils this theory. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might: for there is no work nor device nor knowledge nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest." This verse states what is to be the common sentiment of all inspired men that death and the grave await the human race. The responsible and intelligent person, the "thou" goes to the dead, not to grace. No where does the Word of God say, nor does it teach by implication that man goes to heaven. Job says, "I know that thou wilt bring me to death and to the house appointed for all living." Job xxx. 23. "If I wait the grave is mine house." Job xvii. 13. And this place described as the abode of worms and corruption, this bed of darkness is the place where the afflicted patriarch expected to wait until his change should come, Job xiv. 14.

How strangely all this language of inspiration contrast with the language of men. Mr. Brumbaugh affirms sleep of the spirit and yet affirms that it is wide awake and perfectly conscious. The Bible no where predicts sleep of the spirit. If the spirit at death falls asleep, and this sleep bears any analogy to natural sleep there must be unconsciousness partial or complete. In neither one case nor the other could intelligent conversation be carried on. The Bible predicts sleep of the person, the corporeal man. Job says: "Now I shall sleep in the dust." Job vii. 21. And Daniel: "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." Dan. xii. 2. Paul speaks of believers as having fallen asleep in Christ, and if there is no future resurrection these he says "are perished:" their sleep would be endless. In Thess. iv. 14, 15, the righteous are represented when dead as asleep in Jesus; both in this place and in the 15th of 1st Cor.—the word sleep is used interchangeably with the words "die" and "dead." "The dead in Christ shall rise first." I Thess. iv. 16. "Them which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Christ is called the first fruit of them that slept. The sleep of Christ was three days and three nights. The term sleep in these Scriptures is used in its typical sense and conveys no other meaning than the terms death or die.

Daniel locates the place of the sleepers, in the dust of the earth and Paul speaks of their relationship to Christ, the risen head and first fruit. No where does the word sleep, as applied to the dead convey the idea of consciousness and life. This word as a figure of speech can not be used to settle the meaning of the word death. The literal determines the meaning of the figure when both are applied to the same thing.

JOHN L. WINEZ.

Selected.

Facts Not Generally Known.

The following facts are only a few, amongst many, which are not known by a majority of the professing Christians, and they are here tabulated in the hope that some of those who at present are in ignorance of these truths, may be led to search more deeply into the Bible, and by so doing, become wise unto their salvation through faith in Christ Jesus.

It is not generally known—

That Jesus advised men to SEARCH the Scriptures, and not rest contented with the vain traditions of their forefathers. John v. 39.

That the knowledge of God can only be obtained by SEEKING and SEARCHING for it in the book which God has caused to be written, and not by listening to sermons week by week. Prov. ii. 3-6.

That the knowledge of God is a highly important matter, seeing that it results in ETERNAL LIFE, and is not, as some say, "a great mystery." John xvii. 3.

That God will reward those who DILIGENTLY seek him, and not those who only put on religion with their Sunday clothes. Heb. xi. 6.

That it is the duty of all to search the Scriptures DAILY, to see whether their belief corresponds with its teaching, and not to believe anything because a "parson" says it. Acts xvii. 11.

That the truth of a doctrine is to be proved by a reference to the LAW AND THE TESTIMONY, and not by the color of a man's coat, or the depth of his collar. Isa. viii. 20.

That any man preaching any other than THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD is accursed, and is not a servant of God in spite of all his profession. Gal. i. 8, 9.

That the children of God are to call God their Father, and not men, even if they are Bishops or Archbishops. Matt. xxiii. 9.

That the name of God is REVERENT, but not the names of men, even if they have had a Bishop's finger on their head. Psa. cxi. 9.

That the APOSTLES were unlearned and ignorant men, as regards this world's wisdom, and did not have TWO or more letters of the alphabet placed after their names. Acts iv. 13.

That God hears the prayers of those who do his will, and not those who week after week continue to be "miserable sinners." John ix. 31.

That it is possible to have a RELIGIOUS ZEAL and not have any knowledge of God or of his purpose. Rom. x. 2.

That THE BIBLE is able to make men wise unto salvation, but not the book of "Common Prayer." 2 Tim. iii. 15.

That it is GOD who gives wisdom and understanding of his Word, and not the Universities of Great Britain. Prov. ii. 6.

The poor of this world who are rich in faith are the heirs of God's Kingdom, and not the world's nobility. Jas. ii. 5.

That the way which is called Broad, and which is the fashion of this world's religion, leads to destruction, and not to salvation. Matt. vii. 13.

That the children of God, and brethren of Christ are they who do God's will, and not those who had a few drops of water sprinkled upon their face by a parson. Matt. xii. 50.

That those who come to God must believe he exists, and not be unconscious babes who are incapable of believing anything. Heb. xi. 6.

That the majority of mankind are trusting in fables, and are not believing the Truth. 2 Tim. iv. 4.

That God's Word is Truth, and not the speculations, philosophies, and traditions of men. John xvii. 17.

That man's thoughts, and man's ways are evil, and are not the Lord's. Isa. lv. 8.

That the way which seems right in the eyes of man is not God's way, but ends in death. Prov. vi. 25.

That the true Church of God is everywhere spoken against, and is not to be found amongst the sects of so-called "orthodox Christians." Acts xxviii. 22.

That all who would serve God acceptably are to come out from the apostate churches, and not to remain in association with them. Rev. xviii. 4.

That the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and not with those who fear their "spiritual advisers" and pastors. Psa. xxv. 14.

That those things which God has revealed in his Book belong to us, and are not profound mysteries which it is impossible to understand. Deut. xxix. 29.

That the Bible reveals to man One God the Father, and not a Trinity—three persons in one God. 1 Cor. viii. 6; Deut. vi. 4.

That besides the One God there is no other, and not two more Gods as "orthodoxy" affirms. Isa. xlv. 5.

That the One God has no equal, and is not as Trinitarians teach, equalled by two other Gods. Isa. xlvi. 9.

That the One God is One Person, and not three persons. Gal. iii. 20.

That Jesus declared that God was One Lord, and not three lords. Mark xii. 29.

That Paul believed in One God, and was not a Trinitarian. Eph. iv. 6.

That the Apostle James declared that those who believed in One God did well, (not those who believed in three Gods.) Jas. ii. 19.

That Jesus declared his Father to be the only true God, and not that there were two other true Gods. John xvii. 3.

That God calls himself the Holy One, and not the Holy Trinity. Isa. xl. 25.

That Jesus Christ was a man, and not the second person of a Trinity. 1 Tim. ii. 5.

That Jesus was the Son of God, and not God the Son. Luke i. 35.

That the virgin Mary was the mother of Jesus, but not the mother of God. Luke i. 31.

That God was the Father of Jesus, and not Joseph the husband of Mary. Matt. i. 18.

That Jesus was the only begotten Son of God, and not the eternal Son. John iii. 16.

That Jesus declared his Father to be greater than he, and did not claim equality with God. John xiv. 28.

(To be Continued.)

Science against World Burning.

The advocates of the world burning theory have always run for support to the scientific world. They have pointed triumphantly to heaving earthquakes, and volcanic eruptions, as affording strong proof of the theory of a future explosion and burning up of the whole earth. The scientific world, however, are seriously in doubt as to the truth of the very foundations of their time-honored theories, and are changing their base of calculations. An overthrow of the whole system, as heretofore advocated, is at least threatened, as appears from the following article:

The geologists are in trouble. They cannot settle the foundation principles of their favorite science. After a long and hard struggle between the aqueous and the igneous theories of the earth's formation, it was generally supposed that the igneous had won the day, at least so far as relates to the order of their worship. If anything was supposed to be settled in geology, it was that the center has been, or is, in a molten state, and that the granite rocks are unstratified, and give evidence of being formed under great pressure and intense heat. Earthquakes and volcanoes were referred to as proofs of this great internal heat, and the protrusion of trap rock as a proof of the molten state. On this granite as a solid foundation, the stratified rocks were supposed to rest, though of necessity the order is generally disturbed by the long action of subterranean forces.

But the foundation seems at last falling through. The aqueous theory has won new triumph, and is driving its rival from the field. Granite is found to be not of igneous but aqueous formation. Some years ago, a Mr. Even Hopkins, of England, broached a new theory, and attempted to prove on scientific principles, that granite was formed not horizontally, but vertically, and not by heat and pressure, but by solution and magnetism. His speculations at first attracted little attention, and excited indeed much derision, but they have gradually attained the assent of many masters in the science.

Prof. Thompson, by rigid mathematical reasoning from well-known physical laws, also proved that the existence of a liquid ocean in the interior of the earth was simply impossible. He declared it to be a physical necessity that "the interior must be even more rigid than the superficial parts."

Leading geologists are frankly surrendering the old theory, and Prof. Ansted in a paper read before the British Association in 1867, says: "Geologists, until recently, have spoken of granite as a primitive rock, as the nucleus of the earth, and as having been from time to time erupted, playing an important part in the disturbances by which the general framework of the earth is supposed to have been constructed. The observations of Daubree and Sorby show that all true granite has been elaborated with water, under great pressure, at a temperature below melting heat; that it has neither been ejected nor has it formed a framework. There are granites of all ages and of many kinds. Numerous observations show that granite alternates with and passes into stratified rocks, and must itself in such cases be stratified rock, and that its destruction does not necessarily involve the destruction and obliteration of all the stratified rocks with which it is associated. This view of the nature of granite will greatly affect the theories of geology."

This is no longer a matter of theory, but of demonstration. Granite cannot have an igneous origin. Chemists testify that the laws of chemical action disprove it. The presence of black lead in granite and gneiss is inconsistent with melting heat, for black lead is pure carbon, and would have been reduced to ashes by heat; and in turn would have also reduced the mica and hornblende, as carbon always operates on silicates in blast furnaces. The chemists also testify that if the granite were once in a melted state, the magnetic iron-ore in them would have united with the silicates, forming a vitreous instead of a crystaline rock. Attempts have been made to resolve granite by heat, into what was regarded as its original state, but they failed utterly. It would not melt; its crystals gradually decomposed, or turned into black glass, confirming the opinions of the chemical critics.

The laws of gravity also bear witness against the igneous origin as the "Annual of Scientific Discovery" says: "If granite were once in a molten condition, then, as it cooled in the first place, quartz must have crystalized out, and would have sunk down through the still molten mass, while feldspar and mica must have crystalized at a much later stage of cooling, as the necessary consequence of their different degrees of fusibility."

As a last and conclusive stage of proof that granite is of aqueous and not of igneous origin, chemists have succeeded in producing feldspar, the base of granite, from solutions of kaolin and alkaline silicates in heated water, and as it is generally conceded that mica and quartz, the other principal ingredients, are aqueous deposits, the demonstration may be regarded as complete.

The science of geology, therefore, will need a thorough reconstruction. If the igneous origin of granite is given up, the idea of a molten mass at the earth's center will also be abandoned. If this intense central heat be exploded, the argument for a gradual cooling of the earth from fire-mist will limp badly, and the Laplace theory of physical development will lose all probability. And, still further, if the granites are not the most ancient formations, but are often of modern dates, intermingled with rock of the secondary or even tertiary period, it may be necessary to make long deductions from geological time-tables.

The largest Cruisers in the World.

The designs of the two new British cruisers Powerful and Terrible have been given out in brief by the British Admiralty. These two ships are designed to be the largest cruisers in the world, and the intentions of the British authorities concerning them have been watched closely by naval experts ever since the first announcement was made of their prospective building.

The principal dimensions of the Powerful and the Terrible are: Length, 500 feet; beam, 75 feet; mean draft, with keel, 27 feet; displacement, about 14,000 tons. The continuous sea-steaming speed is to be twenty knots an hour. On an eight hours' natural draft contractors' trial the speed will be about twenty-two knots an hour.

The hulls of the two ships will be steel, wood sheathed and coppered. It is proposed that the ships shall be able to take the sea and keep it for long periods, and in order that neither shall suffer in speed for want of coal, the designs call for a coal supply of 3,000 tons for each ship. On the 14,000 tons displacement and 27 feet draft called for in the designs a coal supply of only 1,500 tons a ship is considered. The bunkers, however, will hold 3,000 tons of coal.

The battery of each ship will consist of two 9.2 inch breech-loading rifles mounted, one in the bow and one in the stern, as chasers, twelve 6-inch rapid fire guns in broadside, eighteen 12-pounder rapid-fire guns, and a number of small machine guns. The 6-inch rapid-fire broadside guns will be in such a position as to permit four guns to be fired right ahead and four right astern.

Armor protection will be provided for all the 9.2 inch and 6-inch guns. The 12-pounder guns on the upper deck will be furnished with strong shields revolving with the guns. The torpedo armament will consist of four submerged torpedo discharge tubes placed in two separate compartments. The engines, boilers, magazines, and other vital portions of the ships will be placed below a strong curved steel deck, having a thickness of four inches for a large proportion of the length, with a slight reduction of thickness toward the extremities. This deck will be associated with minutely subdivided coal bunkers extending up to the height of the main deck. This latter feature is identical with that in all the late first-class cruiser designs for the British navy.

Careful attention has been paid in the designs to the transport of the ammunition from the magazines to the gun-fighting positions. The armored conning tower is on the after-end of the topgallant forecastle. A great height of free-board has been provided in the new ships in association with a long poop and forecastle. This feature will, it is calculated, admit not only of maintaining high speed in a seaway, but permit of fighting the bow and stern guns in heavy weather.

It is not known how much horse power has been allowed to the new ships, as the designs have not yet been fully completed. It is announced, though, that twin screws, and not triple screws, will be used. The British Admiralty deem the experience had with the cruisers Blake and Blenheim, as well as in the large twin-screw steamers of the mercantile marine, establishes the efficiency of such propellers within the limits of power and draft contemplated.

The construction of the cruisers Powerful and Terrible was authorized in the navy estimates of the Admiralty approved for 1893-4. It has been decided, however, to postpone the commencement of work on the Terrible until the next financial year of the British navy. The tenders for the construction of the Powerful will be invited, it is said, as soon as the designs of the two ships are fully finished.—N. Y. Times.

The Great Doctrines of the Bible.

1. The Bible is first of all a record of historical facts, called doctrines.

2. The first and fundamental doctrine is that of a personal Creator.

3. The second great doctrine is man's creation in the likeness of his Maker, thus becoming morally responsible, and subject to God's holy law.

4. The doctrine of sin is simply a statement of fact concerning man's conduct and consequent condition.

5. The centre of the system of doctrines, is that of redemption. It begins in Eden where the promise is given that the seed of woman should bruise the serpent's head, and culminates with the cross, when Christ says, "It is finished."

6. The Old Testament teaches the same as the New.

7. All the doctrines concerning man's future state, are simply statements concerning man's personal relation to God, as determined by his acceptance or rejection of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Search-Lights.

Among the most wonderful things to be seen at the World's Fair, are the great electric search-lights that shine at night when the grounds are open.

They seek out the shadows everywhere and scatter them. They seem to turn night into day.

If one were doing anything mean or dishonest, how would he feel to have the blaze of a search-light like the gaze of a great, solemn eye, turned full upon him and his deed? Would it not be terrifying?

David says that God sets our secret sins in the light of his countenance. Oh to think of this! Yet he prays, "Search me, O God, and know my heart."

Who will pray David's prayer, with David's wish to have the sins searched out, that they may be removed? Then God will "make glad with the light of his countenance."

Announcements.

The first quarterly conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene (D. V.) at Coats' Grove, Barry county, Friday morning, October 20th, at 10:30, and meetings will continue over the following Sunday. Brethren, if you have not dealt out your money too freely for the World's Fair or some other selfish pleasure, try hard to count yourself and family as a great necessity at this coming meeting. The brethren there are very anxious to have all their beds and tables filled, and more than that do they desire that some souls shall be brought into a saving knowledge of the truth, and each of you who come will be a means to that end. Can you stay away when the Master is calling for workers to help reap in the sheaves for His coming? Come, one and all, and hear the good news of the coming King.

Those coming from the north on M. C. R. R. will reach Hastings about 7 p. m., and will be met by brethren to convey them the other five miles to Coats' Grove. Those coming from south change cars at Kalamazoo, take C. K. & S. road and reach Coats' Grove about 5 p. m.

Sisters, remember and have a report of your tithing, that we may know what we are doing. Each church will also try and send a delegate with report of their church.

M. A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

The Lord willing there will be a conference at East Plum River, known as Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, to commence October 27th and continue over Sunday. Brother and Sister Woodward and others will be with us to preach the word. Those coming by rail will come to Lanark, Ill., where there will be teams to take all that will come to the place of meeting.

Now, brethren and sisters, make an extra effort to be with us and let us have one more feast of spiritual blessing long to be remembered. J. D. RENNER, Sec'y.

We would be glad to see a large company of brethren at our N. W. conference to be held at Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, October 20th. We expect to meet for the first time in our new chapel, which is large enough, and our homes hospitable enough, to accommodate all that will come. Come, brethren, come!

W. L. SKEELS.

The quarterly conference of the Church of God will be held three-quarters of a mile south of Ashton, Sumner county, Kansas, commencing Friday night before the third Sunday in October. All lovers of truth are cordially invited to attend. Those coming by rail will be met at Ashton by some of the brethren. Ashton is on the Frisco Railroad.

E. F. RANDOLPH, Sec'y.

ROSE—RAWLINGS.—At the home of the bride's parents, Byron, Mich., Sept., 20th, 1893., Mr. John Rose and Miss Ella Rawlings.

Sister Ella was baptized by the writer several years ago, and our prayer is that her future life may continue to be as consistent as the past has been, that by her sweet example of holiness the husband of her choice may be brought into the same saving knowledge of the truth.

B. W. WOODWARD.

TANNER—COLE.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Gaines, Aug. 23, Solomon Tanner and Miss Ada Cole.

B. W. WOODWARD.

HENSEL—LITTLER.—At the home of the bride's parents, in Huntington Co., Ind., Sept. 9, 1893, Mr. John W. Hensel, and Miss Ada Littler.

May all the days of their lives be as bright as the day in which they were made one; and may peace and comfort be blessings of their cheerful and happy home.

L. E. CONNER.

"While we have time let us do all the good that is in our heart to do; not next week or next year, but now. Who knows what a day may bring forth?"

Who made the Flowers?

The [illegible] in the garden stood,
At twilight's pensive hour;
His little daughter by his side,
Was gazing on a flower.

"O, pick that little flower, do
The little prattler said;
"It is the fairest one that blooms
Within that lonely bed."

The father picked the chosen flower,
And gave it to his child;
With parting lips and sparkling eye,
She seized the flower and smiled.

"O, say, who made this pretty flower
This little violet blue?
Who gave it all its fragrant smell,
And tinged its lovely hue?"

A change came o'er the father's brow,
His eye grew strangely wild;
New thoughts within him [illegible]
By that sweet, artless child.

The truth flashed on the father's mind,
The truth in all its power;
"There is a God, my child," he said
"Who made that little flower."

"Father, who [illegible]
The beautiful blue sky?
Who [illegible]
That rises up so high?"

"'Twas God, my child, the [illegible]
He formed them by His power
He made alike the [illegible]
And every [illegible]"

Selected.

What Hope have you Friend?

If you are a believer in the teaching of the Reverends of Modern Christianity, you are no doubt, looking forward to being translated from earth to regions beyond the stars. You probably believe that you were born with a never-dying soul, and that as you believe that Jesus died for you, your never-dying soul will take its flight [directly you die] and join those who have gone before, up to heaven beyond the skies. Perhaps you also believe that the wicked immortal souls are now being tormented in hell-fire, and will remain there throughout the eternal ages. You may also have the idea that there is a supernatural personal devil, who is constantly deceiving people and dragging them down into hell-fire. You may be a very pious person and also have the idea that if you remain so, you will be sure to enter heaven beyond the bounds of time and space immediately you die. Now, if this is your hope, you no doubt will be surprised to have it shown that your hope was not the hope of Old and New Testament saints, and therefore, your hope if not in harmony with theirs, must be false. Now, Paul, in the iv. Ephesians, 4, 5, 6, states that there is only one hope; "one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God." This is very reasonable, for how can two different hopes be both right? Now, we will refer you to the inspired Scriptures of Truth. If you read Genesis xiii. 14, 15, 16, 17; xxvi. 3, 4; xxvi. 3, 4; xxviii. 13, 14; you will perceive that God promised this earth for ever to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. If you next read Hebrews xi. 8, 9, 13, 39, 40, you will find that they never have had their hope fulfilled. And if you read Galatians iii, 8, 16, 26, 27, 29, you will perceive that the fulfilment of the promises are yet future, and also that the true faith of Christians is to have the same hope as Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; that is, this earth for an everlasting possession. As to man thinking that he has a never-dying soul, there is no foundation for such an idea either in science or in Scripture. Man is by nature mortal. (Genesis ii. 7; iii. 19). Now the word soul occurs over 700 times in the Bible, and, never once does it state that man has an immortal soul. Immortality is the reward of the righteous when Christ shall come to raise the responsible dead, [John vi. 39, 40, 44]. There is not one passage in the Bible where it states that immortal souls go to heaven immediately at death; but the Resurrection of the body is necessary to a future life, 1 Cor. xv. 12-23; Thess. iv. 13-16.

The foregoing testimonies show that the righteous dead are asleep and that Jesus Christ will raise them up from the dead at the last day of this dispensation. Read the Bible and you will find that Christ is coming to this earth again, (Acts i. 11,) and that he will reign on this earth for 1000 years, (Rev. xx. 4,) and that the saints who will be made like unto the angels, shall reign on this earth with him, (Rev., xx. 6; ii. 26, 27; v. 10; Matt. v. 5.) This earth, then, will be the abode of the glorified saints who shall rule the mortal nations of the earth for 1000 years with Christ after the resurrection of the responsible dead, (2 Timothy, i. 8; Collossians, iii. 4.) When Jesus Christ was here on earth he preached the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, (Luke, iv. 40;) and he sent his disciples to preach the same gospel and no other gospel, (Luke, ix. 2, 6.) As to this kingdom, they are to come from all parts of the earth and sit down in the kingdom to be on this earth, (Luke, xiii. 29.) Israel is to be gathered back to Palestine, (Isaiah, xliii. 5, 6; Micah, iv. 1-7; Ezekiel, xxx. 13, 14,) and finally, the earth shall be full of the knowledge and glory of the Lord as waters cover the sea (Isaiah, xi. 9.) The tabernacle of God will dwell with men, (Rev., xxi. 2, 3,) and there shall be no more death, (Rev. xxi. 4.)

Dear reader, would you not like to inherit the Kingdom of God and have eternal life? The only way to get it is to believe on Christ and his Gospel and to give heed to Peter's words on the day of Pentecost: "Repent and be baptised every one of you for remission of sins, in the name of Christ," (Acts, ii. 38) and also to the words of Christ: "Except a man be born again of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." May it be yours, dear reader, to believe the Gospel and obey it and so be found faithful at the coming of Christ. W. H.

Appointments.

The annual meeting of the northwest conference of the "Church of God" will convene at Mountain Side School-house near Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, commencing Friday evening Oct. 20, 1893, and continue through the week.

A general invitation is extended to all lovers of the truth, and we sincerely hope many will avail themselves of this one more opportunity of hearing the Word of God expounded by those who have made it a study for years. Therefore we earnestly entreat all that have an interest in the cause of the Master to lay aside work and make a little sacrifice if need be and come and help us make this meeting one to be long remembered.

To the isolated brethren and sisters who may not be able to come, I would say, we would be glad to hear from them by letter. Let them give us a word of exhortation and cheer that will do us good. Such letters read in our conferences do more good than they may think. Teams will be in Portland Friday, at one o'clock, at the National Hotel, for those wishing to be conveyed to the place of meeting. If we receive no letters there will be no teams there. We understand that Brother Geo. W. Young will be with us to labor in the interest of the meeting.

Brethren, another conference year has almost passed away. Do you feel as I do today, that

"We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and an awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

Almira Brooks, Sec'y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill. as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Moriah, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. Hatch.

World's Fair Excursion.

$2.55 round trip to Chicago from Plymouth via Pennsylvania Lines, Oct. 2. For train leaving at 8:37 A. M., children under 12 years of age one-half the above rate. Tickets good returning ten days from date of sale. For details apply to J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent.

For New York and Boston, take the Nickel Plate Road. Through sleeping cars to New York via either the West Shore Road or the Lehigh Valley Route from Buffalo. Through sleeping cars to Boston via the West Shore-Fitchburg Route. Superb new dining cars. Low rates.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 20 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Vince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$108.78
"From a Friend."	1.00

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph.	$10.00
H. L. Vickery.	10.00
A. J. Chaplin.	25.00
I. M. Vickery.	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Harvest Excursions.

The Vandalia Line will sell round trip tickets to points in the North, West and South, at one fare plus $2.00, on August 22d, September 12th and October 10th, 1893, good returning twenty days from date of sale.

For rates, limits, time of trains, through connections, etc., call on or address any Vandalia Line Ticket Agent or C. M. Wheeler, Traveling Passenger Agent, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. Millspaugh, Division Passenger Agent, Decatur, Ill.; W. F. Brunner, District Passenger Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. M. Chesbrough, Assistant General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.

Harvest Excursion via Pennsylvania Lines.

Harvest Excursion tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines to authorized points in the west, northwest, southwest and south at reduced round trip rate on Sept. 12 and Oct. 10th, good returning 20 days from date of sale. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent.

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$11.25
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Circleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heye 12 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for [illegible] 1. The Gospel, 2. The Coming and Kingdom [illegible] of Manual Thoughts for Thinkers. [illegible] What is Religion. [illegible] The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. [illegible] Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted [illegible] ages of 100, 50 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS

[illegible] Life and Death. A concise statement [illegible] Theology and Bible [illegible]

[illegible]

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day [illegible] for $1.00.

[illegible]

[illegible] of Baptism [illegible] Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. [illegible] the New Heaven and New [illegible] copies for $1.00.

The [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

The Law, the Covenants [illegible] by L. C. Thomas, [illegible] the Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath, [illegible] Epitome of the latest [illegible] various other subjects. Israel, [illegible] 200 pages, cloth bound, [illegible] $2.00.

Catechism of the Bible, for the use of the families at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. C. M. Williams. [illegible] the leading doctrines [illegible] the form of questions and answers. This book contains 105 pages [illegible] and will be sent to any address [illegible] cents single copy; [illegible] to those not able to pay. [illegible] this office for [illegible] San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The name is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 156 pages, [illegible] bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 600 hymns. To this is added 21 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed, until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be circulated. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and Adam Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 288 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into [illegible] lectures and an addition of [illegible] "things that have struck me in daily Bible reading," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the Author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.75.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 116 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation; or That Awaiting Any of the Unsaved?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known [illegible] readers, and of undoubted ability. This book in paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK,

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 283 pages, 5th edition. Cloth, 35 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 64 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom. An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES

[illegible]

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table,

Solid trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves		11 45pm
No. 22,	"	"
No. 26,	"	"
No. 151, Local,	"	12 15pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leaves
No. 23,	"	"
No. 25,	"	"
No. 151, Local,	"

[illegible] except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11 via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible], making direct connection with the C. & A. [illegible] Kansas City [illegible] connecting direct at Kansas City for [illegible] San Francisco and all points west. [illegible] cars between Tipton and Mi. [illegible] for all passengers.

[illegible] 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with [illegible] trains for Sandusky, [illegible] and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information [illegible] HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. [illegible] Plymouth, Ind., or address

C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	11:05am	For St. Joseph
No. 50	" 5:07pm
No. 54,	" 10:45am	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:25am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53,	" 12:48pm	" "
No. 55,	" 4:25pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. Chesbrough,
Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

FOR ONLY

Twenty-five Cents

[illegible] Pennsylvania Lines

[illegible]

[illegible] Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. [illegible]

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. [illegible] MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

[illegible]

EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

[illegible]

[illegible] Buffalo. [illegible]

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

L. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Supt. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming in a contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

[illegible] Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I shall [illegible]"
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy.	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	4 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson.	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

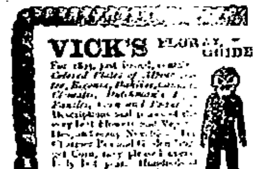
Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 5 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2 per 100; $15 per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid to the United States and Canada.



VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

[illegible]

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT HALLBECK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLEXAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS	One Year	$1.50
	Six Months	.75
	Three Months	.40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 11, 1893. NO. 38.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Zion's Awakening.

Awake, awake; O Zion,
Arise, Jerusalem;
Shake off thy chains and sackcloth,
Put on thy diadem.
Thy night is almost over,
Thy dawning draweth near,
The day of Promise hasteth,
Thy King shall soon appear.

Long hath thy midnight lasted,
Hard hath thy bondage been,
Cruel the shame and anguish
Thy weeping eyes have seen;
But lift thine eyes, O Israel,
Forget thy Wailing Place;
Once more thy King is coming
In glory and in grace.

Thy sons are crowding to thee,
Thy wastes are filled once more,
Thy latter rains returning,
As in the days of yore;
Thy vineyards and thy olives
Once more the mountains crown,
And 'neath their vine and fig tree
Once more thy sons sit down.

Once more the grapes of Eschol
In Hebron's vale are seen.
Once more the plain of Sharon
Is clothed in richest green;
The orange groves of Jaffa
Hang rich with harvests rare,
And hill and valley blossom
With flowers sweet and fair.

Thy streets and walls are spreading
With many a structure fair,
Thy thoroughfares are crowded
With traffic everywhere,
Thy limits stretching northward
Fulfil the sacred sign,
And soon thy walls will cover
The Prophet's measuring line.

And many a town and hamlet
Is growing o'er the land,
The harbinger of progress,
And brighter days at hand.
And many a little circle
Of Israel's sons have come,
And in thine ancient valleys
Have found a prosperous home.

And now the engine's whistle
Is heard on Sharon's plain,
And Judah's mountains echo
The rushing railway train.
Yes, and o'er Syrian railways,
They tell us, soon will pour
The trade of Western nations
To India's distant shore.

The messengers of Jesus
Are gathering at thy gates,
And many a faithful watchman
In Zion works and waits;
Once more from Zion's threshold
The stream begins to flow,
Whose deeper floods of blessing
To all the lands shall go.

From many a cruel nation
Thy suffering children flee,
Not knowing God is planning
To drive them home to thee.
Thy strange, pathetic story
Men cannot understand;—
A land—without a people,—
A race—without a land.

But Israel shall be gathered
From every race and clime
On Zion's holy mountain
In God's appointed time.
But first, the chosen "remnant"
Their Savior must receive,
The "first fruits" of the nation
The gospel must believe.

And then, from Gentile nations
The Lord must bring his own,
And "unto every creature
The witness be made known."
Then, He hath surely promised,
The glorious end shall come;
The King shall come to Zion
And Israel gather home.

We hail that glorious morning;
All things in earth and sky,
And even in scattered Israel
Proclaim its advent nigh.
Awake, awake; O Zion,
Thy day begins to dawn!
Lord, haste its glad appearing,
Help us to speed it on.

—A. B. Simpson.

Selected.

Man in Life; or the Nature of Human Existence.

There is no real conflict between the Bible, rightly interpreted, and true science. True, there is much in the world that passes for first-class science, that is only "science falsely so-called." 1 Tim vi. 20. How much of what passed in Paul's day for the genuine article, has since been shown to be silly fables, we leave our readers to judge. And much that is at present lauded to the skies as based on scientific deduction, will hereafter be classed with the mistakes and follies of the learned. Although the Book of Nature has been studied for ages, still her teachings are not yet understood in many respects. The book of nature contains two chapters which are of absorbing interest to us, viz: the earth, and man. We are all aware how many blunders were made in studying this planet, and how the Bible was committed to false theories respecting it, and that it required centuries to bring about a complete harmony between the facts of science, and the Scriptural record. It is acknowledged on all hands at present that the Bible does not conflict with anything that science has to say respecting the earth, its shape or its motions.

The mistakes made in reading the chapter in Nature's record respecting the earth, has, and is being made respecting man himself. No subject of human investigation has been more fruitful of error than this department of study. We repeat, man has not been read aright. False theories have been invented respecting him, and the Bible has been committed to these theories. The nature of his existence has been the subject of universal error. Causes are assigned for the life in man, and the intelligence that he manifests, at variance with science and the Bible. Manifesting, as he does, mental phenomena which no other creature does, it is assumed that he possesses an essence in addition to his brain structure, for the production of mind. The wise ones of the world are confident that man has a spiritual nature controling the physical. They overlook the fact that a rational man has a brain organization superior to all other creatures, and are unwilling to let this explain the cause of man's superiority.

With these false ideas of the cause of mental operations, the department of mind must be involved in darkness and obscurity. But such obscurity is in part dispelled when the Bible and science are allowed to speak their native language, and it will be seen how marvellously they harmonize. The Bible assigns a particular cause for life and mind, and this is in strict accordance with nature. To bring about this harmony, is to class man with all other creatures whose origin is from the dust. As to the materials of his organization, he differs but little from them. We class him with every living creature because the Mosaic record does the same. In common with all others he is called "a living soul," or "body of life."—Gen. ii. 7. He is made of the dust of the ground, and became a living man by having the breath of life breathed into his nostrils. We know that man in common with all other creatures, lives by breathing, and the atmospheric air which he inhales, being composed of vitalizing elements, imparts life to his frame. Man is a breathing creature, and that is the primary meaning of nephesh, rendered "soul." If the term "soul" was applied exclusively to man, there might be some plausability in the argument. But we know that this is not the case. Man's corporeal structure made alive by breath from God, is the soul, and Moses informs us - Gen. i. 20—that the Elohim said "let the waters bring forth moving, living souls" (sheretz nephesh chayah.) Thus "living souls" is applied to the earliest forms of life recorded by Moses. Again, Moses says, "Elohim created the great fishes, (ha-tan enim gidolem) and all living souls (kol nephish chayah). To maintain in the face of these facts that a "living soul" is equivalent to an incorruptible and deathless mode of existence, called by divines an "immortal soul," is to exhibit either ignorance of the Mosaic style, or dishonesty. We will not at present decide. Now these facts involve the entire world of theologians in a difficulty from which they can never extricate themselves. Does "living soul" or nephesh chayah, signify an immortal soul, then fishes, birds, beasts and reptiles are immortal souls, and must live forever. The case stands thus according to the logic of the clergy:

A living soul is equivalent to an immortal soul.

But Moses tells us all reptiles, fishes, etc., are living souls.

Therefore they are immortal souls.

The fallacy is in the major premise, which gives a false definition to the phrase "living soul." Allowing it to mean a living creature, all difficulty vanishes. Moses and Physiology are one, man is made of dust, and so are all other creatures. He has the breath of life superadded to his dust organization, but all other creatures have the same life - Gen. vii. 15 and 22. It is not, then, the appellation "living soul," nor "breath of life," that distinguishes him from birds and beasts, but the kind of organization which he received from Elohim in whose likeness or form he was made.

This comprehension of the Mosaic record is necessary to understand other teachings of Moses: for example, the expression "the life of the flesh is in the blood."—Lev. xvii. 11, is unintelligible on any other theory of human existence than the one based on the account in Gen. ii. 7. According to the wisdom of the clergy, it is the immortal soul that gives life to the flesh. When this personal entity departs, the flesh dies; but as long as it remains in the body the man lives. The life of the flesh, is then, not in the blood, but in the immortal tenant of the flesh. If this is scientifically correct, Moses is wrong, and a conflict ensues. But science demonstrates no such thing as a source of life to the flesh to be inherent in a personal existence called an immortal soul. Science proves to a demonstration that a substance, called by natural philosophers, "electricity," and by Moses, Ruach, vitalizes the blood and makes it the life of the flesh. This ruach or spirit substance, is from God, who is its source, and all living creatures partake of it. Take it away from the atmospheric air and man dies, returns to dust. Psa. cxlvi. 4; civ. 29.

This view of human existence is as ancient as the time of Job, who lived before Moses wrote. Job observes—x. 9, 10 —"thou hast made me as the clay, and wilt thou bring me into dust again." Here Job confirms the Mosaic record in affirming that he was made as the clay and would be again reduced to clay.

We are acquainted with only three forms of life, viz: animal, vegetable, and spiritual. With two of these we have an experimental acquaintance, with the third our knowledge comes from revelation. The spirit that sustains the life of the flesh is the cause of life in all three, and the difference existing between the various forms of life is in the body through which this life is manifested. As vegetable life is life manifested through a vegetable organization, so animal life is life manifested through an animal organization. All animal bodies are not alike; the more perfect and elaborate the brain structure is, the more sagacious the animal. Still their life is the same, inasmuch as it is mortal. Man's body being made of dust, and corruptible, the life manifested through such a body is necessarily mortal. Man's days and years are contrasted with Deity, but if man is a deathless being there is no contrast. Job x. 5.

All the phenomena of mind can be accounted for on the well known fact that minds differ as their brain structures differ. The man of profound thought has "a deeply convoluted cerebrum," whilst the Idiot is almost destitute of brain. Living brain produces thought, and not a fabulous entity called an immortal soul.

With respect to spiritual life, the same principle applies. It is life manifested through a spiritual, or spirit organization. Such will be the nature of bodies in their post-resurrectional state. They will be changed by the Spirit or Power of Deity into spirit forms, and being incorruptible they must necessarily be immortal. A soul-body, or nephesh chayah, is contrasted by Paul with a spiritual body. 1 Cor. xv. 44, and he tells us that the natural is first and afterwards the spiritual—(46). At the present time angels are spiritual bodies, and have spiritual life; but when the sons of God shall be angel-like, and shall have bodies like unto Christ's glorious body, they will be spirit bodies too, by having the life of Jesus manifested in their mortal flesh.

In a metaphorical sense a believer has spiritual life, in the same sense as he was once dead in trespasses and sins. But we are speaking of spirit life in a literal sense, and in this sense no man has it, because he is of the earth, and earthy, born of the flesh and not born from above, and possesses spiritual life only so far as spiritual things, or ideas, dwell in his understanding. The things of the Kingdom of God and name of Jesus constitute the spiritual things which dwell richly in a believer's mind, and which are totally unknown to mere natural men, however gifted they may be in science and arts. These things are revealed unto us by the Eternal Spirit who is the Logos or light of men. The things revealed by the Spirit are truly spiritual, and the mind on which they are engraven is so far spiritualized. Spiritual life, then, in the metaphorical sense, has relation to the renewing of the mind in the knowledge of God. It is the new life of the believer who has been washed from its uncleanness, in obeying the truth. But spiritual or eternal life in the literal sense has relation to a life manifested through an incorruptible organization, and the quickening into unending life, is being born from above, born out of Spirit.

From the foregoing remarks we see an order in the divine plan, first the natural, and afterwards the spiritual. The present state is to the servants of Christ, one of trial or probation. The natural life of man is only animal, and ephemeral in its nature, and fragile as the flower, but it is well adapted for the state of trial, inasmuch as a failure cannot perpetuate sin and misery. An immortal being is one whose trial is past and who cannot sin. What a conceit to place an immortal soul in such a frail dwelling as sinful flesh! !

The fleeting nature of human existence explains the small estimate Jehovah places on entire nations. Isa. xl. 17—"They are accounted less than nothing and vanity." Where are the nations cotemporary with Isaiah? If they are all in existence, either in bliss or woe, they are of inestimable value. What, nations of immortal beings less than nothing and vanity!

Here human wisdom is opposed to divine wisdom. Human wisdom in its ignorance of man asserts that one soul is of more value than countless worlds. Truly to the individual himself his life is better than worlds; but to no other being in heaven or in earth. The nations concerning which Jehovah says that they are less than nothing, are long ago reduced to dust, and that is just their value. As their bodies have returned to dust, so their characters have perished, not being written in the book of God's remembrance, therefore they are as though they had not been. In viewing man a mortal, living soul, we justify the ways of God to man, and lay a basis for the knowledge of salvation, by acknowledging the necessity of seeking for an incorruptible nature.

The Bible pronounces man mortal, his existence like the flower, having no security against the shafts of death. We are exhorted to cease from man whose breath is in his nostrils, for wherein is he to be accounted of—Isa. ii. 22. Scientific investigation amply confirms what the Bible teaches, and again there is a complete harmony. It belongs to the apostasy to teach that man's years will equal the years of God, cut off as they say he is from the life of God. Man must succumb at last beneath the universal sentence, but to be in Christ Jesus is to have hope of eternal life, to have the promise of eating of the tree of life and living for ever. The pride of man cannot endure the thought of being shorn of its immortality, it would acknowledge Jesus a savior of their immortal souls, else they will dispense with his services.

But human conceit, which is of the flesh, must be humbled, if any will be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. Acknowledging our mortal condition, we seek life from the dead with eternal glory, through Jesus the way, the truth and the life. We hope to rise from this mortal state, this body of death, and to become angel-like, freed from the law of sin and death, and having the Father's name written on our foreheads, to enjoy an existence to which we are as yet strangers.

Facts Not Generally Known. No. 2.

That the doctrine which Jesus taught was God's, and not his own. John vii. 16.

That the power which Jesus manifested was God's, and not his own. John v. 30.

That no man hath seen God at any time, therefore Jesus was not God, for many saw him. 1 Cor. xv. 5, 6.

That God cannot be tempted with evil, and therefore Jesus was not God, because he was tempted. James i. 13.

That the Everlasting Creator can not grow weary, therefore Jesus was not the Eternal God, because he was weary when he spoke to the woman of Samaria. Isa. xl. 28.

That there were some things which God knew, and not Jesus, therefore Jesus was not God. Mark xiii. 32.

That Jesus died, and not merely his body. Rev. i. 18.

That when Jesus was dead, he was laid in a sepulchre, and did not go to Paradise. John xix. 42.

That Jesus gave his life a sacrifice for sin, and not to appease the wrath of God. Heb. ix. 26.

That the hope of eternal life is based upon the resurrection of Jesus, and not upon his death only. 1 Cor. xv. 14.

That because Jesus lives, his sheep will live also, and not on account of his death only. John xiv. 19.

That the Spirit of God is the effluence which proceeds from God, filling all space, by means of which all things are sustained, and is not a personal being. Psa. cxxxix. 7.

That the Spirit of God is that which produces life in all animate beings, and is not another God. Psa. civ. 30.

That the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of God, when set apart, or used for some special purpose, and is not the third person of a Trinity of gods. Acts x. 38.

That the Holy Spirit is the spirit or power of God, and not God the Holy Ghost. Judges xv. 15.

That man is a creature of the dust, and is not a spirit from the skies. Gen. iii. 19.

That man is but dust and ashes, *and is not a spark of divinity en*closed in a casket of flesh. Gen. xviii. 27.

That man, when animated by the breath of life, is a living soul, but not a never-dying soul. Gen. ii. 7.

That animals possess the breath of life, and not human beings only. Gen. vii. 15.

That man is mortal, and is not immortal. Job iv. 17.

That the word "immortal" is found once only in the Bible, and is then applied to God, and not to man. 1 Tim. i. 17.

That the only person who can say "I live for ever" is God, and not man. Deut. xxxii. 40.

That immortality is possessed by God, and not possessed by human beings. 1 Tim. vi. 16.

That the soul of man can die, and is not immortal. Ezek. xviii. 4.

That the soul can be utterly destroyed, and is not something that can never die. Joshua x. 35.

That the soul can be smitten with the edge of the sword, and is not an immateriality. Joshua xi. 11.

That the soul and the spirit of man are distinct, and not one and the same thing. 1 Thess. v. 23.

That the spirit of man is but another name for his breath, and is not an immortal conscious principle. James ii. 26.

That the beasts possess a spirit, and not men only. Eccles. iii. 23.

That only once in the Bible is it declared that man shall not die, and then, as now, it was not the truth, but a lie. Gen. iii. 4.

That the value of man in the sight of God is less than nothing, and not worth more than all the world, etc., as "orthodox" ministers are so fond of declaring. Isa. xl. 17.

That immortality is a future state of existence, and is not at present in man's possession. 1 Cor. xv. 53.

That immortality is to be conferred upon the body, and not upon the invisible nonentity. Phil. iii. 21.

That eternal life is the gift of God, and not the natural birthright of all mankind. Rom. vi. 23.

That to possess eternal life, it must be sought for, and is not the common property of all men. Rom. ii. 7.

That eternal life will be given to those who obey the commands of Christ, and not to those who do not obey him. John x. 28.

That Paul was hoping to receive eternal life, and did not believe he already possessed it. Titus i. 2.

That everlasting life is promised to those who believe in Jesus, and not to those who do not believe. John iii. 16.

That life is ended by death, and is not continued in a different sphere. Psa. cxlvi. 4.

That the dead are utterly unconscious, and do not know more than they did when living. Eccles. ix. 5.

That the dead are in silence, and are not praising the Lord. Psa. cxv. 17.

That the memory perishes at death, and does not remain conscious, or know anything of God. Psa. vi. 5.

That the dead all go to one place, and not some to heaven and others to hell. Eccles. iii. 20.

That the grave is the home of the dead, and not the skies. Eccles. ix. 10.

That the righteous dead rest in their graves, and can not go to heaven. John xiii. 33.

That the Bible declares that no man, excepting Jesus, has ascended to heaven, and does not teach that all the righteous are there. John iii. 13.

That David is in the grave, and has not gone to heaven. Acts ii. 34.

That Moses and Samuel are both dead, and are not in the presence of God. Jer. xv. 1.

That the places where the wicked cease from troubling, and where the weary are at rest is in the grave, and not in heaven. Job iii. 17.

That death is returning to dust, and is not the entrance to a higher state of being. Gen. iii. 19.

That a reward will be received at the resurrection and not at death. Rev. xi. 18.

That when Jesus shall come in his glory, he will reward men according to their works, and not when men die. Matt. xvi. 27.

(To be Continued.)

The One Faith and Hope.

The Scriptures positively declare that we are saved by grace through the faith, (dia tees pisteos) Eph. ii. 8, and we are saved by the hope (tee elpidi esothemen.) Rom. viii. 24.

The means of our salvation are the faith and the hope. This is definite. It is not simply a faith or a hope, but the faith and the hope. When this faith and hope do not exist the individual is in an unsaved state, no matter how zealous he may be in the profession of his false faith and hope.

As there is but one way of salvation, and this is through the faith, so there can be but one faith, and so Paul teaches. Eph. iv. 5.

The subject matter of the faith is the Kingdom of God. In other words it is the things of the Kingdom of God and Name of Jesus. Acts viii. 12. A faith that leaves out the kingdom of which all the prophets have spoken, is not a gospel faith; and the hope that is based on such a faith is as baseless as the vision of a dream. The Scripture teaching concerning the kingdom of God is a first principle of the oracles of God. It is not a department of Bible knowledge which may be studied after we become disciples of Christ. The seed sown in the heart or understanding of a man is the "word of the kingdom." Matt. xiii. 19. Truly that which is seminal, or bears the same relation to our minds in their illumination as seed does to the soil, is not an after consideration. There are some who imagine that an individual can be a Christian and yet in gross ignorance of the kingdom of God. We ask, "Can there be a Christian in whose heart the good seed has never fallen?" Surely not! And yet this good seed is "the word of the Kingdom."

Paul tells us that the Holy Ones are called to God's kingdom and glory. 1 Thess. ii. 12. Prior to their call they were aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise. Eph. ii. 12. It was the call to God's kingdom and glory that quickened them when dead in trespasses and sins. If any man has not heard this call he is yet in his sins, an unquickened sinner.

The One Faith is made up of the glad tidings concerning this kingdom; and by the kingdom of God we do not mean a kingdom in the skies, but the kingdom of Israel restored, the throne of David revived and Jesus occupying that throne in Jerusalem. Luke i. 32; Acts i. 6; xv. 16, 17; Amos ix. 11, 12.

To the above may be added the things concerning the name of Jesus. The condemnation of sin in the flesh of Jesus is an important element in the things concerning His name; and is understood by all who hold the truth as it is in Jesus.

As we are saved by the hope, evident it is that any hope will avail nothing in the matter of salvation unless it is in the one hope of our calling. To have any other hope than the hope of eternal life in the kingdom of God, is to be without God and without hope in the world. Reader, what is your hope?

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the O. P. Association.
[illegible] JOBLAR, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 11, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

BROTHER N. H. Geiselman, who has been preaching at Plymouth, and vicinity, for some time, about Oct. 1, left for Florida with his family, to try the climate of that state for his throat difficulty. We shall miss him here, but hope the change will be beneficial to him, and that he may have a full field in which to work for the Master. A card dated Oct. 6, says they arrived, and are prepared to live near the Gulf, with Post Office address, Sutherland, Fla. Any one in the State of Florida wishing meetings can correspond with him there.

"God so loved the world, (of mankind) that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth unto Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Oh, what a God of love he is. Having made this marvelous gift he introduced it with a moral grandeur which challenged the admiration of the Heavenly Host; then appeals to every good and noble principle in man, then waits man's decision. •

BELIEVER, do you not find that between the longings of the inner man, and his aims and hopes and aspirations, there is an unremitting contention waged for your supreme affection, by the outward fleshly ambitions and pleasures of the present evil world? This is what is meant by the flesh waring against the spirit. This is the trial of your faith, and the test of your hopes' foundation. If you overcome the flesh you are sure of the crown; but it will require you to be ever on the alert, and to avail yourself of all the divine assistance provided for you. •

READER, who are you? Are you one of those who from earliest youth to the present hour have been solicited to accept God's gracious overtures, but hitherto despised his grace, trampled on his forbearance, rejected his longsuffering, and wearied his love? Are you one of those? If so, we appeal to you once more by all the love of God to stop right where you are and take a good long look at Jesus; follow him from the manger to the cross, not forgetting his temptation, his poverty, his rejection, his unremitting labor of love for others, in healing the sick, giving sight to the blind, causing the dumb to speak, and giving life to the dead, never once using the divine power bestowed upon him for his own benefit, except to obtain money to pay his poll tax; and to crown all, his career of suffering which ended by an ignominious death. His blood made effective the only covenant of God capable of imparting life to you beyond the grave. His own resurrection proved its effectiveness. You can be saved by his life if you will. Will you? He is still saying, "come unto me," with plaintive voice. Will you heed him? Remember, you have no claim on the future. The Master will soon close the door. It will be too late then. •

SAY, you who some time ago claimed to have died to the world,—how is it with you? Are there any signs of life left—old man life, we mean? Do you maintain the confidence you had at first? Is Christ as precious to you? Is sin as hateful to you? Are you as willing to be singular? As ready to invite others to hear what God has done for you? Do you make God's book your steady companion as at the beginning? Do you assemble with the faithful as often? Do you as often and unreservedly cast your cares upon him who is able and willing to succor you? In a word, are you rejoicing in hope of the glory of God? If not, there is something serious the matter. What is it? Are you courting the world? Are you hunting after the approbation of men? Are you grasping after fleeting pleasures? Are you pursuing every phantom of hope, and become as unstable as the morning clouds? If so, we entreat you to call a halt, and revive the things that remain. You are wandering from the narrow way—destruction will soon be yours, unless you speedily turn right about. You cannot overcome while you gratify the flesh. Accept this warning of love and return to the shepherd and bishop of your souls. •

Time of the End.

Quite a goodly number of the watchers for the morn without clouds, who have witnessed the passing of the time when they fondly hoped to have met the Bridegroom, wisely went back to the Grand old Book to see what the trouble was. History seemed to have clearly said that Justinian first recognized the Bishop of Rome, and establishing a system of things in church and state in 533. Is this the time the abomination of desolation was to set up, was the question they wished to solve; accordingly they began to reckon to see where 1260 years would end. They only had to add 1260 to 533 and they had the answer, 1793. Did that year witness the end of these wonders, (Dan. xii. 7?) was the next inquiry? Well no; not exactly. It however witnessed wonders. They did not search far before they plainly saw a terminus, if not the terminus. They found "royalty was extinguished in France, and a revolution swept through Europe like a hurricane; dethroned kings, deposed the Pope, overturned the Justinian constitution of Europe promulgated 1260 years before and substituted that of Napoleon. After dwelling at length upon this, they came to regard these things as an initial ending, and this sent them back to Daniel again, with the additional light to assist them, that the Papal power, although terribly shaken, did not cease to be a persecuting power. To find another end, another beginning must be found. History supplies the fact that the final and complete "setting up" was by decree of Phocas in A. D. 606-8, some 75 years later. 1260 added to 608 bring us to 1868. We have passed that point too, and are ready to ask of history what happened then? Some may think it a straining of matters to make a point, to have a double ending, as it were, and suspect that the exigencies of a theory has hatched this solution. To this it is replied, that strange as indeed it is to find two widely separated dating points, which we shall see was actually the case, after we have learned what, if anything, transpired in fulfilment of prophecy in 1868. Did the Papacy pass away in 1868, as expected? No! A cloud passed over the watchers for a moment, but the unfolding of the purpose of God, together with past experience sent them back to the Word again, and then it dawned upon them that the Scriptures did not say the abomination would end, but its persecuting power, which grew out of the legal, political power placed at his disposal by the decree of Phocas to enable him to enforce his authority as the universal ecclesiastical Head. Great things were expected in 1868 and great things did transpire, but the Lord did not come and consume him with the spirit of his mouth, and destroy him with the brightness of his coming as expected (2 Thess. ii. 7). The war making, temporal power of the Papacy surely came to an end, and the Universal Bishop has been playing the martyr in alternation with threats and pleadings and bargaining with the powers to have his temporality restored. To facilitate this divinely pre-arranged stripping, it will be remembered that France withdrew her forces from Rome; and this left the field clear for Garibaldi to execute the work assigned him.

But now as to the double dates. In Dan. xii. 11 it says that from the taking away of the daily sacrifice, (that is, the abolition of the Mosaic economy)—that is one event, all are familiar with, and the other is the setting up of the abomination near six hundred years afterward. If it be asked why this unique arrangement was made by God, we do not know, unless Dan. xii. 9 explains it,—"Go thy way Daniel, for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end." It was not to be understood until the time of the end, for it was said in answer to the question, "what shall be the end of these things;" and then, even, only "the wise shall understand," v. 10. The time of the end having arrived the seal is broken and passing events reveal our whereabouts. Things hitherto unnoticed became important then, and still another ending is discovered in Dan. xii. 11 thirty years after the expiration of the 1260, in 1868, making 1290 from the setting up of the abomination, and extending to 1898. What is to happen then? It does not say, but simply says that that number of days shall be. But from a corresponding prophecy in Rev. x. 7, it would appear that then arrives the time for the finishing of the work of God as declared by God to his servants the prophets, Daniel being one of them; and it is he who says that at the end of the days many of the sleepers in the dust shall awake, and the Great Prince of Israel shall stand up. But beyond the resurrection of God's dead ones, another period of 45 years is marked off, which is understood to be to afford scope for the full establishment of the kingdom of God and every overcomer assigned his position, as well as Daniel who will stand in his lot. 1898 will soon be here. Former periods have expired on time and so will this. Pass the word along the line—"Watch for the morning!!"

We have hastily compiled the above from a recent elaborate article so that our readers may compare notes with a foreign watcher. •

News Items and Comments.

Since our last notice of current events, crime has been, apparently fearfully on the increase; and that, too of the most revolting, beastly, and cowardly character. Every section of the country from east to west, and from north to south, furnishes its quota. Train robbing, so rife of late, has received a check in Missouri, where several of them were killed.

A despatch from Buenos Ayres says, Ex-president Pelligrini is a prisoner of the rebels at Tucuman and will be probaly shot.

The Mayor of Roanoke, Va., was recently driven from his home and from his office by a mob that threatened to lynch him for doing his duty.

The Marshal of Crestline, O., was shot to death on the 20th ult. by tramps while trying to arrest them; the tramps escaped.

News from Prague shows a very disturbed condition of things there, caused by the Czech agitation against the Germans; open revolt is only prevented by large bodies of troops. People talk scarcely above a whisper for fear that spies will hear, distort, and cause their arrest. Policemen are posted in every newspaper office, and all matter printed is subjected to rigid censorship.

The village of Coral, Mich., was recently wiped out by fire; between 500 and 800 were made homeless.

A whole ship-load of Italian emigrants are dying of cholera, off Rio Janeiro. Twenty to thirty die daily and aid from the shore is refused.

A tramp fired into the Chicago Board of Trade, mortally wounding one, and several others slightly.

The Reds in New York have threatened to blow up Vanderbilt's and Huntington's palaces.

An anarchist, at Barcelona, threw a bomb at Gen. Martinez Campos, the famous Spanish commander, who by proclamation gave the crown to Alphonzo II.

A plot to blow up Vienna has been discovered, and many anarchists arrested.

Fire was applied to the feet of a negro in New Orleans to extort a confession from him.

There was a dastardly attempt to wreck a train on the Vandalia railroad lately.

A million dollar fire occurred at St. Joseph, Mo., recently.

A mob of Mohammedans at Ordomiah, Persia, recently murdered a Christian because he refused to become a Mohammedan. He was pitched headlong to the ground from the top of a mosque and then cut to pieces with knives and daggers.

Russia has discouraged the great naval reception to have been given on the arrival of the Russian fleet.

A Michigan iron mine suddenly collapsed on the 20th ult. and forty miners are said to have been killed.

An Indian outbreak is threatened at Yuma, California.

Supt. Young, of the Chattanooga Electric Railway, has invented a plan to checkmate train robbers. The express car is to made burglar proof by electricity.

A magazine article on the trial and condemnation of Jesus, has came out, [illegible] claiming that Jesus was guilty under the law of Moses for blasphemy.

Cholera of a virulent type is rapidly increasing in the government of Kolo, says a dispatch from Warsaw; and new cases and deaths are reported at [illegible].

Thousands of families are on the verge of starvation in England, owing to the strike of the coal miners.

Anarchists are boldly preaching murder and robbery in London, one of the agitators declaring from the rostrum that he had stolen the overcoat that he was wearing, and his companion a pair of boots. He said the bomb throwing in Spain should teach Englishmen what to do. "Why not use knives and bombs," he asked, "since the government used police and soldiers to destroy us?" "Tear down the Mansion House and destroy the government," said he.

Fifteen new cases of Yellow Fever a day are reported at Savannah, Ga.

Dispatches from Paris to London say the tension of the European situation is very strained. The English government has supplied the naval depots with extra supplies of coal so as not to be troubled in case of war breaking out.

England is disturbed by the report that France is about to cede an island in the Gulf of Siam to Russia for a coaling station.

Italy is said to be playing the cards for Germany and Austria. Emperor William is strengthening the army with intense vigor. Russia is quiet but making strenuous efforts to equip herself for the hottest kind of war. Well informed people are looking for a tornado of conflict all over Europe. It is expected that the Gladstone government will promptly increase the Mediterranean fleet. It is said the fact should be recognized that Italy is an extremely dangerous element in the present situation. That country is in a pitiable condition. Things are so led that a catastrophe of a violent nature is inevitable, unless relief comes speedily. Every paper shows that matters are coming to a crisis.—it must come—it is predetermined. •

Original.

Hickory Grove Sermons, No. 1.

A series of discourses delivered by A. J. Eychaner in the Gospel tent at Hickory Grove, Story Co., Ia., Sept. 25, 1893.

Friends, Citizens and Brethren:

By the kind Providence of God the Gospel tent is pitched in this beautiful grove once more. Since we gave you the parting hand and said the good bye words, one year has swept into the past; and on this mild September evening we have assembled here to read God's Holy Word, to sing praises to him and to talk of the wonderful promises that he in his goodness has been pleased to make to his children. Three hundred and sixty-five days of storm and calm, of sun and shadow have come and gone since last we gathered under this canvass. In that time there have been days of joy to some of you as well as days of sadness. Some days when sorrow swept over you like a cloud but soon it dispersed and the sweet sunlight of the heart returned scattering smiles and kind words all around. Every one knows the heart-aches he alone feels, and these trials which come to us only prepare us for the eternal weight of glory. By them we are reminded of our own weaknesses and our need of the Christ and the immortality he came to give. How rapidly the time passes. In a short time the snows of winter will be here. The leaves are already falling and the mellow fruit of Autumn moulded by a Father's hand is ripening in the hazy light of these halcyon days. To me this is the most beautiful time of all the year. 'Tis true the thrush no longer warbles his varied song and the bobolink and swallow and robin and bluebird and martin and the sparrow family are all gone to the south land for the winter and we miss them, yet there is a calm, holy spirit of the day, a mild, lambient light of the moony night, and a restful, peaceful quiet every where that makes this a fit time for reflection, and a fitting and proper time to turn our thoughts to God and come together to talk of his goodness. The hardest work of the summer is over and we sit down to reflect upon the past, may we be able to say we have also worked for the Master, while we have casted bread for the children. Not only is the summer past but winter is coming. As in nature so in life, the flowers and plants lie down and sleep through the winter so we too in a similar way will sleep the sleep of death. Shall we wake again in the resurrection Spring time?

This subject of the present and future life is one in which every thoughtful man and woman is interested. The present life is one which evidently comes to an end. The end of life is death. Jesus came that he might give an eternal life to all who would believe on and obey him. The eternal life is a life without end. But this present life will end while eternal life will not end. This then is the difference. Eternal life is opposite to mortality. He who possesses eternal life is necessarily immortal But as God only has immortality, man must be mortal in his present state. Will it be possible for man ever to attain to immortality?

Of the many Scripture statements that are made touching this matter of life and death there is one that deeply impresses me. It seems to settle down into my very being. Its statements are so plain and so forcible that it would seem that it would be understood by all who read it. It tells us who has eternal life and who has it not. It states the question both positively and negatively. Its testimony is unquestionable. The witness is one in whom we may place confidence for candor and veracity. In a court of justice we are apt to receive the testimony of men of truth and men whom we have every reason to believe know the facts about which they give testimony. If then, we receive the witness of men the witness of God certainly ought to be greater. God is the witness in this case, and John tells us in the text alluded to that he has given us a record concerning his Son. He farther tells us if we do not believe this record that we regard God as a liar or a false witness because we impugn the record he has given. I read from the revised version of the New Testament. "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in him; he that believeth not God hath made him a liar, because he hath not believed in the witness (testimony) that God hath borne concerning his Son: and the witness is this—that God gave unto us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. "He that hath the Son hath the life; he that hath not the Son of God hath not the life." 1 John iv. 10-12.

The theory that now obtains in general among orthodox and evangelical bodies in regard to the natural immortality of the soul must certainly halt before such a barrier as this. The testimony is clear and unequivocal. "He that hath the Son hath the life." The witness has not left us to speculate as to what life he refers. "God gave unto us eternal life and this life is in his Son." Then by the law of cause and effect "He that hath the Son hath the life and he that hath not the Son of God hath not the life." The theory of the natural immortality of man makes no difference between the good and the bad. All alike are said to possess an undying nature—the good to enjoy the bliss of heaven eternally, but the bad to be punished in the horrors of an endless hell. But this text does make a radical difference between those having Christ and those who have not secured him as their Savior. What one class possesses the other does not possess, because they do not have the Son in whom the life inheres.

That God intended that man should attain to immortality if obedient, is clear to my mind. It was his intention, and is still, to bestow this boon upon the obedient, but to say that he did bestow immortality alike upon all the creation is but to argue that fitness and obedience do not enter into the question and that this text does not state the truth. It is in short as the text claims making God a liar. This Platonic philosophy attributes a soul to man independent of the earth-made body—as having existed before the body was made and maintaining that existence after that body is returned to earth. Thus the immortality claimed is not connected with the Son of God, for all possess it during this present life. The question we are discussing to-night is not one of future punishment or future reward, but the fact as such whether man does, or does not now possess immortality. If he possesses an immortal nature now he was thus created or in some way has since obtained it.

We turn to the creation to see if man was made immortal, or, if at that time an immortal nature was imparted to him. Our inquiry therefore relates to the created man. The Bible contains an account of man's creation or the creation of the first man. Whatever was the nature of the father of the race, must be the nature his children possess. The stream may go lower than the fountain but it can never rise higher. If therefore the first man was by nature earth made and without the stamp of immortality we may justly conclude that we are yet bearing the image of the earthy. The Bible account therefore must be accepted as furnishing the evidence from which we are to draw our conclusions. If science can reflect any light upon the subject most gladly do we accept her aid. The statement of the creation of man is plain and the record is a short one and easily understood. "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul." If this record is true—and I see no reason to doubt it, the first man was earth-formed; and this earth-formed man became a living soul. The record does not say that a "living soul" was breathed into the man but that the man himself became a living soul. The thing breathed into him was the breath of life which is the animating agency of all living creatures. If you will open your Bibles with me at Gen. vii. 21 and 22 we shall read, "And all flesh died that moved upon the earth both of fowl and of cattle and of beast and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, all in whose nostrils was the breath of life." From this reading we learn that the breath of life is a common possession with man by all the animals that breathe. This phrase "the breath of life" gives to man then no preeminence in nature above the living animals of earth, but in common with them he possesses what they possess and lives by the same agency that gives them life. The undying nature man is said to possess must be sought for in some other language.

Some have seriously maintained that the statement "and man became a living soul," furnishes the proof of his immortality. But the phrase from which "living soul" is translated occurs ten times in Genesis and is nine times applied to the lower animals. Dean Alford says, "The difference whatever it may be between him and other living creatures, is not declared in this term." Dr. Lang says, "The words translated 'living soul' are applied also to the entire creation." We should bear in mind that living soul does not necessarily mean an immortal soul. By the vitalizing breath he became a living being, while before he had not yet become animate. There is yet a more important fact to be considered. It is the dust man who became the living soul. If therefore man possessed immortality from the consideration that he became a living soul it is the created form of earth that possesses immortality. But we are shut out from immortality in this direction in our conclusions, for we are informed that this dust man returns again to dust.

And yet there is one more fact in connection with man's creation and Edenic history which places itself directly across the path of this false philosophy of Human Immortality. When Adam and Eve were placed in the garden of Eden they had the privilege of its entire fruitage, except one tree. This was that central tree whose fruit was so pleasant to the sight. God had said they should neither eat of it nor touch it, if they did either they must surely die. But Satan appears upon the scene. His exposition of the qualities of that tree are radically different from those given by Jehovah. He tells Eve that the eating of the tree will make her wise and be as Gods, and assures her that she will not surely die. Now notice according to God's statement disobedience will produce death but according to the tempter's statement disobedience will give immortality. Let us follow the narrative still farther; she ate the fruit and so too did Adam. Now comes the demonstration as to who told the truth in this matter. God once more appears upon the scene. A thing wholly unexpected takes place. Cherubic forms are marshalled and with flaming swords encircle the tree of life and guard its precious fruits. They behold with dismay their only source of life cut off. The stern but just sentence is pronounced by the Judge; "In the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground, for out of it wast thou taken, for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return," and the man and his companion were driven from the garden. But who told the truth? Fortunately we have the history of Adam a little farther. It is short but there is all that is needed. It settles this question of immortality in sin and demonstrates its falsity. The closing sentence reads, "And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years, and he died." The children of Adam like their father die. They sin, and the wages of sin is death. The avenue which made immortality possible to Adam was closed through disobedience. But there is a second Adam whose obedience has opened up a new and living way. Through him the eternal life may be gained by faith and obedience for "he that hath the Son hath the life and he that hath not the Son of God hath not the life." We conclude then that immortality is to be obtained by a patient continuance in doing well, and is the gift of God through Jesus the Christ, our Lord.

Corrections.

In THE RESTITUTION of Sept. 27, third column, the expression "indefinite dignity and merit," should have been "infinite dignity and merit." And in second column "beloved for the Father's sake" should have been "beloved for the fathers' sakes."

WILEY JONES.

A religiously inclined youth once inquired of his pastor if he thought it would be wrong to learn the art of self-defense. Assuredly not, he replied. I learned it myself in early life. The youth inquired if he learned the old English or Sullivan's system. I learned neither, was the reply. I learned Solomon's way, and you will find it, he said to the astonished youth, in Prov. xv. 1,—"A soft answer turneth away wrath." It is the best system of self-defense which has fallen under my observation.

As long as the devil can make sin seem to be profitable, he won't have much trouble in getting recruits for his army.

A good many people pray, "Oh to be nothing," and then they do their best to answer their prayer.

Living for self is the smallest business any one can be engaged in in this life.

Only three weeks more and the World's Fair will be over. Get ready and take the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion Oct. 12th.

Christ is the key to the history of the world. Not only does all harmonize with the mission of Christ; all is subordinated to it. When I saw this it was to me as wonderful and surprising as the light which Paul saw on his way to Damascus.—Von Muller.

You might walk but it will be cheaper to take the Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion to the World's Fair, Oct. 12th. No extra charge for fast time.

Poetry.

Life and Death.

Does death mean life?
And is it true
That when we die
We live? That when we nothing know,
And while we lie
In earth's cold ground,
A part called "soul"
Is gone to endless bliss or woe?

No! death means death,
For we all die,
And from the ground
Could never rise, had not the Lord
A gift bestowed:
Through Christ, his Son,
On all who hear,
Believe, love and obey His Word.

That gift is life—
Eternal Life,
O! hear ye all!
When He shall come, may worthy be
Of that great gift
That Jesus brought
Through conquering death,
And with Him live eternally.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 7.

1. And when he had finished all his oracular sayings in the hearing of the royal-people, he entered into Kapharnaoum.

2. And a certain centurion's bond-servant who was ill was about to come to his end, and he was esteemed by him.

3. And when he heard about Jesous he sent elders of the Joudaians unto him, requesting him to come and save his bond-servant.

4. And when they had come unto Jesous they asked him in haste, saying, he to whom thou wilt grant this is worthy.

5. For he loveth our nation and hath built for us our synagoges.

6. And Jesous went his way along with them. And when now he was not far from the house the centurion sent friends, saying, Lord trouble not thyself. For I am not enough of importance for thee to come under my roof.

7. Therefore I did not account myself worthy to come unto thee; but say by word and let my servant be healed.

8. For I also am a man assigned under official-power and who have soldiers under myself, and I say unto this one go thy way and he goeth; and to another, come, and he cometh; and to my bond-servant, Do this and do that, and he doeth it.

9. And when Jesous heard this, he wondered at him, and turning to the crowd following him he said, I say unto you, not even in Israel have I found so great faith.

10. And when those sent had returned to the house they found the bond-servant well.

11. And it came to pass on the following day, that he went his way into a city called Nain: and his disciples and a vast crowd were going their way along with him.

12. And as he drew nigh to the gateway of the city, lo even a dead person was being carried out, an only-born son of his mother, and she was a widow; and a considerable crowd of the city was with her.

13. And when the Lord saw her he was moved with compassion for her and said unto her, Lament not.

14. And approaching he touched the casket; and those who were carrying it stopped; and he said, Young man I say unto thee awake. (Egeiro noi anisteni.)

15. And the dead man sat up and began to talk, and he gave him to his mother.

16. And fear took hold of them all and they glorified God saying, A great prophet hath been awakened among us; and God has taken an oversight of (visited com. ver.) his royal-people.

17. And this word went out about him in all Joudaia and all the surrounding country.

18. And his disciples told Joannes about all these things.

19. And summoning a certain two of his disciples Joannes sent them unto Jesous, saying, Art thou the One who cometh or do we look for another?

20. And when the men had come unto him they said, Joannes the Baptizer hath sent us unto thee saying, Art thou the One who cometh or do we look for another?

21. In that hour he had healed many from diseases and scourges and evil spirits and had graciously granted to many blind people to see.

22. And he answered and said unto them, Go your way and tell Joannes what ye have seen and heard, namely that blind people see (lit are looking up) lame people walk, lepers are being cleansed, deaf people hear, dead people are being awakened, beggars are being evangelized.

23. And blessed-happy is he who shall not have stumbled in me.

24. And when the messengers of Joannes had departed, he began to speak to the crowds about Joannes as follows, What went ye out into the wilderness to gaze at? A reed shaken by a wind?

25. But what went ye out to see? A man clad in effeminate outer-garments? Lo those who are in notable and delicate under-apparel are in the royal apartments.

26. But what went ye out to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.

27. This is the One concerning whom it hath been written, Lo I am sending my messenger before thy Face, and he will prepare thy way before thee.

28. I say unto you among those begotten of women there is no prophet greater than Joannes: But the inferior one in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

29. And all the royal people they heard it and the tax-gatherers who had been baptized with the baptism of Joannes justified God.

30. But the Pharisees and the teachers of law set aside the counsel of God unto themselves, not having been baptized of him.

31. To whom then shall I liken the men of this generation and to whom are they like?

32. They are like to the children seated in a market-place and who address one another with such remarks as, We have piped for you and ye have not danced; we have threned for you and ye have not lamented.

33. For Joannes the Baptizer came not eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say he hath a Demon.

34. The Son of Man hath come eating and drinking and ye say, Lo a gluttonous man and a wine-bibber, a friend of tax-gatherers and obdurate sinners.

35. And wisdom hath been justified (shown to be right) from all her offspring.

36. And a certain one of the Pharisees asked him to eat with him, and he entered into the house of the Pharisee and reclined.

37. And lo there was a certain woman in the city, an obdurate sinner and when she knew he was reclining in the house of the Pharisee, she procured an alabaster vase of myhr.

38. And stood behind his feet and lamenting began to moisten his feet with her tears and she wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet and anointed them with the myhr.

39. And when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it he spake to himself saying, If this man were the prophet he would have known who and what sort of a woman she is who is touching him, because she is a hardened-sinner.

40. And Jesous answered and said unto him, Simon I have something to say to thee; and he saith, say it, Teacher.

41. A certain lender had two debtors. The one owed five hundred denarii and the other fifty.

42. And as they did not have the means to pay he showed himself gracious to both. Which of them then, said he, will love him most?

43. And Simon answered and said, the one, I suppose, to whom he showed the most grace. And he said unto him, Thou hast judged rightly.

44. And turning unto the woman he said unto Simon, art thou looking at this woman? I entered into thy house; water for my feet thou didst not give; But she hath moistened my feet with her tears, and dried them with her hair.

45. A kiss thou (or hand-shake or embrace or any act of endearment) didst not give me; but she since she came in hath not left off kissing my feet.

46. With olive-oil thou didst not anoint my head; but she hath anointed my head with ointment of myhr.

47. As a grateful return for which I said unto thee, let her many sins be remitted, because she hath loved much. But he loveth little to whom little is remitted.

48. And he said unto her, Let thy sins be remitted.

49. And those who were reclining along with him began to say among themselves, who is this who even remitteth sins?

50. And he said unto the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee. Go thy way into peace.

COMMENT.

"Oracular-sayings" instead of "sayings" merely R. V.

"Esteemed by him" instead of "dear to him" R. V.

"In haste" instead of "earnestly" R. V.

"Assigned under official-power" instead of "set under authority" R. V.

"On the following day" instead of "soon after" R. V.

"An only-born Son of his mother" instead of "an only son of his mother" R. V. which leaves out the most suggestive part of the narrative. He himself was "an only-born."

"Lament not" instead of "weep not" R. V. There is another word for "weep."

"Casket" instead of "bier" R. V. The word means the case in which the body was, not the "bier" upon which it was carried.

"Awake" instead of "arise" R. V. and "hath been awakened" instead of "hath been raised" R. V. See previous comment on the resurrection.

"Word" instead of "report" R. V.

"Scourges" instead of "plagues" R. V. The scourges of God's love meant no doubt.

"Graciously granted" instead of "bestowed" R. V, which leaves out the most important thought of the statement—the grace namely in all these gifts.

"Begotten of women" instead of "born" R. V. emphasizes another kind of begetting so clearly taught in the Scriptures.

"The inferior one" instead of "he that is but little" R. V.

"There is no prophet" instead of "there is none" R. V. "Prophet" is an important word here I think.

"Is justified from all her offspring" instead of "Is justified of all her children" R. V. "Of" here would imply that the justification was done by her children which is not the thought of the author. It is the fruits obtained "from all her offspring" that enables the justifier to justify.

"A certain one" instead of "one" merely R. V.

"And reclined" instead of "sat down to meat" R. V.

"And lo there was a certain woman" instead of "behold a woman" R. V. This "certain woman" is identified elsewhere in another gospel.

"She procured" instead of "brought" R. V. is a fact that is interesting to know I think.

"Moisten" instead of "wet" and "wetted" R. V. which is neither correct nor good grammar.

"The prophet" instead of "a prophet" R. V. The popular belief was that "the Christ" was the predicted Helias.

"A hardened sinner" instead of "sinner" merely R. V.

"Teacher" instead of "Master" R. V.

"Denarii" instead of "pence" R. V.

"Showed himself gracious to both" instead of "forgave" R. V.—not the same thought by any means.

"Olive-oil" instead of "oil" merely R. V.

"Ointment of myhr" instead of "ointment" merely R. V. Emphasizes the value of the act performed. It was'nt cheap.

"Remit" instead of "forgive" R. V.

"As a grateful return for which" instead of "wherefore" merely R. V.

"I said" instead of "I say" R. V.

"Go thy way into peace" instead of "in peace" R. V.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Work of the Spirit.

"Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" Luke vi. 46.

"Blessed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it." Luke xi. 28.

"This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me." Matt. xv. 8.

"Jesus saith unto his disciples; whom say ye that I am?" Matt. xvi. 15.

"Peter answered—Thou art the Christ—or the Anointed—the Son of the Living God.

Jesus said,—Flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee but God by his Spirit." Matt. xvi. 16–17.

"For we read—no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Spirit." 1 Cor. xii. 3.

"Verily then God's Spirit is the rock against which the gates of hell shall not prevail." Matt. xvi. 18.

"By this Spirit Jesus was quickened and brought forth from the tomb, being put to death, but quickened by God's Spirit." 1 Pet. iii. 8.

"He showed himself to his disciples, saying, a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have. Look at my hands and my feet that it is I myself." Luke xxiv. 39.

"This Jesus hath been raised up, whereof we are all witnesses." Acts ii. 32.

"If the Spirit of God or of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ or the Anointed King from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by or because of his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. viii. 12.

Thus God's Spirit is the Rock, is the fortress against which hell or the grave, death and destruction cannot prevail or affect anything only temporarily.

For it is written, "Thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust. Ps. civ. 29.

Again it is written. Thou sendest forth thy Spirit, they are created or recreated, and the very same they whose breath was taken away in the preceding verse is renewed in the succeeding or 30th verse, and thou renewest or restores the face of the earth. Ps. civ. 29 30.

Man is renewed or restored upon it all "cleansed and repaired" and set agoing in the world to come.

A start is made for eternity; by the immediate power of God.

Who shall disannul or make it void?

T. J. WILLIAMSON.

Dear Restitution:

I want to say a word of cheer to any who may be down-hearted or discouraged. Things look dark sometimes and faith grows weak as we see the enemy so strong, and we so frail and few. Never fear. God is able to perfect that which concerns us. Let us just fill our places in the ranks. A soldier does'nt need to see all over the field, especially with such a commander as we have. No blundering order will ever sink our ship. Never fear.

I have thought there is one thing to be glad of while we wait for Jesus, though the time seems long. It is this. The sweet meeting, the first glad song of victory are in the future. Not that I think our joy will diminish as the time rolls by. Oh no; Jesus will never tire of his bride as men do. But oh, when these broken hearts first realize that the trial is over, the fears and tears, and wearying and worrying all past, it seems to me that nothing in the future can ever be more glorious than that song of thanksgiving and praise will be. "Unto him that loved us, and washed us in his own blood."

Oh let us keep ourselves from idols. If we have trampled and destroyed the ones we had set up, let us be careful not to worship the idols of the people around us. Let us put our treasures, money or loved friends what ever they are in God's keeping, so when we are called we wont have any inclination to look back to see how they fare. Just ship them ahead (and hurry up about it) then when the time comes we can all be ready.

I have little money to bank, but I have a rich treasure in the dear ones I love, but I have such perfect confidence in the One to whom I have entrusted them that I know if any are lost it will be only what were utterly worthless. He cannot be deceived though I might. I have turned them all over to him. He will manage just right for me, so by his great grace and mercy through Jesus I am all ready.

Nothing but to work, and watch, and wait, and be faithful to the end.

I wonder if Bro. Jublin is going to print in tract form, "The Seed of the Woman?" I hope so. I love that precious truth. I was shown that mystery by dear Bro. W. S Finn, in the first days of my Christian life, and it has been clear asday to me ever since. If Jesus was immortal he could not die and if not could not be raised from the dead, then what should we do for a Savior since our salvation depends on his resurrection?

A S. D. Adventist minister said to me, he laid aside his immortality and came down and died. So then, it may be put on and off like a germent may it when once possessed? I told him I was glad God never lays his aside. Of course after telling me how it was done he wound up by saying it was a mystery.

Bro. W. H. Wilson has had three articles on the Sabbath in our paper that I wish could some way be put in tract form for use. I think it is much needed, and his pieces were better than any I remember having seen. I am satisfied for my own part but want to be able to help others to see the light. The Sabbath folks are well able to trouble very much one who is not armed. I send a paper with an article I wrote marked in it. I will close now hoping you will use your judgment about printing this or any part of it. With much love I am your sister in the one hope.

ALICE ADAMS.

Sobriety.

Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lust, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world.

The word sobriety occurs but twice in the New Testament, the word soberly twice, and the word sober ten times, and not once in the Old Testament. The definition given by Webster of sobriety is—temperance, calmness, gravity; and the word sober is defined by the same author as—serious, to make sober or grave.

In giving the qualifications for a bishop, Paul says in Titus i. 8: A lover of hospitality, a lover of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate.

It is a mistaken idea to think that a Christian should put on a long face and never allow a smile to light up his countenance. Use the word serious and you have a more complete rendering. For instance, 1 Peter i. 13, Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober (serious) and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ. Again he says in 1 Peter iv. 7, But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer.

If a wild African lion should become loose in your neighborhood and go about devouring men, women and children, would it not be treated as a serious matter? would not every one you met have a serious look upon his countenance? Is there not a devouring element in the world that is slaying more people than one lion—yes, than even a dozen lions can possibly do?

Listen to Paul. Be sober, be vigilant. Why, Paul? Because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour.

Are you doing anything, my brother, to stay the hand of this destroyer? Can you not pluck them, as it were, as "brands from the burning?" There is much in these last days for the people of God to do. But are we doing it? that is the question. We are directly responsible to God as to our dealing with the great truths he has committed to our trust. Do we treat it in a serious, sober manner? Oh, I am afraid that many of us will be "weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Then let me admonish you, dear brother and sister, in the language of the beloved apostle, See that you walk circumspectly; not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time because the days are evil.

O, brother, life's journey is fleeting,
With cares and dangers—arise,
Look well to the course you are choosing,
Be earnest, be watchful, and wise;
Remember, two paths are before you,
And both thy attention invite,
But one leads thee on to destruction,
The other to joy and delight.

O, brother, the Savior is calling,
Beware of the danger of sin;
Resist not the voice of the Spirit,
That whispers so softly within;
God calls you to enter his service,
To live for Him here, day by day,
And share by and by in the glory,
That never shall vanish away.

J. J. CADY.

The wonders of the World's Fair should be seen by every citizen of the Glorious Country of ours. The Nickel Plate's one fare excursion Oct. 12th will be your opportunity. Don't miss it.

Conference Report.

The annual State conference of Nebraska is now a thing of the past. This was the largest and most enjoyable gathering of the kind in the history of the State.

Nineteen tents and two covered wagons afforded protection from the weather, and on Saturday night before the close 142 people camped on the ground.

The interest was good all through, and each evening found the tent full of attentive listeners. The meeting was opened by a discourse by Elder Adams from 2 Peter i. 9.

Bro. Moyer's health did not permit him to speak but once a day. He was, however, well received by the people. His discourses were sound, logical and clear. As far as can be expected in mortal man they were perfect. They were instructive to the public and strengthening to the brethren. Bro. Moyer is only one of a number of able brethren whose voices are practically hushed, which ought not to be in these days of dearth in the knowledge of the truth.

Among those present from a distance were: Mrs. O. B. Cady and daughter, of Iowa; Bro. and Sister Childers, of Wauneta, Neb.; Bro. C. S. Brow and family, of Traer, Kans., and Bros. Newell and Morgan and families, of Moorsfield, Neb.

Business meeting was called to order at 9 a. m. on Wednesday. Reading of minutes of previous meeting followed by report of Secretary and Treasurer. The report of Evangelist shows a marked increase in the work over last year:

Number discourses delivered	254
Number additions to the church	65
Number churches organized	4
Number miles traveled by rail	5,632
Number miles traveled by team	1,192
Amount received for labor during year	$737 43
Expenses	130 50

Assistant Evangelist's report:

Number days employed	74
Discourses delivered	55
Additions	2
Amount received for labor	$72 15

The election of officers resulted as follows: Almus Adams, President; J. J. Cady, Secretary; A. F. Harlan, Treasurer.

On motion of J. T. Prine, Elder A. Adams was re-elected Evangelist for the ensuing year.

Moved by R. P. Story that we pay Evangelist $400 per year besides traveling expenses. Carried.

Elder J. T. Prime was also employed the same as last year, viz., at $1 per day and expenses.

In order to open up new fields for the further spread of the gospel the Secretary was instructed to correspond with different churches and solicit one or two from each place to go out to adjacent neighborhoods and organize Bible readings and investigation meetings, and do all in their power to advance the Master's cause.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this conference tender a vote of thanks to the Cambridge Park Association for the use of their grounds, and to the people of Cambridge and vicinity for their large attendance and excellent good order during the meeting.

Upon the earnest solicitation of Bros. Morgan and Newell, of Moorsfield, it was decided to pitch the tent at that place and hold a ten days' meeting, beginning September 30th. Although no one embraced the truth there, Bro. and Sister D. D. Vincent put on Christ by baptism at Arapahoe one week before the meeting commenced. We believe the seed is sown in good ground, and if followed up will no doubt result in permanent good.

Now a word to the Nebraska brethren. We urge you to make a greater effort than ever before to advance the cause of Christ in this State. We want to show a greater increase in the work next year than we have this, if possible. You have contributed nobly this year, but still we can do a little better. We want to report 100 additions to the faith next year instead of 65. Will you help us do this?

Earnestly yours,
J. J. CADY, Sec'y.

A long list of dates for one-fare excursions has been arranged by the Nickel Plate Road as follows: Oct. 9th, 10th, 12th, 14th and 17th. Tickets are good going on any train of the dates on which sold and are good returning ten days from date of sale.

Thoughts for Thinkers.

1. If the gospel consists only in the facts concerning the death of Christ, how could the gospel be preached before Christ died?

2. How can we account for the Apostles preaching the gospel during the lifetime of Jesus, seeing they did not believe that he would be crucified? Luke ix. 6; Matt. xvi. 21, 22.

3. If the gospel means the good news that Christ died for our sins, why is it called the gospel of the kingdom? Matt. iv. 23; xxiv. 14.

4. If the souls of believers at death do immediately pass into glory and are received into the highest heavens, why do all the promises refer us to the second appearing of Jesus and the Resurrection? Matt. xvi. 27; Luke xiv. 14; Phill. iii. 20, 21; 1 Thess. iv. 14–17; Titus ii. 13.

5. If to preach the gospel is only to proclaim the facts of Christ's death, etc., why did Peter on the day of Pentecost declare that Christ was raised from the dead, to sit on the throne of David? Acts ii. 30.

6. If the Old Testament is an obsolete book, of no authority in religious matters, no better than an old Jewish almanac, why did Paul tell Agrippa that he taught none other things than what Moses and the Prophets did say should come? Acts xxvi. 22; and why are we exhorted to attend to the sure word of prophecy? Rom. xv. 4; 2 Peter i. 19–21; iii. 2; 2 Tim. iii. 14.

Bishop Goodsell says: 'Our Church does not need more harness; it needs more horse.' God will give us power to run all our machinery if we would only ask for it, and labor to that end."

You will always regret it if you fail to visit the Columbian Exposition. Then don't fail to take one of the Nickel Plate Road's one-fare excursions Oct. 9th, 10th, 12th, 14th, or 17th.

Special Excursion into the World's Fair Grounds. $2.55 Round Trip to Chicago from Plymouth via the Popular Pennsylvania Lines.

Saturday Oct. 14 at rate named from station named above the Pennsylvania Company will run a Special Excursion into the World's Fair Grounds. Train will leave Plymouth at 7:25 A. M. arrive at Terminal Station. World's Fair Grounds 10:20 A. M. The Special low rate tickets will be accepted only for passage in the Pennsylvania Standard coaches on the above train. This train will also stop at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood to discharge passengers and baggage. Special train returning October 14th will start over track 64 from Terminal Station World's Fair Grounds. Return coupons of these Special tickets will be valid ten days from date of sale in coaches of any regular train except the Keystone Express, scheduled to stop at their destination, departing from Chicago Union Passenger Station, Englewood, Grand Crossing or South Chicago.

One fare excursions, to Chicago, will be run by the Nickel Plate Road on Oct. 9th, 10th, 12th, 14th and 17th. Choice of trains.

I would rather have a church with ten men in it right with God, than a church with five hundred in it at whom the world laughs in its sleeve.—George Whitefield.

If you wish to travel cheaply take Nickel Plate Road's one fare excursion to Chicago Oct. 12th. Three trains each way every day.

Write your name in kindness, love and mercy on the hearts of thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten.

One fare Oct. 12th to Chicago and return via popular Nickel Plate Road. Superb new dining cars.

There isn't much lifting power in your religion if it doesn't make you do your best to pay one hundred cents on the dollar.

Splendid opportunities for visiting the World's Fair cheaply are afforded by the Nickel Plate Road's one-fare excursions Oct. 9th, 10th, 12th, 14th and 17th. Don't miss your chance.

The Ships that Never Come In.

Full-freighted they start from a far-off port,
The breeze in every sail;
The sun leads on like a conquering god,
They follow his golden trail.

Full freighted with hopes and vast desires,
All the untried joys of youth;
With prayers [illegible] and dreams fulfilled,
And love, and faith, and truth.

But somewhere between that there and this,
Sometime 'twixt the noon and night,
The sun turns traitor—the sky frowns black—
And the sea puts on his might.

And to those who wait for their coming in,
And watch on the glistening strand,
A broken spar, that has floated far,
Alone drifts in to land.

—Nora L. Franklin.

Original.

Dear Restitution:

I have thought for a good while that I would write a few lines for the "Letter Drawer" or "Young Peoples Column." I feel that we are slack about encouraging one another, and trying to get others interested in this glorious plan of salvation. Our young people especially seem so indifferent, what is the reason?

I have those dear to me by the tender ties of nature, out of the ark of safety, and I tremble as I think of the fate of those out of Christ, but I am still praying and trusting that they will come to the Savior before it is everlastingly too late. The door stands yet ajar, oh, that they would enter now before it is forever closed.

When we talk of the danger of waiting, the only excuse is, I am not ready.

My dear young friends if some one was to send you a telegram, telling you that if you would be in Chicago a certain day, they would give you a large amount of money, now I believe you would be ready to go to Chicago if you had to start the same evening the telegram came, and if you did not know the direction, number of street, etc., you would not hesitate to enquire, and so you would be in Chicago promptly at the time. Now on the same principle, Jesus has promised you eternal life. He tells you a certain road you must follow, certain way-marks, and there is no need of you getting bewildered, for he says: "Lo, I am with you always." He will be your guide through this wilderness of trial, trouble and disappointment, and when the journey is accomplished he will give you rest and a great reward. Yes, a reward worth all the trouble it took to obtain it. We must part with this earthly inheritance when death comes, but if we have treasures laid up in the heavenly storehouse, if we are an heir of God, what untold wealth and glory will be ours when Jesus comes. "Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man what the Lord has in reserve for them that love him." Now why is it you are not ready? The Savior says, "Lo I stand at the door and knock, if any hear my voice and open unto me I will come in and sup with him."

"Behold the Savior at the door,
He gently knocks, has knocked before,
He has waited long, is waiting still,
You treat no other friend so ill."

"Procrastination is the thief of time." How many have turned away saying, "not now, at a more convenient time I will call on thee." To some the convenient time never comes, but death the monster comes. Why not be on the safe side and obey the dear Savior today, and start for the heavenly country? If you are almost persuaded, become fully persuaded, and the Lord will abundantly bless you. Oh! you do not know what joy and peace you can have with the strong arms of Jesus to rest in. So I beg, I beseech of you to come.

"Jesus invites you here,
Angels are lingering near,
Prayers rise from hearts so dear,
O, wanderer come."

Harriette Reid.

The doctrines of morality and eternal life must be taught in the Sabbath school. To neglect this and devote time merely to historical research is criminal. If we aid the young in a way to give sweetness and light to character, there must be no lack of the fundamental doctrines of Christ which renew the life and purify the soul. "Thou hast the words of eternal life." Those words are sound doctrine absolutely essential, and yet hundreds of well-meaning teachers affect to despise doctrine.

Appointments.

The annual meeting of the northwest conference of the "Church of God" will convene at Mountain Side School-house near Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, commencing Friday evening Oct. 20, 1893, and continue through the week.

A general invitation is extended to all lovers of the truth, and we sincerely hope many will avail themselves of this one more opportunity of hearing the Word of God expounded by those who have made it a study for years. Therefore we earnestly entreat all that have an interest in the cause of the Master to lay aside work and make a little sacrifice if need be and come and help us make this meeting one to be long remembered.

To the isolated brethren and sisters who may not be able to come, I would say, we would be glad to hear from them by letter. Let them give us a word of exhortation and cheer that will do us good. Such letters read in our conferences do more good than they may think. Teams will be in Portland Friday, at one o'clock, at the National Hotel, for those wishing to be conveyed to the place of meeting. If we receive no letters there will be no teams there. We understand that Brother Geo. W. Young will be with us to labor in the interest of the meeting.

Brethren, another conference year has almost passed away. Do you feel as I do today, that

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

Alzira Brooks, Sec'y.

We would be glad to see a large company of brethren at our N. W. conference to be held at Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, October 20th. We expect to meet for the first time in our new chapel, which is large enough, and our homes hospitable enough, to accommodate all that will come. Come, brethren, come!

W. L. Skeels.

The first quarterly conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene (D. V.) at Coats' Grove, Barry county, Friday morning, October 20th, at 10:30, and meetings will continue over the following Sunday. Brethren, if you have not dealt out your money too freely for the World's Fair or some other selfish pleasure, try hard to count yourself and family as a great necessity at this coming meeting. The brethren there are very anxious to have all their beds and tables filled, and more than that do they desire that some souls shall be brought into a saving knowledge of the truth, and each of you who come will be a means to that end. Can you stay away when the Master is calling for workers to help reap in the sheaves for His coming? Come, one and all, and hear the good news of the coming King.

Those coming from the north on M. C. R. R. will reach Hastings about 7 p. m., and will be met by brethren to convey them the other five miles to Coats' Grove. Those coming from south change cars at Kalamazoo, take C. K. & S. road and reach Coats' Grove about 5 p. m.

Sisters, remember and have a report of your tithing, that we may know what we are doing. Each church will also try and send a delegate with report of their church.

M. A. Woodward, Sec'y.

The Lord willing there will be a conference at East Plum River, known as Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, to commence October 27th and continue over Sunday. Brother and Sister Woodward and others will be with us to preach the word. Those coming by rail will come to Lanark, Ill., where there will be teams to take all that will come to the place of meeting.

Now, brethren and sisters, make an extra effort to be with us and let us have one more feast of spiritual blessing long to be remembered.

J. D. Renner, Sec'y.

The 28th of September, I commence meetings near Ingraham Ill., as Bro. Rogers may appoint to continue for one week lasting over the first Sunday in October.

On Friday night before the second Sunday in Oct. at Mount Moriah, Clark Co., Ill. as Bro. Z. E. Brant may appoint and continue one week.

The third at Newhope, Edgar Co., Ill. to continue as long as thought best. As Alexander and A. M. Scroggs may appoint. The Lord will, I will try and fill the above appointments.

While in the state if any other of the brethren want meetings they can let me know.

J. S. Hatch.

The quarterly conference of the Church of God will be held three-quarters of a mile south of Ashton, Sumner county, Kansas, commencing Friday night before the third Sunday in October. All lovers of truth are cordially invited to attend. Those coming by rail will be met at Ashton by some of the brethren. Ashton is on the Frisco Railroad.

E. F. Randolph, Sec'y.

What a little mind is that of man, when compared with infinite intelligence! yet there is something striking in the thought, that this little mind is capable of enjoying the holiness of God, and dealing spiritually with him.

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents. 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Winee	$10.00
J. L. Winee	20.00
Alfred B. Winee	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78
"From a Friend."	1.00

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$10.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $1.90. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $1.40. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. F. Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be required. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are hereunto subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amounts subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$31.60
"A friend."	23.00

EXPENDITURE.

Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas.
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$[illegible]

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sardeville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Hayes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.

A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

Our Limited First Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot be held responsible for the return of [illegible]. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering [illegible] to get the latest copy of the paper [illegible] and order only what you [illegible].

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your orders will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by [illegible], in 1660. 3. Immortality. 4. [illegible] of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10. Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 50 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

[illegible] 20c. [illegible] for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By R. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Biblical.

Can you Believe [illegible] of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath and What is the First Day of the Week [illegible] Stanley. The above is the title of a [illegible]. Price [illegible] each, 12 for [illegible] for $1.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of testimony upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 48 pages, price 9c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July [illegible]. Can be had at this office at 10c. each, 3 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Vindicated by the Traditions of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 72 pages, by W. Battle of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains [illegible] on the New Heavens and New Earth. Sent on receipt of 20 cts. [illegible] eight copies for $1.00.

The Hope of All Things. Vision of Heaven. This is a book of 100 pages [illegible] subject [illegible] and may be had from The Restitution [illegible] the Alliance, San Diego, Cal., for 40 cts., or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides [illegible] Holy Land in the time of [illegible], the time of Christ and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth. 776 pages, price $1.50.

Jesus [illegible] Family, Genealogy, Nature and Character, from the light of the covenants, including a brief [illegible] sketch of the [illegible] delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 100 pages, price 25 cts., four for $1, postpaid. Send in the orders.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the [illegible] and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with an illustrative and [illegible] English version [illegible] new improved edition [illegible] paper. Cloth $4, [illegible] binding $5.

[illegible]

Cruden's Concordance, Unabridged. This work is [illegible] every other [illegible] the value of [illegible] student [illegible]; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, of the [illegible] the new and latest [illegible] words which [illegible] important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 135 pages, cloth bound, for 35cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page, "The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath, also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including [illegible]." This work contains 350 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday School, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. The book contains 102 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 16 cts. single copy; 3 for 40 cents; 12 for $1.50; 50 for $5.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at Saratoga, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 256 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 500 hymns. To this is added 28 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work to their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purpose of God Concerning the Earth and Man's Future, What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 184 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into [illegible] lectures and an addition of [illegible] of "Things that have struck me in daily [illegible]," being comments on [illegible] that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. [illegible], of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By [illegible] Moncrieff. We have received [illegible] new book of 135 pages, written by William [illegible] Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Among Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for [illegible] each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom. A treatise in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 2[illegible] pages, 4th edition. Cloth, [illegible] copies for [illegible].

"Twelve Words, or, the True meaning of hell [illegible], ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and the originals, as gathered from their use in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 24 pages, 10c. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract. 10 cts. per dozen, 75cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 536 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Believers from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1345 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

[illegible] Hope [illegible] Philadelphia [illegible] Pastor [illegible] Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. [illegible] always welcome [illegible] Liberty Street.

The Church [illegible] the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold [illegible] Michigan street, as follows: [illegible] N. H. Geiselman, every [illegible] Sunday [illegible] F. W. [illegible] every [illegible] Sunday [illegible] Sunday [illegible] meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in Hall northeast corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social at [illegible] Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at [illegible] Sunday School and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any [illegible] passing through the city are cordially invited [illegible].

The Church of God [illegible] each Sunday at [illegible] Hall [illegible] on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. [illegible] thirty miles [illegible].

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Nebraska [illegible] Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 44 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but will welcome brethren. [illegible] Adams, [illegible]. W. A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope of West Seattle, Wash. The church regularly meets for public worship and church service every Sunday morning at [illegible] o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill, [illegible] very close to school house, and ferry landing from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach [illegible] meet every Sunday at 10 [illegible] Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to [illegible] the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors [illegible] brother, or H. L. Lehman, West Mile, [illegible].

The Church of God at Hammond, [illegible] meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Alma Siple, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God [illegible] prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and quarterly [illegible] in first of each quarter in the [illegible] school house in Furnas Co., N. [illegible] from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harlan and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Hatton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 2, Passenger Leaves		11 [illegible]am
No. 22,	" "	[illegible]pm
No. 20,	" "	[illegible]
No. 151, Local,	"	12 15pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger Leaves		12 [illegible]am
No. 23,	" "	[illegible]pm
No. 27,	" "	12 [illegible]pm
No. 151, Local,	"	12 15pm

Daily except Sunday. †Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. for train arriving Kansas City 8:35 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton, and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 5, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with [illegible] line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y, Plymouth, Ind., or address

C. C. PARKER, Tfl. Manager. CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass Agt.

Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	10:40pm	For St. Joseph
No. 56	5:15pm
No. 54, "	[illegible]pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:30am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:54pm	" "
No. 55, "	[illegible] pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. Chesbrough, Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT.

THE RESTITUTION,

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry. Pennsylvania Lines.

[illegible]

Westward: Pittsburgh, Alliance, [illegible], Mansfield, Crestline, Bucyrus, Lima, Van Wert, Ft. Wayne, [illegible], Warsaw, [illegible], Plymouth, [illegible], Valparaiso, Wheeler, Hobart, [illegible], Chicago. Eastward: Chicago, [illegible], Plymouth, [illegible], Pittsburgh. [illegible]

E. A. FORD, Gen'l Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Penn'a.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. F. HANES, Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.

The [illegible] Road.

THREE EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. ✣ SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid Avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Lorain street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

[illegible] WILLIAMS, Gen'l Sup't. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.

CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H.	5 cts.
English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I think it my best circulated."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	10 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	15 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson.	10 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	10 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism.	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White,	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spreading Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 2 cts. single; 20 cts. a dozen; $1. per 100; $10. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Asters, Canna, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Potatoes. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased every body last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cents for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
— for the —
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
[illegible] RAINSBACK,
[illegible] THOMPSON,
[illegible] WILEY,
GEORGE ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS	One Year	$1.50
	Six Months	.7
	Three Months	.4

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 18, 1893. NO. 39.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas. Chap. 8.

1. And it came to pass in the succeeding period that he was making his way through city by city and village by village, heralding and announcing the good tidings of the kingdom of God. And the twelve were along with him.

2. And certain women who had been healed from wicked spirits and weaknesses, Maria the one called Magdalene (an inhabitant of Magdala, the latter meaning "a magic torch") from whom seven demons had gone out,

3. And Joanna (Anna healed) wife of Chuza, Herod's curator and Susanna, (Lily-Anna) and many other women who were serving (deacon-service) him from their personal possessions.

4. And while a vast crowd were going along with him and some were going their way unto him city by city, he said in the way of a parable,

5 The sower went forth to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the wayside, and was trodden down, and the flying-things of the heavens devoured it.

6. And some fell upon the rock, and it withered up while it was growing because it had no moisture.

7. And some more fell in the midst of the Acanthus-plants, and the acanthus plants growing along with it choked it.

8. And some more grew in the good ground and grew and bore fruit a hundredfold. While saying these things, he called out The one who hath an ear to hear let him hear.

9. And his disciples asked him what this parable might be.

10. And he said, Unto you it hath been given to comprehend the mysteries of the kingdom of God; but for the rest in parables (it hath been given carried forward) that looking they may not look and having heard they may not understand.

11. Now this is the parable. The seed (or lit the sowing) is the Word of God.

12. And those by the wayside are those who have heard, and after that the Diabolis cometh and taketh away the word from their heart that they may not have faith and be saved.

13. And those upon the rock are those who accept the Word with joy when they hear it. These have not root; they have faith for the time being, and in a season of trial they apostatize.

14. And that which falleth in among the acanthus-plants, these are those who have heard and who go their way and are choked by anxieties and riches and sensuous pleasures of life and do not reach maturity.

15. While that in the good ground, these are those who in noble and good heart hold to the Word when they have heard it, and bear fruit in patient endurance.

16. And no one when he hath lighted a lamp covereth it with a utensil nor putteth it under a couch, but he putteth it on a lampstand, that those who go their way in may look at the light.

17. For there is nothing covered that will not become manifest, nor anything hid that shall not be known and come unto manifestation.

18. Look out then how ye hear. For whosoever hath, unto him will have been given, and whosoever hath not, from him will have been taken even that which he seemeth to have.

19. And his mother and his brothers came unto him, and were not able to reach him because of the crowd.

20. And it was told him, Thy mother and brothers are standing outside desiring to see thee.

21. And he answered and said unto them, My mother and my brothers are those who are hearing and doing the Word of God.

22. And it came to pass on one of the days that both he and his disciples embarked in a boat, and he said unto them, Let us cross over to the other side of the lake. And they put out.

23. And as they were sailing he fell asleep. And a squall of wind came down unto the lake and they were being filled and in danger.

24. And they came and awoke him saying, Master (boss) we perish. And he awoke and rebuked the wind and the swelling of the water, and they paused and there became a calm.

25. And he said unto them Where is your faith? And they were afraid and amazed, saying to one another, Who is this? Because he ordereth even the winds and the water.

26. And they sailed down unto the country of the Gergesenes, which is over across from Galilain.

27. And as he was going out upon the land, a man from out the city met him, having demons, and for a considerable time he had not put on an outer-garment, and had not abode in a house but in the memorial-tombs.

28. And when he saw Jesous he shrieked and fell down before him, and with a great voice said, What is it to me and thee, O Jesous thou Son of the Most High God? I beseech thee put me not to the extreme test.

29. For he had told the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For many times it had snatched him away and he had been bound with chains and fetters under guard, and rending asunder his bonds he had been driven away by the demon into the waste-places.

30. And Jesous asked him, What is thy name? And he said Legion, because many demons had entered into him.

31. And they exhorted him not to direct them to go away into the abyss.

32. And there was there a herd of considerable many swine being pastured on the mountain, And they exhorted him to permit them to enter into the swine. And he permitted them.

33. And when the demons went out of the man, they went into the swine; and the herd rushed down the precipice into the lake and were drowned.

34. And when those who were pasturing them saw what had occurred, they fled and told it in the city and the fields.

35. And they came out to see what had occurred, and came to Jesous, and found the man from whom the Demons had come out clothed in an under-garment and in his right mind, seated at Jesous' feet and they were afraid; and those who had seen it told them how the man possessed with demons had been saved

37. And all the multitude of the surrounding country of the Gergasenes requested him to depart from them, because they were constrained with great fear; And embarking in a boat he returned.

38. The man though out of whom the demons had gone besought to be with him. But he dismissed him saying,

39. Return to thy house and discourse all that God hath done to thee. And he departed heralding throughout the city all that Jesous had done to him.

40. And it came to pass when Jesous had returned, that the crowd received him; For they were all awaiting him expectantly.

41 And lo, a man Jaeiros by name, came, and he was a ruler of the synagogue; and falling at the feet of Jesous, he besought him to enter into his house,

42. Because he had a daughter, an only-born, about twelve years old, and she was dying. And as he was withdrawing the multitudes crowded him.

43. And a woman who had had an issue of blood for twelve years, and who, though she had lavished all her living on physicians had not been strong enough to be healed by any one; approached from behind him, and touched the hem of his outer-garment, and straightway her issue of blood stopped.

45. And Jesous said. Who was it touched me? And as they were all denying it, Petros and those with him said, Master (boss) are the crowds constraining and troubling thee?

46. But Jesous said, Some one touched me. For I am conscious of ability having gone out of me.

47. And when she saw that she was not ignored, she fell down before him and in the presence of all the royal-people told the reason why she had touched him and how she had been healed straightway.

48. And he said unto her, daughter, thy faith hath saved thee. Go thy way into peace.

49. While he was yet speaking there cometh a certain one from the chief-ruler of the synagogue, saying unto him, Thy daughter is dead. Trouble the teacher no further.

50. And Jesous when he heard it answered him saying, Fear not, only have faith, and she will have been saved.

51. And when he had entered into the household, he allowed no one to enter in with him except Petros and Jacob and Joannes and the father of the child and the mother.

52 And they were all lamenting and demonstrating their grief for her. And he said, Lament not, For she hath not died but lain down to sleep.

53. And they laughed at him knowing that she had died.

54. And grasping her hand he called saying, Child, awake.

55. And her spirit (breath) returned and she arose straightway And he directed to give her to eat.

56. And her parents were astounded. And he told them not to speak to any one of what had occurred.

COMMENT.

"In the succeeding period" instead of "afterwards" R. V. Too indefinite and not literal.

"Demons" instead of "devils" R. V.

"City by city" instead of "from every city" R. V. An idiom called "the distributive use."

"Flying-things" instead of "fowls" R. V. Literal and informal, suggestive of "the [illegible] of the powers of the air."

"Acanthus-plants" instead of "thorns" R. V. The acanthus is an herb with thistles and not a shrub with thorns.

"An ear" instead of "ears" R. V.

"Apostatize" instead of "fall away" R. V. It requires volition to "apostatize" but not to "fall away."

"Noble" instead of "honest" R. V.

"Utensil" instead of "vessels" R. V. Too specific for a literal translation.

"Lampstand" instead of merely "stand" R. V.

"Covered" instead of "hid" and "hid" instead of "secret" R. V.

"Seemeth" instead of "thinketh" R. V.

"The days" instead of "those days" R. V.

"Became a calm" instead of "was a calm" R. V. Something occurred. What?

"And they obey him" R. V. Not in the text.

"And as he was going out upon the land" instead of "And when he was come forth upon the land" R. V.

"An outer-garment" instead of "clothes" R. V.

"Shrieked" instead of "cried out" R. V. This a special term here. Another word for crying out in a general way.

"Put me not to the extreme test" instead of "Torment me not" R. V.

"Snatched away" instead of "seized" R. V.

"By the demons" instead of "by the Devil" R. V.

"Drowned" instead of "choked" R. V. Idiomatic and correct. There are other ways of choking and strangling than by drowning.

"Fields" instead of "country" R. V.

"Clothed in an undergarment" instead of merely "clothed" R. V.

"Had been saved" instead of "had been made whole" R. V.

"Gergesenes" instead of "Gerasenes" R. V. meaning "ancient inhabitants of the land."

"All" instead of "how great" R. V.

"Jaeiros" instead of "Jairus" R. V. meaning "One who asks for healing."

"An only-born" instead of "an only" R. V.

"Had not been strong enough to be healed" instead of "could not be healed" R. V.

"Ability" instead of "power" R. V.

"Ignored" instead of "hid" R. V.

"Hath saved thee" instead of "hath made thee whole" R. V.

"Only have faith" instead of "only believe" R. V.

"Child" instead of "maiden" R. V There is another word for "maiden" in the Greek.

"What had occurred" instead of "What had been done" R. V.

The special significance is in the occurrence, not in what had been done in any ordinary sense.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Evil One.

For as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, He likewise partook of the same, that by means of death he might make powerless him having the power of death, that is the Devil—the Accuser. Heb. ii.

Now as to his satanic majesty there has been theories and theories. One thing is sure, if we can learn who had the power of death, we will have identified the accuser and to this we will proceed leaving each to look after his own theory.

Death reigned. Rom. v. 14. Sin reigned. Verse 21. By one man sin reigned unto death. Verse 14. The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. 1 Cor. xv. 56. The penalty of sin is death. Now he to whom the law was given had the power to break the law and thus incur the penalty, thus introducing the reign of sin which culminated in the reign of death. Hence by man came death. Here is abundant evidence that man had the power of death. Having the law, and death being the penalty, and having the power to break the law, he had the power to keep death at bay or to turn the monster loose.

Now a question arises like this: Was the term serpent, as used in the beginning, the proper name of a being or was it applied as a title? The name of him who was born of Mary is Jesus, yet many titles have been conferred upon him. Isaiah calls the kings of Babylon, the serpent. Ezekiel calls the king of Egypt, a dragon. xxix. 3. John calls the dragon that old serpent the accuser and adversary. Now this dragon has heads, horns, and crowns. Heads are the sign of kingdoms, horns of kings, and crowns pertain to kingdoms. This dragon has a throne, power, and great authority.

Then the question, from whence did he derive this great authority? Answer. There is no authority but from God. The authorities that be were arranged under God. Rom. xiii. 1, 2. Diaglott. Now both Paul and John are speaking of ruling powers, and there is no authority to rule but from God.

The old serpent has a throne, power, and great authority and gives these to the Beast. Hence it is said of the Beast, that authority was given him over all kindreds, tongues, and nations. The serpent received this great authority from God, and confers it upon the Beast. But when did the serpent receive this great authority from God? Answer. In the beginning. And God blest them, and said unto them, multiply and fill the earth and subdue it, and have dominion, etc. Gen. i. 28. This authority was first conferred jointly upon the male and female. But after the fall it was restricted to the male. Chap. iii 16.

Now the account of creation and the fall was written by Moses and written for the Church called out of Egypt, and when he spoke to them of the serpent they could readily understand him for they had been toiling in the serpent's brick-yards for the serpent was Egypt's national emblem, or sign of majesty. And God applied the same sign to God's anointed. See Christ's application of the serpent of brass.

Moses elevated the serpent in the wilderness even so must the Son of Man be exalted. As a sign it had no reference to his humiliation but to his exaltation. Moses exalted the serpent by elevating it above the people, even so must the Son of Man be elevated. Christ spoke of his humiliation when he said, "If I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me." And this he spoke signifying by what death he should glorify God.

Now the mind of the flesh (carnal) is opposed to God. To the law of God it is not subject nor indeed can be. Hence each one whose mind has not been renewed is an adversary. But there was a federal head. Now the serpent addressed the woman in all the pomp of a newly made and fleshly minded majesty. Yea, has God indeed said that ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden you shall not surely die—Gen. iii. 1, 4.

(Am I not lord of all I survey?) One of his seed said I will ascend into heaven; I will be like the most high; I will build my throne above the stars of God.

Having identified him that had the power of death we can discern how it is that Jesus by means of his own death will render him powerless. The second man humbled himself and became obedient unto death even the death of the cross. Therefore God has highly exalted him and given unto him a name that is above every name—that at the name of Jesus every knee should bend and every tongue should swear that Jesus is Lord to the glory of God the Father.

Mark this. A more severe test was put to the second man than to the first. He was obedient unto death and thus attained to eternal life and the powers of the higher life. So when the question of authority to rule comes to the test, as come it will, and the kings of the earth refuse to submit to his authority, then he by his superior power will demolish the serpent's empire and thus render him powerless. Said Paul: "We contend not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this age, against wicked spirits in high places." Both parties contending for the same thing that is dominion over the earth. The one contending lawfully, the other unlawfully. The rulers, the seed of the serpent, striving to subdue the earth to their own will. The seed of the woman striving for the first dominion that they may subdue it to the will of God. But the seed of what woman? Not the literal woman for she never had a seed.

But there was a literal woman so there is a symbolic woman. As the literal woman was a help proper for the first man, so the Church, the symbolic woman, is a help proper for the second man. Now the symbolic woman has a remnant seed that keep God's commands and have the testimony of Jesus. This remnant seed is striving lawfully and will be crowned. But this woman has also a harlot seed who, like herself, are striving to rule in the serpent's kingdom.

Now there was a remnant of the woman or church of the old covenant so there is a remnant of the woman of the new covenant and of the remnant Jesus is head or chief. He is head of the church hence a member. He and his constitute the remnant seed who strive according to law.

Now there is a literal birth, hence a figurative or symbolic birth. Jesus was born of a literal woman born a literal birth. Afterward he was born from the dead born a symbolic birth. Now this remnant of the woman's seed came out of her. Hence it is not in the literal, but in the figurative sense that they are her seed. The harlot seed separate from the mother but still practice her sins.

Now the literal woman gave birth to two different kinds of seeds. Cain symbolized the lawless spirit of the serpent and slew his brother. So the symbolic woman has a numerous harlot seed that imbibe her spirit and lust for place and power in the serpent's empire hence there is strife between the two. The remnant seed are striving also but it is for place and power in the kingdom of God.

And now who has been or could be a greater adversary to God and to the race than the man clothed with authority to rule over the earth? Each form that he has set up has been built upon the funeral pile of slaughtered hosts. Driving the plow-share of distribution through creation, he slaughtered millions without remorse. Who is the dirt eater, the mud slinger, and the crawling reptile but the slimy office-seeker?

We will now endeavor to show why and when the dominion over the earth is given to the second Adam. The Ancient of Days comes in judgment. I beheld in the night visions, and behold one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven and came to the Ancient of Days and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all peoples, nations, and tongues shall serve and obey him. Dan. vii. Here we see that as far as sovereign authority is concerned, it is the same in extent that was given to the first man in the beginning. All the difference is this: In the beginning the earth was empty, now it is filled. The first man has filled it with his posterity. Then there were no nations or kingdoms. The family governed only and the man was to rule over the woman. Now there are nations developed from the primary government.

But as nations were developed the lawlessness of the old serpent became intensified and he began to build a religious structure on his own basis ("ye shall not surely die"). Hence there was a calling out first of Abraham, second, of his fleshly seed out of Egypt. Of this seed the many fell away from their covenant and the Good Shepherd called the remnant out of the mass. Afterward the messengers were sent to the nations and some embraced the call and a body was formed an organic body called the church. Then there was another and a greater falling away—lawlessness began to work and this leaven fermented the mass, and the lawless one was developed.

We have seen that when the Ancient of Days sits in judgment that the dominion is taken from him. Then how came he to have it? He is not the old serpent nor the seed of the serpent. As a ruler he is the woman's seed developed in the church. He receives the dominion when the dragon gives his throne his power, and great authority to the beast for then the woman sits over the beast and the lawless one is her ruling prince. The serpent then voluntarily surrenders his authority to the Woman's Seed. "I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake. I beheld even till the beast was slain, his body destroyed and given to the burning flame." But what beast? Answer. "I saw the beast and the kings of the earth assembled to make war with him that sat on the horse and with his armies. And the beast was taken and with him the false prophet. These two were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with sulphur."

The beast that Daniel speaks of that is given to the burning flame is the same of John's vision that is cast into the lake of fire. He is the same that is about to ascend out of the abyss and to go into perdition. The same that the woman will sit over when judgment overtakes her. And the kings that assemble with him and the same ten that agree and give their kingdom to him till the words of God are fulfilled. The beast is slain because of the blasphemous words that the horn speaks. The woman is destroyed because she says in her heart "I sit a queen," the wife of a king, "and am not a widow and shall see no sorrow." If not a widow she has a husband.

Now she was pledged to Christ and in this marriage contract she was to be a joint partner with him in his kingdom. But she has broken the marriage pledge, taken another husband whilst he to whom she was pledged [illegible], and set up a rival kingdom thus adding treason to the sin of adultery. "Therefore her plagues shall come in one day, death and famine and mourning and she shall be utterly burnt in fire for strong is the Lord God who judges her." Her subjects will turn upon her and hate her and burn her in fire. She was put under the authorities, they surrender their authority to her and never regain it.

What a world of strife there has been between the woman and the serpent and between his seed and her seed—and only a remnant that strive lawfully.

One thing more before we close. "It shall wound thy head and thou shalt wound his heel. At one time the serpent's empire had one head—it was then a unit. See the head of gold Daniel ii. At a later period it had four heads, it was divided, see the leopard beast chapter 7. Once more it was consolidated by the Romans. But later on it has seven heads and the strife between the woman and the serpent, his seed and her seed, had much to do in breaking its unity. But the unit, the remnant seed, will break in pieces the oppressor. "Break in pieces all these kingdoms." "Dash them in pieces as a potter's vessel." "To bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron—This honor have all His saints, praise ye the Lord."

J. P. BITNER.

Some people are loth to shoulder their cross unless a multitude of observers are looking on.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78
"From a Friend."	1.00

...orial Staff:
...of the C. P. Association.
...[illegible], Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 18, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The Christian Publishing Association will be held at Plymouth, Ind., on Nov. 18, 1893, at which time a Board of Directors is to be chosen for the coming year, and such other business transacted as may come before the Association.

ROBERT R[illegible]LSBACK, Pres.
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Secy.

CHRIST is the bread of life; but food will not nourish unless it is eaten. •

READER do you believe the record God has given of his Son? He says, he that hath the Son hath life. Have you the Son? •

DAVID says the man is blessed whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Yes; blessed indeed. He has passed from death unto life; He has been accepted in the beloved. •

WE read in Gal. ii. 16 that we are justified by the faith of Christ. Does this constitute us righteous in person or in state? Is it not the absolving a man from a charge? If man is really guilty he cannot be justified by disproving it, but by the non-imputation of it, and treating him as innocent; and the manner of it is described by the Apostle. "We are justified freely by his grace (favor) through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." •

WE learn from Micah vi. 8 that God requires of man to do justly, love mercy, and to walk humbly with him. Peter admonishes Christians to be clothed with humility; as if he would say, "This is to cover, defend, distinguish and adorn you all." But how is our walking humbly with God to appear? We suggest that it is to appear in connection with God's truth. It must be our teacher; and if we keep close to it we shall cast down imagination and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of Christ. The pride of reason will be sacrificed, speculation will be abandoned; God's wisdom and veracity will be honored; the engrafted word received with meekness,—in a word the Kingdom of God will be received as a little child would receive it. •

The Reviewer Reviewed.
No. 1.

Our Articles on the "Woman's Seed" were abruptly ended by adverse circumstances, and we did not see THE RESTITUTION for a month. The first number after the interval revealed the fact that some of our readers were not satisfied with the truth as it appears to us, and had requested the Author of the "Gospel of the Kingdom," to review us. It was well. Truth invites the closest scrutiny; and we supposed that if pre-existence could be proved, it soon would be.

We are ready to be squeezed hard for the Truth's sake if need be, and we shall take it for granted that the Reviewer is like minded. We have repeatedly been requested to examine his articles, but refused till he had, without molestation done what he considered justice to the subject.

Various reasons may be given why a thorough investigation should now be made, but we think this one, of itself, warrants it:—It is a shame for those having turned their backs upon the general system of falsehood now taught for God's Truth, not to say the same things in reference to this. The rules of investigation which brought us to see eye to eye on other subjects are adequate to produce the same result in regard to this; and the fact that they do not must be charged to obtuseness born of prejudice and begotten of tradition early imbibed. We set ourself the task of discovering which side of the question is thus hampered. It may be a fruitless one, but not if we can help it.

To show that controversy is distasteful to us, and never engaged in when it can be avoided we may say that although we have held our present view on this subject 30 years, we have never published a word in reference to it until we commenced the articles in question; and believe we have only written two criticisms of others in all that time, and they were concerning God's saving power. We firmly believe the doctrine of pre-existence prevents one from obtaining clear conceptions of God's saving scheme, and therefore write.

In the first place we object to the Reviewer's methods, and secondly to his proof in the 13th No. of RESTITUTION. Did our articles furnish matter for review or not? If they did, why was it sought to connect them with a sect whose tenets were extremely objectionable to apostate Christendom—"the Socinians;" which to some readers give the impression of something very bad, and that is about all? If our articles were not worthy of being examined on their own merits, they were not worthy of notice at all.

In the next place Adam Clark is called to testify that "Socinianism" produces a kind of general infidelity. Is Adam Clark a competent witness in this case? Is he not a kind of general infidel himself? An all-round-unbeliever, we mean. Did he believe in the God who declares that beside him there is none else? Did he believe God formed man of the dust, and caused him to live by breath? Did he believe the wages of sin was death? Did he believe immortality could only be obtained as a gift from God through Christ, at the resurrection? Did he believe the things of the Gospel of the Kingdom of God and name of Jesus Christ? Did he believe in baptism into the name of Jesus for the forgiveness of sin? If not, is he competent to testify? If not, would not HIS writings produce a kind of general infidelity? And was not this the reason the Reviewer came out from among such? We respectfully, but emphatically protest against this sort of attack or defense; and we submit that the truth never needs it.

Next, it is said that such a profound student as Dr. Thomas in a "comment" on 1 John v. 20, said "Christ, the Word, who in the beginning laid the foundations of the earth." This comment of Dr. Thomas is the only proof offered in the article we have been noticing. We take no man's comments as proof; but we await developments.

The Reviewer says, "Let us take care not to tie such a millstone as Socinianism about the neck of the Gospel of the Kingdom, for, on the belief of that Gospel our eternal salvation depends." Excellent advice so far as it goes, but in our estimation it does not go half far enough. If he had said, "Let us take care not to tie such millstones as Socinianism, Paganism or any other isms to the Gospel of the Kingdom," we would have been in hearty accord. By reference to our articles it will be seen repeatedly that we were writing of the Christ promised as the "Seed of the Woman," and as the "Seed of Abraham and David." As these promises form part of the very warp and woof of the Gospel already, we have no need to tie it to the Gospel, indeed it cannot be separated from it. We solemnly aver that we know of no other promised Seed; and our articles were intended to cut the strings by which others are trying to tie an unpromised Christ to the Gospel, and were terribly in earnest about it, too.

Submitted in the love of the Truth. •

(To be continued.)

Selected.

Streams from the Water of Life.

The New Man.—The commandments of the Lord are enlightening; the law of the Lord is converting; the fear of the Lord is cleansing; the statutes of the Lord are rejoicing; the truth of the Lord is life-giving; the duty of obedience is fortifying; the hope of the promise is purifying; the prospect of Christ's return is cheering; the example of holy men is stimulating; the faith of the Gospel is strengthening; the Lord's pitiful attentions are comforting; the contemplation of God is ennobling; the practice of virtue is elevating; the consideration of the judgment is sobering; the certainty of Christ's resurrection is assuring; the labors of love are beautifying; the word of Christ is enriching; the effect of affliction is chastening; the study of wisdom is edifying; the observance of prayer is fertilizing; the breaking of bread is confirming; the singing of praise is sweetening; the daily reading is enlivening; the worship of God is tranquilizing; the word of exhortation is encouraging, the hour of meditation is upbuilding; the breezes of righteousness are bracing; the exercise of patience is perfecting; and the operation of the whole is sanctifying, and saving unto the uttermost.

The Old Man. Living in pleasure is deadening; novel reading is enervating; neglect of the daily reading is impoverishing; abstinence from meetings is weakening; the cares of the world are choking; the worship of Bacchus is debasing; the smoking of tobacco is benumbing; the assumption of pride is suffocating; the minding of the flesh is killing; the love of money is drowning; foolish jesting is defiling; sinful habits are deluding; worldly policies are annihilating; "highty-tighty" temper is spoiling; a name for evil is stinking; a name for nothing is paralyzing; the love of fashion is blinding; the worship of business is enslaving; the love of quarrel is devouring; a bit of everything is embarassing; carking ways are corroding; ignoble conduct is demeaning; unsanctified manners are nauseating; petty tyranny is maddening; mere selfish aims are shrivelling; lukewarm service is sickening; lying practices are dumbfounding; mincing ways are distressing; merciless measures are revolting; malice and wickedness are leavening; carnal paths are ruining; overreaching modes are fleecing; miserly ways are petrifying; idolizing affections are destroying; revelling manners are demoralizing; inveterate hatred is brutalizing; man-savoring principles are satanizing; compromising attitudes are neutralizing; unbelieving courses are hardening; and doubting work is damning.

The beauties of holiness. There are many terms employed in the divine system of truth, which are also largely used to designate things which are merely human in their character. The difference between the one and the other is the difference between the natural and the spiritual, the sacred and the secular, the holy and the profane, the clean and the "common and unclean." The one order savor only of the things which be of men; the other is fragrant with the remembrance of God. Thus, the Jews had sacred years, and civil, holy days, an holy priesthood, and various holy vessels and utensils, all of them holy, due to the divine service to which they were consecrated; and this principle applies to the whole range of revealed truth. And so there are gods many, but only one "holy, holy Lord God Almighty;" lords many, but only one who is "holy, harmless, and separate from sinners;" spirits many, but only one Holy Spirit; names many, but only one that is "holy and reverend;" lands in abundance, but only one "Holy Land;" writings or scriptures many, but only one volume of Holy Scriptures; truth plenty, such as "two and two make four," but only one "holiness of truth" (Eph. iv. 24. New. Ver.); faiths plenty, but only one "holy faith;" hopes plenty, but only one "blessed hope;" people plenty, but only one "holy people;" covenants many, but only one type of "holy covenant;" children plenty, but only one type of "holy child;" brethren plenty, but only one sort that are "holy brethren;" prophets many, but only one order of "holy prophets;" nations numerous, but only one "holy nation;" cities plenty, but only one "holy city;" (or cities. Isa. lxiv. 10); promises abundant, but only one sort of "holy promise;" hands plenty, but only one order of "holy hands;" men and women in abundance, but only an infinitesimal percentage are "holy men and holy women;" callings plenty, but only one "heavenly calling;" commandments many, but only one species of "holy commandment;" conversation (or conduct) plenty and varied, but only one description can be pronounced "holy conversation;" knowledge of all sorts, but only one sort can be called the "knowledge of the holy;" mountains and hills in plenty, but only one "holy mountain" or "holy hill" (of Zion); seats plenty, but only one "mercy-seat;" trees plenty, but only one "tree of life;" bread plenty, but only one "true bread;" grace plenty, but only one "true grace;" manna plenty (so-called), but only one holy specimen of "hidden manna;" fathers abundant, but only one "Holy Father" who is in heaven; kisses plenty, the mother's kiss, the lover's kiss, the brother's kiss, the traitor's kiss, but only one "holy kiss"—the sisterly token of kinship in Christ; love plenty, but only one kind that is the "fulfilling of the law;" patience much, but only one kind of patience is saving, and therefore holy, and that is, the "patience of Jesus Christ." And here is wisdom. The children of Israel were commanded to put a difference between the holy and the unholy, between the clean and the unclean (Lev. x. 10; xi. 47); and so likewise to those who are Christ's it is said, "Be ye holy." and again "Holiness becometh thine house." and finally, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord."

The Lesson of Lost Opportunity.

No lines of English verse are oftener quoted, or with sadder and more sincere emphasis, than Whittier's well-known couplet:

> "Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
> The saddest are these: 'It might have been.'"

"It might have been"—how those simple words go home to every human heart! The lost opportunity, the unrealized possibility, the neglected gift, the birthright bartered for a mess of pottage all these wasted might-have-beens of life come up like ghosts to torment the regretful soul. Never to be recovered, these lost opportunities, never to be repaired or atoned for, so long as time shall last! One step behind what we might have been forever and forever; one jewel less in the crown of our eternal achievement; one drop lacking of the fulness of the cup of heaven's joy this is what a lost opportunity means. For is not every soul's heaven the sum of its being and doing? And if a soul flings away or neglects any possibility of being and doing, does it not thereby inevitably impoverish its life in the great hereafter?

The recognition of lost opportunities, and regret for them, commonly come after one has entered upon the serious work of life - in early manhood and womanhood for the most part, or at all events after the period of youth has passed. Men and women in the heat and struggle of active life are the victims of that saddest and bitterest feeling which can vex the soul - remorse for wasted and misused past. "Oh! that I had known!" is the cry, not of old age, and not of youth, but of manhood's and womanhood's prime. It is the great handicapping element of mature life, the depresser of energy, the millstone about the neck of every hard-toiling man or woman who has failed to make the most of early life. Great is the pity of it —this depressing, disheartening regret that saps so much of human strength, that quenches so much of human hope and enthusiasm! The very fact that we have failed of our once possible best, has a tendency to make us fall short of the best that is possible for us now. It ought not—but it does. It ought to make us strive all the harder to redeem the things which remain. But, as an actual fact, the more deeply we realize what we have failed of in the past, the more disheartened are we concerning the possibilities of the future.

Now all this is not worth the saying unless it be said to a young man or young woman. It can profit nothing to those of us who have passed the time when opportunities hang "thick as morning dewdrops on the grass." But if any young person reads these words, let them remind him that the season of life which is all opportunity and all possibility, which is entirely formative and determinative has not yet passed with him. To such an one still remains the possibility of saying, when he shall have passed the season of choice and preparation, "Thank God that, by his grace, I have made the best of myself." What a joy it must be to the man or woman who can say that! What peace it must bring, what hope and energy for the future, what glorious expectancy for the life to come! And yet how few young persons seem to realize that this is the possibility which is bound up in their thoughtless sunny lives. If in some serious moment they could only grasp the truth of life's progressiveness, of its mysterious dependence upon beginnings, of its plastic and formative character at the outset; and then if they could only see how they are living in the very thick of these early opportunities which go to make life what it is for time and for eternity, and if they would rouse themselves to grasp the golden possibilities which heaven vouchsafes them, it would be the grandest, the most significant act which is possible to any human being. The seriousness of maturity and of old age is as nothing compared with the seriousness of youth. Their very issues were determined by those bright young days, once so lightly whiled away. Not until it is past forever do most of us realize what youth must count for in the sum of life.
- Zion's Herald.

Original.

Dear Brother Underwood:

With your permission, I will endeavor to give a brief account of the meeting held at Fonthill, Ont. I was met at the station and conveyed to the hospitable home of Brother and Sister Railton, son-in-law of Brother Bouk, where he makes his home. Found them actively engaged making preparations for the accommodation of the expected visitors. I found the brethren and sisters quite intelligent in the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, and trying to influence and enlighten those around them.

The meetings commenced on Friday evening, the 22nd of Sept., and we had the pleasure of listening to Elder J. W. Niles, in his usual logical way of presenting the truth. He seemed to produce a good impression. Had a good house which gave good attention.

Saturday forenoon we again assembled and after spending a season of pleasant and profitable interchange with the brethren and sisters, we again listened to Bro. Niles, showing the absurdity of reading our titles clear to mansions in the skies. Brother Niles has a pleasant and conclusive way of showing up his subject, and he did justice to it.

In the evening we were entertained by Elder Black, of Suspension Bridge, N. Y. Brother Black is a good speaker, and has lately come out from the Disciple Church, and is very earnest in whatever he undertakes, and is very much liked, as a good share of the members left, or went with him when he was turned out for preaching the Gospel.

Sunday morning met again, and after partaking of the emblems of the broken body and spilled blood of Jesus Christ, and having another feast of enjoyment in listening to the brethren and sisters tell of their joys in the glorious truths contained in God's Holy Book, we were again refreshed by another discourse from Brother Niles, subject, "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise."

He showed that Christ is the Seed that the promise had reference to, and that Abraham has not yet come into possession of the things promised, but that he will when he is raised from the dead, and that Christ will come in his Kingdom at the same time, and reward his servants, the prophets and all that fear his name, both small and great, and destroy those that destroy the earth, and will make the heirs joint rulers with him over the nations.

In the evening Brother Black spoke on what he called "The Right Way," he told us that it would be a surprise, and indeed it was. He took the position that the sacrifices that were offered under the law, had no reference or connection as pointing to Christ, and undertook to prove that the blood of Christ was not a sacrifice for our sins, that where it speaks of the blood of Christ atoning for our sins, it means his righteous life. That we must pattern after his righteous life, and work out our own atonement.

He labored very hard for over an hour to convince us that we were in the wrong way, but failed to convince us. Consequently at the close of his laborious effort, Bro. Niles and some more of us took exceptions to his position, but seeing that it was late and the people were tired, there was no reply made. Bro. Niles wanted to review his discourse the next evening but as Eld. Black had made arrangements to go away the next day, so it was talked that at some time in the near future, Bro. Niles or some one would preach a series of sermons on that subject, but all passed off pleasantly, and we parted in an affectionate manner.

Although we cannot agree with Brother Black on that point, yet I think it has done good, as it has set us to work studying our Bibles more closely to see if these things are so. And finding them false, and the Bible is true, and that when God said by his apostles that the blood of Christ cleanseth from sin, he did not mean that it was his righteous life that cleanseth from sin.

Well after looking round and viewing the beautiful sections of country around Fonthill, realizing that indeed it is a charming place, I could not help but think of the time to come, when our dear Savior will come and remove all the effects of the curse. Then this beautiful place will bloom like the garden of Eden, and it made my heart yearn for the time to come when righteousness will cover the land as the waters cover the sea. When the law shall go forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. When nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

When the time came to bid the loved ones good bye, Bro. Niles and the writer took Nahum's Chariot and sped away to Suspension Bridge, where we spent a day and a half with Brother Charles Lent, taking in the grandeur and magnitude of Niagara Falls. We went out on to the Islands in the middle of the river and fairly over-hanging the great precipice, and beheld the water rolling over on both sides of us, we could not help but think that it is no wonder why such crowds of visitors congregate to see the beauties of nature. The Horse Shoe Falls on the Canada side of the river is grand in the extreme, go where you will you will see the rainbow in front of you. We could not help but think that although all this volume of water, besides that from other sources were emptying themselves into the ocean, yet it was never full. What a theme to consider, that we have an All-wise Ruler that stands at the helm and guides the universe so that everything works in harmony. When we look around and behold not only the beauties of nature, but also how man has beautified the surroundings, and made everything to please the eye, it made our hearts yearn for the time when our Blessed Redeemer will come as King of kings, and Lord of lords, and will remove the curse, and make everything glorious and beatiful as the garden of the Lord.

O, brethren, and sisters, let us be up and doing, having our loins girded, and our lamps trimmed and burning and be ready so that when the Master comes we can exclaim, "this is our God, we have waited for him and he will save us." And in order to be in this state of readiness, we must cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, and keep ourselves unspotted from the world. If we are connected with any of the worldly organizations we have so many spots. We are trying to serve God with one hand, and the devil with the other. What does Christ say in Matt. vi. 24? "No man can serve two Masters; for he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." If this dont take in this Life Insurance business, then I confess I dont know what does. What does Jesus mean where he says in speaking of the tares, Matt. xii. 30? "Let both grow together until the harvest; and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn." Now brothers and sisters, if we want to be wheat we must keep clear of all worldly institutions, or we will be bound up with them.

Let us watch and pray that we enter not into temptation, and that we may have an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God's dear son, is the prayer of your unworthy brother. J. B. LENT.

Dear Restitution:

I will endeavor to give a brief report of the religious gathering held at Fonthill, Ont., commencing Sept. 22, and continuing over the following Sunday. There were some from north, south, east, and west. The preaching was done principally by Elder Black of Suspension Bridge, N. Y., and Eld. Niles of Edinboro, Pa. Elder Brinkerhoof of Alfred Centre, N. Y., was also present.

We had quite an enjoyable meeting till the last discourse which was preached by Eld. Black, in which he labored hard to prove that Christ is the son of Joseph, and that his death was not sacrificial. Said discourse caused much dissatisfaction, both inside and out, and may cause division here though I hope and pray that it may not. I would just say in the language of Paul "Mark them that cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them." Again in his exhortations to Timothy, "Take heed unto thyself and the doctrine, continue in them, for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee." Watch and pray brethren, we are living in perilous times. Yours for the Truth. P. H. BOUK.

A Double Funeral.

Sept. 13th, 1893, in Calhoun Co. Mich., Brother John Moore and his beloved wife Ann Moore, fell asleep in Jesus. Bro. Moore was born in Summitshire, England, Mar. 27, 1810, and came to this country in 1828, settling near Syracuse, N. Y. In 1830, he was married to Ann Butler who was also born in Summitshire, England, Sept. 17th, 1814. There was born to them two sons and five daughters, five of whom survive them. About two years after their marriage they came to Michigan settling in Lenawee Co. In 1853 they moved to Athens where they have since resided. About twelve years ago on account of poor health they sold their farm and went to live with their children who made their declining years as comfortable as possible. They were greatly attached to their children and to each other. Their prayer was that they might die together. They were earnest Christians, and died in the hope of the resurrection, and of the second coming of Christ. Words of consolation were spoken by the writer from Job xiv. 14.

L. H. CHESEBROUGH.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Plymouth, Ind. commencing on Friday, Nov. 17, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren of like precious faith are invited to come and be with us at this meeting. Let us heed the admonition to meet together and exhort one another that we may be built up and strengthened in the most Holy Faith, remembering that our salvation depends upon our own individual exertions.

J. F. WAGONER, PRES.
A. C. ROBERTS, SEC.

One Fare every day, commencing Oct. 19th and continuing until Oct. 31st, the Nickel Plate Road will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return at rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets good on all trains and good returning ten days but no later than Nov. 5th, 1893.

Have you seen the World's Fair? If not, you will always regret it. See Nickel Plate Road's agents about one-fare rates every day commencing Oct. 19th.

Poetry.

The Day of God.

Thy kingdom come—on bended knee
The passing ages pray;
And faithful souls have yearned to see
On earth that kingdom's day.

But the slow watches of the night
Not less to God belong;
And for the ever-resting Right
The silent stars are strong.

And, lo! already on the hills
The flags of dawn appear;
Gird up your loins, ye prophet souls,
Proclaim the day is near.

The day in whose clear shining light
All wrong shall stand revealed,
When Justice shall be throned in might,
And every hurt be healed.

When knowledge, hand in hand with peace,
Shall walk the earth abroad;
The day of perfect righteousness,
The promised day of God!

—F. L. Hosmer.

Selected.

Duties Devolving upon Disciples after Faith, Repentance and Baptism.

"And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, all power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations (or make disciples of or out of all nations. Margin,) baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen." Matt. xxviii. 18, 19, 20.

I. The Apostles were commanded to make disciples out of, or among all nations. Mark informs us how they were to make disciples, viz: to "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark xvi. 15, 16. Thus teaching that the Apostles were to preach the Gospel to every creature; and that those to whom they should preach must believe the Gospel and be baptized in order to salvation.

II. After having discipled men they were to teach them "all things whatsoever" Christ had "commanded" them. The commandments of Christ, therefore, are the supreme rule of action, as far as all Christians are concerned. Obedience to all the commandments of Christ is the only status of character which the Father will approve. Christ as the teacher in his own school, has a legal right to prescribe rules by which it shall be governed, and it is the duty of all loyal pupils in that school, to render implicit obedience. In well regulated schools, all the commandments of the teacher must be obeyed. The same principle is involved in the transgression of one commandment, in the constitution of Christ, that is in the transgression of the whole code of laws. Christ would be a minister of sin to grant indulgence to violate one of the least of His commandments just as much as though he should legalize the violation of the whole law. His law must require perfect loyalty, or legalize a principle, which if carried out, would subvert the foundation upon which his government rests.

This principle of perfect obedience is involved in the following language of James. "For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, is guilty of all." James ii. 10. His law may be compared to a ring, dissever it in one place, and the ring is broken. Christ's law requires perfect obedience: violate one commandment, therefore, and the law is broken, and the capital penalty is incurred just the same as though every commandment had been violated. There can be no degrees in a capital penalty. Whether a man kills one or a hundred men, the penalty in either case is the same. All responsible men are divided into two classes, Rom. ii. 6-9. All of one class are good, and all of the other class are bad. All are either for or against Christ. Luke xvi. 13. Matt. xii. 30. Hence to reward every man according to his works is to give to all the good, the promised reward, and to all the bad, the threatened penalty. But while God could not accept anything less than perfect obedience without legalizing rebellion in His empire, he has incorporated an article of mercy in his constitution, by which he can grant pardon, without having first granted indulgence to sin. He has employed an able Advocate in behalf of all his erring children, and through his intercession agreed to grant pardon to all who will confess their sins in sincerity and truth. See 1 John i. 9, 1 John ii. 1. But the conditions of his Son's undertaking our cause are a Gospel faith, repentance and baptism. As a merciful teacher he will advocate the cause of all his erring disciples who shall have complied with the conditions of pardon.

Again, Christ is represented as the head, and the Church his body, Eph. ii. 22, 23. Col. i. 18. As all the members of the natural body, (in a normal condition,) move in obedience to the head, which is the umpire, so should all the members of his mystic body move in obedience to all the commandments of their living head. And as each member of the animal body moves in unison with every other member; so should all the members in the spiritual body of Christ be in perfect accord, and move on harmoniously without one jarring note of discord. As in the natural body so should it be in the church of Christ, where one member suffers, all the other members should sympathize, and render all needful assistance. There is a mutual sympathy and interest in all the members of the natural body. So ought it to be with all the members of Christ's body.

Thus being united in love and sympathy with each other, and all in unison with their acknowledged head, the church of God would be like a city set on a hill, the light of whose example would not be hid, and before whose moral power infidelity would quail.

Christ as the head will plead with the Father to pardon all the members of his body who may have complied with the conditions of pardon. Thus the condition of pardon, after having become members of the body of Christ, is confession of our sins to the Father, who through the intercession of his Son, has promised full and complete pardon. Christ as the legate of the Father was clothed with authority to enforce his law. He said unto them "All authority (Syriac and Campbell) is given to me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore (for this reason) and teach all nations." etc.

In the midst of the glories of the transfiguration, the voice of the Father was heard from heaven, saying, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased: hear ye Him." Matt. xvii. 1-5. Christ is that Prophet whom the Father raised up, in whom he put his words, and concerning whom he said to Moses, "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and I will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him." Deut. xviii. 18, 19. Peter applies this prophecy to Christ, and says; "For Moses truly said unto the fathers, a prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." Acts iii. 22, 23. Hence, Christ as the principal teacher in his school has a legal right to prescribe the rules by which his school shall be governed, and it is the imperative duty of all his learners to repose implicit confidence in their teacher, and to render perfect obedience to all the rules and ordinances of the school. As the head of his Church, which is his body, he has the ecclesiastical right to educate, discipline and control all the members of his body, and it is the unquestionable duty of all the members of his body to move harmoniously in subordination to all the requirements of their infallible head. Christ being the legate of the great Jehovah, (having been invested with authority to enforce his Father's law, as Moses legislated for his people.) it is the imperative duty of all loyal men to take the oath of allegiance to his government, by complying with the conditions now of future citizenship in his kingdom, and of maintaining our allegiance by obedience to all his precepts, unto death, or unto his glorious Apocalypse to assume the government of the world. Perfect obedience to all the commandments of God, whether published by angels to Adam, by Moses and the Prophets to Israel, or by Christ and his apostles to the world, is the only status of character which God has ever required. The plan which God has projected in Eden will be carried out without variation or change. Infinite wisdom devised the plan, infinite goodness inspires, and almighty power executes, and it must and will succeed. If the plan was not absolutely perfect at the beginning, then the wisdom, goodness or power of God must have been at fault. Infinite wisdom could devise a plan which shall succeed, infinite goodness will inspire the execution of the best plan, and Almighty power can execute whatever plan infinite wisdom has devised. But if the original plan was absolutely perfect then any change would necessarily be for the worse. To affirm that the Great God would exchange a perfect plan for an imperfect one, would be an impeachment of his infinite goodness and boundless benevolence. God's plan being the reflex of his own character, is as immutable as its Eternal Author:

it can no more change therefore than God can change. The modes of administration may change, but the plan itself can never change. All will admit that if Adam had rendered perfect obedience to the law of God he would have received eternal life, together with all the glorious rewards God purposed to associate therewith. And will he not bestow the same rewards upon all men, irrespective of personalities, who shall have been perfectly loyal to his government? I find myself therefore tied down to the conclusion that the only test of character God has ever had is perfect loyalty to his revealed will or law. All, whether living or dead, when our Lord returns, whose character shall be in perfect accordance with the law of God, will receive all the rewards of God purposed to give his loyal children when he made man. All the glorious promises of the Gospel are held out as incentives to induce men to accept God's perfect plan, to comply with the conditions he has prescribed, submit willingly to the discipline, and develop characters of loyalty to his government, that his original plan may be carried out in saving them. The object of the Gospel, - aye, of all God has ever done for man, in giving a revelation of his will, the teachings of a long line of prophets and seers, the gift of his Son, his life and teachings, and the lives and teachings of his apostles, together with all the precepts he has ever given, —the great object I say of all God has ever done for man, has been to rescue him from the thrall brought upon the world by the transgression of our great primogenitor - the first Adam and as overwhelming motives to wean the affections of the noblest men and women in every age, from the fascinations of the world, and to accept God's plan, with all the trials, privations, sufferings, and discipline indissolubly associated therewith. The original plan of God will be carried out through the second Adam. God's original purpose was that the instrumentality through whom his plan should be accomplished should render perfect obedience to all his commandments, —otherwise, he must compromise the most essential principle in government, viz. : loyalty. No government can long stand which lightly esteems loyalty, or which shares the emoluments of honor with rebels. This course would have established a dangerous precedent in the administration of the government of God upon earth. Moreover, God could not endorse an imperfect model without compromising the absolute perfection of his character. Hence, he whom God can approve as a model man, must himself be perfect. That God requires the same status of character in all the followers of Christ, which he required of both Adams, viz., obedience to all his commandments, is evident from the following testimony of the faithful and true witness. He says, "As the Father hath loved me so have I loved you: continue ye in my love." John xv. 9. Why did the Father love his Son, and why does he love his disciples? The next verse will answer this important question. "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love." There are two points in this verse worthy of notice:

I. The status of Christ's character which his Father loved was that of loyalty to his law. It was on account of his disloyalty that the first Adam was rejected, and the privilege was given to the second Adam of developing a character of perfect obedience, through which God could carry out his original plan. The second Adam complied with these conditions, and for this reason his Father loved him, and not simply because he was his Son.

II. He loves, approves, and will save all who keep his commandments as he kept his Father's commandments. Thus, the object of all Gospel preaching and teaching, is to develop a character of obedience to the commandments of God as taught by Christ. The following testimony of Christ is of the same import. "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. If a man love me he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." John xiv. 15, 21, 23; xv. 14. The sentiment is enforced from a negative stand point, in the fourteenth chapter of John and the twenty-fourth verse. "He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me."—J. M. Stephenson, Herald of Kingdom.

Facts Not Generally Known. No. 3.

That the crown of righteousness which Paul expected will be bestowed when Jesus returns, and not at Paul's death. 2 Tim. iv. 8.

That the resurrection is for those who are responsible by a knowledge of the truth, and not for every human being. Dan. xii. 2.

That the hope of Paul was centered in the Resurrection, and not in the day of his death. Phill. iii. 11.

That salvation depends upon a resurrection from the dead, and is not attained in this life, or at death. 1 Cor. xv. 18.

That some people will sleep a perfect sleep, and will not participate in the resurrection. Isa. xxvi. 14.

That some individuals are extinct, and are not living in either happiness or woe. Isa. xliii. 17.

That many mighty men will sleep a perpetual sleep, and will not have any awakening. Jer. li. 57.

That the judgment will not take place until after the resurrection, and not at every individual death. 2 Tim. iv. 1.

That Jesus Christ is to return to the earth, and will not remain in heaven for ever. Acts i. 11.

That Jesus is at present seated on his Father's throne in heaven, and is not yet reigning on his own throne. Rev. iii. 21.

That Christ will remain in heaven until the time arrives for him to return, and he is not going to remain away always. Psa. cx. 1.

That the kingdom of Israel is to be restored, and has not been overthrown for ever. Ezek. xxxvi. 22.

That the Jews are to be gathered again to their own land as one nation, and are not to remain in exile for ever. Jer. xxiii. 8.

That the kingdom of God is the ancient kingdom of Israel restored, and not a "sky kingdom." 1 Chron. xxix. 23.

That the kingdom of God in the future will be a political kingdom on earth, with Jesus Christ as King, and is not the "Church." Rev. xi. 15.

That the kingdom over which Jesus will reign will be the political Kingdom of the Jews, and not a "spiritual" reign in men's hearts. Luke i. 33.

That Jesus is to sit upon the throne of his father David, and not on a throne above the skies. Luke i. 32.

That the throne of Christ will be in Jerusalem, and not in heaven. Psa. cxxii. 5.

That Christ will be king over the whole earth, and not king of heaven. Zech. xiv. 9.

That the seed of Abraham is Christ, not the Jews. Gal. iii. 16.

That the seed of Abraham (Christ) is to inherit the land of Cannan, which is upon earth, and not in heaven. Gen. xvii. 8.

That the promised land extends from the river of Egypt unto the river Euphrates, and is not "beyond the realms of time and space." Gen. xv. 18.

That God is a God of love, and not of cruelty. 1 John iv. 8.

That the punishment God inflicts for sin is death, and not eternal misery. Rom. vi. 23.

That everlasting punishment is death, and is not eternal torments. Gen. iii. 19.

That the wicked are to be consumed, and are not to linger for ever in agony. Psa. xxxvii. 20.

That sinners are to be destroyed, and not to be preserved alive in fire. Psa. cxlv. 20.

That the soul which sins is to die, and not to be plunged into a fiery hell. Ezek. xviii. 4.

That all who do wickedly are to be burnt up, and not to be eternally tortured in the fire. Mal. iv. 1.

That the wicked will be punished with everlasting destruction, and not with perpetual agony. 2 Thess. i. 9.

That God is gracious and merciful, and not cruel. Joel ii. 13.

That God has compassion upon his creatures, and does not willingly afflict them. Lam. iii. 33.

That the anger of God endures but for a moment, and does not continue throughout eternity. Psa. xxx. 5.

That the mercy of God endures for ever, but not his anger. Psa. cxxxvi. 1.

That the Lord is good to all, and his tender mercies are over all his works, and he is not the fiend which "orthodox" teachers make make him. Psa. cxlv. 9.

That death, and sorrow, and crying, and pain are all to be done away with, and are not to continue for ever. Rev. xxi. 4.

That the devil is to be destroyed, and is not to exist for ever. Heb. ii. 14.

That the word "devil" simply means a false accuser, and not a fiend from hell. John vi. 70.

That the word "Satan" means an adversary, and not a fallen angel. Matt. xvi. 23.

That in one instance the word "Satan" is applied to God. 1 Chron. xxi. 1 compare with 2 Sam. xxiv. 1.

That by one man sin entered the world, and not by the "orthodox" devil. Rom. v. 12.

(To be Continued.)

Original.

The Tree of Life.

The commencement of Scripture Gen. ii. 9, introduces the Tree of Life prominently to the reader in connection with the Tree of Knowledge of good and evil, the latter alone being forbidden to Adam.

At the very close of Scripture the Tree of Life again comes prominently into notice, this time in connection with a threat. The Savior testifies, Rev. xxii. 18-19, that "if any man shall take away from the words of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the Tree of Life and out of the Holy City, etc."—R. V.

What then is the Tree of Life, and what its function?

There is no sufficient reason to doubt it is a literal tree or rather species of tree—for the description is precise, Rev. xxii. 2, "And on this side of the river, and on that, was the tree of Life, bearing twelve crops of fruit, yielding its fruit every month, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations" R. V.

Apparently this means that the river was bordered on either bank by rows of these trees.

In Rev. ii. 7 it says, "To him that overcometh, to him will I give to eat of the tree of Life which is in the Paradise of God." R. V. And in v. 11, "He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death," this looks like cause and effect; the immortality depending on access to the tree of Life.

In the narrative in Genesis we are told that when Adam sinned and incurred the death penalty, God carried the sentence into effect by denying him access to the tree of Life—the act and the reason for it is there given on the authority of God himself in the plainest terms.

In the Apocalypse it is clear that the tree of Life is intended for those only having the right of entry into the Holy City. "Blessed are they that wash their robes, that they may have the right to come to the tree of Life and may enter in by the gates into the City." Without are the dogs and the sorcerers, etc. Rev. xxii. 14, R. V., and that to have one's part taken away from the tree of Life is a dread punishment, Rev. xxii. 18, 19.

To ordinay people who are not learned theologians or great authorities in Scriptural exegesis and who have to use common sense in understanding Scripture, this looks like pretty plain sailing.

If God carried out the sentence of death against Adam by removing from his reach the tree of Life, it is reasonable to infer that those mentioned in Revelations as debarred the use of the tree are also condemned to death, i. e. the second death referred to in Rev. ii. 11.

If man is inherently immortal what is the object of cutting him off from the use of the tree of Life?

If the righteous in the Paradise of God actually need access to the tree of Life to prolong existence, now can the wicked in Hell exist for ever without such aid?

Has sin itself an advantage over righteousness, in that it can confer eternal existence?

If this last be true, why were we told that sin when finished terminates in death, which looks very much like a falsehood?

If, on the other hand, the tree of Life is aptly named, there is no clash with the declaration that "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is Eternal Life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The Savior confers this gift on those he permits to enter the Holy City, by providing them with the tree of Life, whilst those rejected by him are shut out, and being left no means of prolonging their existence. Sin in them, when finished, culminates in death which is eternal there being no second resurrection so far as revealed.

That there are different degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom is assured, and there is Scripture warrant for the belief that those found watching and ready when the Master returns in power will be clothed with much greater rank and authority than those Christians found careless or not watching and consequently not received at his advent.

We are told that the Bride or Elect will no longer be called servants but brethren. And upon these may be conferred inherent immortality through Christ, rendering them independent of the tree of Life, and accompanied by a much higher grade of glorification.

In any case it is easy to conceive a great difference between Eternal Life on sufferance and by favor, and immortal life per se.

It has nevertheless to be borne in mind that while "Many are called, but few are chosen."

It is hardly to be supposed that any but those who have made an entire practical surrender of themselves and all the pomps and vanities of the world will be among the elect composing the Bride, and these are very, very few, even searching among the better and more spiritual Christians. Whatsoever a man soweth, that he shall reap. Be not deceived, God is not mocked. If ambition, pleasure or money is in any respect dear to you, you are carrying a burden that will ruin your hopes.

As a fact the love of money is to day doing the devil's work among Christians more than any other two or three causes combined; it is we are told the root of all evil, and a peculiar hindrance of our Christian people. It is so grafted into our natures that we actually do not realize how mean and contemptible and selfish it makes us.

It is exceedingly difficult—impossible in fact, to support the "orthodox" legend of eternal punishment without resort to the science of Scriptural interpretation. This science supports the view that every thing that conflicts with preconceived vagaries may be adjudged allegorical and interpreted to suit conveniences.

There are many objections to this method of dealing with God's word. First, if the pseudo-Christian claims such a right, he can not consistently condemn the agnostic, infidel or opposition-church Christian, who adopts the same method, and at times this makes a little awkwardness.

Secondly, if it be admitted that the Scriptures cannot be accepted literally, then an interpreter is needed, and as no inspired interpreter is to be found, the Scriptures are worthless, as much so as if written in some unknown hieroglyphics.

What is the value of a revelation from God that reveals nothing at all?

Either the inspired Word means just what it says or it does not, and if the latter, then how are we to know what it does mean?

We cannot trust our learned men and celebrated theologians—for they differ with each other on most important points and are constantly persecuting others for holding views, which, in course of time they themselves often adopt, for it is remarkable that the more profound and abstruse theologians are generally behind the ignorant public in reaching the Truth.

Some churches even, years since, persecuted men for denying views that the same churches now are bullying their ministers for admitting and vice versa.

When these wise men can settle among themselves what it is they do believe, it will be time enough to rely on their interpretation of God's Word.

It may be some of these views are not strictly orthodox—well what of it?

Paul, nay Christ himself was not orthodox and both suffered for that reason—to-day if living they would be heretics.

Better to be heretical with Peter and Paul and John and Jesus than orthodox with the Pope of Rome, the Arch-Bishop of Canterbury or our own wonderful, popular, fashionable divine who decant weekly his kaleidoscopic views into half the Jim Crow papers of the country.

Stand fast in the faith. Let no man corrupt you from the simplicity there is in Christ Jesus.

H. T. Baker.

Time flies and if you don't look out, you may fail to see the World's Fair. The best opportunities yet afforded will be the Nickel Plate Road's daily one-fare excursions, commencing Oct. 10th.

"Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him." Mal. iii. 16, 17.

World's Fair excursions will be run every day commencing Oct. 10th, via the popular Nickel Plate Road.

World's Fair Excursion $2.55 Round Trip to Chicago from Plymouth Ind., Oct. 17 and 21 via Pennsylvania Lines.

Children under 12 years of age one half the above rate. Tickets will be good for passage only in the Pennsylvania Standard coaches on all regular trains on the above dates, except the Columbian Express on the P. Ft. W. and C. Ry Return coupons valid ten days from date of sale. The final closing time of the Columbian Exposition is rapidly drawing nigh; great events are transpiring daily, all tending to enhance the value of the Fair as an educator in every sense of the word. The facilities of the Pennsylvania Lines to Chicago are unexcelled. Stops are made at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood to discharge passengers and baggage. These are Pennsylvania Line World's Fair Stations convenient to the grounds, hotels and boarding houses, for details apply to J. E. Hanes, Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

Daily excursions to the World's Fair, via the popular Nickel Plate Road commencing Oct. 10th, one fare for the round trip.

If "Charity should begin at home." it is manifesting wrong to imagine it should also end there.

The Last of the World's Fair.

The Exposition will close Oct. 31st. During the last twelve days of the World's Fair the Nickel Plate Road will run one-fare excursions every day.

"David's Throne."

According to the promise made by God unto the Israelitish fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, he sent his servant Moses to lead his people Israel out of the land of Egypt to the land of promise. Moses, because of disobedience, died in the wilderness, and was not permitted to enter the Holy Land. But Joshua the son of Moses, by the command of God, completed the task that Moses began. He led them into their land, and divided it unto them by lots, and there they did "prosper into a kingdom." Ezek. xvi. 13. Rejecting God as their King, they had given to them, Saul the son of Kish. But because of his unfaithfulness, God gave the kingdom to David the son of Jesse, a man after his own heart, and to him he promised "thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee; thy throne shall be established for ever." 2 Sam. vii. 16.

Just before his decease, we are told, "Now these be the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, and the man who was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel said, the Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue. The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, he that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain." 2 Sam. xxiii. 1-4.

Again, we have it written that God said: "I have made a covenant with my chosen. I have sworn unto David my servant, thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. . . . . Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established forever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven." Psa. lxxxix. 3, 4, 35-37.

The prophet Isaiah says: Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." Isa. ix. 6, 7.

The descendants of David sat upon his throne for many generations. To the last one (Zedekiah) God said, "Thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end. Thus saith the Lord God. Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same; exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him." Ezek. xxi. 25-27.

It is contended that the promise made by God to King David, in relation to his throne in the passages quoted, was fulfilled in the person of Solomon, but the last two show unmistakably that this was not so. The promise in Isaiah's prophecy was given some centuries after Solomon had passed to the dust; and the one contained in Ezekiel speaks of the overturning of David's throne until the coming of the one to whom it belongs. Hence we must look to another than Solomon to fulfill the promise.

Turning to the New Testament, we find the angel Gabriel announcing the birth of Jesus to his mother Mary, and saying, "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke i. 32, 33. Surely this looks like the one who is to fulfill the promise. Again we read, "Therefore (David) being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." Acts ii. 30.

After such evidence as this one would think it scarcely possible that anyone would contend that the promise was fulfilled in Solomon. Yet, strange to say, the majority of those who profess to follow the Christ do so. No doubt the reason in many instances is a lack of knowledge of what is written in the Scriptures; while in other instances preconceived notions blind the eyes to the truth. Nevertheless this promise is yea and amen in Christ Jesus (as are all the other promises of God), and in due time the Redeemer shall come out of Zion, and turn away ungodliness from Jacob, building again the tabernacle of David that is fallen down, and raising again the ruins thereof. Of Him it is written: "He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment. . . . He shall judge the poor of the people; He shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor. . . . He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass; as showers that water the earth." How like these words are the prophetic utterances of the sweet psalmist of Israel, "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun ariseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain." Has God not declared that he will set his king upon his holy hill of Zion, and command him to ask of him, and he will give him the nations for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession? Hence it is written of him when he is enthroned in Zion in fulfillment of the promise made unto his father David that "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." And that "They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him, and his enemies lick the dust. Yes, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him."

P. A. Hutchison.

Appointments.

The annual meeting of the northwest conference of the "Church of God" will convene at Mountain Side School-house near Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, commencing Friday evening Oct. 20, 1893, and continue through the week.

A general invitation is extended to all lovers of the truth, and we sincerely hope many will avail themselves of this one more opportunity of hearing the Word of God expounded by those who have made it a study for years. Therefore we earnestly entreat all that have an interest in the cause of the Master to lay aside work and make a little sacrifice if need be and come and help us make this meeting one to be long remembered.

To the isolated brethren and sisters who may not be able to come, I would say, we would be glad to hear from them by letter. Let them give us a word of exhortation and cheer that will do us good. Such letters read in our conferences do more good than they may think. Teams will be in Portland Friday, at one o'clock, at the National Hotel, for those wishing to be conveyed to the place of meeting. If we receive no letters there will be no teams there. We understand that Brother Geo. W. Young will be with us to labor in the interest of the meeting.

Brethren, another conference year has almost passed away. Do you feel as I do today, that

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

Almira Brooks, Sec'y.

We would be glad to see a large company of brethren at our N. W. conference to be held at Scholl's Ferry, Oregon, October 20th. We expect to meet for the first time in our new chapel, which is large enough, and our homes hospitable enough, to accommodate all that will come. Come, brethren, come!

W. L. Skeels.

The first quarterly conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene (D. V.) at Coats' Grove, Barry county, Friday morning, October 20th, at 10:30, and meetings will continue over the following Sunday. Brethren, if you have not dealt out your money too freely for the World's Fair or some other selfish pleasure, try hard to count yourself and family as a great necessity at this coming meeting. The brethren there are very anxious to have all their beds and tables filled, and more than that do they desire that some souls shall be brought into a saving knowledge of the truth, and each of you who come will be a means to that end. Can you stay away when the Master is calling for workers to help reap in the sheaves for His coming? Come, one and all, and hear the good news of the coming King.

Those coming from the north on M. C. R. R. will reach Hastings about 7 p. m., and will be met by brethren to convey them the other five miles to Coats' Grove. Those coming from south change cars at Kalamazoo, take C. K. & S. road and reach Coats' Grove about 5 p. m.

Sisters, remember and have a report of your tithing, that we may know what we are doing. Each church will also try and send a delegate with report of their church.

M. A. Woodward, Sec'y.

The Lord willing there will be a conference at East Plum River, known as Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, to commence October 27th and continue over Sunday. Brother and Sister Woodward and others will be with us to preach the word. Those coming by rail will come to Lanark, Ill., where there will be teams to take all that will come to the place of meeting.

Now, brethren and sisters, make an extra effort to be with us and let us have one more feast of spiritual blessing long to be remembered.

J. D. Renner, Sec'y.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxanna Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

Cheap Rates to Chicago.

Regular rate for round trip tickets on Pennsylvania Lines from Plymouth to Chicago $4.60. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to November 5th, $4.10. Special rate for round trip tickets limited to ten days from date of sale, upon advertised dates for daylight coach excursions, $2.55.

For particulars please call on or address nearest agent of Pennsylvania Lines, or J. E Hanes, Ticket Agent, Plymouth, Ind.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$81.00
"A friend,"	23.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas, J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

Twenty Important Questions.

A new 2 page tract, being the 20 important questions, by B. Wilson, published in this paper last October. This is an excellent campaign tract. Will start people to thinking. Get a supply, and scatter them out. Contains about as much reading as two columns of this paper. 10 cents a dozen, 40 cents a hundred. Send to this office.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Circleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Mars all Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

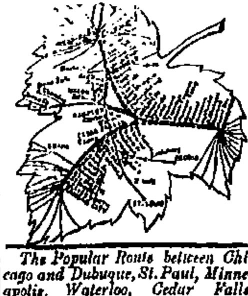
We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals or all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by 20,000 Baptists, in 1660. 3. Immortality. 4. The Kingdom of God. 5. Nature of Man and things for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the wicked. 10 Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 30 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; 20 for 15c; 50 for 25c, 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the cardinal points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Stanley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5c. each. 15 for 50c. 30 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 44 pages, price 25c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July 29, 1879, by Jos. Lacter. Can be had at this office at 10c., each, 3 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Tradition of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 27 pages, by W. Biddle, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Heir of All Things. Carrie Williams. This little book of 160 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land in the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 376 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being two lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 160 pages, price 35 cts., or four for $1 postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the readings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; leather binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 235 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and no man can answer it. Price 50 cts.

Cruden's Concordance—Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation—every bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 125 pages, cloth bound, for 15 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page, "The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 350 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 12 for $1.80; 50 for $6.60. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a hymn book issued from The Restitution office, containing 176 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 25 pages of Hymns for children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 5 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 466 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.50.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 144 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 368 pages, 4th edition. Cloth. 50 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen. 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 386 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1946 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Ninth and Spring Garden Sts, Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsay Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 1810 Stiling Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m., every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. N. H. Geiselman every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every 3d Sunday in the month, also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in Hall southeast corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10.30 a. m. Sunday School at 11 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at 10 o'clock for Sunday school and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any be thren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in district No. 33 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Alonzo Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. S. Greene Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill: cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 3, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Knife, Kessler, or G. L. Lebman, West Milton, O.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. L. Wilson, Elder; Eliza Style, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harlan and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dalton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich. have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 24, Passenger, Leaves		[illegible]
No. 22,	"	[illegible]
No. 26,	"	[illegible]
No. 150, Local,	"	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves		[illegible]
No. 29,	"	[illegible]
No. 27,	"	[illegible]
No. 151, Local,	"	[illegible]

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 6 12 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 8:55 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Tri. Manager.
CHAS. F. DALY, Gen Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect June 12, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:05pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 54, "	5:15pm	"
No. 56, "	10:08pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:50pm	" "
No. 55, "	4:57pm	" "

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. B. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l, Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.
Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.
Pittsb'gh lv.	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
FtWayne	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
ColumbiaCy	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Eagle Lake	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	[illegible]

Eastward.
Chicago lv.	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Eagle Lake	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
ColumbiaCy	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
FtWayne	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]
Mansfield lv.	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Alliance ar.	[illegible]
Pittsb'gh ar.	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager.
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

NICKEL PLATE.
The Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

THREE TRAINS EAST WEST DAILY.

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN... NEW YORK, BOSTON AND CHICAGO

TICKETS SOLD TO ALL POINTS AT LOWEST RATES

Baggage Checked to Destination. Special Rates for Parties.

Trains arrive at and depart from Nickel Plate Depot, corner Twelfth and Clark streets, Chicago; Union Depot of the Erie Ry. at Buffalo. At Cleveland, trains stop at Euclid avenue, Madison avenue, Willson avenue, Broadway, Pearl street, Main street and at Detroit street, from either of which stations passengers may be conveyed by street car to any part of the city.

For rates and other information see Agents of the Nickel Plate Road, or address

WILLIAM ...,
Gen'l Sup't.
D. F. HORNER,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
CLEVELAND, O.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

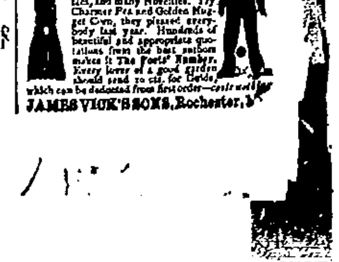
Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidence. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. 5 cts. English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I should like to see it circulated."—Lord Shaftesbury.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. 15 cts.
3. Inward Testimony to Truth of the Bible, 10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament, 5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant, [illegible] cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses," 5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers, 5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament, 15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson. [illegible] cts.
11. Geological Evolution, " [illegible] cts.
12. The Origin of Life, " [illegible] cts.
13. Darwinism, [illegible] cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White. [illegible] cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible] cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
20. Hints for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity. [illegible] cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey, [illegible] cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey. [illegible] cts.
24. Familiar Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey. [illegible] cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey. [illegible] cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey. [illegible] cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible] cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings. [illegible] cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H. [illegible] cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism. [illegible] cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English language that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 27, 28, etc., 5 cts. single; 50 cts. a dozen; $3. per 100; $10. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.



VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE

For 1893, just issued, contains Colored Plates of Alpine Aster, Begonia, Dahlias, Cannas, Clematis, Dutchman's Pipe, Pansies, Corn and Poinsettias. Descriptions and prices of the very best Flowers and Vegetables, and many Novelties. Try Charmer Pea and Golden Nugget Corn, they pleased everybody last year. Hundreds of beautiful and appropriate quotations from the best authors makes it The Poets' Number. Every lover of a good garden should send 10 cts. for Guide, which can be deducted from first order—costs nothing.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 25, 1893. NO. 40.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
— FOR THE —
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT RAINEAUX.
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. B. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLYMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40

Poetry.

Palestine.

O sacred land! [illegible] vale and hill
Sweet voices seem to echo still;
Thy mountains rise, thy rivers flow,
Replete with tales of long ago.

And o'er the [illegible] of thy seas,
The waves, [illegible] by the passing breeze,
Perchance this [illegible] as of yore,
Break with [illegible] music on the shore.

The blessed book of gospel grace
Was molded on thy furrowed face,
Thy sacred lineaments compare
With every line recorded there.

Thy roads were trod, thy streamlets [illegible]
Were sparkled by [illegible] of old:
Their deeds [illegible] hundred here
With every [illegible] prayer.

Here [illegible] Savior's humble birth;
And [illegible] on here on earth,
[illegible]
The sick to [illegible], the poor to bless.

The garden's [illegible] and woes
And all the scenes of Calvary
Do still a hallowed lustre shed,
That time and change can never fade.

And never tale of other land,
Nor fiction strange, nor poet grand,
Can move the hearts of young or old
Like that sweet story simply told.

Arab and Turk, each babbling tongue
Of rude barbarian, Gentile throng,
Know little of the dust they tread,
That round them lie the mighty dead.

For many a patriarch, many a seer,
Hold still their silent resting here,
And wait the illustrious day that brings
The coming of the King of kings.

O wasted land! one change for thee,
The whole creation waits to see,
When change and strife and war shall cease,
And usher in eternal peace.

—E. W. Darling.

Original.

Life and Death.

"He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God, hath not life." 1 John v. 12.

After over twenty years reading the Holy Scriptures, I can find but two results arising therein, viz: life and death; and how to attain the one, and escape the other, should engage the earnest attention of every creature endowed with human life. Happily God has given us an all-sufficient guide, clearly pointing out the way, the truth, and the life. But it is necessary that we fully comprehend the true meaning of the terms life and death, as regards their duration; every one must admit that they are positive and negative terms: and as a positive is in exact opposition to a negative, it follows that the positive term, temporal life, must have a temporal death; and in like manner, the negative term of eternal life, must be eternal death.

I have often thought, that if people could invest their minds with the idea that the gift of God is real, not unreal, is material, not immaterial, that it is a solid actual fact wherein man does not lose his identity as a person or substance, and not a mere visionary nonentity, it would be much easier to understand the whole of God's plan of salvation.

When those old Pagan Philosophers retold the old lie that had its birth in the Garden of Eden, by declaring the separate existence of the soul from the body, and proclaiming its natural immortality, they built a higher stumbling block in the way of truth and reason than they knew, unless they were under the direct influence of Satan himself.

Let us go back to Genesis and learn how man was created and of what elements he was composed, and how those elements were united to constitute a living soul.

Gen. ii. 7. And God formed man of the dust of the ground. Here we have the human form in perfection, all the physical machinery was present: a grand specimen of mechanism as it came from the hand of the Master Builder; yet it was inanimate clay; devoid of action in any of its attributes, capable neither of thought or feeling. But "God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." Thus we see by the union of the two elements earth and air, we have the perfect man, or living soul. Separate the two elements, and, there you are. Is the state or condition any different than before there was a creation? Most assuredly not. We can not claim immortality for it was not mentioned in any manner. Yet the living soul Adam might have continued to live indefinitely, if he had not disobeyed the commands of his Creator, sinned and incurred the penalty of death by transgression. And so "death passed upon all men for all have sinned." Like begets like, and it was utterly impossible for Adam to become the father of an immortal race, as we have conclusively shown that he himself was mortal. Thus we observe mankind to be in a very deplorable condition, as by disobedience he had forfeited God's pleasure, and until a space of 230 years had elapsed, did he realize his situation, when men began to "call upon the name of the Lord." As a result of Adam's sin the mind of man was continually prone to evil, yet God added many blessings to the creature of his handiwork, and was not willing they should perish from the face of the earth, and gradually unfolded to the world, through Patriarchs and Prophets, his great plan of redemption whereby man might regain his Edenic Estate, and attain unto a higher spiritual existence.

Luke bears testimony, that God sent his angel Gabriel unto a city of Galilee named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary. And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God. And, behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shall call his name Jesus.

He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Then Mary said unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore, also, that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God. Luke i. 26-31. And when the days were accomplished that she should be delivered, the angel of the Lord appeared unto shepherds who were watching their flocks by night and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. Luke ii. 8-11.

Here then was the great central figure to be used in man's redemption; a Savior to save men from death, and to give them eternal life. But although the Savior had come the Atonement had not been made, and we can now witness the wonderful love that God had for humanity. Nor can we but faintly conceive in our own minds what agony he endured to offer his well beloved Son, to suffer an ignominious death upon the cross, that we might have eternal life.

But right here let me call attention to the fact, that there were conditions involved in the act of offering this meek and lowly One as a redeemer, in which it was incumbent upon those who were to be benefitted that they should give something in return. Hear the conditions; "That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish." And, throughout the entire ministry of our Savior, this condition was prominently kept in view. There was duty to be performed, a work to be accomplished, else the object to be attained by his sufferings would have been in vain. While he ever proclaimed that he was to be a King, and that his dominion was as wide as the whole earth, and that the duration of his reign was as endless as eternity, and that after his crucifixion he should remain three days in the heart of the earth, and that at the end of that time he should rise again as it had been foretold of him. Yet there were many that doubted, while a few gave evidence of their faith, by continuing with him while he was tenderly laid away in the tomb.

What an agony of suspense did those faithful ones endure, while the brief three days passed slowly away. All devolved upon a resurrection to verify his teachings and confirm his words. But thanks be to God, he enabled him to triumph over death and the grave, to complete the Atonement, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. It now remains with us whether we will accept, or reject the conditions upon which eternal life is based. We are our own agents in this matter. Christ says, My yoke is easy and my burden is light. He overcame the temptations of the world, and now is sat down on the right hand of God, to remain as our Mediator, until the times of Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. Acts iii. 21.

And now comes the oft repeated question, "What must I do to be saved?" This is a very vital question. When Peter stood up, upon the day of Pentecost, and preached that sublime and incomparable sermon, his hearers evidently believed it to be gospel that he was teaching, and he further commanded them to repent and be baptized for the remission of sins. To believe any thing it is necessary to have faith. We must therefore have faith in the Lord Jesus; for it is the only name under heaven whereby we can be saved. It is very important that we have the Word of the Spirit for our guide. We must believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, Luke i. 35, and that he ascended into the heavens, Acts i. 9, and as he was personally taken away so will he come again. 1 Thess. iv. 16. We must not look for a reward for well doing until He comes. Rev. xxii. 12. We must believe that the future eternal home of the redeemed will be upon the earth, Matt. v. 5, and not in heaven. John xiii. 33.

We must also to our faith add repentance or Godly sorrow for any wrong we may have committed: and to repentance, baptism for the remission of sins: immersed into the all saving name of Jesus.

After obeying the conditions of the gospel and separating ourselves from the world, we must continue to fight the good fight of faith until the end. There is no stopping place, no half way ground; there will be many sacrifices to make, many heartaches to be endured, many sorrows to be borne; but the reward will be great, immeasurably greater, than the afflictions and trials that encompass us in this short life.

With what unspeakable joy should we long for the appearing of Him who hath redeemed us from every kindred, and nation, and hath washed us white in his own blood. After John the Revelator was banished to the desolate rocks and caves of Patmos, he had spread out before him in panoramic vision, the loveliness of the City Beautiful which will contain the throne of God and the Lamb, and the crucified Savior as its eternal King.

Jesus has promised us in these words, To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne. What a cheering thought! what a blessed privilege! what a glorious consummation! When the glory of God shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. When we can join in the glad songs of that ransomed host, and help swell the anthems that shall be rolled down the countless cycles of eternity, in praises to God for his wonderful goodness to the children of men.

Let us strive to possess the Spirit of the Son that we may have life.

MERRITT ELLIOTT.

Selected.

"Not Able to Kill the Soul."

"And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Matt. x. 28.

We have brought up this saying of the Lord, because it is believed by many to be undoubted proof of the immortality of the soul of man. We do not believe in the soul's immortality, and we think, rightly or wrongly, that this statement does not afford any support to the popular belief. If we, for a single moment thought that the Lord taught it, do you think we would refuse to believe it? What good would it do to us to refuse to accept his teaching? It would be the height of foolishness seeing we look upon him as the Great Teacher. We recognize it to be an honor to be related to him, and it is our aim in life to become like him in some degree. We therefore as conscientiously believe this utterance of his to be against the popular theory, as those who differ from us sincerely believe it to be favorable to their view.

This portion of Scripture cannot teach both ideas. If it teaches one, the other must fall to the ground; but its real meaning can only be ascertained by careful and candid examination. Prejudice either one way or the other can only do harm. No prejudiced man is a seeker after, or lover of truth, and the possession of truth should be placed above every other consideration, whether of sect, or church, or self-interest, or anything else.

To us it appears there are three methods of dealing with any Biblical question. It may sometimes be difficult to settle a question by any one of them, but, if by the pursuit of the three, or even two, the same end is reached, then we may feel pretty safe that we have entertained the correct solution. The first is the critical examination of the particular words used; the second, the study of the more immediate context in which the words are found; and the third, the investigation of the general teaching of Scripture. If men were only diligent enough, and candid enough to deal with difficulties and doctrines in this three-fold manner, there would, we think, be less difference of opinion; but the want of diligence and candor accounts largely for the extreme differences which unfortunately so widely prevail. Diligence and candor are qualities which should be characteristic of all who profess to be followers of truth.

Dealing first with the general teaching of Scripture, so far as we have been able to understand it upon the question of the soul, we have come to the conclusion (1) that man is himself a soul, a creature that lives by breathing, and (2) that the word soul is frequently applied to his life; but in neither case is the idea of immortality conveyed.

OLD TESTAMENT.

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Gen. ii. 7. "And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not any left to breathe . . ." Josh. xi. 11. "What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul (himself) from the hand of the grave?" Psa. lxxxix. 48.

NEW TESTAMENT.

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers . . ." Rom. xiii. 1. "And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea; and it became as the blood of a dead man; and every living soul died in the sea." Rev. xvi. 3.

We think these are fairly representative passages of the general teaching of Scripture, and we venture to say it is impossible to find the idea of immortality in any of them. To us they clearly show that man is simply a living soul, or breathing creature.

Next as to the application of the word soul to the life of man.

OLD TESTAMENT.

"In whose hand is the soul (margin, life) of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind." Job xii. 10. "David said to Saul . . . know thou and see that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou huntest my soul to take it." 1 Sam. xxiv. 11. Clearly David meant his life. "Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors." Isa. liii. 12. He "poured out his soul unto death" is equivalent to saying that he gave up his life.

NEW TESTAMENT.

"But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided." Luke xii. 20. Note:—The translators of the Revised Version give life as the alternate reading for soul. "For whosoever shall save his life shall lose it: and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Matt. xvi. 25, 26. Unquestionably in these two verses, the word soul and life are used interchangeably.

Let us now deal with the context where the words "Not able to kill the soul" occur.

From the context we gather that the Lord was giving instructions to his apostles when he sent them to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. He gives them not only specific instructions as to the course to be pursued, but words of warning and encouragement. He compares them to sheep in the midst of wolves, and counsels them to be wise as serpents, yet harmless as doves. He shows them the greatness of their calling by saying that every one who shall confess him before men, him will he confess before his Father in heaven. And then he adds, at verse 39, "He that findeth his life shall lose it, and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." Observe, the word here translated life is generally rendered soul; indeed we find "soul" given as the alternate rendering in the margin of the Revised Version. Thus the passage could read equally as well: "He that findeth his soul shall lose it; and he that loseth his soul for my sake shall find it." Did the Lord mean that if a man loses his "immortal soul" for his sake that he will find it? How could one lose his "immortal soul" for the Lord's sake? Is it not the current belief that if a man loses his soul it is because he serves the devil instead of Christ? Believers in the immortality of the soul should ponder over these words, "he that loseth his life (or soul) for my sake shall find it." Is there any approach to the idea of the soul's immortality in these words? Not the slightest. Is it not clear enough that the soul (as here used) is the life, and that the Lord's saying is simply this: that if a man sacrifices the present life for his sake, that he will be rewarded in the life to come? Thus the general teaching of Scripture, and the more immediate context fail to prove the popular belief.

Lastly, let us deal with the words themselves: "Not able to kill the soul." The full passage reads, "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in Gehenna." Verse 28. Unquestionably there is a distinction here between the body and the soul, but how far does that distinction lead us? Does it require us to believe that the body is not the man, but that the soul is? To answer in the affirmative is a pure assumption. The one is as much the man as the other, and neither is. How clearly man can kill—destroy the body; it is within his reach, and he has too often tortured and mutilated the bodies of those who refused to deny Christ! But he can do no more; the soul is not within his reach. How! It is the life. "In whose hand (God's) is the soul (margin life) of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind." Job xii. 10. The soul, or life is in God's hand alone. When he gives it, man becomes a living soul: when he withdraws it, death ensues; man returns to the dust from whence he came. Man may put the Christian to death, but nothing more; he has no power beyond that; not even the burning of the body at the stake and the scattering of the ashes to the four winds can prevent a renewal of the Christian's life. Man is therefore not to be feared. It is a small thing for the follower of Christ to lose his life now, in comparison with the loss of the endless life to come, because he knows that God who gave him life at first can cause him to live again. But rather is he to be feared who can destroy both soul and body in Gehenna, or utterly destroy—destroy without the slightest hope of there ever being a renewal of life, for he can keep the gates of the grave closed for ever. Why should the Lord in this part of his instructions to his apostles mean the "immortal, deathless part of man," "the real man," and towards the close of these instructions use exactly the same word and yet simply refer to the present life in contrast to the life to come? That would be inexplicable. Let any one who believes in the immortality of the soul meet the difficulty if he can; and let him meet this one also: If the view be correct that the soul is inherently immortal, that God has made it incapable of dying, and that it must live for ever, which is the common view, how can it be killed? "Oh!" it is said, "man cannot, but God can." Never, if he has made it deathless. God cannot deny himself. If he has created the soul immortal, beyond the power of death, even he cannot destroy it. We say so in all reverence. Why, if God could act in that way, where would be the guarantee after that we receive endless life (which he has promised, see Rom. ii. 6, 7; vi. 23; 1 John ii. 25) from the hands of his Son we may be deprived of it after all? It would be gone. But God sees the end from the beginning. He has created no man immortal, and therefore no man needs life for ever. He can deprive men of life because he has simply lent it to them. He has, however, decreed that when men believe and obey him, when they conform to the beautiful and perfect image of the Son of his love, he will give them life, leave it with them, make them immortal, so that they can die no more. See Luke xx. 35, 36.

—William Grant.

"Above all things keep your attention fixed upon the holy Scripture; give no ear to him that does not gather all his proofs from them, nor lead you in all things, back to them."—Justyn Martyr.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the [illegible] saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Baptism of the Holy Spirit.

There are some at the present day who claim to have the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and we have frequently heard others pray for it. Now it is clear to our mind that these persons do not understand the subject. This baptism was spoken of by John the forerunner of Jesus, Matt. iii. 11, and by Jesus himself, after his resurrection, Acts i. 5. John said that Jesus would baptize with or rather more correctly in Holy Spirit; and Jesus quoted John's language, and applied it to himself. The fulfillment of this took place on the day of Pentecost, when the disciples were gathered together, and were waiting for the promise of the Father, in accordance with the command of Jesus. We read, that "suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like of fire, and it sat upon each of them, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance." Acts ii. 2-4. This was the fulfillment of the promise. The subjects of this baptism were the disciples: the administrator was Jesus; the effects of it were visible.

There is only another similar instance recorded, and that occurred a few years after, at the call of the Gentiles. See Acts x. 44-46. Peter speaks of it to his brethren at Jerusalem, as follows; "and as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell on them as on us at the beginning. Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how he said, John indeed baptized with (in) water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit. Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, what was I, that I could withstand God?" Acts xi. 16-17. As in the first case, the effects were visible—those thus baptized were heard to speak with tonges.

These are the only baptisms of Holy Spirit recorded. True, there were others who received the Spirit, but they received it through the imposition of Apostles' hands. See Acts viii. 14-17. xix. 6; yet the same visible effects followed. Hence then, we conclude on the acknowledged principle that like causes produce like effects, whoever, in these modern days, pretends to have been a subject of the baptism of the Holy Spirit, must produce the same credentials the Apostles did, and speak in unknown tongues or work miracles, or else receive the stigma of a deluded fanatic.

— H. W. in H. K.

How Many Souls?

Philosophers of the nineteenth century tell us the soul is located in the "Pineal gland," between the right and left hemisphere of the brain. They also tell us that after the soul leaves the body, the body will never be resuscitated, but the soul can pick up floating particles of matter, and make itself a body at pleasure. Now, there is on exhibition, going through the United States, a young lady, eighteen years of age, with two heads—perfectly natural—and only one body. Who knows but that two of these souls got to quarreling over some "floating particles of matter"—not enough to make two bodies, and finally compromised the contest, as both could not occupy one head, making the wonderful creature called "the two headed girl."

If this is not the case, then we ask "Orthodoxy" if the "immortal soul" is the "mind," and the brain is the mind, how many immortal souls has she? Or, if the soul corresponds with the outlines of the body, has she a two-headed immortal soul?

[illegible] of the C. P. Association.
[illegible], Corresponding Editor.
[illegible]OUTH, INDIANA, Oct. 25, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The Christian Publishing Association will be held at Plymouth, Ind., on Nov. 18, 1893, at which time a Board of Directors is to be chosen for the coming year, and such other business transacted as may come before the Association.

ROBERT RAILSBACK, Pres.
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Sec'y.

MARSHAL MACMAHON, ex-President of France, who was prominent in the Franco-Prussian war a few years since, died Oct. 17. He was born in 1808.

BROTHER Joblin writes "that for between two and three months the attendance on the Word preached has steadily increased, till it keeps the brethren busy to find seats for them Sunday evenings, and you may well think how our hearts are rejoiced and encouraged; especially as some have asked, what they shall do to be saved."

THE newspapers are commenting upon the fact of the Afghans turning back a Russian officer with a few men as if they had been reading good literature, or else studying the destiny of Russia from a Bible standpoint.

THE great difference between a real Christian and a theoretical one is this, the one does his duty as soon as he learns what it is; the other acts of his own caprice, or pleasure, or taste, or convenience. It will not harm any one to use this plumb line.

STORMS, most destructive of life and property continue to follow each other in rapid succession,—thousands of lives have been lost within two weeks. The news from the South is appalling, and there are many sad homes and empty chairs in Cleveland and other cities on the lakes.

SOME one has quaintly said, "God looks not at the oratory of prayers, how eloquent they are; nor at their geometry, how long they are; nor at their arithmetic, how many they are; nor their logic, how methodical they are; but he looks at their sincerity." Very good so far as it goes,—why was nothing said about truth?

DR. PIERSON, who served a year as Spurgeon's successor, preached a sermon lately at Chicago on the "power of believing." These wise and prudent ones seem bound to have things their own way. We would like to thunder it into his ears that there is no power in believing—saving power of God is in the truth believed,—the Gospel of the grace of God. Were this otherwise man could be his own Savior.

NEWS from Paris on the 18th inst. says, "Despite the warning of the Czar the millions of France are perfectly enthused with the war spirit and urging them on to battle in spite of their leaders, and behind all these toasts to the peace and prosperity of France at the Russian banquet was the thinly concealed toast to the brotherhood in arms, expected to exist between Russia and France when the war trumpet calls all Europe to arms. These were toasts of war, not of peace, and nobody knows this better than the cool calculating, watchful minds of Germany, Italy, Austria and England. The enthusiasm shown by the French people is a clear-cut demonstration of with what a wild enthusiasm France would at a moment's notice go to war with Russia by her side. It shows the real feeling at the bottom of the French hearts, and the [illegible] the wind blows. Let us [illegible] watchers, brethren. [illegible]

"The Evangelical Alliance"

So called has been holding session in Columbia Hall of the Art Institute, at the World's Fair. A great work was laid out and great results are expected; they expect to unify the world religions. They propose measures for the furtherance of religious opinions, in order to strengthen Christian and promote religious liberty and co-operation in Christian work without interfering with the internal affairs of the different denominations. The President of the Congress, Mr. Bonney, said the Alliance was a grand demonstration of applied Christianity. Dr. Barrows said it was the work of this congress to bring Christianity nearer home to the people of the world, and to make it more practical; and prayed that it be the means of bringing about the reunion of Christendom, and the salvation of the world. Prof. Samuel Ives Curtis thought the one basis on which they could stand, was: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that all who believe may not perish but have everlasting life." With this broad platform all denominations will be swept away. Mrs. Potter Palmer said women of the churches were ready today to promote any plans for the amelioration of the world. Lord Kinnaird told of a small boy who told his mother that he wished he had father's money, and when asked why, said he thought he would be able to answer some of his prayers without so much praying. So in this unity question—let us talk less and get together.—Prof. Drummond spoke in the same vein; of the Captain of a coast guard who reported that a vessel went ashore that night, notwithstanding that we gave them through the speaking trumpet every assistance possible, and forty corpses had been washed ashore. The Prof. added, "There is too much assistance given through speaking trumpets." The work of this association is to leaven society morally, socially and politically. The Rev. Dr. Matteo Prochet from Italy,—It may be some of you think I have brought a special blessing from my colleague across the Tiber. I am sorry to say I have not. Let us first unite those factions that will assimilate and convert those that do not and then bring them into the union. Evidently they are not ready to convert the world yet. This was shown to be the case by President Dodge who speaks of the churches in anything but a flattering way. They built costly churches in wealthy localities but failed to reach the working classes, or even to reach the business sins of the rich; and yet they propose to convert the world. Will the world be any better after they convert it? is the question? Not a word about the Gospel is heard.

Selected.

Europe Fully Armed for a Possible Contest.

It is a [illegible] awe-inspiring drama which [illegible] last month has been slowly unfolding its several acts to the world's startled gaze. It has had Europe for its stage, Kings and Emperors for its chief players, and hundreds of thousands of armed men for its supernumeraries. These are the mimic campaigns which began in Germany and ended with the great naval review at Toulon, and in which every army of Europe from Aldershot to Athens has taken part. This year nearly twice as many men have been under blank fire as ever before. The total number has been something over half a million. The speeches of their crowned and helmeted leaders have dealt largely with the blessings of peace, but it is folly to believe that either they or their listeners have had in their mind anything but war, and that at no distant day. But amid the rehearsals, indications that the struggle for which the nations have so long been carefully preparing is now at hand begin to multiply. The proclamation of martial law in Bohemia, Austria's one weak point in case of war, and the granting by France to Russia of a naval station in the Mediterranean must be reckoned among the final moves on the chess-board of war, and show that the culmination is setting its house in order against the crisis.

When the actual contest comes it is now considered certain that Russia and France will be pitted against the parties to the Triple Alliance. In point of numbers Russia boasts the largest army in Europe. Her active army is estimated by the best authorities to contain 16[illegible] infantry and 58 cavalry regiments, 51 brigades of field artillery, and 145 Cossack regiments; the reserve troops, 105 infantry regiments; the militia, 201 infantry regiments. The garrisons include 24 infantry regiments and 514 artillery battalions. All these, together with the batteries, sharpshooters, sappers and miners, swell the grand host to 1,500,850 men. The European Russian army has 500,000 horses and about 4,000 guns. The cost of this establishment last year was reckoned in Russian paper currency at 386,000,000. That meant a tax of about $2.60 on every man, woman, and child in European Russia. Since 1874 Russia has had the universal obligation to service. The time of service in the standing army is five years; in the reserves, which are in camp twelve weeks every year, thirteen years; in the militia till the soldier's 43rd year. The buying of substitutes or exemption is not allowed. The merits of the Russian soldier have long been known. He is the most willing, obedient, and robust in the world. He can live contentedly from what a Frenchman or German would starve on. He can march tremendous distances without losing his pluck and under the most trying hardships needs only a word from his superior to make him forget all his troubles and rally to an effort.

Russia has also in recent years greatly increased the efficiency of her navy. She still retains, as she has for a hundred years, the naval supremacy of the Baltic. Her Black Sea fleet, which so late as 1878, was composed of two insignificant ironclads and a few wooden vessels and torpedo boats, now comprises several huge ironclads, a number of large and small cruisers, with and without torpedo gear, and a multitude of those little torpedo boats which created such havoc among the Turkish ironclads in the Danube during the last war. The Siberian fleet, destined to maneuver along the Corean and Chinese coast, is a new creation, as well as also the main harbor of Vladivostock. A war steamer, the Geok Tepe, has been recently added to the Caspian fleet. Light draft steamers have been built for navigating the shallow waters of the Azof and Aral Seas. Even the White Sea and the Arctic shores of Russian possessions have not been neglected and are now protected by a strong naval squadron. But Russia's greatest naval effort has been concentrated in the Baltic, where she has striven to make two steps forward whenever Germany made one, with the object of securing the exclusive possession of that Mediterranean of Northern Europe. The reputed cession to Russia of a naval station in the Mediterranean will, if true, greatly increase her strength as a naval power. It will enable her Baltic fleet to co-operate with her fleet in the Caspian, and in view of the collapse of the Turkish fleet would, in case of war, make almost certain the capture of the Sultan's capital by the forces of the Czar.

France also is ready in every way for the coming struggle. The Almanach de Gotha, which is entirely unbiased, gives the following estimate of the effective forces of France:

	Officers.	Men.	Total.
Infantry	21,419	261,494	283,018
Cavalry	3,433	71,401	[illegible]
Artillery	3,968	70,441	74,700
Engineer Corps	445	10,906	11,306
Gendarmerie	747	25,035	25,815

These with other branches make a grand total, [illegible]

This table is supposed to include only those men at the moment under the flag. To the total must be added the territorial army and its reserve with 1,850,000 men that can be found when wanted, and we have the aggregate of the army given at 3,768,000 men. In other words France could within a month after war was declared place nearly 4,000,000 armed men in the field. Every Frenchman owes military service to the country, but exemptions from that service are for numerous reasons. They comprise persons guilty of infamous crimes, the infirm, the oldest son of a family of full orphans, the son of a widow on whom she depends for support, the eldest of two brothers who draw lots at the same time, students of theology, and some others. With the exceptions provided by law, military service requires five years in the active army, four years in the reserve of the active army, five years in the territorial army, and six years in the reserve of the territorial army.

When Napoleon III. asked his Minister of War if everything was in readiness for a war with Germany he was told yes, even to a garter button. He was grossly deceived. The result showed that in reality nothing was ready. Nothing is wanting now even the last garter button has been supplied. Since the war of 1870 the eastern frontier of France has been made one great fortress. The Franco-German frontier, 150 miles long, is now protected by a first line of strong places fortified with all the resources of modern engineering and connected by a continuous line of intrenched camps. There are four of these—Belfort, Epinal, Toul, and Verdun. Were these places captured the invaders would find fifty miles behind them another line of strong places, united in a similar way by intrenched camps. This is not all. There is, before reaching Paris, another and longer line, having Lyons at the southern end, Lille at the northern, and between them Arras and Cambrai. These cities have within a few years been furnished with strategic railroads that would enable the French to concentrate their forces promptly on any given point. When war comes, with Russia in the fight, Germany could not possibly place more than a million of men on her western frontier, which would scarcely be enough for defense, certainly far too few to invade a country so splendidly fortified. The Germans realize this. Their military writers never fail to give the facts their full force in their works. The route from the eastern frontier to Paris will never be found again so easy as in 1870. The French soldier may not be so well drilled as the German, but he has the needful elan, and is inspired by patriotism and hatred of his enemy. He will in the coming contest give a better account of himself than he did in 1871. So far as her navy is concerned, France has little to fear. When war comes the Germans will need every war vessel at their command to protect from Russia their ports in the Baltic and North Seas, and the Italian and Austrian warships combined can make little, if any, headway against the armament Toulon will be able to send forth.

In the coming war Russia and France will doubtless be the contestants on one side and Germany, Austria, and Italy on the other. The German army as it exists today is without doubt the most perfect fighting machine the world has ever seen. In theory, every male German from 20 to 23 must serve in the active army. After that he passes into the reserve, where he remains four years. During this period he must submit to three periods of service, each of six weeks, one of which must be during the grand autumn maneuvers. Having passed the reserve, he now joins the Landwehr, or third line of defense, where he remains five years, during which time he is required to devote eight weeks to military service, and in addition is liable to extra service should occasion require it. His twelve years of service completed, the soldier passes into the Landsturm. This body consists of all the male inhabitants of Germany between the ages of 32 and 45. It numbers 1,000,000 men thoroughly organized, clothed, and armed.

The active army is divided into eighteen army corps, each occupying a particular district and consisting of about 28,000 men. The General commanding the corps is responsible for its mobilization, and has in charge the stores, clothing, arms, and equipment of the reservists and Landwehr men. The details, however, are in the hands of the railroad authorities and the police bureaus. When mobilization is ordered each man liable to service presents himself at once at the police bureau and receives his pass for the journey, goes to the railroad station and is sent off immediately to the headquarters of his regiment. Arrived there, arms and clothing are served out, the officers appear, take command of their companies and regiments, and in twenty-four hours an army of half a million men is raised to one and a half millions, and in three days can be placed on the frontier with all its parts complete. If it were possible to count on every man indicated by the method of recruitment outlined above, Germany would be able to put into the field the following army:

Active (first classes)	[illegible]
Reserve of recruitment	[illegible]
Reserve of active army	[illegible]
Landwehr	[illegible]
Landsturm	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

The German soldier is the best drilled and the best officered in Europe. There are over one and a half millions of able-bodied men in Germany today who have had military training, and who, if required to pass in uniform before the Emperor, could march with the parade step as correctly as the young fellows who are now receiving their three years' drill. The German army is the most democratic of institutions. A young man who is the sole support of his widowed mother and his brothers and sisters is not compelled to do the military service. But the rich man's son cannot buy his way out.

In Austria as in Germany military service is made general and compulsory by law. All men are liable to military duty between the ages of 20 and 36. The period of military service is fixed at twelve years—three with the colors, seven in the reserve, and two in the Landwehr. The country is divided into thirty-one divisional, seventy-three brigade, and eighty-one district commands, one regiment of infantry being located in each district. The annual contingent drafted into the active army is about 95,000 men. The strength of the active army on the peace footing is 257,000, and if it be assumed that one-third of that number, 85,000, go annually into reserve, the seven classes in reserve would number 595,000, or 109,000 more than would be required to raise the army to the war standard of 753,000.

The Landwehr is composed of men who have performed ten years' service in the active army and in reserve, ten years' service in the ersatz reserve, and such men as, escaping the annual contingent, are at once assigned to it for the twelve years during which they are liable to military service.

Russia and France in case of war have little to fear from Italy, the third member of the triple alliance. On this subject the Annee Militaire recently published an interesting article. "By making an effort," it says, "ruinous for her finances and out of all proportion with the aim to be reached, Italy can mobilize between 200,000 and 300,000 good troops, supported by 600,000 men of the reserve with little military instruction, and commanded by 23,000 officers. The military only counts at present 2,800 officers, and the territorial military is only a promise. In a word, the two millions and a half of fighting Italians is one of the wildest dreams of the age. It would be impossible to mobilize them. To get out one-quarter of them and organize them after a fashion it would require six weeks. To concentrate them with only two lines of railway would take a month at the very least. To march them across the Alps it would be necessary to deal with the natural difficulties and perhaps with the adversary." If this view of the military power of Italy is sound, it is pretty clear that the game of blood would be practically decided before the Italians could come upon the scene.

At the outset the five nations referred to would probably be the only participants in a possible European conflict, but other countries would doubtless be speedily embroiled. England's army exists mainly on paper, but her navy is the equal of that of any two other powers. On the sea Britannia reigns supreme, and when the conflict comes her aid will be eagerly sought by the triple alliance and, should British interests in the East be endangered, would be promptly given. Nor would Turkey be long permitted to remain a passive bystander. The Turks make splendid soldiers—no better ones to be found in Europe. Their standing army now numbers about 200,000 men. Its system of recruitment is that generally prevailing in European countries.

Belgium being, by reason of its place on the map, a natural battle ground for France and Germany, though the inviolability of its territory is guaranteed by treaty, would for that reason be forced to take a hand in any conflict between its two neighbors. The army of the Belgians though small is efficient and well armed. In time of war it is supposed to contain 107,403 men, of whom 8,320 are cavalry and 17,135 artillery.

Wedged in between France and Italy, the Swiss Republic occupies much the same position as Belgium, and should war come would be in constant danger of invasion. Like all mountaineers, hardy, brave, and daring, there are no better soldiers than the Swiss. Every Swiss owes military service to his country from 20 to 44.

It seems hardly probable that Spain, with little to gain and much to lose, would venture to take a hand in the European struggle for supremacy, but in this connection a glance at her military and naval strength is not without interest. As to the former it is an element of smaller consequence, consisting, in time of peace, of a force on the peninsula of 100,000 men, which might be raised to perhaps 500,000 in time of war. The colonial force, including that of Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, is rather more than 30,000 in time of peace, but with the native militia could be increased to many times that number. However, it is in her navy that Spain at present places her chief dependence. She already has a goodly fleet of armored and unarmored vessels of modern type, besides a fine flotilla of torpedo boats and torpedo cruisers, and has now under construction six belted cruisers of the first class. In this respect Spain would be a welcome addition to either side in a general European contest.

The cost of the various military establishments of Europe exceeds in round numbers $800,000,000 a year. In the face of this tremendous outlay the alternative presented to the several powers is war or eventual bankruptcy. War will doubtless be the choice, and that soon, a probability strengthened by the fact that under the present system of universal conscription time is working on the side of Germany, which is already much more populous than France, and which is increasing the disproportion every year, for the population of France is stationary, if it is not diminishing. This argument about postponing the test of strength one moment after due preparations have been made is one whose force and moment is clearly realized by the military leaders of France, and as the French army seems now to have reached the highest possible strength and efficiency it will not be the fault of the French people, eager to efface with blood the disgrace of 1870 if the contest is much longer delayed. All that is now needed is a plausible excuse for actual hostilities, and that may come at any moment.

The "Christian" World.

"The Bible world is so different from the 'Christian' world in so many essential particulars, that we may truly say that it is not the same world at all. The one is a world of light, the other a world of darkness; the one is pure, Abrahamic Israelism, the other is as pure gentilism in Christian dress, old Roman, Chaldean and Egyptian antiquities incorporated with the professed service of Christ so that the thing having a little devil in it may the better succeed with worldly men of every complexion; whose theatrical tastes must be respected or they would fail of retaining their patronage. In fact the Christian world is not Christ's world at all; but a world where Satan's Trinity, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life" reigns with supreme unbounded sway in both church and state. It only requires a man to know his Bible to know that is a far Diviner matter than the paganized theology of christendom allows a man to believe that men who are full of Shakespeare, Milton, Tennyson, Longfellow, and the writings of a thousand other human celebrities can never be very full of Moses and the prophets, men need no candles when the sun shines; excepting where they build for themselves theological workshops with stained glass windows that exclude or alter the complexion of the light. As it was in the days of Christ so it is now, men universaly love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil; only he who doeth truth cometh to the full blaze of day which illuminates the Bible world; all else return to the 'dim religious light' of human creation, or to test their eyes and hopes on the ascending sparks of their own fire."

DIED.

On September 28, 1893, at Beaverton, near Portland, Oregon, in her 38th year, of inflammation of the stomach, our youngest daughter, Miss Eva Halstead.

She was born and reared in Indiana, where she spent most of her life. Was a teacher by profession, first in the common school, by means of which through her own energy and economy she was enabled to graduate at the National Normal College of Lebanon, Ohio. For a number of years following was Professor of Greek and Latin, most of the time in Campbell University, Kansas. The last year in Puget Sound University, Tacoma, Washington. Never lived one (as seen through a father's eyes) more noble or pure of mind, or of more kindly spirit.

She was an obedient and devoted follower of Him who hath power to confer the Life Eternal. She was cared for during her last sickness at the home of her sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Travis, where all was done that medical skill and kind attention could do, to ward off the stroke of the last enemy, but without avail.

She was borne to her last resting place in Portland Cemetery by the kind hands of some of her late students, where she now sleeps until the bringing to pass that which is written, "O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?"

"Thanks be to Him who giveth us the victory." May He soon come.

D. T. HALSTEAD.

Change of Address.

On and after November 1st, 1893, my address will be Plymouth, Ind., instead of Macy, Ind. Correspondents please take notice.

L. E. CONNER.

Notice.

To the Brethren of Oklahoma:

Brother S. C. Oliver will commence a week's meeting near Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma, October 28th, in Bro. Albert Overholt's neighborhood. While he is in Oklahoma, if brethren at other points desire to have him speak for them, he will gladly devote some time to the work of spreading the good news of a soon coming kingdom and King. After Oct. 31st he can be addressed at Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma. Direct in care of Albert Overholt, or brethren can meet him there and make arrangements for meetings.

L. A. CHAPLIN, Sec'y.

World's Fair Excursion $2.55 Round Trip to Chicago from Plymouth via Pennsylvania Lines every day.

Children under 12 years of age one half the above rate. Commencing October 19th, Special Excursion Tickets to Chicago at the above named rates will be sold daily during the progress of the great Columbian Exposition from the station mentioned, and at corresponding low rates from other intermediate ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines. The special reduced rate tickets will be valid in the Pennsylvania Standard Coaches on all regular trains carrying day coaches. Return coupons will be valid ten days from the date of sale in coaches of any regular train scheduled to stop at their destination. All through trains into Chicago over the Pennsylvania Lines run to the Union Passenger station on Canal Street, between Adams and Madison Streets, and stop at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood to discharge passengers and baggage. These are Pennsylvania Lines World's Fair stations, convenient to the grounds, hotels and boarding houses. For details, apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent, or to J. E. Hanes, Plymouth, Ind.

The Bless

[illegible]

Or

Hickory G
N

A series of
A. J. Eychaner
at Hickory G
Sept. 9-25, 18
Dear Frien
to a kind Fath
providence we to assemble he a beautiful m trust you all m
I wish still f
to investigate eternal life t
The more I inv
tures, or scienc positive is the
that man in completely mo ther than tha conviction tha natural immo mischievous er of spiritualis purgatory.
great doctrine
cerning the c
the resurrecti
the life ever plea of restrai
God the chara tyrant chargin a sinful being stroy though be pitted again
the eternities'
This false
engrafted up true to nature
ing fruit of t immortality a irrespective of serts the poss
whose lives m
God who crea
The believe be divided int
lows:
1st. Those righteous wil
ity through C or a resurrect
2nd. Those versal immo natural crea may properly classes—those endless torm those who be of all men or Many illus found upon this moral p class I shall writers and te and the New al tone, and I of the Bible complete mo
the gift of God's grace through Chri
only. Amon writers we f denoting mo which I invit consideration
Gen. xxv. of, "the year which he liv
score and fift gave up th
good old age of years, and people, and was buried
ence I call to this write to the questi that Abraha this number lived. If A that statem
Notice also gave up th
breath) he w ple, which

Poetry.

The Blessing of Song.

"What a friend we have in Jesus,"
Sang a little child one day;
And a weary woman listened
To the darling's happy lay.

[illegible] pointing out the Savior,
Who [illegible] carry every woe;
And the one who sadly listened
Needed that dear Helper so!

Sin and grief were heavy burdens
For a fainting soul to bear;
But the baby, singing, bade her
"Take it to the Lord in prayer."

With a simple, trusting spirit,
Weak and worn she turned to God,
Asking Christ to take her burden,
As he was the sinner's Lord.

Jesus was the only refuge,
He could take her sin and care,
And He blessed the weary woman
When she came to Him in prayer.

And the little child, still singing,
Little knew she had a part
In God's wondrous work of bringing
Peace unto a troubled heart.

Original.

Hickory Grove Sermons.

No. 2.

A series of discourses delivered by A. J. Eychaner in the Gospel tent at Hickory Grove, Story Co. Ia., Sept. 5-25, 1895.

Dear Friends: I am thankful to a kind Father that through his providence we are again permitted to assemble here. He has given us a beautiful morning for which I trust you all are grateful.

I wish still further this morning to investigate this doctrine of eternal life through the Christ. The more I investigate the Scriptures, or science or nature the more positive is the knowledge acquired that man in his natural state is completely mortal. I may go further than that, and say it is my conviction that the theory of the natural immortality of man is a mischievous error. It is the basis of spiritualism, ghostology, and purgatory. It neutralizes the great doctrines of the Bible concerning the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the dead and the life everlasting. Under the plea of restraining sin it assigns to God the character of an implacable tyrant charging him with creating a sinful being which he cannot destroy though the divine wrath may be pitted against the sinner through the eternities' future.

This false philosophy has been engrafted upon Christianity, and true to nature it bears the blighting fruit of the graft. It makes immortality a natural inheritance irrespective of character, and it asserts the possession of it by those whose lives are in rebellion to the God who created them.

The believers in immortality may be divided into two classes, as follows:

1st. Those who believe that the righteous will attain to immortality through Christ in the new-birth or a resurrection from the dead.

2nd. Those who believe in universal immortality through the natural creation. This last class may properly be divided into two classes—those who believe in the endless torment of the wicked, and those who believe in the salvation of all men or universal restitution.

Many illustrious names may be found upon these three sides of this moral prism. Among the first class I shall place the inspired writers and teachers of both the Old and the New Testaments. The general tone, and I may say exclusively so of the Bible is on the side of man's complete mortality by sin, and that the gift of eternal life through God's grace comes to the obedient through Christ, and to the obedient only. Among the Old Testament writers we find many expressions denoting mortality, and to some of which I invite your attention and consideration.

Gen. xxv. 7, "These are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived an hundred three score and fifteen. Then Abraham gave up the ghost and died in a good old age, an old man and full of years, and was gathered to his people, and his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him." In this reference I call attention particularly to this writer's statement relative to the question before us. He says that Abraham died. He states also the number of years that Abraham lived. If Abraham is alive now, that statement cannot be true. Notice also that after Abraham gave up the ghost (expired his breath) he was gathered to his people, which phrase the writer explains to mean that his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him. Abraham then is both dead and buried. There is no intimation that Abraham or any part of him is yet alive.

Deut. xxiv. 5-7. "So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab according to the words of the Lord. And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab over against Beth-peor but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day, and Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died." Here is an event recorded which needs no comment from me. Moses is said to have lived 120 years and then died and was buried a plain, simple, concise statement of fact which carries its meaning upon its surface. The actions of the Israelites show that they believed him dead, for the writer states in the next verse that they "Wept for Moses thirty days." Why weep? Because Moses was dead. And God says, "Moses my servant is dead." Josh. i. 1.

1 Kings ii. 1-2. Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die. We may not be able to tell what life is, and we may not know what death is exactly, but there is one thing which we do know, and that is: that death is not life. Neither is life death. Whatever is implied in these terms life and death, they are not convertible: that is, you cannot use the one for the other. If the time had come for David to die it certainly was not to live—he had lived up to that time but now a change is to take place known as death. David said to Solomon, "I go the way of all the earth." This expression can not mean that he was going to heaven for we learn from a statement of the Apostle Peter that "David is not ascended into the heavens." (Acts ii. 34). To go the way of all the earth is to die, for we read that "all go into one place all are of the dust and all turn to dust again. David was to go to his fathers, and in First Kings ii. 10, we read "So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David."

We have many striking passages in the Old Testament which illustrate the doctrine of man's mortality in this life: but out of the many I will have time only to cite one more. The one to which I now refer is found in Isa. xxxviii. 1; also in 2 Kings xx. 1, "In those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came unto him and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Set thine house in order for thou shall die, and not live." This Scripture like the text of last evening states the truth for which we are contending both positively and negatively. The Lord says Hezekiah shall die and then that there may be no mistake as to the meaning of "shall die" he explains as it were what he means by adding "and not live."

But why multiply instances to show that the Bible writers believed in the complete mortality of the natural man. That doctrine is asserted everywhere and in the most positive terms. The New Testament writers are especially emphatic in their statements. Without Christ—the giver of eternal life, man must inevitably perish. Jesus says, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." And John adds therefore that the believer alone has the life while "he that believeth not the Son shall not see life." Jno. iii. 36. But of all the Bible writers Paul has been the most voluminous and emphatic. To omit him would be to slight the plainest witness. In speaking on the subject of faith after he has given us as the greatest examples of the past, the names of Abel, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob he declares that "These all died in faith not having received the promises." Heb. ii. 13. He believed these worthies to be dead, that they had not yet entered upon their reward. Then follows a long list of the brightest names that ever adorned the pages of the past, and he declares that they too have not received the promise and says, that they without us should not be made perfect. v. 40.

Again we open his volume and we read, "This corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must, put on immortality. He taught that we have the mortal now, but after the new birth we shall be immortal.

We place then, the sacred writers as first upon the list of those who believe in life and incorruption to be obtained only through Jesus the Messiah. On this side too we find such writers as Barnabas, Clement of Rome, Ignatius, Polycarp, Justin, Theophilus, Lactantius and others in the early days of the church, while later we find Tyndale, Rothe, Olshausen and Luther and others: while in modern times the names of Edward F. Litten, Dr. E. Beecher, W. F. Mortimer, E. Petavel, Edward White, Henry Constable, and a host of others high in scholarship, eminent for piety and able ministers of the word of reconciliation.

In the second class are those who believe in universal immortality. Athenagoras was among the first to advocate this theory in the church. He believed in natural immortality and held to the eternal torment of the wicked. This doctrine began to have a place in the church about 200 years after Christ. Athenagoras was followed by Tatian Tertullian, Cyprian Athenasius and Augustine. J. H. Pettingell well says of Augustine that "To him we may accredit the honor such as it is of having formulated this dogma of the inherent immortality of the soul into the Christian system and established it as one of the corner stones of the so-called "Orthodox" theology,—a system still perpetuated and known as the Augustinian system."

The third class referred to are believers in immortality but deny eternal torment. They believe that all will finally be saved. The theory of universal salvation was taught and held by Origen and those who have lived near his times, such men as Eusebius, Basil and Gregory making edicts and laws to sustain the theory. The Lateran Council under Leo X., issued a decree to condemn, reprobate and punish as heretics, all who dared to assert that the soul of man is mortal. Thus the anti-Christian Anti-Scriptural dogma of natural immortality early gained a footing in the church by the bulls of Popes and the decrees of councils, and there it has persistently remained ever since.

The origin of the doctrine of inherent immortality is difficult to find. In modern times we find the advocates of this theory numerous in the Christian churches, but as we go into the more remote past we find them disappearing from the church, and its strongest advocates are found among the philosophers of civilized nations, while still farther back vague speculations and traditions of the heathen alone give us any intimation of its existence—indeed it is my humble opinion that its origin dates back to that dark day in the history of Adam when the lie of Satan deceived our first parents. "Thou shalt not surely die" was the doctrine that deceived Eve. If she was deceived she believed it and transmitted it to posterity, and from this may have sprung up the traditions we find among some nations in later times. These traditions became the foundation of the speculations of the philosophers of Chalden, Persia, Egypt and Rome and which later found a footing in the church. The mass of the people in all ages did not receive the doctrine. The sober fact of actual death in their midst ever placed a check upon the advance of this theory, and stamped with uncertainty and improbability the speculations of its most learned philosophers and advocates. Indeed the philosophers themselves in most cases doubted their own conclusions. The Dualism of the Persian and the Platonic speculations of two souls, the universal spirit absorption of the Hindu and other theories show the difference of thought and the uncertainty of truth to be found by these speculations. It is even a question whether the philosophers believed the theories themselves. It is certain that the great mass of the people rejected them, in all ages of the world. The existence of pain and the fact of literal death was a stronger argument for man's mortality than the speculations and theories of those whose acts in life showed their own want of faith in what they advanced. Archbishop Whately says, "In reality the doctrine has never generally admitted among philosophers. Socrates complained that men in general are highly incredulous as to the soul's future existence, and we know that the Egyptians embalmed their dead in order that the body might be preserved and live again. If the soul was of such importance and the body never rise again as these theorists taught, why then should the common people be so solicitous over the preservation of the body. The motive which actuated them to embalm the bodies of the dead in such vast numbers was backed by a general faith in the majority of the people. The argument which modern advocates of natural immortality seek to draw from a uniform belief of mankind is not upon that side of this question, but the argument if there is one, is upon the side of man's mortality, for the nations of the earth always have and do now believe in the fact of death. Theorists, philosophers (falsely so-called) and priests may speculate, but the great current of human thought is in the direction of the certainty of death. "Died," is written on most all the tombstones, "Died," is the record of life insurance companies, and upon the belief of that single word the policy is paid. "Died," is the heading in the secular press when a statesman or noted man ceases to live, and the great world receives it as truth. It is only when we enter the sanctum of the philosopher or the auditorium of the speculatist or when we stand in the presence of the coffined dead that we hear

> "There is no death,
> What seems so is transition."

But somehow we have a suspicion that death is a sober reality; and away down deep below the poetry, and below the theology, and below the philosophy there is the conviction and fear of death. How important then in the hour of death to believe and realize that the living Christ brought life and immortality (incorruption) to light through the gospel. He came to give a new an eternal life beyond the dark, mysterious tomb. By putting on the Christ by faith we may have the eternal life in prospect, for, He that hath the Son hath the life but he that hath not the Son of God hath not the life. We thus see that immortality is yet a matter of promise and therefore of hope. Man in this sinful state dies, for "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Philosophers may speculate, poets may picture a fairy land for the dead, but these ideal creations are swept away before the sober realities of life and death, as Johnstown was swept away before the flood which destroyed it.

This question has so many phases that it will be impossible to discuss all of them in a single discourse. There are two chief branches or lines of thought which I wish to follow; first the Bible line and second the realm of nature. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the subject will be practical and will relate to our duties, but this evening I will resume the investigation of this question of "natural immortality" and the eternal life of promise.

The Gospel According to Loukas, Chap. 9.

1. And assembling the twelve apostles, he gave unto them ability and official-power over all the demons, and to heal diseases;

2. And sent them forth to herald the kingdom of God, and to heal the weak.

3. And he said unto them, Take nothing for the way, neither shall ye have a sceptre nor satchel, nor money, nor two tunics.

4. And unto whatsoever household ye shall have entered, there abide, and from there go out:

5. And whosoever shall not receive you, when ye go out from that city, shake off from your feet the fine dust for an instrumentality of testimony against them.

6. And going out they went through the villages, village by village, telling the good news (or evangelizing) and healing everywhere.

7. And Herodes heard all that had occurred, And he was puzzled because it was being said by some, that Joannes had been awakened from among the dead;

8. And by some that Helias had appeared; And by others that some one of the ancient prophets had arisen.

9. And Herodes said, I myself beheaded Joannes, And who is this concerning whom I hear such things? And he sought to see him.

10. And when the twelve had returned they told him all that they had done; And taking them with him he withdrew by themselves into a city called Bethsaidan.

11. And when the multitudes knew it they followed him: And receiving them he talked to them about the kingdom of God, and those who had need of healing, he was healing.

12. And the day began to decline: And the twelve came to him and said, Dismiss the multitude that they may go their way into the surrounding villages and fields and put up and find a supply of food, because here we are in a waste place.

13. And he said unto them, Do ye yourselves give them to eat. And they said, We have not more than five loaves and two fish, unless we go our way and market a supply of food for all this royal people.

14. For there were about five thousand men. And he said unto his disciples, Have them recline in companies of about fifty each.

15. And they did so and had them all recline.

16. And taking the five loaves and two fish, he looked up towards the heavens and blessed (commended) them and brake and gave to the disciples to set beside the multitude.

17. And they all ate and were full fed. And that which was left over of fragments by them was taken up, twelve baskets (about thirty-six quarts).

18. And it came to pass as he was offering votive-prayer apart by himself the disciples went along with him: And he asked them saying, Who do the multitudes say I am?

19. And they answered and said, Joannes the Baptizer, others forsooth Helias; And others that a certain one of the ancient prophets hath been raised.

20. And he said unto them, But whom do ye say that I am? And Petros answered and said, The Christ (the Anointed) of God:

21. And he warned and admonished them not to tell this to any one saying,

22. It behoveth the Son of man to have suffered many things, and to have been rejected for value on the part of the elders and chief-priests and scribes, and to have been put to death, and to have been awakened on the third day.

23. And he said unto them all, If any one purposeth to come after me, let him deny himself and let him take up his cross day by day and follow me,

24. For whoever shall purpose to have saved his soul (not life) will lose it; but whoever shall lose his soul for my sake will save it.

25. For what will it profit a man to have gained the whole Cosmos and to have lost himself or to have paid himself as the price of it:

26. For whoever shall have been ashamed of me and my words, the Son of man will have been ashamed of him, when he shall have come in his own glory and in that of the Father and of the sanctified angels.

27. Moreover I say unto you truly there are some of those standing here, who shall not taste death until they shall have seen (or known) the kingdom of God.

28. And it came to pass about eight days after these words, that he took Petros, and Joannes and Jacob and went up into the mountain to offer votive-prayer.

29. And it came to pass while he was offering votive-prayer that his countenance had another appearance and his under-garment flashed white like lightning.

30. And lo, two men were talking with him who were Mouses and Helias,

31. Who appeared in glory and were speaking of his exodus which he was destined to fulfil in Hierousalem,

32. And Petros and those along with him were weighed down with sleep. And when they had been thoroughly awakened they saw his glory and the two men standing along with him.

33. And it came to pass as they were being separated from him Petros said unto Jesous, Master (Boss) it is a good thing for us to be here; And let us make three tabernacles, one for thee and one for Mouses and one for Helias, not knowing what he was saying.

34. And while he was saying this there became a cloud and it overshadowed them: And they were afraid as they were entering into the cloud.

35. And then occurred a voice from out the cloud saying, This is my Son, my chosen one, Hear ye him.

36. And when the voice had occurred Jesous was found alone. And they kept silence and told no one in those days anything that they had seen.

37. And it came to pass on the following day, when they had come down from the mountain, a vast crowd met them.

38. And lo a man from the crowd called for aid saying, Teacher, I beseech thee to look upon my son, because he is my only-born.

39. And lo a spirit layeth hold of him and suddenly he crieth out and it convulseth him with foaming, and with difficulty doth it withdraw from him after that it hath bruised him;

40. And I besought thy disciples to cast it out and they were not able.

41. And Jesous answered and said, O unfaithful and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you and bear with you? Bring thy son here.

42. And while he was coming the demon caused him to break away and Jesous rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the boy and gave him back to his father.

43. And they were all astounded at the greatness of God. And while they were all wondering at all that he was doing (lit. causing) he said unto his disciples:

44. Put these words in your ears. For the Son of Man is destined to be given up into the hands of men.

45. And they did not apprehend this oracular word, and it was hidden from them; that they might not perceive its import, and they were afraid to ask about this oracular word.

46. And a discussion was entered unto among them, as to who of them might be the greatest (a greater, lit.)

47. And Jesous perceiving their reasoning of their heart took a little child and stood it beside himself, and said unto them, Whoever shall accept this little child in my name, accepteth me; And whoever accepteth me accepteth the one who hath sent me. For the smaller among you all he is great.

49. And Joannes said, Master (lit. boss) we saw a certain one casting the demons in thy name and we restrained him, because he is not following along with us.

50. And Jesous said unto him; Restrain him not; For whoever is not against us is for us.

51. And it came to pass, as the days for his taking up were being fulfilled, that he also set his face fixedly to go his way to Hierousalem...

52. And he sent messengers before his face; And they went their way and entered into a village of Samaratous that they might make ready for him.

53. And they did not receive him because his face was that of one going his way to Hierousalem.

54. And when the disciples Jacobus and Joannes knew it they said, Lord, if thou wilt, let us say that fire come down from the heavens and invisibly destroy them.

55. But he turned and reproved them and said: Ye know not of what sort of spirit ye are.

56. And they went their way into another village.

57. And as they were going their way, a certain one on the way said unto him; I will follow thee whenever thou goest, Lord.

58. And Jesous said unto him, The foxes have holes and the flying things of the heavens nesting places; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head.

59. And he said unto another Follow me. And he said, Lord, permit me first to go and bury my father.

60. And he said unto him, Let the dead bury their own dead; but do thou go and publish the kingdom of God.

61. And another also said, I will follow thee Lord; but permit me first to bid adieu to those in my house.

62. But Jesous said, No one who hath put his hand to a plow and looked backward is fit for the kingdom of God.

COMMENT.

"Sceptre" instead of "staff" R. V. The thing here spoken of was the "herald's" baton of office well understood in those days, and not a walking staff as one would naturally infer from the C. V. and R. V. reading. Consult any encyclopedia of general information under the word "herald" or ancient Greek history on this subject. "The herald of the king" and of any kingdom even in heathendom was a very important personage and his message was the ultimatum of peace or war. For information on the subject of his "sceptre" or official-baton see above authorities referred to. It was a kingly baton because he was the embassador with plenipotentiary power from the king; but only within the limitations of his message. This baton differed from the prophet's baton for the reason that the office was different and each was characteristic of its commissioned work. The prophet's office was that of a teacher and a chastener and his baton was called a "bacterion" (βακτηρία) or rod or originally an ox-goad, and as the prophet frequently became the judge of God's people this baton came to represent the judge's official wand or sceptre, and when the theocracy passed over to the kingdom and the concentration of all the official-power in a king including the prophetic and judicial prerogatives, the kingly sceptre superceded the "bacterion" and even the knowledge of it seems to have been lost to the authoritative scholarship of the present day. As an illustration of the knowledge and intelligent use of these two terms Bacterion and hrabdou (ῥάβδου) in the age of David the Psalmist see the 23rd Psalm 4th verse translated in the C. V. and R. V.

"Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Here "rod" and "staff" are supposed to translate these two words "hrabdou" and "Bacterion." The thought is under the metaphor here used that God's kingly authority of which the sceptre is the emblem and God's prophetic teaching and chastening represented by the prophet's wand or "bacterion" have comforted or "helped" him, and that before he got into "the valley of the shadow of death." Now these emblems belonged to the old regime of the "Old Covenant" or of the "Law and the Prophets," and as these twelve are being commissioned and sent out as "heralds" of the new regime and the kingdom to come, it is but natural that the absence of the old prophetic-herald's baton or bacterion should be specially emphasized.

"Tunics" instead of "coats" R. V. The herald wore officially two garments, both long and flowing and fastened with a girdle about the loins. The "tunic" was the undergarment and regularly white linen and would correspond to our shirt rather than coat.

"Helias" instead of "Elijah" C. V. and R. V. There is no such name as Elijah in the Scripture Old or New.

"Jacob or Jacobos" instead of "James" R. V. see previous comment.

"Became" instead of "came" R. V.

"Occurred" or "came to pass" would be an allowable rendering.

"Only-born" instead of "only child", R. V. This is the same word applied to Christ elsewhere in the Scriptures and translated "only-begotten" which is also wrong. There is another word in the original for "only-begotten." This is "only-born."

"Unfaithful" instead of "faithless" R. V. for the reason that "faithless" is commonly understood to be wanting in faith, while this word means unreliable in conduct, not living up to one's light.

"Demon" instead of "devil" R. V. all through this chapter.

"Caused him to break away" instead of "dashed him down" R. V.

"Oracular word" instead of "saying".

"For his taking up" instead of "to be received up" R. V.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Bro. Underwood:

I inclosed find Sermon No. 2. Our meetings at Hickory Grove resulted in twelve being baptized into Christ. Tell the Household the good news. We hold meeting and Sunday School here at Glidbrook every Sunday and would gladly welcome any traveling brother or sister to meet with us and make us a visit.

A. J. EYCHANER.

[illegible]th Me.

[illegible] not always; sometimes He
Who knoweth best, in kindness leadeth me,
In weary ways where heavy shadows be.

Out of the sunshine, warm and soft and bright,
Out of the sunshine into darkest night,
I oft would faint with terror and with fright;
Only for this: I know he holds my hand,
So whether in the green, or desert land,
I trust, although I may not understand.

And by still waters? no, not always so,
Sometimes the heavy tempests round me blow,
And o'er my soul the waves and billows go.
But when the storm beats loudest and I cry
Aloud for help, the Master standeth by,
And whispers to my soul "Lo, it is I."

Above the tempest wild I hear him say,
"Beyond this darkness lies the perfect day.
In every path of thine, I lead the way."
So, whether on the hilltops, [illegible] and fair
I dwell, or in the sunless valleys where
The shadows lie, what matter? He is there.

And more than this, where'er the pathway lead
He gives to me no helpless broken reed,
But His own hand, sufficient for my need!
So where He leads me I can safely go;
And in the blest hereafter I shall know
Why in His wisdom, He hath led me so.

—A. [illegible]

Original.

Analogy or Likeness between Jesus and Moses.

Jesus was not only like unto Moses as a prophet but there was a likeness existing between them in many other respects. First as regards their nature, they were both alike although conceived under different circumstances. Moses was conceived according to the natural course of events, according to the will of the flesh. Jesus was conceived by the Holy Spirit or power of God upon a virgin called Mary. Although this was so it did not make Jesus of any different nature. They were both partakers of the nature of their parents which was flesh and blood a mortal nature and was of the earth earthy, having descended from Adam their great progenitor who was formed out of the earth and God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and he became a living soul or natural body. And so they bore the image of the earthly and were born under the penalty pronounced upon Adam their father they being in his loins when judgment was passed upon him, and the sentence passed upon him was that he should die and return to the earth from which he was made, as recorded in Genesis ii.

The Apostle Paul in writing to his Roman brethren says,"For by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation, and by this one offence sin and death reigned over the whole of the human family and held them in its bondage." So then these two children were born under these conditions,viz., under the death sentence. That they did possess a mortal nature is proved beyond all doubt by the fact that they both died and were buried. Death could only have an effect upon mortals and could not possibly have any effect upon, immortals and as there are only the two natures recorded in the Scriptures—the mortal and the immortal. See 1 Corinthians 15th chapter. Jesus possessed a mortal nature or in the words of the Apostle Paul, sinful flesh. See Hebrews ii. 14-18. Romans viii. 2-3. Thus proving the first analogy. The second is at the birth of these two children.

At the time Moses was born Pharaoh king of Egypt issued a decree that all male children of the Hebrews under a certain age were to be put to death. So in consequence of these orders Moses was hid by his parents in order to save his life. At the time Jesus was born Herod the king issued a decree that all the male children of the Jews under a certain age should be put to death. In consequence of which the parents of Jesus fled from that country in order to preserve his life. Moses grew up to manhood and God chose him to be a deliverer of his people by bringing them out of bondage and taking them to a land flowing with milk and honey. Exodus 3rd chap. We find there was a space of time elapsed between the going down of Moses to deliver the people and his bringing them up out of bondage. Jesus when he grew up to manhood was sent by God to deliver the people from bondage—a bondage of sin and death. There is also a lapse of time in this case to the bringing them up from the bondage of sin and corruption and placing them in the kingdom of God. But says the Apostle Paul, our salvation or deliverance is nearer than when we first believed. Romans xiii. 11.

The time of this salvation or deliverance will be when the deliverer comes again. See Hebrews ix. 28. The way in which it is to be done is shown forth in 1 Corinthians 15th chap. 43, 45, 50 and 58 verses. Moses in order to show to the people that God had sent him performed great miracles in order to convince them. Exodus vi. 9, 29, 30.

Jesus also performed miracles in order to prove to the people that God had sent him. John iii. 1, 2; ix. 16, 17, 33; v. 36, 38; x. 25, to end. Moses was to declare unto the people the name of God. Exodus iii. 13, 15.

Jesus was also to declare and manifest to the people the name of God. Psalm xxii. 22; John xvii. 6-26; Hebrews ii. 9-12. Moses stood as a mediator between God and his people. Deut. ix. 7-21; Numbers xiv. 11-20. Jesus also stands as a mediator between God and his people. Hebrews viii. 6; ix. 11-15; xii. 24. Moses was a meek man, Jesus was a meek man. Moses was a prophet, Jesus was a prophet like unto him. Deut. xviii. 15, 19; Acts iii. 22, 23; vii. 37. Moses fasted 40 days and nights, the same is said concerning Jesus. Thus we see the analogy between these two men. Yours truly.

S. Pitts.

The Old City of Damascus.

A recent work on sanitary engineering says that Damascus possesses, in all probability the oldest water-works in the world. The City itself is the most ancient of existing cities, having seen the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman empire, of Babylon, Ninevah, Palmyra, and Jerusalem. When taken by the Saracens from the Romans the water-works already existed, and it is probable that the latter constructed the works which still exist and supply the town. Damascus lies in a valley on the River Abana, which flows from the Lebanon hills and is lost in the desert to the east of the town. In spite of a copious supply of excellent water Damascus has had no immunity from epidemics owing to the fact that the double canalization for water supply and drainage being more or less leaky, saturated the soil and raised the spring level nearly to the surface, and the sewers are rarely if ever cleaned, are not systematically ventilated, and they pass under many of the houses. It is not surprising, therefore, that Damascus is and always was an insalubrious town.

* * *

A skeptical young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. Said the Quaker,—

"Does thee believe in France?"

"Yes; though I have not seen it, I have seen others who have; besides, there is plenty of proof that such a country does exist."

"Then thee will not believe anything thee or others have not seen?"

"No; to be sure I won't."

"Did thee ever see thy own brains?"

"No."

"Ever see any body that did?"

"No."

"Does thee believe thee has any?"

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$103.78
"From a Friend."	1.00
Alice Quinn,	.25
Jennie Cox,	.25

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 80 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

Appointments.

The Lord willing there will be a conference at East Plum River, known as Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, to commence October 27th and continue over Sunday. Brother and Sister Woodward and others will be with us to preach the word. Those coming by rail will come to Lanark, Ill., where there will be teams to take all that will come to the place of meeting.

Now, brethren and sisters, make an extra effort to be with us and let us have one more feast of spiritual blessing long to be remembered.

J. D. Renner, Sec'y.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Plymouth, Ind. commencing on Friday, Nov. 17, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren of like precious faith are invited to come and be with us at this meeting. Let us heed the admonition to meet together and exhort one another that we may be built up and strengthened in the most Holy Faith, remembering that our salvation depends upon our own individual exertions.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxanna Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

World's Fair Excursion $2.55 Round Trip to Chicago from Plymouth via Pennsylvania Lines every day.

Children under 12 years of age one half the above rate. Commencing October 19th, Special Excursion Tickets to Chicago at the above named rates will be sold daily during the progress of the great Columbian Exposition from the station mentioned, and at corresponding low rates from other intermediate ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines. The special reduced rate tickets will be valid in the Pennsylvania Standard Coaches on all regular trains carrying day coaches. Return coupons will be valid ten days from the date of sale in coaches of any regular train scheduled to stop at their destination. All through trains into Chicago over the Pennsylvania Lines run to the Union Passenger station on Canal Street, between Adams and Madison Streets, and stop at South Chicago, Grand Crossing and Englewood to discharge passengers and baggage. These are Pennsylvania Lines World's Fair stations, convenient to the grounds, hotels and boarding houses. For details, apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line ticket agent. [illegible] J. E. Hanes, Plymouth, Ind.

Have you seen the World's Fair? If not, you will always regret it. See Nickel Plate Road's agents about one-fare rates every day commencing Oct. 19th.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

The Last of the World's Fair.

The Exposition will close Oct. 31st. During the last twelve days of the World's Fair the Nickel Plate Road will run one-fare excursions every day.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.00
"A friend."	23.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

Daily excursions to the World's Fair, via the popular Nickel Plate Road commencing Oct. 19th, one fare for the round trip.

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sircleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

Time flies and if you don't look out, you may fail to see the World's Fair. The best opportunities yet afforded will be the Nickel Plate Road's daily one-fare excursions, commencing Oct. 19th.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

One Fare every day, commencing Oct. 19th and continuing until Oct. 31st, the Nickel Plate Road will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return at rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets good on all trains and good returning ten days but no later than Nov. 5th, 1893.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

World's Fair excursions will be run every day commencing Oct. 19th, via the popular Nickel Plate Road.

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 263 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 35 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their use in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 64 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Facts, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ by [illegible] in 1800. 3. Immortality. 4. The [illegible] of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The Two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10 Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 30 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.
10 for 10c; 30 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy, By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Brasley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 3c. each, 12 for 30c. or for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 41 pages, price 3c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? What is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July 29, 1879, by Jos. Lecier. Can be had at this office at 5c. each, 6 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Tradition of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. Beadle, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an addenda on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cts. for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Gift of A [illegible], Carrie Williams. The little book of 120 pages with above named subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full-page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land, in the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST.—His Paternity, Chronology, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief biographical sketch of the Jews—being two lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 100 pages, price 35 cts., or four for $1 postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the readings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscripts, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; Library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 330 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. Price 50 cts.

Cruden's Concordance—Unabridged. This work is two well known to need commendation—every bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance; bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 175 pages, cloth bound, for 35 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page.—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 329 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 12 for $1.80; 25 for $3.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 156 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 27 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs C. C. Woodruff, and is truly "A letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 232 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some forty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 146 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

LIST OF CHURCHES

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 536 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 3 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1245 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of the Blessed Hope, Green St. and Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia. C. C. Ramsey, Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10:15 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 531 Huntingdon Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the Van Buren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m. every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. S. G. Getchman, every [illegible] Sunday. Bro. J. L. Wagoner, every [illegible] Sunday in the month, also Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every [illegible] evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their northeast corner Michigan and LaPorte streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at 10 o'clock for Sunday School and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., in Mills Hall. At Andover is on the [illegible] line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday school at school house in District No. 33 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching out our beloved brother, Almon Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm Stevens, Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Rolfe, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, O.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Eliza Sipie, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Harlan and Eld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dutton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich. have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 2[illegible], Passenger, Leaves	11:14am
No. 2[illegible], "	5:19 am
No. 2[illegible], "	4:12pm
No. 154, Local.	12:45pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 2[illegible], Passenger, Leaves	10:49am
No. 2[illegible], "	[illegible]
No. 2[illegible], "	[illegible]
No. 151, Local.	12:15pm

*Daily except Sunday. †Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at [illegible] p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 6:55 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 18 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y, Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, CHAS. F. DALY,
Traf. Manager Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect Oct. 15, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:26pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 54, "	10:5[illegible]am	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:50pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!
THE RESTITUTION
ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS
FOR ONLY
Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

[illegible]

E. A. FORD,
General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

SOLID THROUGH TRAINS Buffalo and Chicago

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS. SUPERB DINING CARS.

THROUGH SLEEPING CARS
Between CHICAGO, NEW YORK and BOSTON.
BAGGAGE CHECKED TO DESTINATION
Tickets to all Points East or West at Lowest Rates.

AT CHICAGO the Depot of the Nickel Plate Road is located at Twelfth St. Viaduct, cor. Twelfth and Clark Sts., convenient by street car or elevated R. R. to any part of the city.
AT CLEVELAND all trains stop at Euclid Ave. and Pearl St. and at Main Passenger Station Broadway near Cross St.
AT BUFFALO trains run into Union Depot of the Erie Railway.
For rates and other information consult nearest Ticket Agent, or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Sup't. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in compact form a very fresh, popular and convincing treatise on some branch of Christian evidences. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible. H. L. H. 5 cts.
Ditto in German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian [illegible]
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy. 10 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible. 10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament. 5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant. 5 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses." 5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers. 5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament. H. L. H. 5 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H. 5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building. Patterson. 5 cts.
11. Geological Evolution. 5 cts.
12. The Origin of Life. 5 cts.
13. Darwinism. 5 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White. 5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
19. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
20. A Warning Word—Voices of Infidelity. 5 cts.
21. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
22. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
23. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
24. Food for Spirits, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
25. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey. 5 cts.
26. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H. 5 cts.
27. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
28. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings. 5 cts.
29. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H. 5 cts.
30. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism. 5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism so well as these."
Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.
Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc. 6 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2 per 100; $15 per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid to the United States and Canada.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 1, 1893. NO. 41.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

"I Shall Be Satisfied."

Even now my heart is satisfied
With my Savior's precious love,
And, as hasting on to glory,
Daily I his sweetness prove,
Though he lead to living pasture,
And I taste a flowing tide,
Yet, until I see his beauty,
I shall ne'er be satisfied.

Many a song he gives to brighten
All the long and dreary night;
Many a cup of joy he gives me,
For in me he has delight.
Surely with such love abounding,
I could give up all beside;
Still, I'm sure until I see him,
I can ne'er be satisfied.

O my heart, with grace uplifted,
Would each fiery trial stem;
But I gaze upon the Victor,
Decked with many a diadem—
Him to see, I've sweet dealings,
Who for me once bled and died;
And I know, till I behold him,
I shall ne'er be satisfied.

For with him, I know, are treasured
Rarest things both new and old;
But his love, his heart's affection,
Choicer is than finest gold;
Changeless, too; than death, e'en stronger,
For my Lord was crucified;
And until these eyes behold him,
I can ne'er be satisfied.

Soon the day-dawn will be breaking,
And the shadows flee away;
Now, by faith, in joy and gladness,
I await the coming day,
For I know my soul is safely
Hidden in his wounded side;
And anon he sweetly tells me
I shall soon be satisfied.

Lo! he tells me now his secret,
Cheering with his heavenly smile:
Telling me, in love's low whisper,
"It is but 'a little while.'"
Yes, for soon the brightest glory,
He will fetch away his bride,
Then I'll shine in his own likeness,
And be ever satisfied.

Original.

Our Relationship to the Apostasy. No. 7.

"There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all." Eph. iv. 4, 5, 6.

The greatest assembly of apostate faiths the world has ever witnessed, has recently been held in Chicago. In giving a report of their proceedings the Chicago Daily Herald headed the article:

"MEN OF MANY FAITHS."

And indeed it was an assembly "of many faiths;" but "the faith," the "one faith," "the faith once delivered unto the saints," was conspicuous by its absence. That faith was not represented in that great "Parliament of Religions."

The Herald in giving a report says:

"The world's parliament of religions was formally opened in Art Palace yesterday, the meetings of Sunday afternoon and evening have been merely preliminary. Gathered on the large rostrum in the Hall of Columbus were men of all nations, all types and races and of all religions. The wise men of the east for the first time in the history of the world looked into the faces of the wise men of the west. From far-away India, from the snow-locked crests of the Himalayas, from the valleys of the Tigris and the Euphrates, the representatives of a race and country old and decrepid with age clasped hands with a race now in the first flutter of youth and blossoming manhood. The oldest religions in the world greeted with friendship the youngest of the religions, and it was fitting that this golden bond of union should have been forged in the greatest city of the new world. The sere and fallen east clasped hands with the rising and new west.

Long before the hour announced for the opening of the parliament the vast hall was packed with people. It was a magnificent gathering, and the event is one that will be written in the books of the history of the world. At 10 o'clock the representatives of the religions of the world marched down the center aisle, and, amid the cheer that welled up from the hearts of 4,000 men and women, took their seats upon the platform beneath the waving flags of all countries. Representatives of many and divers nations were seated there clad in their native garb. Gathered upon the platform were the sages of India, the followers of Bhudda and Brahma. It was a grand intermingling of religions. Parsees and Presbyterians, Methodists and Moslems, Baptists and Budhists sat side by side with the olden fire-worshippers and the followers of Confuscianism and greeted one another as brothers in the world's first council of the faiths.

On the right sat the priests of the celestial empire in their long flowing robes of white with bulging sleeves lined with red. On the left sat the patriarchs of the old Greek church, wearing sombre cassocks of black and strangely formed hats and leaning on their ivory sticks carved with fantastic figures representing strange old rites. In the center of the stage, seated in the huge iron chair of curiously wrought iron, was His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons in his robes of red.

Each sect and each country had a peculiar mode of dress. From India came the robes of orange and white; from Greece, the somber black of the high church; from China, the long flowing robes of white and red. The representatives from Japan were gorgeously arrayed in long flowing robes of the colors of the rainbow. The followers of the "Light of Asia" attracted the most attention, not so much on account of their dress, but because of their finely formed faces and inteligent looks, and there was not one of the pilgrims from the sunrise kingdom but could speak fluently in the most perfect English.

The session was opened by the vast audience rising to their feet and singing the hymn beginning with the words, "From all that dwell beneath the skies," to the tune of "Old Hundred," accompanied by the organ, played by Clarence Eddy. After the song had died away, His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons offered prayer. President Bonney then delivered his address of welcome to the nations, the worshipers of God and the lovers of man. In concluding he declared the great parliament of religion opened.

Following Mr. Bonney were Chairman John Henry Barrows, Archbishop Feehan, Cardinal Gibbons and the other many dignataries of the sects represented on the stage, and all of the speakers were greeted enthusiastically by the audience. The patriarchal priest, the Archbishop of Zante, received a grand ovation when he rose to respond to the fitting tribute paid him by President Bonney."

Dr. Barrows an eminent Presbyterian minister in delivering an address of welcome to the representatives of twelve millions of people said:

"Welcome, one and all, thrice welcome to the world's first parliament of religions. Welcome to the men and women of Israel, the standing miracle of nations and religions. Welcome to the disciples of Prince Siddartha, the many millions who cherish in their heart Lord Buddha as the Light of Asia. Welcome to the high priest of the national religion of Japan. This city has every reason to be grateful to the enlightened ruler of the sunrise kingdom. Welcome to the men of India, and all faiths! Welcome to all the disciples of Christ, and may God's blessing abide in our council and extend to the twelve hundred millions of human beings, the representatives of whose faiths I address at this moment."

On one point this vast assembly were a unit, on that point alone they were all of the same faith, which faith was originally preached by the serpent in the garden of Eden: "Thou shalt not surely die." In his address, Dr. Barrows said:

"It seems to me that the spirits of just and good men hover over this assembly. I believe that the spirit of Paul is hear, the zealous missionary of Christ, whose courtesy, wisdom and unbounded tact were manifest when he preached Jesus and the resurrection beneath the shadows of the Parthenon. I believe the spirit of the wise and humane Buddha is here, and of Socrates, the seacher after truth, and of Jeremy Taylor and John Milton and Roger Williams and Lessing, the great apostles of toleration. I believe that the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, who sought for a church founded on love for God and man, is not far from us, and the spirit of Tennyson and Whittier and Phillips Brooks, who looked forward to this parliament as the realization of a noble idea."

Surely this must have been quite a delegation from the spirit world, but rather a strange place for grand old Paul to be, who looked forward to the resurrection as the time when he would be invested with immortality.

But with regard to God they were of different faiths, some believed in one God, and others in a multiplicity of Gods. One minister cited history to show that Jesus was not believed to be God for the first few centuries of the Christian era. It is a doctrine which came in with the apostasy. A noted minister from London declared that "Jesus Christ was the Lord God Almighty, maker of heaven and earth." And right here it might be as well to call attention to three paragraphs which appeared in an article written by "W. J." They are as follows:

1. Let me remind brother W. H. W. that my first article expressly states that "the Father and the Son are distinct persons," and that the Son is "the Second Person of the divine nature." I know not of any one, no, not even a Trinitarian, who claims that they are one person. I have clearly shown the difference between nature and person, and the need of distinguishing between them.

2. "It was also fit that he should be God, so that in worshiping and trusting in him because only of his divine attributes, we might not be chargeable with idolatry." Jer. xvii. 5.

3. "It was fit that the mediator should be truly man, in order that he might be 'under the law,' and to render his obedience, temptation, suffering, and death possible; for, as God, he could not die, and without shedding of blood there was no remission." Gal. iv. 5; Luke iv. 1-18; Heb. ix. 22.

Paragraph one, says: "The Father and the Son are distinct persons."

Paragraph two says: "It was also fit that he should be God."

It must therefore be an indisputable conclusion, that if "the Father and the Son are distinct persons," and both are God, there must be two Gods. One plus one equals two every time.

It is quite evident from Jesus' own testimony that he did not know that he was God along with the Father. He says:

"This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." John xvii. 3.

See Cor. viii. 4, 5, 6: "That no one is God but one. For though there are, indeed, Gods so-called, whether in heaven or on earth; * * * yet to us there is but one God, the Father, out of whom are all things, and we for him; and one Lord Jesus Christ." (Diaglott.)

Notice particularly two statements in the above Scripture:

1. "That no one is God but one."

2. "To us there is but one God, the Father."

If the above quotation teaches anything, it teaches that only one person is God, and that "one God" is "the "Father."

See also Isa. xxxvii. 16: "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone."

Paragraphs 1 and 2 testifies that he is not God "alone," as "the Father and the Son are distinct persons," and both are God.

See Deut. iv. 35, 39: "he is God; there is none else beside him. He is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else."

"There is none else," says the sacred Word of God. Paragraph 2, says there is another: "It was also fit that he (the Son) should be God."

Paragraph 3, gives an excellent reason why he "should be truly man," and that reason is, "as God he could not die," and yet paragraph 2, says he is God, and "it was also fit that he should be God."

Now, if he was God and "as God he could not die," how could he say: "I am he that liveth and was dead: and, behold, I am alive for ever more?" If "as God he could not die," and as he says he "was dead," he could not then have been God, because he died.

We are also told that Jesus in his personal make-up, is a compound of God and man, and at his crucifixion the man part died, and the God part remained alive. The God part was the Son of God, and the human part man. Hence, it must be true according to this doctrine that the Son of God never died, although the Word of God says he did die.

God's precious Book says: "Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren." Then of course, if Christ and "his brethren" were "made" alike, and if he was "made" "human and divine,"—mortal and immortal, the "brethren," must of necessity be human and divine,—"mortal and immortal," by nature from their birth, because the Bible says that Christ and his brethren were both "made" alike, born with the same nature.

Hence, if Christ was "made" human and "divine," —mortal and immortal, and we are positively assured both were "made" alike, had the same nature, and both having the "nature of angels," from birth, the Satanic doctrine of the immortality of the soul by nature, must be true. If you prove Christ "human and divine" by nature, you prove "his brethren" the same. This position is sound and cannot be shaken.

Once accept the position that Christ was "human and divine" by nature and you play right into the hands of the apostasy. It is clearly in harmony with the Satanic delusion of an immortal soul, as the Bible teaches that both were made alike as to "nature," so if Christ was "human and divine" by nature "the brethren" are also.

Realizing the truth of this, we can better appreciate the force of 1 John iv. 3: "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God."

W. H. WILSON.

Was Jesus the Son of Joseph?

Why ask this question? Because there is a class of men and women who affirm that Jesus was the son of Joseph. They also affirm that the death of Jesus was not a sacrifice for our sins. These two tenets of their faith go together:

1. Jesus was the son of Joseph.

2. His death was non-sacrificial. He died as the victim of the hatred of his country-men.

If Jesus were the son of Joseph there would be no virtue in his blood to procure remission of sins. Let it be proved then that Jesus was the son of Joseph, and we will admit that his death was not sacrificial.

We will grant for the sake of argument, that Jesus was the son of Joseph, and that his death had no redeeming power in it; and prove that there is no way of salvation except by keeping the law; that the old covenant is still in force.

Jesus was born under the covenant which God made with Israel at Sinai. That covenant contained the law. The great principle of the law was, "He that doeth these things shall live by them." Gal. iii. 12; Rom. x. 5. Jesus did those things, and was therefore entitled to life. His brethren, the Jews, hated him and caused him to be put to death. God raised him from among the dead, and gave him eternal life, because on account of his righteousness he was entitled to it.

The righteousness of Jesus could not annul the covenant. It would rather establish the covenant; because it would prove that as one man had fulfilled the law, and had been by the righteous Judge, the King of Israel—Jehovah—pronounced righteous, another might do the same, and acquire eternal life by his own personal righteousness. A law then having been found which could give life, verily, (Gal. iii. 21), righteousness would be by the law. The law then having the ability to justify and give life, that covenant would not be faulty, and there would be no reason for bringing in another covenant.

The death of Jesus was not sacrificial. Then it could not impart force or strength to a new covenant to give life. Though Jesus did not sin, his brethren were all sinners, condemned for sin to die. His death not being sacrificial could not give strength to a covenant to remit sins. Then his death could not bring into force a new covenant. Therefore the Siniatic covenant remained.

Now as Jesus did not by his righteous life, or by his death, bring a new covenant into force, he is not a mediator of a new covenant. And as he cannot be a mediator, and not be a mediator of a covenant he is not a mediator.

Then there is no mediator between God and men. He could not be a mediator under the old covenant; for he could not be a priest under that covenant, as he did not belong to the priestly tribe. Under that covenant then he could not as mediator offer remission of sins. Therefore if that covenant remains he cannot authorize repentance and remission of sins to be preached in his name.

The new covenant not having been brought into force he cannot authorize the preaching of repentance and remission of sins through that covenant. Therefore there is no salvation in or through him.

The priesthood of the old covenant was rendered useless, and valueless by the destruction of the temple: therefore the only way of salvation is by keeping the law without ever transgressing it, as Jesus did, taking him as an example. It is vain to teach this way to any who have already committed sin: because it does not offer remission. Teach it to children who are too young to be accountable, so that they may be ready to start right. Teach them the whole law, sabbath and all, all that is of a moral character, so that they may know just what they are to do, and if you succeed in getting them to start right, a very difficult thing to do, the probability is that nine thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every ten thousand will soon trip and fall into sin, and consequently into condemnation.

What then is to be done with these sinners? The law shows no favor to sinners. It says, "The soul that sinneth it shall die." But God who made the law can forgive sins. Yes, he can.

But under the law he did not promise to forgive sins without a sin-offering. The priesthood he did himself ordain. The priesthood has passed away; and as Jesus did not offer himself for sin, no sin-offering has been provided, and no way of salvation for sinners made known for this age.

If it be contended that God forgives sins on the condition of repentance and keeping the law there after: that God forgives sins without reference to a sacrifice for sin: I answer, "No such righteousness of God" has been "revealed;" no such "righteousness" was witnessed by the law and the prophets. Rom. i. 16, 17; Rom. iii. 21-26. So then if Jesus was the son of Joseph, there is no new covenant, no way of salvation from sin: Jesus has not been exalted to be a prince and a Savior to grant repentance and remission of sins. The amount of the whole matter is that if Jesus was the natural son of Joseph he was not the Christ. This will do for the present.

J. W. NILES.

Home.

What a world of thought and feeling is embodied in that one word. It is the magic circle within which the weary spirits find refuge from their daily toils and inquietudes of life. The world can get along without the work of women in the professions, but in the home the wives and mothers are a necessity to the well-being of the race. She has duties to perform which can be trusted to no one else; she must perform them herself with the aid of such strength and wisdom as God has given her. There has been found no substitute for that woman who is the faithful and intelligent helpmeet of the husband whom she respects and honors. It is often said that the mother is the home.

The following question is but one of the many proofs of the truth of this proverb. When the father returns home at night tired and worried over the business cares of the day, when the children come home from school, almost invariably the first question is—unless she stands in the very hall before their eyes, "Where's mother?"

Unless the mother is in the house the vital principle of the home seems to be lacking. She comes, and comfort, love and joy seems to enter with her. She goes, and oh what an aching void in the hearts of those loved ones left behind.

To the true mother, the knowledge that she is indispensable to the loved ones should be one of her choicest possessions. If it is not, if she care more for public admiration and applause than for the home interests and home affections, she is not worthy of the name mother; and does not deserve the love and esteem bestowed upon her. The world bestows no such titles as noble as father, mother, sister or brother.

A woman may do all she can to make a happy home for her husband and children, but if she only gets her board and clothing in payment for her services as mother, wife, cook, laundress, nurse girl, chamber maid and seamstress, is it any wonder there is little or no happiness in such a home, or that she becomes bitter and disheartened? Happiness in the home depends fully as much on the husband as it does upon the wife. We are often told that in an ideal home both the husband and wife must learn to bear and forbear, in every home where happiness exists there must be implicit trust, confidence and love between husband and wife.

For without these there is no true happiness. Sunshine should be an indispensable article in the home. Many a child goes astray simply because home lacks this very essential element. A child needs smiles as much as flowers need sunshine. A child scarcely looks beyond the present moment. If a thing pleases it is apt to seek it, if it displeases, it is prone to avoid it.

If then, the spell of home is so powerful, how important it is that we should make it pleasant and lovable.

There are two kinds of sunshine—the one that is caused by the sun's shining out of doors and the other by its shining in our hearts. Happy homes abound in the heart sunshine, and whether it shines without or not, there is naught but brightness within. There is nothing that conduces more to the happiness of the home than for the father when he returns at night wearied and worried from his daily toil, to find a bright, sunny face smiling into his as he enters the door. But, if on the other hand he finds only a surly, sullen look upon his wife's face, it makes his weight of cares heavier to bear. Many a time a cheerful home and smiling face does more to make good men and women than all the learning and eloquence that can be used. It matters little whether we live in a mansion or cottage, whether we be rich or poor so happiness is there.

Riches and all that money can buy does not make happiness. Let me illustrate, I know a man not a thousand miles distant, who has houses and land and wealth in abundance. He lives in a fine brick mansion, and to a stranger passing by it would seem he had all that heart could wish. All went well for a time until the family was grown and the fortune made. A few years ago the wife and mother was stricken with a disease that left her a cripple for life. One day the town in which they lived was electrified by the news that the wife had been driven from home. She was told he had no longer any use for her as wife, he did not want a cripple, he wanted one who could "appear in society." God have mercy on such a man. She was a noble Christian woman, a faithful and frugal wife who did all in her power to make his home happy, for she loved him, and does even now. All her efforts to please him were futile. She bore her disgrace with a fortitude touching to see. To-day he lives in a mansion with a second wife, surrounded by all that money can buy, but with little or no happiness.

With all his money he has but few friends. The wife lives with a married daughter on the small allowance he gives her. Her life is a living trouble and ten-fold harder to bear than if she had buried the man she once called husband. But we all have our own troubles to bear and let us always look to God for refuge and strength at all times and under all circumstances.

We are daily sowing seed which will bring forth some sort of harvest. Well will it be for us to sow seed we will be proud to gather. O then let us make our homes the dearest spots on earth, the centers of all our joys! May they be as green spots in the deserts, to which we can retire when weary of the cares and perplexities of life. It is loving deeds and cheery, helpful words that each member of the family shows towards the others, that make the ideal, happy home. How many of us do our share in making such a home?

"Home's not merely four square walls,
Though with pictures hung and gilded.
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded,
Home: go watch the faithful dove,
Sailing neath the heaven above us;
Home is where there's one to love!
Home is where there's one to love us!

Homes not merely roof and room:
It needs something to endear it.
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kind lip to cheer it.
What is home with none to meet,
None to welcome, none to greet us!
Home is sweet, and only sweet,
When there's one we love to meet us.

HATTIE FRANKEBERGER.

[illegible]RIAL STAFF: [illegible] of the C. P. Association.
[illegible] JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 1, 1893.

The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The Christian Publishing Association will be held at Plymouth, Ind., on Nov. 18, 1893, at which time a Board of Directors is to be chosen for the coming year, and such other business transacted as may come before the Association.

ROBERT RAILSBACK, Pres.
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Secy.

CARTER H. Harrison, mayor of the City of Chicago, was shot to death last Saturday evening in his own home, by a crazy fanatic who was admitted as a visitor.

PRESUMING that when our readers get to the end of the masterful exposition of John xvii. 5, by Bro. Joblin, they will say: "I wish I had a number of copies of that article to distribute," we have concluded to print it in tract form. Send orders now, as only a limited number of copies will be printed. Price 10 cents per dozen, 30 cents for 50 copies, 55 cents for 100.

GERMANY cannot allow the triple alliance to weaken at this juncture, so the way has been cleared that German bankers will give Italy the financial assistance that she must have at once. This can last but a short time. Revolutions in South America, Spain warring in the north of Africa and England in the centre, are but side issues of the great conflict coming.

Exposition of John xvii. 5.

Several correspondents in Southern Ohio call for an exposition of the above passage,—difficult to many, and a stumbling block to some. It reads as follows: "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world."

1. We ask, who offers this prayer? It was Jesus of Nazareth, who was born of Mary at Bethlehem, and named of the angel, Luke i. 31, and who increased in stature, in wisdom and favor with God and man, ate, drank, slept, wept, rejoiced, suffered, died, rose and ascended. This is the only Jesus we know anything about. Do our correspondents know of any other?

2. It must be remembered from the outset, that this same Jesus was called the Son of God because "the power of the Highest" overshadowed a virgin,—no man being his father; and that there is absolutely no divine authority for separating the Son of God from the Jesus born of Mary, and thus making two persons, one human, and the other divine. And we hold it to be downright sinful to teach two natures in the One Jesus, when we are distinctly taught in Heb. ii. 17 that he was "made in all things like unto his brethren;"—his brethren have but one nature.

3. It must be remembered that the man Christ Jesus, made of a woman in fulfillment of promises to Abraham and David is always mentioned, and no pre-existent Son is ever promised or mentioned.

4. That ALL the offices and work of Christ are attributed to the Son made of a women—nothing to the alleged pre-existent Son. It is he who had blood to shed, and shed it, that is set forth as the propitiation for our sins,—and he who was tempted in all points as we are that has become our Great High Priest, and not a pre-existent Son of God; and to the Son of Man the kingdom is to be given—not to a pre-existent Son of God. If in answer to the question why this is so we are told that it is a mystery, we append the word Babylon.

5. The genealogy of Christ Jesus is traced to Abraham by Matthew, and to Adam, and God by Luke, but no reference is made to a pre-existence. It is this very Son of Mary who says he had glory with the Father before the world. We believe what Jesus says because he says it, but we do not take a meaning out of his words which is out of harmony with the Moses, prophets and psalms he directs us to search, and who he says wrote of him. They never wrote of his pre-existence. In a word we understand his words in harmony with the immediate context and with revealed truth as a whole, and not as if this was the only passage in all the book which relates to Christ's origin. For instance, this chapter records these words of Jesus: "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." Literally this was not true: the bitterest cup was yet to be drunk. He says, "They have kept thy word," and "I am glorified in them," and yet in a few hours Judas betrayed him, Peter denied even his acquaintance with oaths and curses, and all forsook him and fled. Again he says, "The glory which thou gavest me, I have given them." Indeed! glorified, were they, with him? And yet a little while witnesses his agony in the garden, the indignities heaped upon him by the rabble, and the mockery of the authorities, and the ignominious death of the cross. Is this the glory the Father had given him? and did the disciples run away from the glory when they forsook him and fled? Nay, rather let us take the apostolic explanation in 2 Thess. i. 10 that he is COMING AGAIN TO BE GLORIFIED IN HIS SAINTS! and also that of 1 Peter i. 10 where he shows that the glory follows the sufferings! At this point we may be asked. "Then are not the words of Jesus misleading? and the Scriptures conflicting?" By no means; he takes for granted his disciples believe the promises relating to the woman's seed and Abraham's and David's; -takes it for granted that those who have listened to his gracious message would be content to know they had found him of whom Moses and the prophets did write, and knew that the glory of the kingdom could not precede the kingdom itself, and therefore leave the heathen who supposed that man possessed two natures, to speculate about pre-existence. Jesus' words would only mislead those who were alienated from the life of God through ignorance. He was speaking to the Little Flock to whom it was the Father's purpose to give the kingdom. Might it not be that this was the very way in which he had given THEM the glory the Father had given him—given the promise of it, by revealing to them that it was the Father's good pleasure to give it to them, and that they should occupy seats at his table, in his kingdom? The glory was certainly related to, and connected with the long promised, but certain-to-come-kingdom. This was where their hopes centered, or else Peter's exclamation and question, "Behold! we have left all and followed thee,—what shall we have, therefore?"

6. John xvii. 5 reveals what a oneness of mind and purpose existed between Christ and his Father—how unlimited his confidence,—how vivid his hope, how ardent his expectations, and how his whole being merged into the loving purpose of God. To him, the whole outlying future with its attendant glories were an accomplished fact, so rapt in transport of meditation was he. And oh, what transcendant assurance, and comfort, and edification it is to those in Christ to mark how he identifies himself with both God and those who had been given him. If the inverted tenses referred to above be borne in mind in reviewing this subject, it will be clear that Jesus anticipates the glory TO BE when he comes again, when he speaks of the glory he had given them; and 1 Peter v. 10 says they had been CALLED unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus. This makes it plain.

7. In what sense, then, did Jesus have glory with the Father before the world? Does it mean that Jesus was personally there, or that he had glory in the Father's purpose? Jesus was not personally there. There was no Jesus then,—the person afterward so named was promised in the very infancy of the race, and the fleshly mind says he pre-existed: but as the Spirit no where says so, this expression had to be coined so that both the idea and the word are of the flesh. But when the Spirit has plainly taught us how to speak of the promised one before he was manifested, and men set that aside and employ terms which agree with their own notions, it tells a sad tale. 1 Peter i. 20 speaks volumes of condemnation of that theory when it says to the strangers in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithinia respecting the Christ of God: "Who verily was FOREORDAINED before the foundation of the world, but was MANIFEST in these last times for you, who do by him believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave HIM glory; that YOUR faith and hope might be in God."

8. God in sundry times and divers manners spake in times past to his people concerning the coming One, but never a syllable of a then existing One. David sang exultingly, and Isaiah joyously, and even the weeping prophet tuned his lyre and sang sweetly of the Branch in whose days Judah shall be saved and Israel dwell safely; and we challenge criticism when we say that for more than four thousand years God's people knew nothing of a pre-existent Messiah, but alway spake of him as Abraham's or David's seed, or David. It was not long, however, after the ascension of our Lord, before the coming of the Anointed in flesh was denied. How was this heresy met by the Spirit? It was promptly stamped as a fleshly conception by saying it was deceptive and antichristian. 2 John vii.

9. The expression "with thee" appears to favor the popular view, at first, and, indeed, if there were not many other divine statements that cannot be harmonized with this read literally, it would teach it. For instance, he that had the power of death could only be destroyed by one who could die; see Heb. ii. 4. If Jesus as a Son of God pre-existed in heaven he was possessed of divine nature of existence, because mortals cannot see God and live; even angels are not subject to death. The immortal Jesus, then, must be changed to mortal, or he cannot die. And, when changed to mortal, would he not be on the same plane of existence as we hold the Son of Mary to have been, being made of a woman? If the pre-existent Son was not changed to a mortal state of existence, he did not die for our sins according to the Scriptures, was not buried, was not raised again for our justification, was not fitted by trial to become our great sympathizing High Priest, and whoever he is, it is not he who speaks from heaven to say to us, "I am he that liveth and was dead; and behold, I am alive forevermore, amen, and have the keys of hades and of death." No; it is not he. But is it supposable that he became mortal when angels are not subject to death? If so, then, if we put on immortality we may be liable to put it off again. These, however are the immergencies of a false theory.

We understand the words "with thee" as we do where it says one day "with the Lord, is as a thousand years;" that is, in his purposes, plans and arrangements. Jesus asked to be glorified with the glory determined upon by the Father, before the foundation of the world. This is in harmony with all revealed truth on the subject. We read in John vii. 39 that the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified. As the Holy Spirit was given shortly after his ascension to the Father, he must have been glorified then, in-so-far as perfection of nature was concerned, and exaltation to the right-hand of the Majesty in the heavens; but only as an expectant of the Kingdom and Glory. He was made perfect through sufferings; the glory was not possible before perfection. To say that he was once perfect, and then became imperfect; and then AGAIN perfected, is simply religious nonsense, that no unbiased and sensible person can respect. To say that he was half perfect and half imperfect is monstrous, and entirely gratuitous, and only applicable to a nondescript of human origin, and not to the Son of God made of a woman, lower than the angels, for the suffering of death. Believers in pre-existence believe that only a part of the Christ was made of a woman; and in order to believe that much they have to construct an argument and then believe in it, because they find nothing that exactly suits in the Book.

10. John xvii. 5 alone, cannot establish the doctrine of pre-existence, because, read literally, it is subversive of revealed truth in scores, if not hundreds of other Scriptures. God never requires us to believe what runs counter to common sense, so far as we know. People who find no difficulty in understanding the washing of robes and making them white in the blood of the Lamb, when real garments are not meant, and not a drop of real blood comes in contact with them; and when the Lamb of God is said to have been SLAIN from the foundation of the world, when they know it was not so, they pass on as if there was nothing the matter, and yet when they read of the glory that was to follow in the same way they stumble clear over it. In the purpose of God he was slain before the foundation of the world, not really. In the purpose of God who sees the end from the beginning, Jesus had glory with the Father, not really. The glory follows the suffering; the glory was set before him as an inducement to suffer. Pre-existence involves the idea that Jesus, personally, had glory with the Father, and voluntarily laid it aside, or was deprived of it, and is to be everlastingly deprived of it unless he suffer. What had he done to deserve this treatment, seeing he knew no sin?

Again, did the apostles and brethren who were chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, pre-exist? This is too ridiculous to entertain for a moment, of course, and so we ask, For what purpose were they chosen in him—was it not to be saved by HIS LIFE, (which was obtained at the resurrection,) in order to share the inheritance, together with the honor, power, and glory attached to it? This Kingdom of Glory is still a matter of promise, although SAID to have been prepared from the foundation of the world;—it was prepared in Jehovah's purpose.

11. The pre-existent theory implies that God's immortal, pre-existent spirit Son, perfectly holy and incapable of sin, is set before us, who are born in sin, of the will of the flesh, with a warped, twisted, and biased organism, without any supernatural power,—as an example. Let our correspondents read that he was tempted in all parts like as we are, yet without sin, and is therefore able to succor us, and they will have the proper antidote. This may cause some to wince, but we regard it as a proper statement of the case:—If Jesus pre-existed he was divine in nature, and as GOD cannot be tempted, neither could he, and therefore he is not able to succor us, because not touched with the feelings of our infirmities. As he is thus touched, he was not divine in nature, but in mind, character, disposition.

12. Paul in 1 Cor. xv. 45, informs us that the first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam a quickening spirit. The word Adam means "earthy"—of the earth. The name gives his origin, see Gen. ii. 7. The Christ who died for us is also called Adam; has the meaning been changed? Does it mean earthy whoever owns it? We mean, does it not mean that his foundation was in the dust? It certainly does if he was made of a Woman, for the woman was dust. Thus it is seen that the Spirit has forestalled the popular delusion of Pre-existence. He is called the last Adam; not that no other earthy ones were to come after him, but he was the last of a series, the first of which was the first man.

"But, it says, the last Adam was a quickening spirit." So he was; but the same apostle informs us in Rom. viii. 11 that his quickening powers were to be exerted in the future. And in the nature of things he could not be a quickening spirit before he himself was quickened. All can see for themselves when he became a quickening spirit by reading 1 Peter iii. 18, where it says Christ was put to death in "FLESH, (not in spirit) but quickened (made alive) by the Spirit." That constituted him a quickening Spirit. And how beautifully this is set before us in the immediate context: "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body." Now let the apostle tell us which was first, the natural or spiritual body, and that should end the controversy with the candid. Verse 46 reads, "Howbeit, that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural, and afterwards that which is spiritual." Any theory which to sustain itself, puts the spiritual before the natural, as does the pre-existence theory, is not the truth, because, as in Isaiah's day, the truth is turned upside down.

LASTLY, the Eternal God placed man under a law the penalty of which was death. Man violated that law, and the penalty was pronounced. Do our readers realize that that law has never been abrogated—is in as full force today as ever it was—and that God has never instituted any means by which its penalty could be evaded. We believe this to be the veritable truth of God whether they realize it or not. Jehovah's remedial scheme does not prevent men from dying, but it ransoms them from the powers of death. But how can this be done without dishonor to the law? It could not be done till one of the disobedient race fulfilled it by perfect obedience, and died without any sin of his own; such an one could, without dishonor to God's law, be raised to life again, and thus break the power of death. But it must be one made like his brethren in all things—tried in all points as they were, but without sin. Oh, thank God, such an one has been found, and is alive again—alive forevermore, and has the keys of death and hades, because he has been elevated to divine nature, and made the object of faith, so that all believing into him may be saved by HIS LIFE; there is redemption IN HIM.

And now in conclusion we make one more reference to John xvii. 5. Who is it that prays, O, Father, Glorify thou me, with thine own self with the glory I had with thee before the world? It was Jesus of Nazareth. And our understanding of it is this, after much comparison of Scripture with Scripture: as if he had said, Impart to me thine ever-living glorious nature, that I may be eligible to all that Moses and the prophets have disclosed of thy eternal purpose toward me, Eph. iii. 11.

Presuming to have found the key to this sublime subject, we see the Seed of the Woman who grows in favor with God and man, and received the Father's approval at his baptism, and the Spirit without measure, on the eve of his crucifixion, able to say he had done the will of him who sent him, and pleased not himself, Rom. xv. 3, determined to stand the final test on the morrow, and in perfect confidence asking the Father for the rewards of obedience offered him, and planned for him before the world. Yes; here stands the sinless one on whom the destiny of the race hung, almost an overcomer, and about to become the beginning of the new creation, the foundation of the holy temple to be erected for Deity to dwell in; and on the night before the dreadful ordeal in vivid expection of the glory to follow. Blessed Jesus, how we long to see thee and cast our crown at thy feet.

Our parting word to our correspondents is, we have done what we could under existing circumstances, to harmonize the Scriptures, i. e., show their harmony, and we hope soon to hear that one and all have rejected a theory which practically teaches that God provided a Savior WHO COULD NOT SIN, and then exalted him with the oil of gladness above his fellows because he DID NOT SIN, which is most derogatory to the character of God.

If it be replied to this, that it was the pre-existent Christ that enabled Jesus to live without sin, we say them nay, again. It was through the Eternal Spirit's sustaining power that he offered himself without spot to God, and not his pre-existent self, see Heb. ix. 14.

See what is involved in the psychology of immortal-soulism. It is not only an unbiblical dogma; but one that proves fatal to fundamental Bible truth. It just robs Christ of his glory as the Life-giver to men. If anything is plainly taught us of his work in coming into the world, it is, that he might give, not happiness merely to a select few of immortal beings, but life itself. The redeemed will owe everything to Christ, even their very existence.

Mr. Dauby says: We would express our conviction that the immortality of the soul has no source in the Gospel; that it comes, on the contrary, from the Platonists. The [doctrine of the] immortality of the soul came in to replace that of the resurrection.

Selected.

[From a lecture by W. Grant.]

Glory of the Age to Come.

The next age will be characterized by the absence of all the evil which now disgraces humanity, that there will be no war, consequent on the disappearance of national feuds, social and political, that slavery, and tyranny in all its shapes and forms, will disappear, along with drunkenness, lawlessness, idolatry, debauchery, and every unlawful and defiling institution under the sun (resulting in a great diminution in the rate of mortality) the downfall of all the governments on the earth by conquest and the unconditional surrender of place and power to the one righteous King of all the earth. He pointed out the necessity of those wishing to become participants of the glorious order of things (as life is fleeting, and will soon pass away) to secure it in the only way it can be secured, by believing and obeying the gospel of the Kingdom of God as originally known to Abraham, pointing out the fact that Abraham died without receiving so much of the land promised him as to set his foot upon, involving the necessity of his returning from the dead (at Christ's coming) to enter into possession of the purchased inheritance along with all the members of his adopted family, who have become such by the great and precious promises made to him.

Mr. Grant began by saying that we live in "the times of the Gentiles" which continue until the second advent of the Lord Jesus Christ, when there would be inaugurated the age to come. Alluding to the brevity of human life, he stated that anything relating to the age to come is of the deepest interest to every one, since Christ has said that those who would be accounted worthy to obtain that age would die no more. He proceeded to deal with a number of passages bearing upon the subject, making allusion to the revised version, which frequently gave the alternative reading "age" where "world" appeared in the authorized version of the Scriptures (such as Ephesians i., 21; Titus ii. 16; Luke xx. 34-35), and in some instances "inhabited earth" being given upon the margin of the revised version (Acts xvii. 31; Heb. i. 6; ii. 5). He argued that this idea of an "inhabited earth" to come was in accordance with the promise made by the Father to his Son: "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me and I shall give the heathen (or nations) for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." Psalm ii. 7, 8. The highest and brightest figure in that glorious age to come would be Jesus Christ, Psalm xxii. 26-28; Psalm lxxii. 1; etc.; Zech. ix. 10, who would have the world's affairs under his personal supervision. He would have associated with him his twelve apostles (Matt. xix. 27-29), and all his faithful followers (Rev. ii. 26; iii. 21; xx. 4-6), as the apostle Paul had said: If we suffer we shall also reign with him. Thus the Lord Jesus Christ and his glorified saints would form the government of the age to come. They would rule over mankind with the strictest impartiality, in perfect wisdom, and with absolute power. Then would be fulfilled the prophetic statement: Behold a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes rule in judgment? The lecturer next proceeded to deal with the condition of the subjects of this future world-wide dominion, stating that Israel would be the first nation upon the earth. He adduced some passages of Scriptura depicting the blessed condition of Israel (such as Isaiah lxv. 17 to end) and all other nations (Isaiah ii 1-5) and argued that when that time arrived there would be the realization of the song sung at the birth of Jesus, "Glory to God in the Highest, on earth peace, good will toward men?" In that glorious age a temple would be erected in Palestine which would be "the house of prayer for all nations" foretold by the prophet (Isaiah lvi. 6-7), and thither would the nations go to worship the Lord. Isaiah lxvi. 22-23; Zech. xiv. 16-21, the emancipated nations would joyfully resort to Jerusalem as the capital of the world—the city of the great King. In that magnificent temple—made sacred by the presence of the Lord of Glory—they would present their supplications to the most High through the King of kings, who would be a priest as well as a king upon his throne. To him they would bring presents as tokens of their allegiance, and as their expressions of gratitude for the blessedness of his righteous reign. Then there would be congregated in that great and glorious temple men of every rank, of every clime, and every nation, then the vault of heaven would ring with that well-known thrilling Psalm, which can only now be sung in prospect of that good time to come:—

All people that on the Earth do dwell,
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice;
Him serve with mirth, His praise forth tell,
Come ye before Him and rejoice.

Dealing with the second part of the subject:—how to become participants of the glory of the age to come—the lecturer adduced 2 Thess. ii. 13-14, to show that men were invited by the gospel to share the glory of the Christ, and he argued that the gospel must necessarily be known (2 Cor. 4-3), believed (Rom. i. 15), and accepted, its acceptance being manifested by baptism into Christ for remission of sins (Acts viii. 12; ii. 41). In Christ are covered (Rom. iii. 24-26), have access to God, and can look forward, as heirs of the kingdom, to be established at his second appearing. The necessity of getting into the name of Christ by baptism in water was shown by such references as Rom. vi. 1-5; and Gal. iii. 27-29. It was an individual act, and too much stress could not be laid upon it, (Eph. ii. 12-13). Once in Christ men had to "abide in him," and this was done by a patient continuance in well doing, seeking for glory, honor and immortality, and to such "God would render eternal life." Rom. ii. 6-7. Baptism at first sight appeared a very trivial ordinance, to many contemptible, like "the foolishness of preaching," by which it has pleased God to save them that believe. When, however, its signification was known baptism was seen to be a beautiful symbol of dying with Christ, who is "the Resurrection and the Life," a rising in him to walk in newness of life. The lecturer concluded by an earnest appeal to search for and follow truth, and if they had the humility, candor, and courage to believe and obey, they would find that upon the truth they stood upon a Rock of safety. It would give them a sense of security amidst the difficulties and uncertainties of the present, and in the age to come they would reap a life that would never end."

What Must we do to be Saved?

This is a subject we all ought to think of. Have we not read the blessed Bible, and do we not find as its pages unfold before us what we must do to be saved, or enter into the family of God's dear children.

We will read, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." Again, "And ye shall be hated for my name's sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." Here we come to another place that tells us what we must do to be saved. We must prove faithful and stand up for Jesus, and work till he comes if we want to enter into the family of God's dear children.

We must lead a Christian life and do a Christian work, and we cannot do this without the help of God which we get through prayer. But prayer will not do any good if we have not the faith. First we must have faith, second, we must believe and be baptized, third, pray. We must tell the love of Jesus to poor wandering souls who have not yet heard it. We are just beginning to find out some of the many things we must do to be saved.

May we all read the Bible and find out many more things that will save us, is my prayer.

EMMA LINDSEY.

Dr. Thomas Dick says: When I consider the boundless nature of eternity, when I consider the limited duration of man, I can scarcely bring myself to believe that the sins of a few brief years are to be punished throughout a duration that has no end.

"Hem the day with prayer and praises, and it will be less likely to ravel out before night."

Inasmuch.

"If I had dwelt"—so mused a tender woman—
All fine emotions stirred,
Through pondering o'er that life, divine yet human,
Told in the sacred word,

"If I had dwelt of old a Jewish maiden,
In some Judean street
Where Jesus walked, and heard his voice so laden
With comfort strangely sweet,

And seen the face where utmost pity blended
With each rebuke of wrong;
I would have left my lattice and descended,
And followed with the throng.

If I had been the daughter, jewel-girded,
Of some rich rabbi there;
Seeing the sick, blind, halt, my blood had curdled
At sight of such despair.

And I had wrenched the sapphires from my fillet,
Nor let one spark remain;
Snatched up my gold, among the crowd to spill it,
For pity of their pain.

I would have let the palsied fingers hold me,
I would have walked between
The Marys and Salome, while they told me
About the Magdalene.

'Foxes have holes'—I think my heart had broken
To hear the words so said,
'While Christ had not'—were sadder ever spoken—
'A place to lay his head?'

I would have flung abroad my doors before him,
And in my joy have been
First on the threshold, eager to adore him,
And crave his entrance in!"

Ah, would you so? Without a recognition
You passed him yesterday;
Jostled aside, unhelped, his mute petition,
And calmly went your way.

With warmth and comfort garmented and girded,
Before your window sill
Swept heartsick crowds—and if your blood is curdled,
You wear your jewels still.

You catch aside your robes lest want should clutch them
In its imploring wild;
Or lest some woeful penitent might touch them,
And you be thus defiled.

O dreamers dreaming that your faith is keeping
All service free from blot,
Christ daily walks your streets, sick, suffering, weeping,
And ye perceive him not!
—Margaret J. Preston.

Selected.

Facts Not Generally Known. No. 4.

That every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust, and not by a super-human fiend. James i. 14.

That evil thoughts, and all forms of sin proceed from the heart, and not from the popular Satan. Matt. xv. 19.

That the most deceitful thing in existence is the human heart, and not the supposed devil. Jer. xvii. 9.

That when a person was "possessed with devils" it simply meant that they were suffering from some disease, or were insane, and does not mean that "demons" literally dwelt in them. Matt. xii. 22.

That "hell" is the Bible name for the grave, and not for a place of fiery torment, which does not exist. Acts ii. 31.

That Jonah was in "hell" when in the belly of the fish, but not in the fire and brimstone hell of "orthodoxy." Jonah ii. 2.

That hell (the grave) is a place of rest, and not of woe. Job iii. 17.

That the inhabitants of hell are dead people, and not immortal souls. Rev. xx. 13.

That when "hell" does signify a place of punishment (as in Matt. xxiii. 33), it refers to a valley near Jerusalem, and not to the imaginary abode of the devil. Joel iii. 12.

That the remains of the wicked are to be ashes under the feet of the righteous, and consequently the wicked will not be enduring the fiery torments for ever. Mal. iv. 3.

That eternal life (immortality) is only to be awarded to the righteous, and consequently the wicked, not being immortal will not, and cannot exist for ever. Matt. xxv. 46.

That those who do not believe the gospel will perish, and will not continue to blaspheme and curse their Creator throughout unending ages. John iii. 16.

That belief of the Gospel followed by baptism in water is essential for salvation, and not belief only. Mark xvi. 16.

That baptism is immersion in water, and not sprinkling. Acts viii. 38.

That baptism is necessary for remission of sins, and not repentance alone. Acts ii. 38.

That if we have been baptized into Christ's death, we shall participate in his resurrection, and not if we refuse to be baptized. Rom. vi. 5.

That those who feared God in the days of John the Baptist were baptized, but not the lawyers and Pharisees who rejected the counsel of God. Luke vii. 30.

That Christ commanded baptism, and if any one loves Christ, they will obey his command, and not reject it, or refuse it. John xiv. 15.

That if any one professes to love and follow Christ, and yet does not obey his commandments, he is a liar, and not of the Truth. 1 John ii. 4.

That the earth is to abide for ever, and will not be destroyed. Eccles. i. 4.

That God has created the earth to be inhabited, and not to be made a bonfire of. Isa. xlv. 18.

That Christ is heir to the world, and his inheritance will not be destroyed. Rom. iv. 13.

That the earth is the inheritance of the righteous, and not heaven. Psa. xxxvii. 22.

That the righteous are to be recompensed in the earth, and not in heaven. Prov. xi. 31.

That the meek are to inherit the earth, and not a land "beyond the starry blue." Matt. v. 5.

That the saints of God will reign on the earth, and not above the skies. Rev. v. 10.

That the immortal saints will assist Christ in his work of executing judgment upon the nations, and will not "do nothing for ever and ever." Psa. cxlix. 7-9.

That those who keep God's word until the end will rule over the nations, and not be playing harps for ever. Rev. ii. 26.

That the saints will possess the kingdom under the heavens, and not above the clouds. Dan. vii. 27.

That the kingdom of God will subdue all other kingdoms, and will not be destroyed. Dan. ii. 44.

That those who profess, and suffer with Christ now, will reign with him, when he returns, but not those who deny him. 2. Tim. ii. 12.

That Jesus is coming quickly, and will not be absent much longer. Rev. xxii. 12.

That those who are not looking for his return are scoffers and unbelievers, and are not his friends. 2 Pet. iii. 3, 4.

That the invitation to participate in the glories of the age to come is to all, and not to a select few. Isa. lv. 1.

That if men refuse to accept God's offers of mercy, and persist in turning away their ears from the truth, and so perish for ever, it is their own fault, and not God's for he willeth not the death of one sinner, but rather that all should turn to him and live. 2 Pet. iii. 9.

"How well His blessed truths agree!
How wise and holy His commands!
His promises, how firm they be!
How sure our hope and comfort stands!"
—W. A. Brewster.

A Talk with the Boys.

My boy, you came in rather late last night, and this morning, when your mother asked where you were, you said, "Down street." Then when she wanted to know whereabouts down street, you said, "Oh, just a little ways."

Now, I don't think you intended to lie to your mother. As a rule you are a truthful boy, and your mother can believe you. But I wonder if you know how far down street you were last night? You were right when you said you were "down street." Whenever a boy comes home late at night, and is afraid or ashamed to tell just where he has been and what he has been doing, I know as well as he does, and his mother knows and everybody who knows anything about boys know, that he has been down street.

And more than that, my boy; I know that he has been a long way down street. A long, long way. Have you a map of your route last evening? No! Well, never mind; we know you were down street, and we can make a map in a minute or two. Sit down here, and we'll see how far a boy travels when he leaves home after supper, and goes down street a little way and doesn't get back until ten o'clock or later.

Here is your home, this bright spot like a star on the map. The sweetest, purest, safest place this side of heaven; the home where, from father to baby, they love you better than all the rest of the people in all the big, wide world. Now, when you start from here and go down street, somehow the street always has a down grade from home when you start out after night. See how far you get from respectability and self-respect, when you reach this corner, "just a little way down," where you loafed—eh? well I'll say loitered if you prefer it—where you loitered last night. Here are the fellows with whom you loitered. You had to meet them here, because you can never meet them in your own home, for two reasons. In the first place your father wouldn't permit one of them to come into his house, and in the second place, you would be ashamed to invite them there, whether your father forbade it or not. Sweet gang for your father's son to loiter with, isn't it? It is a long ways from your respectable home, from your mother, from your mother's friend and your father's guests, to this corner down street, isn't it?

Then—look on the map, my boy, see how far it is from manliness and decency. Two ladies hurried past this corner, friends of your mother; possibly they had been spending the evening at your home. Thank heaven, they could not see you as you slunk back into the dark doorway, feeling like the sneak that you were; and, as they passed by, one of the loafers with whom you were loitering shouted an insulting remark after them. Your cheeks burned in the dark, at that. Didn't your home and sisters seem to be a thousand miles away just then?

See, too, how far you were from purity. Some of the boys told some stories; do you think you could repeat them to your sisters? Don't you wish this morning that you could forget them forever? Don't you wish you had never heard them? Don't you know your mind will never again be as pure and innocent as it was before you went "just a little way down street" last night? While you were listening to these stories, punctuated with profanity, the dear ones at home gathered in the sitting room, your father opened the Book, and read. They knelt at the family altar and commended themselves to the keeping of the heavenly Father, and tenderly remembered the boy who was "just a little way down street." Then the lights went out one by one, the house was still, and only the loving mother waited anxiously and sleeplessly for the boy who was down street. It was more than ten million miles away from the sweet old chapter that your father read, down to the stories that you heard, my boy. And what a steep grade, all the way down!

And it was a long, long way from the truth. When you evaded your mother's question and said you were only "a little way down street" the lie in your false heart looked guiltily out of your eyes as it rose to your cowardly lips. Just see where you were; you, ordinarily brave, manly, truthful boy, turned into a liar and a coward! You would fight I know, if any boy called you such names but just tell yourself the truth; don't lie to yourself. Were you not ashamed to tell your mother where you were? Yes. Well, doesn't that make you a sneak? And weren't you afraid to tell your father? Yes. Well, what does that make you? And did you tell the honest truth when your mother asked where you were? No. Well, what are you then? And let me tell you that the "half truth" and "half-lie" you told your mother is like all half-breeds; it has all the worst traits of the vilest race and none of the virtues of the best.

"But," you say, "a boy doesn't have to go with the toughs and riff-raff when he goes down street; there are some mighty nice boys go down street at night." My boy, I know it, there are some "mighty nice boys" go out of nights, but they are not so nice when they come back. You can't select your company on the street. The corner is free to everybody. There is no exclusiveness in street company. There is no safe "corner" for you after night except the chimney corner. And when you leave that, and spend your evening on the street, and can give no account of your doing on your return beyond the bald statement that you were "just down street a little way," we know, with pain and sorrow, that our boy has locked up in his mind and heart shameful guilty things that he dare not tell in his home. Keep off the street after night, my boy. Other people will think better of you, and, what is a far more important thing, you will think much better of yourself.—Robert J. Burdette in Ladies Home Journal.

Questions?

1. Is the soul a part of God or a part of man?

2. If it is a part of God can it sin?

3. If it is a part of man is it not mortal and subject to death?

4. Is there an intimation in the Bible that God put a soul (mortal or immortal) into Adam at his creation? But, as he was made of dust, is it not said that this man of dust became a living soul?

5. If men can exist without bodies why were Enoch and Elijah taken out of the world bodily?

6. If the body is a prison-house for the soul are not these good prophets (Enoch and Elijah) still in prison?

7. If the body is a prison-house why was Adam's soul put into it before it sinned?

8. When the soul—the prisoner—becomes guilty why is the prison—the body—destroyed to let it out?

9. Did Christ suffer the penalty due to Adam's transgression in making the atonement?

10. If so and that penalty was moral or spiritual death, did not Christ suffer it?

11. If in Adam all die a spiritual death, and it, as the clergy say, this same all that died in Adam will be made alive, then, will not all be made spiritually alive in Christ?

If the soul is an immortal or spiritual thing, must it not, if it dies, die a spiritual death?

13. As nothing can die except what is mortal, if the soul dies a spiritual death must it not be spiritually mortal?

14. If the soul is a spiritual thing and immortal, how, then, can it die a spiritual death?

15. If literal death destroys a literal thing, must not spiritual death destroy a spiritual thing?

Marvels of Insect Life?

There are 172 known species of the fly.

A fly's eggs will hatch in twelve hours.

A pet flea has been known to live six years.

Some butterflies have as many as 20,000 distinct eyes.

Many insects hear and breathe with the same apparatus.

The aphis secretes liquid sugar greatly resembling honey.

The weight of an ant queen is equal to that of 30,000 workers.

The female fly is always larger and lighter in color than the male.

One spider thread is composed of several hundred separate filaments.

A spider's eyes are not in his head, but in the upper part of the thorax.

The army worm cost this country more than the revolutionary war.

Nearly all skin diseases are supposed to be caused by microscopic insects.

Instead of jaws, the butterfly has a curled proboscis like that of an elephant.

In the East Indies there are spiders so large that small birds are their favorite prey.

The descendants of a single female wasp will often number 25,000 in one season.

Some varieties of parasitic worms are believed each to produce 100,000,000 eggs.

The ephemeral fly rarely lives more than two hours after coming to its perfect state.

A bumble bee has been known to distance a locomotive going at twenty miles an hour.

Fleas will never touch an epileptic, and will instantly leave a dead or dying person.

The descendants of a single aphis may, in the fifth generation, number 6,000,000,000.

If a man were to leap as far in proportion to his size as a flea he could jump seventy-six miles.

In a single season, the locusts or grasshoppers have cost the western farmers $200,000,000.

Darwin says that the light of the firefly is caused by the slow combustion of phosphorus in the system.

Female spiders are much larger and more ferocious than the male and generally devour their husbands.

The gnat that is provided with a regular set of lancets and a cupping-glass from which the air can be withdrawn.

Several species of moths never eat after attaining a perfect state. They have no mouths and live but a few hours.

The greatest destroyer of the aphis is the apparently harmless lady bird, which devours them by thousands.

The trichinæ found in infected pork are sometimes so numerous that 80,000 have been found to the cubic inch.

Wasps are the most inveterate enemies of flies. Reaumur says he has known one wasp to kill a thousand flies in a day.

Two sexton beetles will bury a mole in an hour, a feat equivalent to two men interring a whale in the same length of time.

Nests of the termite ants of South Africa are often 12 feet high and grouped together in clusters, the tallest in the center.

There are over 400,000 varieties of insects known to the entomologist though not all described in the works on the subject.

The common horsefly has 16,000 eyes. To the fly, therefore, caught by the small boy, the latter appears as an army of giants.

A female queen ant is always attended by one or more servants to carry off her eggs, of which she lays from 5,000 to 10,000 a year.

The young of the polype grow from the body of the parent like buds, and when almost grown are separated by a sudden jerk.

The "tartar" on human teeth is filled with animalculæ, which are destroyed by vinegar. Vinegar itself contains eel-like insects.

Resurrection Illustrated, or The Chemist and his Dust.

I have seen something!

What have you seen?

A pile of dirt.

Well, that is common enough; what else did you see?

A man washing and sifting it.

What did he get out of it?

Some shining dust.

What did he do with it?

Melted it in a crucible and poured it into a mould.

With what result?

A beautiful gold coin, enstamped with his own image.

A pretty thing indeed, to get out of a pile of dirt.

What did he do with it?

He gave it to me for the present with the promise that it should be mine by-and-by.

PART THE SECOND.

I have something else to tell you.

Well let's hear it.

The man asked me for the coin.

Did you give it him?

Yes, it was his right to claim it.

True; but what did he do with it?

He dissolved it—then turned it into liquid form.

Then your coin is gone!

Oh; I shall get it again.

On what does your hope of regaining it rest?

On his promise.

Good! What else did he do with it?

Mixed it with clay, and formed the mass into a globe.

Worse and worse! What hope can you now have of getting it back again?

The hope that he that gathered it in the first place, will now be able to reclaim it from the globe of clay.

Quite a foundation for a hope certainly.

PART THE THIRD.

Joy, Joy! I have something more to tell you!

What is it?

I have my coin more beautiful than ever!

Good! Then your confidence in the chemist was not misplaced. He has proved good to his word.

Yes; I shall always believe him after this.

PART THE FOURTH.

Of what did God make man?

"Of the dust of the ground."

In whose image and likeness?

"In the image of God created he him."

Can God dissolve the man thus made?

"Dust thou art, and unto dust shall thou return;"

Has the Creator promised to bring him to life again?

"I will ransom thee from the power of the grave; I will redeem thee from death."

Many in these days deny the literal resurrection of the dead, partly on the ground that the body decomposes, mingling with the dust, enriches vegetation, is thus eaten by the beasts, who in turn furnish food for man, and so on through numerous changes until identification is lost. It must, however, be admitted, that not a particle of matter can be lost, and if the chemist can do such wonders with his handful of shining dust, "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead? Acts xxix. 8.—J. L.

Scripture vs. Misconceptions.

1. Scripture declares that the "everlasting punishment" Matt. xxv. 46, of the wicked will consist of "everlasting destruction" Thess. i. 9. The popular theory teaches that it will consist of everlasting pain.

2. Scripture declares that God will "destroy both body and soul in hell" Matt. x. 28. The popular theory teaches that he will destroy neither, but will preserve both of them alive forever in unmitigated agony.

3. Scripture declares that "our God is a consuming fire" Heb. xii. 29. The popular theory teaches that he is only a scorching fire.

4. Scripture declares that the "fiery indignation" will "devour the adversaries" Heb. x. 27. The popular theory teaches that it will only torture them.

6. Scripture declares that the wicked will "perish like natural brute beasts" 2 Peter ii. 12. The popular theory teaches that there will be no analogy whatever between the two cases.

6. Scripure declares that whosoever "will save his life" by unfaithfulness to Christ shall ultimately "lose it" Matt. xvi. 25 in a far more terrible manner. The popular theory teaches that no man can lose his life, and that the second death is no death at all, but eternal life in misery.

7. Scripture declares that "whosoever doeth the will of God abideth forever" 1 John ii. 17. The popular theory teaches that every man will abide forever, whether he does the will of God or not.

8. Scripture declares that if we desire "immortality" we must seek it "by patient continuance in well-doing" Rom. ii. 7. The popular theory teaches that every man possesses inherent, indefeasible immortality, and what we have to ask for is that it may prove a blessing and not a curse to us.

9. Scripture declares that "the wages of sin is death" Rom. iv. 23. The popular theory teaches that it is eternal life in misery, in other words, that God will inflict upon impenitent sinners a punishment infinitely greater than what he has pronounced to be their due.

10. Scripture declares that "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ" Rom. vi. 23. The popular theory teaches that eternal life is the common possession of all men, and the gift of God through Jesus Christ is the privilege of spending it in holiness and happiness.

11. Scripture declares that "the Son of God was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil" 1 John iii. 8. The popular theory teaches that they will never be destroyed at all, but that a portion of the universe will be specially set apart for the eternal exhibition of them in their fullest maturity.

12. Scripture declares that Christ is to "reconcile all things to God" Col. i. 20. The popular theory teaches that all things will never be reconciled to God, that discord and disorder will never cease, but only be confined to one particular locality.

13. Scripture declares that in Christ "all things consist" Col. i. 17. The popular theory teaches that a whole kingdom will "consist" forever although not "in him."

14. Scripture declares "He that hath the Son hath life, but he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" 1 John v. 12; "that if we live after the flesh we shall die, but if through the Spirit we mortify the deeds of the body we shall live" Rom. viii. 13 The advocates of the popular theory say that the life of believers and unbelievers must be of equal duration.

Letter Drawer.

Dear Restitution:

It is with pleasure that we inform you of our whereabouts.

Since coming to Ark. Aug. the 16th, we have had the privilege with Bro. Jas. L. Muncrief, of holding several meetings with good results, and of seeing three sisters and a brother become obedient to the faith. Two of the sisters came forward at Shady Grove, near Hot Springs, and one near Donaldson, at her mother's and the brother at Mt. Pleasant, near Friendship. He had formerly been a Methodist exhorter, but now is seeking for immortality instead of to save an immortal soul.

There are several others whom we left "almost persuaded to be Christians." Oh, how hard it seems to turn loose the doctrines of men and seek the honor that comes from God only.

We have five appointments ahead now, with more doors open. By request, we want to write for publication, some of our addresses delivered at Shady Grove last week.

Brethren when you have the King's ear, pray for us. We are yours in hope of Israel's King.

R. A. Humphreys.

Dear Restitution:

I thought I would try and write a little for the "letter drawer". I love to read them, for there I find so many dear names, but not as many as I would like, for I know several about Plymouth and look to see a word of cheer from our old home. We have no other preaching than this good paper. We have no meeting of our own and do not feel at home in others. I often wish I could meet with the dear friends as I did in years gone by, but many of them are sleeping beneath the sod but I hope I may be prepared to meet them in the "Sweet Bye and Bye," than our troubles will have an end, and we will not have to bid our dear friends good by. I want to see Jesus. I want to hear his welcome words. O that I may be counted worthy in that great day. Your sister in hope of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Mrs. D. F. Miller.

Dear Restitution:

My time having expired I again renew with much pleasure, and feel very grateful that we can have such a paper come to our home laden with such precious Gospel truths, so much the more when we have no other preacher beside it and the good old Bible. I sometimes think how grateful many of the brethren should be when they have the privilege of seeing and hearing those who are able to expound the way to obtain the future life to them as I see they have in our beloved paper. Yes, brethren, my heart goes out with longing desire to hear those preach the word whose articles I so often read in The Restitution, and may God strengthen the mind and hand of those who labor thus for the good of others and the glory of Christ. May we all remind ourselves that sowing time will soon be over, harvest time will soon be here, the husbandman will soon say, "gather the wheat into my barn." This, brethren, is a very large barn. Daniel says it is under the whole heavens. Shall I be there. What a thought. Shall I hear the King say, "Come ye Blessed of my Father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world?" May this be our happy lot, amen. "Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Now I want to ask Brother Joblin a question through our paper, and it is a very important one. We have been having Bible Readings at Bro. Chase's house and Mrs. Chase has become a believer in the promises made to Abraham, the Gospel of the Kingdom, Life only in Christ, for the future, and now she has a desire to have the saving name upon her by being immersed into Christ for the remission of past sins. She was thinking of being baptized by a Baptist minister. I said I thought it should be a believer to perform this solemn ordinance, and told them I would write and try to get an answer through our paper. I believe Bro. Joblin will kindly help us in this very important step. May God give us wisdom to do the right, amen.

John Harris.

[illegible] Everlasting Arms."

[illegible] on the road to glory,
[illegible] to the heavenly prize,
'Mid the ills that now annoy you,
'Mid the dangers that arise;
When your way is dark and dreary,
Rugged, fill'd with rude alarms,
When perplex'd, exhausted, weary,
Trust the "Everlasting Arms."

When the waves of trouble heighten,
When the billows fiercely foam,
All you see conspires to frighten,
Friends and helpers fail to come;
When of human aid despairing,
And no voice the tempest calms,
Think of this, that underneath you
Are the "Everlasting Arms."

When corroding cares oppress you,
When the tempter's darts assail,
When your infured foes distress you,
When they threaten to prevail;
When you dread the thought of yielding,
When you feel to die is gain,
When your hope is just expiring,
"Everlasting Arms" sustain.

And when all below is closing,
When you touch the chilling flood,
When you feel the waters rising,
You shall find the promised good.
Timid Christians, venture on it,
Bid farewell to all alarms;
'Tis enough that underneath you
Are the "Everlasting Arms."

Selected.

God's Revelation.

What a gracious condescension of the great Eternal to reveal Himself to the creatures of dust who live upon this planet, and in whose sight "the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers" (Isaiah xl. 22.) When we consider the mighty works of God, the everlasting hills, the boundless ocean, the sun and moon, and the innumerable stars, that silently testify to God's omnipotence and wisdom, we can with the Psalmist sincerely and reverently exclaim "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visitest him?" Psalm viii. 3-4. Not only has God been pleased to reveal his will unto man, but he has marvellously preserved that revelation from the hands of those who would destroy it. During the "dark ages," when sin and superstition were so great that scarcely a glimmer of the light of the world was seen, and when every possible means was used to destroy the Word of God by wicked men, God preserved his own word, and at the present time the Bible is scattered broadcast over the whole civilized world. As Moses said to the children of Israel, so we say to you: the word of God "is not hidden from thee, neither is it afar off. It is not in heaven that thou shouldst say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us that we may hear it and do it? Neither is it beyond the sea that thou shouldst say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it and do it? But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it" Deut. xxx. 11-14. What excuse then can we have if we neglect to study that Word, and refuse to meditate upon its glorious truth? It is the only guide we have of obtaining that "great salvation" which God has promised to those who know him, and keep his commandments. Apart from that Book we are absolutely without any hope, without any knowledge of God, with no knowledge of our own origin, nature, or destiny. But the Scriptures enlighten our minds, and give knowledge to the ignorant, and, as David declares, "The entrance of thy words giveth light, it giveth understanding unto the simple" (Psalm cxix. 130.) The word of God is "able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Tim. iii. 15), and the advice of Jesus himself, to those who seek eternal life, is "Search the Scriptures" (John [v. 39). No other book can be compared to the Bible for the importance of its message, and the vast extent of its information. To study it is the most profitable exercise under the sun, and will yield in this life an endless store of knowledge and wisdom, and if its precepts are faithfully kept, the reward will be a life beyond the grave which shall never end. Other subjects and other pursuits are profitable only for a short space of time, and in the end are but vanity, "but the Word of the Lord endureth for ever" (1 Peter i. 25).—W. A. Brewster.

Dear Restitution:

I would like a small space on your pages to give a short account of a meeting my father (J. S. Hatch) held at Mount Moriah, Ill., one week and which I was permitted to attend. He left home Sept. 22, went to his daughter near Crawfordsville, Ind., where he remained until the following Monday and held meeting one night, when he came to our house, on Wednesday Sept. 27, he left our house for Ingraham. Preached one discourse in Greenup on his way to Ingraham, where he remained until Oct. 6th, during which time he preached to large and appreciative audiences. One lady came several miles to be immersed.

Oct. 6th, he started to Casey where I met him and Bro. Z. E. Brant conveyed us to Mount Moriah where we found a fair audience waiting us. After meeting we went to Bro. Brant's where we were well received. We found the brothers and sisters hospitable and the people anxious for meetings, for the interest was more manifest each night, and on the morning of the day we left, one good, earnest soul was added to the little band by being buried in baptism, Sister Annie Parlow. As there was so much earnest attention manifest the brethren thought best for father to return soon, so he will commence meetings on Friday night before the second Sunday in Nov., and continue over two Sundays.

At present he is with us holding meetings in the New Hope school house. Next Saturday he goes to Bro. John Claypool's to hold a few meetings.

At no time during the world's history was there more need of spreading the truth than at the present time, for the way signs are thickening. It isn't certainly long until the King in his beauty shall return and set up a government that will never be shaken; we pray for the time to come, so there will be no more sorrow and we will meet our loved ones in the kingdom. Your sister in Christ.

Azoriah M. Schoess.

In Joel's proclamation to the Gentile nations (Joel iii.) to prepare war for deciding his controversy with the nations, the people are commanded "to beat their plowshares into swords and their pruning hooks into spears." This is being literally fulfilled before our eyes in the warlike preparations of the present day. The New York Sun gives the following items of expenditure by the different nations in war material and for national defence. Germany annually disburses $185,000,000 for military and naval purposes. In the dual Monarchy of Austria-Hungary the army and navy cost $04,500,000 a year. Italy has to pay nearly $80,000,000 yearly for the protection of the country. France has $151,000,000 called for by the military and naval estimates. Russia spends yearly for her army and navy $200,000,000. In England the army and navy cost $156,000,000 a year; and in Spain $100,000,000. From these facts the American contributor comes to a conclusion in perfect harmony with the prophetic word regarding these times. The contributor says, "The position of Europe may be likened to that of a somnabulist, who, unconscious of his danger, is walking on the steep roof of a house. Appalling will be his awakening, for it will be impossible to avoid plunging into the abyss of war upon the one side, or into the unfathomable gulf of the social revolution upon the other." The prophet's words are, "Prepare war....let the nations be awakened ...the sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining....and the heavens and the earth shall shake."

Appointments.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Plymouth, Ind. commencing on Friday, Nov. 17, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren of like precious faith are invited to come and be with us at this meeting. Let us heed the admonition to meet together and exhort one another that we may be built up and strengthened in the most Holy Faith, remembering that our salvation depends upon our own individual exertions.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Notice.

To the Brethren of Oklahoma:

Brother S. C. Oliver will commence a week's meeting near Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma, October 28th, in Bro. Albert Overholt's neighborhood. While he is in Oklahoma, if brethren at other points desire to have him speak for them, he will gladly devote some time to the work of spreading the good news of a soon coming kingdom and King. After Oct. 21st he can be addressed at Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma. Direct in care of Albert Overholt, or brethren can meet him there and make arrangements for meetings.

L. A. Chaplin, Sec'y.

Salvation—What it means.—It means the opening of the coffin lid, it means restoring to life that body whose limbs are stiff and cold, whose eyes are gazed and sightless, whose thoughts have perished. It means bringing back from the dust the forms that have mouldered away in the ages that have passed. And not only this. It is not merely the restoration of life, but the salvation of the Bible means the bestowal of endless and glorious life, it means the conferring upon those who are the subject of it an incorruptible nature, a nature incapable of decay, a nature that can die no more. Life, life, that is what we want,—endless, painless, joyful life, and that is promised, that is what is promised, that is what the salvation of God consists in.

The end of all things is thus clearly revealed. The final overthrow of all human power is at hand the Judge and King of all the earth is at the door. Let us prepare and make ourselves ready. For, though dire will be the calamities and terrible the judgments inflicted upon those who destroy the earth, who know not God and obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, yet the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.

Change of Address.

On and after November 1st, 1893, my address will be Plymouth, Ind., instead of Macy, Ind. Correspondents please take notice.

L. E. Conner.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78
"From a Friend."	1.00
Alice Quinn,	.25
Jennie Cox,	.25
Mrs. C. W. Russel,	5.00
S. Roxana Wince,	10.00

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argus, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beegle,	25.00

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 281 pages, 6th edition. Cloth, 25 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$31.00
"A friend."	25.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas,
J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting, their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.
Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sircleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Elinboro, Pa.
H. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg, Kansas City, Kan.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$10.00
H. L. Vickery,	10.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
L. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ. [illegible] 3. [illegible] 5. Nature of Man and [illegible] 6. The two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10 Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 40 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; 20 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Age [illegible] Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reese.

Life and Death. A concise statement and exposition of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath? and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. [illegible] The above is the title of a 4-page tract. Price 5c. each, 13 for 5c, 30 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 41 pages, price 5c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is It? What is It? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, [illegible] by [illegible] Can be had at this office at 10c. each, 3 for 25c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Tradition of the Churches. The above is the title of a neatly printed pamphlet of 72 pages, by W. Uhlike, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains a sermon on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Rest of All Things, Coming Wicked [illegible] is a little book of 150 pages on the above named subject. It is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the author [illegible] San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to pay.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full page engravings, numerous smaller illustrations, besides maps of the Holy Land and the [illegible] of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST — his Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being [illegible] delivered by Dr. C. C. [illegible] 150 pages, price [illegible] for $[illegible] postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. [illegible] improved edition on large paper, Cloth $4.00; Library binding $5.00.

The Compensation Gift, J. H. Paterson [illegible] With an Introduction by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 100 pages, neatly [illegible] This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it. [illegible]

Cruden's Concordance Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation [illegible] Bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words of the Holy Scriptures [illegible] Greek concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 174 pages, cloth bound, for 15 cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By [illegible] Title page—"The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 380 pages; cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday School, by Mrs. [illegible] Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 105 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 14 for $1.00; 24 for $5.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the Author at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 150 pages, and neatly bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four sets of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 24 pages of Hymns for children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 8 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, 4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work in their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. G. Woodruff, and it is truly "A Letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purposes of God Concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 253 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an additional of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 148 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unrighteous?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25c. each, and can be had at this office.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

LIST OF CHURCHES.

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 324 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 3 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1245 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Green St. and [illegible] Avenue, Philadelphia. C. C. Sunday [illegible] Services each Sunday at 10:45 a. m. and [illegible] p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome [illegible] residence 2[illegible] Huntingdon, Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m., every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. [illegible] every fourth Sunday. Bro. J. F. Wagoner every 3 rd Sunday in the month, [illegible] Sunday school every Sunday, and social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in hall [illegible] corner of Michigan and Laporte streets. Services every Sunday at 11:30 a. m. Sunday school at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. W. D. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at [illegible] o'clock for Sunday school and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Auburn, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. [illegible] Mills Hall. Auburn is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going [illegible] to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Pike Co., Neb., meets in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 33 in Franklin Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Alonzo Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. Stevens Elder; W. A. Moore, Clerk.

"Church of the Blessed Hope" of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Bryan Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Keisler, or R. L. Ledman, West Salem, O.

The Church of God at El Paso, Ill., meet every Sunday at 2 p. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Eliza Style, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and social meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cady's residence, and Quarterly Conference the first of each quarter at the Fairview school house in Furnas Co., Neb. Brethren from a distance, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bro. A. F. Hudson and Bld. A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cady, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dalton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening. Communion every two weeks. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., meet for Sunday School every first day. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near Fisher, Mich., have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's Supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table,
Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria
AND
Indianapolis & Mich. City
Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 24, Passenger, Leaves		[illegible]
No. 22,	"	[illegible]
No. 21,	"	[illegible]
No. 151, Local.	"	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 25, Passenger, Leaves		[illegible]
No. 23,	"	[illegible]
No. 27,	"	[illegible]
No. 161, Local.	"	[illegible]

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:52 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast train arriving Kansas City 8:55 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address
H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager. CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.
In effect Oct. 15, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:26pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 54, "	10:02pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	5:20am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:50pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. HALE, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or
J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!
THE RESTITUTION
On Trial Three Months
—FOR ONLY—
Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.
Pennsylvania Lines.
Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager. E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.
For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. Ganes, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals or all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.
SOLID THROUGH TRAINS Buffalo and Chicago
PALACE BUFFET SUPERB DINING SLEEPERS, CARS,
THROUGH SLEEPING CARS
Between CHICAGO, NEW YORK and BOSTON,
BAGGAGE CHECKED TO DESTINATION
Tickets to all Points East or West at Lowest Rates.
AT CHICAGO the Depot of the Nickel Plate Road is located at Twelfth St. Viaduct, cor. Twelfth and Clark Sts., convenient by street car or elevated R. R. to any part of the city.
AT CLEVELAND all trains stop at Euclid Ave. and Pearl St., and at Main Passenger Station Broadway near Cross St.
AT BUFFALO trains run into Union Depot of the Erie Railway.
For rates and other information consult nearest Ticket Agent, or address
A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Sup't. B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.
Each number containing [illegible] Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. 5 cts.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truths of the Bible.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament.
5. The Bible Triumphant.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses."
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.
10. Scientific Star-Building.
11. Geological Evolution.
12. The Origin of Life.
13. Darwinism.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.
20. Hints for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.
24. Food for Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism so well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 6, 7, 20, 21, 22, etc., 5 cts. single; 50 cts. a dozen; $2 per 100; [illegible] per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid to the United States and Canada.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 8, 1893. NO. 42.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
[illegible]
[illegible] ALLEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Terms { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - - .40

Poetry.

A Song of Youth.

Early seeking, early finding,
Happy, happy, we!
Looking up [illegible] sweet mercy [illegible]
Looking up to thee!
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] early getting,
Happy, happy, we!
We would daily, blessed Jesus,
Find out all in thee,
In the fulness is the spirit [illegible]
Of thy life for every one.

Early know [illegible]
Happy, happy, we!
By the holy gate [illegible]
Look to [illegible] thee,
In [illegible] of the blest,
In the home of heaven's rest.

[illegible] early [illegible]
Happy, happy, we!
[illegible] onward,
Day by day [illegible]
[illegible]
All in thee, [illegible] God!

—Herald [illegible] Jesus. P. D.

Original.

The Immortal Book.—No. 1.

"Thy word is true from the beginning." Psa. cxix. 160.

The only book extant which possesses an unending life is the grand old book we call the Bible. It possesses a life its enemies cannot take. The more it is attacked the greater its vitality. Every little while some vain egotist like Ingersoll turns up and endeavors to demolish the Sacred Volume, but it is like upsetting a solid cube, it is as large one way as the other, and just whatever way it is upset it is right side up still.

It is a book which even captures the forts of its enemies and converts them into its own use. Did not Voltaire in his time predict that the Bible and Christianity would become extinct in less than one hundred years? But how is it? The hundred years has passed, and Voltaire has gone back to the dust, but his printing-press which he used as an instrument to demolish the Bible, has since been used in printing Bibles, and the very house he lived in has become the depot of the Bible Society and is packed with Bibles.

Thomas Paine thought he could take the life out of the Grand Old Book, but in 1809 he crept into the dishonored grave of a drunkard. Since then the Bible has exhibited an astonishing vitality. Up to the year 1800, it is said that not more than 6,000,000 copies of the Bible in some thirty different languages had been produced. But since then Bible Societies and its auxiliaries report the issue of Bibles and portions of the same, amount to 165,000,000, with two hundred and six new translations. To this may be added unknown millions which have been issued from private sources.

Previous to the issue of the Revised Version, it is said one million copies were ordered in advance of publication. But when ready to be delivered on May 1, 1881, the streets of New York were crowded with wagons ready to be loaded up. Millions of copies were sold as fast as they could be delivered.

They telegraphed that Book from the first of Matthew to the end of Romans to Chicago. The fleetest locomotive was not fast enough to convey that Book which had previously been killed, upset and exploded by Voltaire, Paine, Ingersoll, etc., but the speed of lightning must be used. Men were in a hurry to get it, even five hundred dollars was offered to get an advance copy. A large price to pay for a dead book devoid of life, killed by men now rotted away in the grave.

Thousands upon thousands of books are issued every year, but they don't need to be killed, they die a natural death, and are never heard of again. But this Sublime Volume, the first book ever issued from a printing press, grows livelier as it advances in age.

The mightiest emperor of the greatest empire devoted the entire resources of his empire to stamp out the Sacred Book, and made a miserable failure of it. A noted writer says: "In the year 303, Diocletian, the Roman Emperor, seeking to overturn Christianity, issued his decree to destroy the Church, and burn up the Scriptures. It is a curious circumstance that the Emperor of the mightiest Empire on the globe, set his officers and legions at work to try and hunt and destroy and crush out a book, and was not able to do so. There are thousands of books printed every year, but they do not need to be killed by the government, most of them are as dead as Julius Cæsar. He found the Christians would not give up the Bible, they held it fast even at the loss of their lives. Diocletian grew tired, retired, and devoted his attention to raising cabbages!"

Diocletian is not the only monarch who has endeavored to stamp out this Precious Book and prove its predictions false. The Emperor Julian, remembering Christ's words, "And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles shall be fulfilled," determined to show the world that he could defeat Christ, and resolved that Jerusalem should be trodden down by the Jews in place of the Gentiles. This man Julian was one who sat on Cæsar's throne, at whose nod the nations trembled, whose cohorts and legions elevated or dethroned monarchs at his pleasure. He boldly determined to measure his strength with Heaven, and defeat the Word of the Lord.

Gibbon, an infidel historian, speaks well of Ammianus Marcellinus, the Emperor's Private Secretary, who knew as much about Julian's noted defeat as did the Emperor himself, says: "Whilst Alypius, assisted by the Governor of the Province, urged with vigor and diligence the execution of the work, horrible balls of fire breaking out near the foundations, with frequent and reiterated attacks, rendered the place from time to time, inaccessible to the scorched and blasted workmen; and the victorious element continuing in this manner absolutely and resolutely bent, as it were, to drive them to a distance, the undertaking was abandoned," and Julian is reported as exclaiming: "Thou hast conquered, O, thou Galilean!"

We also read: "A sermon which was preached within that generation is still extant, addressed to the Israelites as a persuasive, leading them to obey the gospel; they were reminded of this recent overthrow, and invited to go look again at the materials, and other tokens of the rebuke from heaven whilst endeavoring to go contrary to the Maker of worlds."

Another writer has well said: "This Book outlives its foes. If you could gather all the books written against it, you could build a pyramid higher than the loftiest spire. Now and then a man goes to work to refute the Bible, and every time it is done it has to be done over again the next day or the next year. And then after its enemies have done their worst, some of its professed friends torture, and twist, and mystify, and misrepresent it. Surely it is no fool of a book if it lives through all that. Infidels have been at work nearly eighteen hundred years firing away at it and making about as much impression on it as you would shooting boiled peas at Gibraltar. The fact is, this Book has come into the world, and seems to have come to stay."

Suppose a man should contract to rid the world of this Immortal Book, how could he do it? He would have to collect some two to three hundred million copies of it, scattered over the face of the globe wherever the foot of man has trod its soil, from the Orient to the Occident, and from pole to pole. Even then it has almost as many hiding places as there are copies extant.

He would have to capture the literature of the world and destroy it, for the entire Book could be reproduced from that source alone.

He would have to destroy inscriptions on the gravestones in the catacombs of Rome, and all the burial places in the world. Having done all this, would he have filled his contract? Oh, no! not by any means!

Let me illustrate. One day Pat visited the priest.

"Pat," says the priest, "they tell me you have got a copy of the Bible. Is that true?"

Pat—"Yes, your Reverence, I have."

Priest—"You must give it to me, Pat."

Pat—"All right, your Reverence, here it is."

The priest throws it into the fire and consumes it. Whereupon Pat lays back in his chair, and laughs heartily.

Priest—"What are you laughing at, Pat?"

Pat—"Sure, your Reverence thinks you have burned that Book, but you haven't. It is written upon the tablet of my heart, and your Reverence can't burn that."

Even so, the man with the contract would not have eradicated that Blessed Book from the earth until he has destroyed the lives of those who have portions of that Sacred Volume inscribed upon their hearts.

Choice selections of this Holy Book are printed, and framed, and hung up in cathedrals, churches, schools, halls, and thousands upon thousands of homes, wherever civilization is found.

It is also "graven with an iron pen and led in the rock forever!" hid from the sight of men, beneath the surface of the earth.

Copies of this Holy Book are written on parchments and skins of animals and stored away for ages from the knowledge and sight of men, and constantly being discovered.

Say, beloved in the Lord, can this Holy Book be destroyed by its enemies? Oh, no! Never! It is immortal, it can never die! It is as immortal as God himself. "My words, they are spirit, and they are life."

Was it ever thus with any other book? How comes it that it has such remarkable life and power, if it is only a book among books? It is more; it is the Book of books, even as the blessed Jesus is the King of kings.

As well may mortal man expect to remove the blazing sun from the heavens above, as to destroy this Immortal Book.

But more of this in the future, if the Lord permits.

W. H. WILSON.

Chastening.

"My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him." Heb. xii.

Despise not what? Chastening. What chastening? Chastening of the Lord. Well, what do you mean? Who said anything about that? I forget whether it was you, but someone was complaining about the cares, perplexities, and disappointments of life; others circulating tales of falsehood or slander, and these coming from a professed brother or sister. Was that you? I heard only the echo and could not quite distinguish the voice. If it was you, Paul says, despise not these things.

Did you stop to recall history and notice whether, or not, any one had previously endured such things?

Please turn and read of the life of Job. Are any such things mentioned? Yes. And how do we think of Job? As patient Job. Any other records? Yes: those of Daniel. Any other? Yes: of John the Baptist. Any other? Yes; of Christ. What! Christ had cares? Yes: not worldly cares, but cares for the world. And he had false accusers and persecutors? Yes; and he said, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do." Was that all he did? No. "He, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." Why did he endure the cross? "For the joy that was set before him." That he might sit "at the right hand of the throne of God." And he says that if we "suffer with him, we shall also reign with him." "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I am overcome and am sat down with my father in his throne."

Christ said, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you (how?) falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Matt. v. 11, 12.

"Wherefore, lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees; and make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but rather let it be healed." Heb. xii. 12, 13.

"Don't let us be discouraged over these "light afflictions." And "light" they are when compared to those of Christ and his early followers. We "have not yet resisted unto blood striving against sin" as did they.

Therefore, let us look up and rejoice, remembering that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." And we each want him to love us.

Soon, he that is to come will come, and his reward will be with him, "to give to every man as his work shall be."

Where will our reward be if we do not work? And where our work if every thing moved along smoothly? It would then be no more a task, but rather a pleasure.

How ungrateful the child who grumblingly and unwillingly goes about performing the task which the kind parent has assigned. And remember, we are the children. God grant we may be willing, faithful, and dutiful children, "running with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith."

F. A.

The Two Rewards.

In the Word of God there are two rewards spoken of, namely the reward of the righteous and the reward of the wicked. It is my object to contrast the two so that we may readily see the difference. First we will see when those rewards are to be given. In Matt. we find the answer to our question. "For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then shall he reward every man according to his works." We see then the time is at the coming of Jesus that rewards are given and it is for our works, let them be good or bad.

What are the rewards given? We will let Paul answer. He says, "To those who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, honor, and immortality. The reward will be eternal life, but to them who are contentious and do not obey the truth but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first and also of the Gentile. For there is no respect of persons with God." Please mark the difference between the rewards. Glory, honor and immortality for those souls who seek for it. But the wrath of God upon those who doeth wickedness. In Cor. we read that we shall appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body whether they be good or evil, none can escape. We may hide our sins from the eyes of man for a time, but in that day of Christ the secrets of the heart shall be revealed. Then will he divide the sheep from the goats as a shepherd divideth his flock, and to those on his right hand he will say, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. But to those on the left he shall say, Depart from me into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels. These are the two sentences which shall be given. Oh how grand and glorious it will be to receive the one, but how sad indeed to receive the other. Does the everlasting fire mean that the wicked shall burn forever. Let us compare Scripture with Scripture and see what our conclusions will be. In Malachi we read that the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea and all that do wickedly, shall be as stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. And ye (the righteous) shall tread down the wicked, for they shall be ashes under the souls of your feet in the day that I shall do this saith the Lord of hosts. Surely this is plain enough for any child to understand. This Scripture plainly teaches that the wicked shall be consumed and that by fire. But the reward of the wicked is not what any of us are seeking for. It is the reward of the righteous, and what a great reward it will be. To think of seeing Jesus and being made like him, so that we can die no more, never have any more pain or sorrow, of reigning with him in his glorious kingdom, when all sin and iniquity shall be ended, is surely something worth striving for. We should be willing to endure all things for the sake of such a reward. Paul says that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us. Let us read some more of our precious promises, for it is very comforting to know that there will be an end to all suffering and sorrow. In Isaiah we read of the blessed state of the new Jerusalem. For behold I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice in that which I create. For behold I create Jerusalem a rejoicing and her people a joy, and I will rejoice in Jerusalem and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping and the voice of crying shall no more be heard in her. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock, and dust shall be the serpent's meat. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain saith the Lord.

Also in Micah we read that in the last days it shall come to pass that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills and all people shall flow unto it, and many nations shall come and say, Come and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways and we will walk in his paths. For the law shall go forth from Zion and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem, and he shall judge among many people and rebuke strong nations afar off, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. No more need of swords in that peaceful age. How very different from now. The news of these days are war, murder, suicides, earthquakes and floods. And what does it mean? Why simply that the time has come for us to have our lamps trimmed and burning ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes. Jesus says, that when ye shall hear of wars and rumors of war, see that ye be not troubled, for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places, all these are the beginnings of sorrow. Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted and shall kill you and ye shall be hated of all nations for my names sake, but he that shall endure to the end the same shall be saved.

Oh! dear brethren that we may endure to the end and receive the reward of the righteous is my prayer. Amen.

OLIVE D. TOWNSEND.

And now dear brethren and friends let me add a word of exhortation. Olive has fallen asleep, she is dead and her life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is her life, (life giver) shall appear, then shall she appear with him in glory. Col. iii. 3-4. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17.

For behold I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. 1 Cor. xv. 51, 52, 53.

This was the hope of our dear Olive, this is the prize for which she strove, the end which above all things she most desired to attain to. Her life was not a Christian life only while away from home and care, but her most lovely traits shone brightest in her own dear home. Surely we sorrow not as those without hope. Let me exhort her many dear young friends to seek the God whom she served.

R. V. TOWNSEND.

Destiny of the Wicked.

One of the brethren in the Northwest inquires of me by letter just received, "Is the destiny of wicked men any part of the gospel? and if it is no part of the gospel, by what authority do we preach it?" He also says, "There are several of us who would like to have you write a series of articles in THE RESTITUTION on the subject under consideration."

The questions can be answered in very few words, and the subject is too plain to need any "series of articles." We learn from Matt. xxiv. 14 that the apostles preached "the gospel of the kingdom," which is the only gospel that can be preached by divine authority. Gal. i. 8, 9. And we learn from Acts viii. 12 that the gospel of the kingdom consists, in part, of "the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ." Now we know that "Our Life" is one of the doctrinal titles that compose His name, and this title means that He will give eternal life to none but "His own sheep" and that "the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." John x. 28; Rom vi. 23. It was "through the gospel" that life and immortality were brought to light: and eternal life is so prominent a feature of the gospel that the gospel itself is called "the words of this life." 2 Tim. i. 10; Acts v. 20. Now to preach the gospel truth that eternal life (or immortality) is only for the righteous, implies of necessity that death is "the destiny of the wicked," even the death described by David and Malachi. Psa. xxxvii. 20; Mal. iv. 3.

So that to preach according to the holy examples of Scripture we must not only say that the wheat shall be saved, but also that the tares or chaff shall be burned up: not only that the gift of God is eternal life but also that the wages of sin is death. Thus will we faithfully set before our hearers life and death. Matt. xiii. 30; Luke iii. 17; Deut. xxx. 19.

Gospel means "good tidings, joyful news." And is there not joy in the tidings that our God in His righteous indignation will destroy the wicked and mercifully deliver us from them? Surely there is gospel joy in this; and "the righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance." God smote great great kings and slew famous kings, "for His mercy endureth for ever." Psa. lviii. 10, and cxxxvi. 17, 18; Rev. xviii. 20

Let us not seek to euphemize the destiny of the wicked, but tell them plainly when we preach the gospel, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark xvi. 16. The Revised Version tells us that John "preached good tidings" when, among other things, he spoke of the wheat being gathered into the garner and the chaff burned up with fire unquenchable. Luke iii. 17, 18. We preach the destiny of the wicked by the same authority that we preach the other parts of the gospel.

WILEY JONES.

Importance of Baptism.

The importance of baptism is recognized by people of nearly all religious denominations. Thus a form of service for baptism is contained in the Prayer Book of the Church of England, and it is taught that those who die unbaptized are eternally lost. Its importance is clearly seen by a study of many passages of Scripture. Christ himself said "Except a man be born of water and of Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John iii. 5. And when He was baptized of John the Baptist in Jordan, he said, "Thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness." Matt. iii. 15. Paul wrote to the Galatians, "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.... And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." Gal. iii. 27, 29. Clearly then, those who had not been baptized had not put on Christ, and so were not connected with the promises which are yet to be fulfilled in him. Peter cites the salvation of Noah by means of the ark as a figure of the salvation that is through baptism. Only those who were in the ark were saved; therefore only those who have been baptized can be saved for Peter, speaking of the ark, says, "Wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved through water: which also after a true likeness doth now save you, even baptism." 1 Peter iii. 20-51, R. V. And it may be seen from the case of Cornelius that though a man may be a devout worshipper of God, yet if he be not baptized, he is not an heir of salvation. Cornelius was a devout man and one that feared God; but Peter was sent to expound to him the way of God more perfectly, and he and his household were baptized. And it was important to note that they were baptized after, and not before, the Holy Spirit had fallen upon them. And in the present day even though a man may devoutly believe that he has received the Holy Spirit, this will not lessen the necessity for baptism.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential to final salvation.

Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
Directors of the C. P. Association.
[illegible], Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 8, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it, on application.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The Christian Publishing Association will be held at Plymouth, Ind., on Nov. 18, 1893, at which time a Board of Directors is to be chosen for the coming year, and such other business transacted as may come before the Association.

ROBERT RATHBUN, Pres.
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Secy.

LUTHER said his worst enemies were more valuable to him than his best friends. •

IT is much harder to suffer meekly than to fight valiantly: at least that is our experience. •

MULLER has truthfully and cutely said that good has but one enemy,—the evil: but the evil has two enemies, the good and itself. •

BRETHREN, you may not have strength given to carry out your aspirations, but you can certainly have strength to carry out your convictions. •

THE mere desire for life and glory and honor will not secure a title to it and develop a fitness for it. "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord." •

"No one who is a lover of riches, or a lover of pleasure, or a lover of glory can at the same time be a lover of men." These words came all the way down from Epictetus. •

THERE is scarcely any nourishment for mind or body provided by God, that has not been symbolized. He is light for the eye, sound for the ear, bread for food, wine for weariness, peace for trouble." •

"THERE remaineth therefore a rest for the people of God." How refreshing the thought; it almost takes the "tired" out of the believer when he thinks of it. And it is an everlasting rest. Glorious and blessed assurance. •

WHATELY said, "Those who get through the world without enemies are commonly of three classes—the supple, the adroit, and the phlegmatic. The leaden rule surmounts obstacles by yielding to them; the oiled wheel escapes friction; the cotton sack escapes damage by its impenetrable elasticity. •

ONE of the most important things the believer has to attend to in these evil days, is to see that the inner man is properly nourished. Starvlings will not be able to stem the tide of lethargy, nor resist the torrent of iniquity, nor withstand the assaults of scepticism, or the seductions of the showy, fashionable, heartless thing called religion in these last days. Our earnest exhortion to the household of faith, is, to take food enough to make you grow;—grow in favor with God and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Communion with the Father and the Son, and vigilant watchfulness, and constant perusal of the will of God will enable you to outride every storm and land at last, safe on the evergreen shore.

It is always helpful to dwell upon Jesus' words. The thoughts expressed by us brought to mind the saying, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. This enabled him to endure hunger, fatigue, persecution and death. Those who only yield intellectual assent to the truth, will not, cannot follow Christ fully in this respect. In proportion as the man of business lives to do God's will he is calm amidst vexatious losses; and when hard times sweep away the earnings of a life time, and perhaps bring undeserved imputations upon his good name, he is peaceful, and even happy, under the consciousness that the Lord knoweth them that are his. "Blessed are they who put their trust in Him." Psa. ii. 12. •

SOME one has said "an idle word may be seemingly harmless in its utterance, but let it be fanned by passion, let it be fed by the fuel of misconception, of evil intention, of prejudice, and it will soon grow into a sweeping fire, that will melt the chains of friendship, that will burn to ashes many cherished hopes and blacken more fair names than one." •

Delusions.

Glancing over a religious magazine the other day we saw an account of a "Christian" (?) who was seeking salvation from sin; and that for a long time he asked and received not, because he asked amiss. At last he was led by a pious sister to a female friend who enjoyed the fulness of the gospel, and who quoted to the troubled one the words in Heb. xiii.—"Working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight." That is it, said he,—"that is it." I have been trying for three years to work in myself salvation from sin." It then adds, "From that moment the God of peace made the inquirer perfect." Poor deluded one; we hardly know whether to pity him most before or after he was supposed to be made perfect. If there be any perfection in the whole business we think it was perfect folly and delusion. He was deluded first by the idea that he was a Christian, and at the same time acknowledged that he had only gotten rid of a part of his sins; and that God only pardons by installments,—and that he ought to be rid of the balance just for the asking,—and later, that if he would let God alone he would free him without asking. And what a towing delusion to think that he had taken higher degrees than the apostle John, who said, "If we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves." Back of all this lies the source of all these delusions; The unfortunate man knew nothing of God's saving power, the gospel of Christ and its conditions. How it pains us not to be able to reach the blind with the eye-opening truth of God; so that they can read intelligently Rom. v. 1, "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." And Acts xiii. 38, 39, "Be it known unto you, therefore, men and brethren, that through this man (Jesus) is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins; and by him all that believe are justified from all things from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses." Plainly all turns upon the point of faith in the gospel of the kingdom of God.

It is painful to realize that the honest of heart do not form their opinions by reading and meditation on the word of reconciliation, but adopt them from others equally fallible as themselves. And doubly painful to know that both the blind and their leaders will be ditched together. •

The Popular Delusion.

We recently opened a book purporting to be "A Spiritual Treasury for the Children of God," and our eyes alighted upon this important question:—"Has the gospel proved the power of God to the salvation of our souls?" The following was the answer:—"Surely, then, we must esteem it as the most joyful sound that ever greeted our ears! Joyful, that it is not clogged with any terms and conditions!" Oh, what poisonous words! This is not spiritual food! This is not drawn from the Spirit's treasury. The Title is a misnomer; and the author, devout as he evidently is, and zealous, is ignorant of the way of life himself, and therefore of necessity is a blind leader of the blind. Why does he overlook the next words of that golden text, Rom. i. 16, "To every one that believeth;" and why does he ignore, or rather, flatly contradict the words of the Spirit in Acts ii. 38, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins?" While it is a source of grief to notice so much fleshly teaching passed off for spiritual, we deem it duty to call attention to them, and note the difference of the divine way. Not long since there was quite a stir created in one of the fashionable temples near us, and we determined to attend once in order to find out how converts were being made. The eloquent preacher recognized us, and thought it was his time to pay off an old score, evidently; so he came to the edge of the platform and thundered it into our ears, that those who taught that Christ came to teach some particular doctrine to be believed were false teachers, or to that effect—He came for no such purpose; "he came to make men better;" and so his powers of persuasion were employed to get his audience to consent to be made better by Jesus. If Jesus had not shown how they were to be made better there might be some excuse for this. If, in prayer to the Father he had not said, "Sanctify them through thy truth;" and if he had not said to the disciples themselves, "Ye are clean through the Word which I have spoken unto you," he might have some excuse. Alas, chaff, instead of wheat is dealt out every where, the religious taste is so universally vitiated that nothing else is relished. Only those who possess the Key of the truth can hold up the lamp that gives light. Every one must examine him or herself to see if any more can be done for God and truth than is being done. The working time will soon be over, and then the reckoning begins. Great responsibilities rest upon the household. •

The Reviewer Reviewed. No. 2.

The article under the head of "The Son of God," in RESTITUTION No. 27, commences with the passage in Matt. xxii. 41-45, where Jesus asks the Pharisees what they think of Christ, whose Son he is, and they answer, the Son of David. He then asks them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying, The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou at my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? If David then call him Lord, how is he his Son? The first question was answered correctly, but the second was too much for the Pharisees, and no wonder; but we expected better things of the Reviewer. Should he not have answered it? We regret that it was left in this shape.

We believe the Scripture, but may not believe what the Reviewer thinks about it; that is the matter to adjust; and we see no way to proceed but to do what he failed to do,—give the sense of it as we understand it. The Pharisees looked for a Christ who would be a "mere man," and of course could not answer. They did not know the Son of David begotten of God would be the author of David's future life;—did not know the royal Son would humble himself unto death, and because of that, (Phil. ii. 8, 9) he highly exalted and given a name, at which every knee should bow, and this certainly includes David.

It is a mistake also, we think, to say the Pharisees were willing to confess HIM the Son and heir of David, seeing they mocked him and rejected his claims.

1. We heartily endorse what is said of the importance of having Scriptural thoughts of Christ, and believing on him "as the Scripture hath said," and if this were adhered to strictly, there would soon be no need of discussion.

2. It is said "we are not to portray a Christ of our own imagination, like the heathen, who, guided only by the thinking of the flesh, invent the objects of their worship, nor like the Pharisees who, while professing a reverence for all Scripture, would take only a one-sided view of Christ, being willing to confess him Son of David, but not willing to confess him Son of God." He assumes this to be applicable to us, or there is no point to it. Will he kindly direct us to the passages in our articles which prove their applicability to us? It was dishonest and hypocritical in the Pharisees to profess one thing and do another, and it would be just as bad in us; and a hundred times worse than the heathens, would it be for us to invent objects of worship, because we have the Word of the living God. To show how uncalled for were these allusions to Pharisees and heathens, we quote the first three lines of our article No. 1:—"We think the promise in Gen. iii. 15 contains the germ of the whole gospel." We think so more than ever, since reading Reviewer's articles. The third paragraph in the same article quotes Gal. iv. 4: "But when the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman." etc. And the remarks following say, "God executed his purpose. He did what he purposed to do. He sent forth HIS SON made of a woman, made under the law when the time came to do so." Reviewer must have overlooked this. Before passing we ask him if this apostolic statement without emendation or addition expresses faith in the matter? We ask this in order to ascertain who [illegible] portrays "a Christ of his own imagination?" Will he kindly answer us?

3. It is said: "It is easy enough to collect and emphasize such texts as teach that Christ was the Seed of the woman, 'the son of David,' in all things made like unto his brethren," etc. Truly it is easy, because they are so plentiful. "But unless we also remember that He is the Son of God, and that He and the Father are ONE, we shall never believe on him as the Scripture has described Him." And further on, in harmony with this, it is said, although one passage says, "In all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren," we are not to conclude with the Pharisees and Socinians, that he is a mere man; for another passage of at least equal authority says, "In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." To say that we are surprised at this derogatory construction is a very tame expression. As if one of these passages may be taken to tone down the other, so that neither can be fully and freely believed; or, if one is fully believed, the inevitable result must be the other is wholly disbelieved. It says, "In all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren." This is true, or it is not. If not strictly true, who is to modify it? Does Reviewer dare undertake to modify it to suit his pre-existent theory? If he does, may not some one else tone down the other passage to suit his ideas? Pray where would such principles of interpretation land us? Now we ask the Reviewer to help us get to the bottom of this matter, by telling us plainly if he wholly believes the passage relating to the Godhead? If he does, will he then please tell us how much of the passage he believes, which says, "In all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren?" We are persuaded that definite answers to these questions would materially advance the cause of truth.

After this much of an effort to draw out the truth, it gives us great satisfaction to say that with all our heart we believe both passages just as they stand. Our readers will perceive that the bare quotation of Col. ii. 9 without the slightest analysis or exposition assumes that we do not believe it, or, that it is not in harmony with our views. This is not so. We heartily believe it; and we ask, when he knows other and definite views are held, and avoids those expositions, does he treat the subject as a high and mighty one, although he so designates it? The quotation of Col. ii. 9 without remark, under the circumstances, must be taken as a mark of weakness unless satisfactorily explained. Does that passage tell us that all the fulness of the Godhead dwelt in Him prior to his existence on earth? No! Does it anywhere else say so? No! Does not Isaiah plainly say (chap. ix. 6) that it is the child born that is to be called the Mighty God? If so, we see by Col. ii. 9 that he was a true prophet. It has come to pass; and we do "believe on him as the Scripture has described Him," Reviewer to the contrary notwithstanding; he is simply mistaken. From another place we learn that he thinks the oneness with the Father consisted of nature of existence in part, and in purpose, if not mistaken. Then may not we think that it was in purpose and disposition? If so, our readers may turn to John xvii. 11 where Jesus prays that his disciples may be "one as we;"—The Father and Himself, and decide for themselves whether nature of existence, or mind, purpose and disposition is most in harmony with his prayer: "that they may be one AS WE."

4. In regard to the one-sided view, we promise a faithful effort to discover which side is one-sided, and shall expect the co-operation of the Reviewer. Our readers will please suspend judgment in the matter in the meantime.

5. The reference to a millstone on the neck of the gospel, and the assertion that those who do not believe the Word of God was a person but who do believe it was with God in the Beginning, are doubtless [illegible] warnings; but before we are entirely cut off, will not Reviewer just once please show that Preexistence is a part of the gospel? If he can do this he will confer a lasting benefit upon us, and glory will redound to God. He will please remember, that it is the gospel of Pre-existence that is called for; together with the date of this additional condition of salvation. We claim it must be since the Acts of the Apostles was written, as they never exacted it. It must be since 1872 when Reviewer published his "Reign of Christ" for no such condition of salvation is made known there, but CHRIST is said to be the [illegible] son of David; it must be since 1875, when he published his "Ancient and True Gospel," for on page four he says, "To truly preach 'Christ' therefore, is to preach him in all these three positions and relations," viz: "Prophet to teach, Priest to intercede, and King to reign," but not a word about pre-existence; and it must be since the first edition of the "Gospel of the Kingdom in 1890," or else the author is highly culpable, for we can find no such condition of salvation there.

6. Having plainly made the belief of pre-existence an essential to salvation, he proceeds to show us, we suppose, how he arrived at this conclusion; for now follows a philosophical disquisition upon nature and person, without a single Bible reference touching the subject of pre-existence; then he talks learnedly of Theos, the Greek word for God, and theios, the uninflected form of the Greek word for divine, and once translated Godhead, as is also its derivative theiotes in Rom. i. 20, and its cognate theotes in Col. ii. 9, and Webster says, Godhead denotes divinity, divine essence. And concludes by saying, "as we cannot understand human nature we cannot expect to understand divine nature, [then why contend about it?] but are assured that God is the one Supreme and underived Head of that nature. With Him is the fountain of life, and He is the former of all things. God is a spirit. We submit in all sincerity that this looks nothing like the gospel Jesus preached to the poor. If this be the road to pre-existence and pre-existence is the way to the kingdom, the poor and unlettered will certainly be lost; they could never find it by this tortuous way. And thank God it will never be necessary, as long as we read the words of the Spirit in James, "Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he has promised to them that love him?" and the gracious and consoling words of the Master himself in Mat. xi. 25, 26, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes; even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight." So we are obliged to reject the assumption that pre-existence is gospel until the proof is given, and then with meekness we will receive it. We want to be rich in faith, but faith that saves comes by hearing the Word of God. If readers will look at the second column of the article in No. 27, they will see exactly where pre-existence begins. It begins at the proper place, the foundation, but as we fail to find a particle of Divine material in the foundation how can the structure be divine?

7. There is no dispute about the Scriptural uses of the word Son, the question is, "Did God have a Son before he was begotten?" In the 89th Psalm we read of One who would at some future time say, "Thou art my Father, my God, and the rock of my salvation." And of him Jehovah says, "Also I will make him my first born," higher than the kings of the earth. We understand by this that God as yet had no first-born—that this was history in advance;—a reiteration of the decree made in reference to it in the 2nd Psalm: "Thou art my Son; this day I have begotten thee;" and that this, too, is future, although spoken of as an accomplished fact (the same as was said to Abraham, "I have made thee a father of many nations," when really he as yet had no child.

8. It is said that the expressions "own Father" and "own Son" and "the only begotten Son" prove that he is Son in a higher sense than any other being. We did not expect this after what we have so plainly written; it is doubtless chargeable to the exigencies of a human theory rather than to intentional wrong, or injustice. Yes: he is superior to angels, and has a name which is above every name, but, is the logical conclusion of this, Therefore he pre-existed? Not in our estimation.

9. It is then asked, "Was it ever known since the world began that a begotten Son did not partake in some degree of the nature of his father?" A strange question in view of the fact that all other sons were begotten by men; a strange question in the face of the fact that God does not say he made his Son of himself, but of a Woman! This suppresses no truth, and needs no supplement.

10. Because the apostles called him Lord and God, and he claimed to be the Son of God it is said, "What better authority can we desire for believing Christ to be the Second Person of the Trinity? No! under a departure from the truth, in order to express which, terms have to be invented "Second Person of the Divine Nature."

Earnestly and lovingly submitted in defense of the Faith. •

Selected.

The Coming of the Lord.

"When the Son of Man shall come in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory."—Matthew xxv. 31.

This important subject is often overlooked by a great many Bible readers. Many say it does not make any difference what we believe if we are only honest, but this will not stand the test, for if we go to the banks of the Ganges, we see there mothers throwing their infants into the mouths of crocodiles, honestly believing God requires it. Paul was honest while persecuting the saints, and thought he was doing God's service. Acts viii. 1; ix. 1; xxii. 5; xxvi. 9.

The question is what is truth? For what is popular to-day may be very unpopular to-morrow. The Bible speaks of the "coming of Jesus Christ," and the "resurrection of the dead," Acts xxiv. 14, 15. No doubt the reader will be surprised to find that there is not one promise in the Bible of going to heaven at death. If the just and unjust go to their reward or punishment at death, what need is there for a resurrection of the dead, and a judgment day? (which made Felix tremble). Acts xxiv. 21-25. Justin Martyr wrote (A. D. 150): —"But, I and whatsoever Christians are orthodox in all things, do know that there will be a resurrection of the flesh, and a thousand years in the city of Jerusalem, built, adorned, and enlarged, according to the prophets." William Tyndale wrote (A. D. 1500), "And ye in putting them (souls) in heaven, hell or purgatory, and destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection . . . and then, what cause is there of a resurrection?" Jesus said, "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." Rev. xxii. 12.

Some may think that Luke xxiii. 43, does really teach that the faithful go to heaven at death—but it all rests on the punctuation: whether "to-day" qualifies "I say" or "shalt be." The thief did not ask Jesus to remember him when he went to heaven, but "when thou comest." The punctuations are not inspired; they were first introduced by Manutius (A. D. 1490). Some Bibles have the comma after "to-day." The old Cottage Bible (by Parker) reads: "Lord, remember me in the day of thy coming: Jesus said unto him, Verily, I say unto you, the same day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." Rotherham translates it: "To thee I say to-day, with me thou shalt be in Paradise." Jesus did not go to heaven himself at death: "For I am not yet ascended to my Father." John xx. 17; 1 Cor. xv. 4; Matt. xii. 40.

Some quote "Then shall the earth return to the dust as it was; and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." Eccles. xii. 7. If the "spirit" here is meant the "soul" or "man proper," it proves too much. It would prove universal salvation because all spirits return to God at death. If those who believe and teach that they go to Jesus at death, instead of Jesus coming to them at resurrection should have to appear at the Judgment Seat of Christ, and he should say: "Why did you not teach men that I was coming the second time; literally, to raise the dead and judge the world?" They would answer; "Lord, I knew it said so; but then I thought you did not mean 'come again.'" I thought the Scriptures had a figurative meaning. Which, I ask, would be the guilty party? Those who believe and teach that we are to receive our reward when Jesus comes, or those who believe and teach that we go either to Jesus in heaven at death, or to hell (eternal torments)? I choose to believe and teach just what the Lord Jesus Christ says.

Again, Phil. i. 23, is often quoted as proof; but, take it as it reads. It does not prove that Paul expected to go to heaven at death. He says: "I am in a strait betwixt two." What two? Whether to live or to die? "Having a desire to depart and be with Christ which is far better than either." This Greek word analusi is found only once in the Bible, and there it is translated return. "Let your loins be girded about and your lights burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he will return from the wedding." Luke xii. 36. In the Emphatic Diaglott (a word for word translation) it reads: "I have an earnest desire for the returning, and being with Christ, since it is very much to be preferred."

When Paul wrote to Timothy: "I charge thee, therefore, before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; henceforth, there is laid up for me, a crown of righteousness, which the Lord shall give me at that day . . . but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. iv. 1-8), he believed just the same as when he wrote to the Philippians about being "in a strait," also "For our conversation is in heaven from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ." Phil. iii. 20.

Jesus said: "I go to prepare a place for you . . . I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also."—John xiv. 3. Paul writes of the coming of the Lord and the resurrected and living faithful saints, meeting him "in the air." 1 Thess. iv. 13-18. Jesus said the saints will reign "on the earth" (Rev. v. 10) "with him a thousand years" (Rev. xx. 6), and after with the "Father" (1 Cor. xv. 24), "under the whole heaven," Dan. vii. 27.

Reader, Believe! "Repent, and be baptized for the remission of sins." Acts ii. 38. "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." Matt. x. 22.—A. Burton.

Dr. Watts the eminent church poet, says: There is not one place of Scripture that occurs to me, where the word death, as it was first threatened in the law of innocency, necessarily signifies a miserable immortality of the soul, either to Adam, the actual sinner, or to his posterity.

Change of Address.

On and after November 1st, 1893, my address will be Plymouth, Ind., instead of Macy, Ind. Correspondents please take notice.

L. E. CONNER.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.78
"From a Friend."	1.00
Alice Quinn,	.25
Jennie Cox,	.25
Mrs. C. W. Russel,	5.00
S. Roxana Winer,	10.00

Poetry.

[illegible]

Original.

The Gospel According Loukas, Chap. 10.

1. And after these [illegible] the Lord notified [illegible] publicly [illegible] others also and sent them forth, two by two before his face into every city and place where [illegible].

2. And he said unto them, The [illegible] workers are few. [illegible] harvest, then that he may [illegible] out workers into his [illegible] harvest.

3. [illegible] I am sending you like lambs as it were in the midst of wolves.

4. Carry no purse nor pouch nor sandals and greet no one on the way.

5. And in to whatever household ye may have entered, first say peace be with this household.

6. And if the Son of peace be there, your peace will rest upon it, but if not, it will return to you.

7. And in [illegible] household [illegible] eating and [illegible] the things [illegible] supplied from them. For the workman is worthy of his wages. [illegible] house.

8. And [illegible] ye shall enter [illegible], they receive you, eat the things [illegible] before you.

9. And [illegible] the weak [illegible] and say unto them, The Kingdom of God hath come [illegible] you.

10. And into whatever city ye shall have entered [illegible] they receive you not, when ye have [illegible] out into the public-square thereof, say,

11. Even the fine dust that cleaveth to our feet from your city we shake off against you; [illegible] know this, that the Kingdom of God hath drawn nigh.

12. I say unto you that it will be more tolerable for Soloma in that day than for this city.

13. Woe unto thee Chorazein: Woe unto thee Bethsaida: Because if the works of ability, which have occurred in you had occurred in Turos and Sidon, long ago would they have repented seated in sackcloth and ashes.

14. Moreover it will be more tolerable for Turos and Sidon in the judgment-trial than for you.

15. And thou Kapharnaoum who art lifted up to the heavens, to hades wilt thou have gone down.

16. The one who heareth you heareth me; And the one who rejecteth you, rejecteth me; And the one who rejecteth me rejecteth the One who hath sent me.

17. And the seventy returned with joy, saying, Lord, even the demons subject themselves to us in thy name.

18. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan fallen like lightning as it were from out the heavens.

19. Lo, I have given you the official-power to tread upon serpents and scorpions and upon all the ability of the enemy, and nothing shall harm you.

20. However in this thing rejoice not that spirits are subjecting themselves to you; But rejoice that your names have been written in heaven (the heavenly order of things).

21. [illegible] he [illegible] himself in the sanctified spirit and said, I confess unto thee, Father, Lord of the heavens and the earth that thou [illegible] things from wise and understanding ones and hast revealed them unto children. Yea, Father, [illegible] with satisfaction in thy sight [illegible].

22. All things have been committed to me by my Father; and no one comprehends [illegible] who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son and [illegible] to whom the Son [illegible] choose to have revealed Him.

23. And turning to the disciples [illegible] He said, [illegible] eyes are ye that are looking at the things which ye are looking at.

24. For I [illegible] you that [illegible] prophets and kings have desired [illegible] the things which ye [illegible] and [illegible] not [illegible] which ye are hearing, and [illegible] not hear them.

25. [illegible] in his turn [illegible] trial of him, saying, Teacher, having done what [illegible] life?

26. [illegible] said unto him, In [illegible] what hath been [illegible]? How dost thou read it?

27. And he [illegible] said, [illegible] the Lord thy God [illegible] soul [illegible].

28. And he said [illegible] do [illegible] life.

29. [illegible] he [illegible] to [illegible] him [illegible] and who is my neighbor?

30. And Jesus [illegible] A certain man went down from [illegible] to Hierikoun a sacred way and fell among highwaymen who both stripped him and inflicted blows on him, and departed leaving him half-dead.

31. And by a conjunction of events a certain priest was going down on that highway, and when he saw him he passed by on the other side.

32. And likewise also a Levite when he had come to be at the place, went and saw and passed by on the other side.

33. But a certain Samaritan as he was journeying [illegible] came across him, and when he saw was moved with compassion.

34. And went [illegible] him and bound up [illegible] down) his wounds pouring on olive-oil and wine; and [illegible] him on his own beast of burden conducted him to an [illegible] all-receiving-place and cared for him.

35. And on the morrow [illegible] out two denarii and gave unto the innkeeper (lit. the All-receiving one) and said, care for him, and whatever [illegible] lavish on him, when I return I will repay thee.

36. Which of these [illegible] seem to thee became a neighbor to the one who had fallen in with the highwaymen?

37. And he said, The one who was the author of the mercy to him. And Jesus said unto him, Do thou also go thy way, and do likewise.

38. And it came to pass as they were going their way that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman, Martha by name, received him into her house.

39. And she had a sister called Mariam, who sat at the feet of Jesus and was hearkening to his word.

40. And Martha was distracted with much service (deacon-service). And as she stood by and, Lord dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Then do thou tell her to take hold along with me.

41. And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, Thou art worried and troubled about many things. But of one thing there is need. And Mariam hath chosen the good portion, which will not have been taken away from her.

COMMENT.

"Notified" instead of "appointed" R. V. This is a wonderfully significant word and suggestive in its pregnant meaning. The term was an official one in the old Athenian constitution of things and did not signify the appointment of the person to office but the official notification to him of the fact of his election. Read Paul on the subject of election in connection with this comment and a new light will dawn on you, I am sure.

"The [illegible] harvest" instead of "the harvest [illegible]" R. V. Remember there are three harvests constantly spoken [illegible] prophetic word namely "the [illegible] harvest," "the summer harvest" and "the vintage." The latter is the harvest of "the nations" as nations, and is the grand finale of God's great year of time as an animate space of time or "a breathing space" or an eon or an aeon.

"The Son of peace" instead of "a son of peace" R. V. an allusion to Christ himself in his spiritual personal presence.

"Will rest on it" instead of "shall rest on him" R. V. A natural conclusion of course of the first error.

"Public-square" instead of "streets" R. V.

"Salamin" meaning "thy gift."

"Fine-dust" instead of "dust" merely R. V. Much more suggestive in its import.

Observe the use of the word "satisfaction" in the 21st verse and compare it with the same thought in the song of the angels at the nativity.

"To make a trial (or test) of" instead of "tempting" him R. V. Christ was tried in all points as we are, but never tempted. He was attempted but never tempted, or he would not have been "without sin."

"How dost thou read it" illustrates the now well known historic fact that the public readers of the Scriptures even in Christ's day were both ignorantly and intentionally inaccurate in conveying the thought of God to their hearers.

"Heart," "soul," "strength," "thought," in other words signify the inner self nature (the heart) the intellectual nature (the thought) the organic life individual (the soul) the energy of this life in each particular individual (the strength) and not a separate entity constituting the whole essential spiritual man called "soul."

"A certain man" i. e. this paradise the Adamic man under law in his descent into sin.

"Hierousalem" where God placed his name for worship under the sanctions of law.

"Hierikou" a sacred way down from this place.

"Highwaymen" the evil spirits led by the Arch enemy of mankind who have always beset the sacred way and the pilgrim on it.

"By a conjunction of events" instead of "by chance" R. V. There is no such thing as chance in God's universe and God's estimate of things and there was no chance in this great event of man's [illegible] ature.

"A certain priest" God's human representative of the higher law who failed to properly represent him as here shown in his high office of love to neighbor.

"A Levite" a public and private servitor of the priest to help officiate between God and man and also represent him as the God of love or the God of the law of love.

"Olive-oil" and "wine" both symbolic parable words denoting life: the first spiritual life the last natural life in their primary use; but both in their broader use significant of spiritual life and its ministrations.

The "two denarii" the price of these ministrations or the penalty paid by the Adamic man, by the First and the last Adam for his neighbor.

"Beast-of-burden" represents the fact of "sin-bearing" as a part of the ministration of love.

"The All-receiving place" represents "the mercy-seat" or lit. "the place to show favor."

"The All-receiving One" is God himself, who presides here.

"Lavish" indicates the boundless generosity and love of God in Christ "the Good Samaritan" or as the text has it "A certain Samareitan."

"Repay" emphasizes Christ's agency in this matter of redemption and love.

"Return" points to the time of "the payment of wages" and emphasizes God himself as our "present responsive helper," until that time shall arrive.

Observe also "A certian woman" and "A certain village" among the verities of God here spoken of and don't forget the "do thou likewise" of the parable.

"Need" here in its primitive meaning is more properly "use" God's idea of use though always causes man's idea to sink into insignificance in comparison as it does here.

CHAS. GARDNER.

John Locke, the Christian philosopher, says: It seems a strange way of understanding a law which requires the plainest and most direct words, that by death should be meant eternal life in misery.

Letter Read at Michigan Conference.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Assembled together in the name and for the glory of the one true and living God. Most earnestly do I lift up my heart to him, that grace, mercy and peace may rest upon and abide with you in all that you do and say throughout this meeting.

You have come here, the purchased servants of the Lord, not to do your own will but the will of him to whom you belong. It is his will, that you set yourselves in prayerful attitude before him. this is the first step. He wants us to come boldly to him for help in every time of need. We have great need now. We can do nothing unless his arm be stretched out to save. Pray, dear ones. Cry mightily to God, that he be here with you, to bless your efforts in seeking to teach and rescue your perishing fellows.

They have come to think that if they do right, all will be right in the end, though they have never taken a step in obedience to the will of God. The work has been left to you of teaching these poor deluded ones what they must believe and do in order to have all right in the great reckoning day. You can do much such work in a meeting like this. Seek out those who are depending upon themselves for salvation. Converse kindly and yet with solemn earnestness with them upon their need of a personal Savior. Tear down every false and insecure hiding-place, leave them no refuge but that which they may find in God. You come here to do the will of your heavenly Father, do it. Do as the Master did, strive to "seek and to save them that are lost." You can come into closer contact with your neighbors and friends than can your ministers. They can point the arrows of conviction, but you can [illegible] to it that they are sent home to individual hearts.

Show them so dear ones that to act with non-reference to the will of God, though it may make us appear upright in the eyes of men, will give us no passport into the heavenly country. We must have the governmental passport, with the governmental seal of the living God impressed upon it, if we ever enter through the pearly gates to the city of gold.

If Noah had stayed out of the ark, and depended on his moral life would he have been saved? If we stay out of Christ (and we are staying out of him while we are refusing to be baptized), can we be saved? These dear lost ones may say, they will take works. God will surely not condemn them, if their works are in accordance with his will. But going into the ark was a work, searching the Scriptures to find the faith of Christ, is a work, being baptized, is a work, putting away wrath and malice and envy, and all dishonest practices, is a work. Engaging in the worship and in the praise of God, is a work. seeking to bring others to the feet of Jesus, is a work, and these are works that our moral friends do not do.

Only Jesus can save, let no one have it to say that we have never told them of Jesus, that we have never made it clear to their understanding that there is no hope of salvation without him. Let the blood of no soul be upon your garments; be faithful, ye called out ones, for surely he who hath said, "Behold I come quickly" is just at the door. It cannot possibly tarry long, that solemn, joyful day. Think of this, in every word that you utter here, let the coming of Jesus, be your watchword to quicken you into more earnest work than you have ever done before.

I am looking over into the heavenly country. My eyes see the grand coronation scene. I would I could picture it to you. I have it before me now, the assembled multitudes of the redeemed; the myriads of angels, the patriarchs and prophets, all surrounding their King. There stands Abraham and David with the crown of the world in their hands, and while all that white-robed band send up such acclaim as was never heard before, they place it upon the head of Jesus! I want to be there, sing—

"Crown the Savior! Angels crown him.
Rich the trophies Jesus brings.
On the throne of David place him
While the vault of heaven rings.
Crown him! crown him, crown the Savior King of kings!"

Oh, how I want that day to come! When accents of sorrow and mourning shall be heard no more; when the keys shall be turned that will unlock earth's myriad tombs; when the sleepers in Jesus shall come forth to wear the divine image; when the flowers shall spring up in the desert; when the naked shall be clothed; when the hungry shall be fed; when the helpless shall have a helper; and the poor a righteous judge.

I am putting away my own ease and pleasure, that I may hasten the coming of that day. The great sights of the world's fair are nothing to me. I have more enduring sights before me. The money that others spend there, I spend joyfully in the service of my King. The time that is taken by others in gazing upon the glories of the kingdoms of the world, I take in teaching the little children the way of life, and Oh! thank God! one of these has found Jesus! As a blessing upon my poor unworthy efforts during the spring and summer. A young blind girl of whom Bro. Wagoner will tell you. She was baptized only a few weeks ago, and now she says, "I am glad I am blind! if I had not been, I should never have found Jesus."

Bring the little ones into your homes, or classes, and teach them of Jesus, if there is no better way. Be faithful in all things, in your words, your acts, in the use of your money, for the dear Master is coming and eternal life is at stake. Live so that you may not be afraid when Jesus comes.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

Dear Restitution:

It is with a heart filled with sadness that I again take up my pen to address the household of faith. Since the death of our beloved daughter Olive, we have received many words of sympathy and love from the dear brethren and friends, and not feeling able to answer each one separate, have taken this way to acknowledge their thoughtfulness of us in our deep sorrow.

Olive was one who to know her well was to love and respect her. One who was not ashamed of the small assemblies of the people of God, but was ever ready to stand for the truth, therefore she had the promise that Christ will not be ashamed of her at his coming. Oh, how we miss her at our meetings, in our home and everywhere. Her death has cast a shadow over our happy home which God's promise can only dispel, therefore we sorrow not as those who have no hope, for we believe that Christ died and rose again, and that he will bring with him all that fall asleep in him. Dear brethren pray for us that we may hold out faithful to the end, when we shall again meet our loved ones, with all the ransomed of God's faithful children. That you may know something more of the faith of our daughter we will send a copy of one of her lessons for publication, which she read before the meeting, as that is our order, having no preaching.

We received a lengthy letter from Brother and Sister Young of Seattle, in which they expressed their deep sympathy for us, which was gladly received as was also that of our aged Sister Eshelman. In answer to their question, as to the cause of our daughter's death, it was caused by a rupture of the bowels, the cause of the rupture we do not know. She was sick three weeks and was so like herself that we could not think that she would not recover until a short time before her death; but now she sleeps in Jesus, and her works will follow her.

Daughter Olive, thou hast left us,
Left thy kindred and thy friends.
In the quiet grave thou resteth
Until Gentile times shall end.
Then the Lord for whom thou waiteth
Shall descend from heaven to earth.
And the many silent chambers
Shall to every saint give birth.
Lovely daughter, how we miss thee,
Miss thy form now cold in death,
Miss thy cheerful voice now silent,
Gone with thy last fleeting breath.
Oh how noble was thy life work
Though in secret it was done.
Thou hast not to sound a trumpet,
But in silence gain the crown.
Precious daughter, may we meet thee
In that age so free from care,
Where God's people all shall gather
And its blessings freely share.
Oh how oft were talked together
Of the blessings Christ would bring
When he comes to take his kingdom
[illegible] the Victor's song we sing.
Daughter Olive, all around us
Is the work of thy dear hands,
But to see no more thou canst,
Death holds thee with iron bands.
But these bands they shall be broken,
For our Lord passed through the grave
And the law that he has spoken,
[illegible]
[illegible] hearts are well nigh broken,
And our home is not the same,
But the Word that Christ has spoken,
"I [illegible], I come again."
[illegible] us in all our sorrow.
[illegible] the dead in Christ shall rise.
And we [illegible] to meet him
As he comes in from the skies.

R. V. TOWNSEND.

Conference Report.

The first quarterly conference of the church of God, in Michigan, met at Coat's Grove, Oct. 20th, as before appointed. Meetings were held in the Disciple Church, beginning Friday morning at 10:30. Before the morning service had closed our co-laborers in the Lord, J. F. Wagoner and Israel Roberts of Indiana, entered the church, tired from their long ride by private conveyance, but withal carrying very familiar and happy looking faces. It brightened and lightened our hearts to see them and a little farther on to hear their voices, once more telling the same sweet old story of Zion. Bro. Wagoner did the greater part of the preaching and all were benefited and encouraged.

On Sunday morning we went to the river where a father and daughter were buried with Christ by baptism. They had come from Northern Michigan for this purpose and Monday morning another took the same name upon herself by baptism.

Believers were at this meeting from Vicksburg, Mendon, Galesburg, Kalamazoo, Watson, Byron Center, Dutton, Grand Rapids, Middleville, Hastings, Woodland and Northern Michigan. At the business meeting the sisters organized their tithing system better, with the needed officers and it is now known as "The Ladies Evangelical Aid Society;" through this work the sisters hope to accomplish more toward paying for gospel needs. Seventeen sisters joined, pledging themselves to pay one-tenth of all monies belonging to them or whatever portion it was possible for them to save for gospel work. Sisters, young or old, you are invited into this band of workers, feeling assured that many tithes will make a sum none of us will be ashamed of. Any one wishing to send their mite please send to Miss. Emma Jackson, Grand Rapids, Mich., box 381.

All sympathized deeply with Bro. and Sister Hammond, who were not able to attend on account of the serious illness of their daughter Ettie.

We bade adieu to the loved ones all on Monday morning, each going to their homes while the Elder and myself started for Ill., to work for the Master a few weeks.

As we halted on "Mid-way" and gazed at the hurrying through of pleasure-seekers entering from every entrance to reach some place of peculiar interest, the tears would not stay back as I thought how few of all these thousands were looking for the King to come, or cared to be called to the marriage supper of the Lamb. I was glad we had strength to proclaim his glorious coming and were willing to use it that way. May God help us all to do what we can to reach a few more who will accept the gospel. Yours in Christ,

MARY A. WOODWARD.

The Church of God, known as the Northern Nebraska and Southern Dakota Conference, met near Carns, Rock County, Nebraska, Sept. 23, 1893, and held its annual meeting.

The attendance was good, and we enjoyed a good season by the assembling of ourselves together, in worshipping the Lord.

Preaching brethren present were Elder F. M. Clifton, A. F. Dugger, John A. Nugent, M. B. Ellis and S. G. Chaney. Five discourses in all were preached. The business meeting was held on the 2nd day. The meeting was called to order by the president. After reading of the minutes of the last meeting and approval of the same, the following business was transacted.

It was moved and carried that the visiting brethren take part in the conference. That a ministerial committee be appointed on Credentials. That we unite with the State Conference. That an Executive Committee be appointed to do business for this conference, and Wm. H. Denson, S. G. Chaney, and F. F. Stephens were chosen as this committee. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year. F. M. Clifton, Pres., Roy Chaney, Vice-president, Wm. H. Denson, Secy., and Cas. H. Shultz, Treas. Letters of recommendation were granted to Bro. A. F. Dugger and M. B. Ellis. The next conference is to be held at Ainsworth, Neb., commencing about December 15th, 1893.

WM. H. DENSON, Secy.

The Great Naval Powers.

It is pleasant if not amusing to read in your London correspondence that there are Englishmen and British papers that affect to believe France has become the equal of England in naval power simply by increasing its armed vessels in number and size, and by keeping its fleet prepared for instantaneous action. All the world knows that on the sea France has, as it were, but a single line of battle and no reserves. An "initial blow" is all that she can deliver on the ocean to a power like Great Britain, sovereign and supreme in every element and resource of naval warfare.

A true comparison of the fighting forces of different nations upon the sea must take in account their resources in men and ships, in fuel, provisions, and munitions, in outlying fortifications, and coaling stations, and in skill, courage, and money. First comes the navy proper, with its dockyards, arsenals, and trained personnel; second, the merchant marine (particularly its steamers), shipyards, drydocks, and seamen; third, the coals and sea stores of every kind, with facilities to procure them as required.

France is deficient in shipbuilding power. She has a small marine and few seamen. England is supreme in vessels on the sea, prodigious in shipyard force, and has more seamen than all the world beside. Supposing the navies of France and England to be equal in puissance, to begin with, the British has the power to build, arm, man, and sail ten ships to each one of the French. Of the world's steam marine the percentage under the English flag is 64, while that under the French is but 6. Of the sail tonnage of the world 37 per cent is under the British flag, but less than three is under the French. Of the total tonnage on the ocean 53 per cent flies the British flag, and but 4.75 per cent the French. Great Britain has therefore more than ten seamen for one of France. She has more than twenty shipyards and drydocks for one of France, and mechanics, in proportion, as she builds three-fourths of all the ships that sail the [illegible]. England could destroy the French navy while she was rebuilding her own, but would be likely to break it up and disperse it, while she was establishing blockades of every French port. Not a French merchant vessel would long sail the ocean, and the navy once beaten and scattered could not be reformed and rebuilt until after peace had been made.

In naval resources Great Britain is stronger than all the marine nations combined. Her chief weakness lies in her inability to feed her population from her own farms, and to extract from her own pockets all the raw materials that sustain her factories and create her enormous trade. For hundreds of years her policy has been to make her distinguishing resource the ability to build, equip, and man ships. Shipbuilding and navigation, thus fostered and developed by England, have ever been the want and weakness of France, which never pursued a steadfast policy in respect to the sea. The general policy of France has been to buy her shipping and not to build it. The policy of England has been the opposite, to build and not buy. England has sought to have new ships for every trade; France has too much satisfied itself with second hand bargains.—W. W. Bates in Inter Ocean.

Bible Personalities.

"Michael the Archangel when disputing with the devil about the body of Moses, durst not bring railing accusation against him but said, the Lord rebuke thee Satan."

"Resist the Devil and he will flee from you."

"Draw nigh to God and he will draw nigh to you."

C. BOARDMAN.

John Milton the author of "Paradise lost" says: Man is a living being, intrinsically and properly one and individual, not compound and inseparable, not, according to the common opinion, made up and framed of two distinct and different natures, as of body and soul, but the whole man is a soul, and the soul, man; that is to say, a body or substance, individual, animate, sensitive and rational.

Dead Who are Judged. Rev. xx. 12.

If the soul dies not, it cannot be judged.

If not judged it cannot be rewarded.

If not rewarded it cannot be saved.

If only the body dies, the body only is judged.

If the body only is judged, the body alone is rewarded.

If the body alone is rewarded, only the body is saved.

If only the body is saved, heaven will be full of soulless bodies.

If the whole man dies, the whole man is judged.

If the whole man is judged, the whole man is rewarded.

If the whole man is rewarded, the whole man is saved.

If the whole man is saved, the whole man must be rewarded and this is Scripture teaching.

If the judgment occurs at death, then the judgment is not based on merit, as no man's work, whether good or evil, is complete until the consummation of the Age.

If the soul is judged at death, why did the souls under the fifth seal enquire—How long wilt thou not judge us?

If they were not judged how could they be in heaven?

If the Spirit returns to God as a conscious entity, then it was pre-existent or it could not return.

Man and beast go to one place Eccl. iii. 20, Ergo the Spirit of the animal also returns to God in heaven and was pre-existent—but man and beast are all of the dust and all turn to dust again, therefore if they return to God, God must be dust. Eccl. iii. 20.

The Spirit (ruch) of man and beast is the same. "They have all one breath (ruch.) So that man hath no pre-eminence over a beast." Eccl. iii. 19 he is "like the beasts that perish" Ps. xlix. 12 and as "natural brute beasts made to be taken and destroyed and shall utterly perish in their own corruption." 2 Pet. ii. 12. That is the natural man—whereas the Spiritual man looketh for the resurrection and the coming of Christ—not at death but at the consummation of the Age.

If mind proves the indwelling of a conscious entity, then the beast has the entity—because the beast has a mind. "The ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib." Is. i. 3.

If mind is not a property of matter, else all matter would think, neither is instinct a property of matter or all matter would possess instinct.

If mind in man proves the existence of conscious entity inside man, instinct in beasts would prove the same of beasts.

The mind acts when the body sleeps; if this proves a distinct entity inside man acting regardless of the body, then beasts as well as men have this entity as both dream alike. The blood circulates when the body sleeps, by the same rule, this should prove the blood to be a distinct conscious entity.

H. T. Baker.

Fallen Asleep.

Hugh Paxton, at his home four miles north of Wheatland, Mo., Oct. 8, 1893.

Brother Hugh had been a sufferer from that dread disease consumption several years, but in spite of medical skill and the tender care and nursing of his companion and loving friends he expired on the above date at about 2: P. M.

He leaves a wife and children to mourn, and many friends. A good man has been ruthlessly snatched from our circle. He was beloved by all who knew him, even his enemies were at peace with him, thus answering that part of the prayer. "Lord let me die at peace with thee and all mankind," and we trust the conclusion will be answered in due time, and in the resurrection own and crown us in thy kingdom.

Dear bereaved ones we have this comforting assurance coming from the Volume of Inspiration that our friend loved to meditate upon so well, we are councilled concerning those who have fallen asleep in Christ, to not grieve as those who have no hope, for since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, so, also we believe that God through Jesus will lead forth with him those who have fallen asleep, for this we affirm to you by the Lord's Word, that we the living who are left over to the coming of the Lord will by no means precede those who fell asleep, because the Lord himself will come down from heaven with a shout and with an archangel's voice, and with God's trumpet, and the dead in Christ will be raised first, then we, the living who are left over shall at the same time with them be caught away in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, so shall we ever be with the Lord. These are words of comfort indeed to the believing ones who are left to mourn departed friends.

About eighteen years ago Bro. Hugh and wife were immersed by Brother Z. Gower of Kansas, now sleeping in Texas. From that time on they have as best they could endeavored to honor the name which is above every name, the name of Jesus.

In his death his companion, children and neighbors one and all have lost a wise, conservative advisor, but his example is left, let us follow it, and if possible improve upon it. It was his constant endeavor to so live that he might attain unto the better resurrection.

Our brother was laid to rest in the Sumner cemetery to await the call of the Lord, when he comes to reward his servants. There are two events that may happen at any time, the coming of death or of the Lord, and since we know that it has been appointed unto man once to die we are assured that Christ was once offered to bear away sins, and unto them that are expecting him he will come without a sin offering in order to salvation. Let us prepare for the coming of the Lord the Judge of the quick and the dead. Watch and be ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. The poet sings,

> "There is a world to come,
>   Blessed and pure.
> It is the Christian's home
>   Long to endure.
> 'Tis a world most bright,
>   No more death, nor woe, nor blight.
> Faith views it with delight,
>   Knowing 'tis sure.
>
> There Jesus Christ shall reign,
>   All glorious King;
> There music's rapturous strain
>   Ever will ring.
> Saints who in ages by
>   Suffered, and were called to die,
> There in sweet harmony,
>   Anthems will sing."

And by the Grace of our once crucified but now risen and exalted Savior, let us prepare for that "bright world to come" that we may be there to join in Redemption's Song is our prayer.

Henderson Murphy.

Man in Death.

"The Bible teaching that death to the personality of man means the entire cessation of all life, the destruction of all mental capacity, the cessation of all self-consciousness, is so entirely opposed to all that is commonly believed, that it may be necessary to adduce Scripture evidence in proof. The following then are offered: Psa. vi. 5, 'For in death there is no remembrance of Thee, in the grave who shall give Thee thanks?' xxx. 9. 'Shall the dust praise Thee? shall it declare Thy truth?' lxxxviii. 10-12; cxv. 17, 'The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence.' cxlvi. 4, 'His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish.' Eccles. ix. 5, 10, 'The dead know not anything, neither have they any more a reward. . . . Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol) whither thou goest.'

"Illustrative examples may also be referred to. When the little daughter of Jarius, the ruler, was restored life; the son of the widow of Nain; Lazarus, of Bethany; neither had a word to say of any experience, or consciousness, whilst 'dead, so far at least as the record is given.

"How much soever it may appear to certain Bible texts, we may safely affirm that the Scriptures, as a rule, make all future life to depend upon the resurrection from the dead! When summoned forth by the voice of the Son of Man, not the carcass shell, or 'remains' of the individual awakes, but the man himself in his own proper person.

"Proofs of this abound. See Dan. xii. 2, 'Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake.' John v. 28, 29; vi. 40, 54, 'raise him up.' 1 Cor. xv., The dead 'perished' if no resurrection; v. 32, 'What advantageth it me if the dead rise not?' 1 Thess. iv. 16, The dead in Christ to rise first. The coming of Christ for this to be comfort and hope. Acts ii. 29, David dead and buried—'not ascended into the heavens.' xiii. 36, David 'fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers and saw corruption.' etc.

"The judgment that then takes place, with its rewards and punishments, will be experienced by living persons, some in their mortal bodies of corruption, others in their incorruptible and immortalized bodies. In these bodies the righteous enter into the joy of their Lord never to die any more: the unjust pay the penalty of sin, and die; are destroyed 'body and soul in hell;' destroyed with an 'everlasting destruction;' 'like brute beasts they utterly perish in their own corruption—like sheep laid in their graves;' 'like the fat of lambs, into smoke consume away.' Destroyed, as literally as were the people by the flood. Perish, as literally as they did on whom the tower of Siloam fell, in opposition to any continuance of being in any condition, or under any circumstances whatever! That all who love the Lord, and do His will, abide for ever, while all the wicked are to be destroyed, is as plainly taught as words can make it, none can well dispute, whatever may seem to be taught elsewhere. This theory is likewise the obvious and systematic teaching of God's word from beginning to end."

Appointments.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Plymouth, Ind. commencing on Friday, Nov. 17, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren of like precious faith are invited to come and be with us at this meeting. Let us heed the admonition to meet together and exhort one another that we may be built up and strengthened in the most Holy Faith, remembering that our salvation depends upon our own individual exertions.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.

A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Notice.

To the Brethren of Oklahoma:

Brother S. C. Oliver will commence a week's meeting near Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma, October 28th, in Bro. Albert Overholt's neighborhood. While he is in Oklahoma, if brethren at other points desire to have him speak for them, he will gladly devote some time to the work of spreading the good news of a soon coming kingdom and King. After Oct. 31st he can be addressed at Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma. Direct in care of Albert Overholt, or brethren can meet him there and make arrangements for meetings.

L. . Chaplin, Sec'y.

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

AIDS TO BIBLE STUDY AND MISSION WORK.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom, Advocated in a series of Ten Discourses." A volume of 388 pages, 4th edition. Cloth, 85 cts. a copy; leather gilt $1.00.

"Twelve Words, or, the True meanings of hell, soul, spirit, ghost, paradise, incorruptible, incorruption, immortal, immortality, forever, everlasting, eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 42 pages, 10 cts. a copy.

"The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page, double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen. 75 cts. per hundred.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable responses having been made to suggestions for a "Contingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will economize the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Contingent Fund," please send remittances to The Restitution office, Plymouth, Ind., and receipts will be sent, and the fund disbursed as may be requested. Publication to be made of amounts of donations and expenditures.

We whose names are herewith subscribed, agree to pay during the year 1893, the amount subscribed, the fund thus created to be employed in answering calls to baptize persons, who, being isolated from the brotherhood are unable to secure the services of an administrator.

Previously published	$61.50
"A friend."	23.00
EXPENDITURE.
Previously used	$14.20
J. S. Hatch to go to Arkansas, J. F. Wagoner's direction	$15.00

P. O. ADDRESSES.

Persons requesting their address published may have them inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Arizona.

Silas Henn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sircleville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

R. Heyes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.

A. J. Eychaner's address is Gladbrook, Iowa.

W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bdg. Kansas City, Kan.

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

It has been suggested that a fund be raised to keep an evangelist in the field. When a treasurer has been appointed, we, the undersigned, earnestly desiring to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$40.00
H. L. Vickery,	40.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber.	10.00

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and sell it as near cost as can be. It makes 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 30 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or, Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money loose in letters is at the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have, and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Bible Pearls, Suitable for wide distribution. 1. The Gospel. 2. The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, by [illegible] in 1660. 3. Immortality. 4. [illegible] of God. 5. Nature of Man and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6. The two Advents. 7. What is Religion. 8. The Restitution Age. 9. Destiny of the Wicked. 10 Baptism. Ten copies 5 cts., or assorted packages of 100, 40 cts.

FOUR PAGE TRACTS.

10 for 10c; 40 for 15c; 50 for 25c; 100 for 40c.

Age to Come not a Heresy. By H. V. Reed.

Life and Death. A concise statement and contrast of the two uses of these terms, to wit, the Theological and Bible use.

Can you Believe; a series of questions on the main points of our doctrine.

What was the Sabbath and What is the First Day of the Week, or Lord's Day? Chas. Stanley. The above is the title of a 16-page tract. Price 5c. each, 12 for 50c. 30 for $1.00.

The Doctrine of Baptism as taught in the Holy Scriptures, together with a collection of evidence upon the subject, from the most learned theologians, critics, lexicographers and ecclesiastical historians. 44 pages, price 10c.

Christ's Kingdom—Where is it? When is it? The above is the title of a discourse delivered at Berwick, Pa., July 29, 1877, by Jos. Lester. Can be had at this office at 5c. each, 3 for 10c. or 15 for $1.

The Gospel of Christ Nullified by the Traditions of the Churches. The above is the title of a newly printed pamphlet of 77 pages, by W. Biddle, of Kansas City, Pa., and is a very strong appeal to thinking people. It also contains an address on the New Heavens and New Earth. Send us 15 cents for a copy postpaid, or eight copies for $1.00.

The Heir of All Things. Carrie Williams. This little book of 16 pages on the above named subject is now ready and may be had from The Restitution office, or of the authoress Mrs. Carrie Williams, San Diego, Cal., for 25 cts. or free to those not able to buy.

Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary of the Bible comprising its antiquities, biography, geography and natural history, with sixteen full page engravings, [illegible] besides maps of the Holy Land in the time of David, the time of Christ, and general maps of the countries mentioned in the Bible. Bound in cloth, 776 pages, price $1.50.

JESUS CHRIST—His Paternity, Genealogy, Nature and Character, in the light of the covenants; including a brief hermeneutic sketch of the Jews—being six lectures delivered by Dr. L. C. Thomas. 160 pages, price 30 cts. or four for $1 postpaid. Send to this office.

The Emphatic Diaglott. B. Wilson. Contains the original Greek text of the New Testament, with an interlineary word-for-word English translation, based on the readings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript, together with illustrative and explanatory foot notes, and a copious selection of references. New improved edition on large paper. Cloth $4.00; library binding $5.00.

The Unspeakable Gift. J. H. Pettingell. With an introduction, by Mr. Edward White, of London, England. This is a book of 300 pages, neatly printed and bound in cloth. This work conclusively proves the doctrine of life only in Christ, and we most heartily commend it [illegible] few words.

Cruden's Concordance Unabridged. This work is too well known to need commendation—every bible student knows the value of Alexander Cruden's Concordance, bound in cloth, price $1.50.

Key Words, or the Englishman's Hebrew and Greek Concordance to certain words which throw important light on great doctrines; a reference manual. By Wiley Jones. 170 pages, cloth bound, for 75cts.

The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. By L. C. Thomas. Title page.—The Law, the Covenants, and the Sabbath. Also an Epitome of the Great Salvation; and an Appendix including various other subjects, in brief. This work contains 350 pages, cloth bound, price $1.00.

Catechism of the Bible. For the use of our children at home and in the Sunday school, by Mrs. Carrie Williams. This is a brief synopsis of the leading doctrines taught in the Bible, in the form of questions and answers. This book contains 107 pages neatly printed and bound, and will be sent to any address postpaid for 25 cents single copy; 3 for 60 cents; 12 for $2.00; 50 for $6.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for them or to the authoress at San Diego, Cal.

The Christian Hymnal. The above is the title of a Hymn Book issued from The Restitution office, containing 156 pages, substantially bound in cloth, printed on fine paper, from good clear type. Music on every page, followed by two to four stanzas of words that go to the music, making over 400 hymns. To this is added 23 pages of Hymns for Children to use in Sunday Schools or at home. Price 35 cents each, 3 copies for $1.00; 6 copies for $2.00; 12 copies, $4.00. Special rates to congregations wishing larger quantities to place in churches, or to those who will act as agents and introduce the work to their neighborhoods.

A Letter to a Friend. A new edition of this popular work has been printed. It is not necessary to say a word about this work to the older readers, but to the new ones we say the subject treated of is the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the One Hope, One Faith, and One Baptism." It was written some years ago by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff, and it is truly "A letter to a Friend." Many editions have been printed and distributed until this little 32 page tract is acknowledged as the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10 cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purpose of God concerning the Earth and All its Families. What We Are, and What We May Become. The Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of our Christian Redemption, by Rob. R. Ashcroft, is the title of a book of 263 pages. This is a compilation of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a minister in England. It is divided into some thirty-one lectures, and an addition of about fifty pages of "things that have struck me in daily Bible readings," being comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. C. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. G. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of the new book of 165 pages, written by William Glen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation: Is That Awaiting Any of the Unregenerate?" Bro. Moncrieff is a writer well known to our readers, and of undoubted ability. This book is paper covers, and sells for 25 cts. each, and can be had at this office.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

LIST OF CHURCHES

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free.

The Church of God meet for worship and searching the Scriptures every Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m. All interested in Bible study are cordially invited to meet with us at 1245 Logan Avenue, San Diego, California.

Church of The Blessed Hope, Green St. and Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia, C. C. Ramsay Pastor. Services each Sunday at 10:15 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Visiting brethren always welcome. Pastor's residence 341 Huntingdon Street.

The Chicago Church has changed its place of meeting. They now occupy the VanBuren Hall, located on the corner of Madison street and California Avenue. They meet at eleven o'clock a. m., every Sunday. Visiting brethren are welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., hold meetings in their house on Michigan street, as follows: Preaching by Bro. N. H. Geiselman, every fourth Sunday; Bro. J. F. Wagoner, every [illegible] Sunday in the month, and Sunday school every Sunday, also social meeting every Thursday evening.

[illegible] Plymouth, Ind., [illegible] streets. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evening. W. H. Thompson, Elder.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every first day of the week at 10 o'clock for Sunday school and at 11 o'clock for devotional services. Any brother passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God at Andover, South Dakota, hold services each Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. in [illegible] Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Frontier Co., Neb., meet in Union Sunday School at school house in District No. 33 in Frontier Co., and have prayer meeting every Friday evening from house to house among the brethren. We have no regular preaching but our beloved brother, Almon Adams, comes as often as he can. Wm. [illegible] A. Moore, Clerk.

Church of the Blessed Hope of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; cable cars come very close to school house, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at [illegible] Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address brother George Kniffe, Kessler, or D. L. Lehman, West Milton, O.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 10 a. m., to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. Wm. H. Wilson, Elder; Elias Slyde, Secretary.

The brethren of the Church of God hold prayer and [illegible] meetings each Saturday evening at J. J. Cory's residence, and Quarterly Conference the 2nd [illegible] each quarter at the Fairview school house in Lancaster Co., Neb. Brethren from abroad, and all lovers of truth are cordially invited to meet with us. Bros. A. P. Harlan and [illegible] A. Adams, Elders. J. J. Cory, Secretary.

The Church of God at Dayton, Mich., meet for worship every first day, morning and evening, & Communion [illegible] two weeks. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening.

The Church at Watson, Allegan Co., Mich. meet for Sunday school every Sunday. Regular preaching every first and third Sunday in the month.

The Church of God near [illegible], Mich. have regular preaching every second and fourth Sunday. Lord's supper every four weeks.

The Church of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of three four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria
AND
Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger, Leave	[illegible]
No. 22, " "	[illegible]
No. 24, " "	[illegible]
No. 150, Local, "	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

No. 21, Passenger, Leave	[illegible]
No. 23, " "	[illegible]
No. 27, " "	[illegible]
No. 151, Local,	[illegible]

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 11, via Tipton, arrives Bloomington at 9:28 p. m., making direct connection with C. & A. fast trains arriving Kansas City 6:25 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky Bloomington and all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager.
CHAS. F. DALY, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect Oct. 15, 1893.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:26pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 54, "	10:53pm	For South Bend.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:00am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53, "	12:50pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. R. HALL, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. Chesbrough,
Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

THE RESTITUTION

ON TRIAL THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time

Westward.	Trains
Pittsburgh	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Chicago	[illegible]

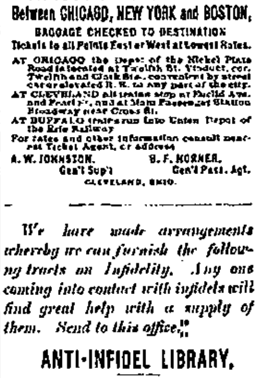
Eastward.	Trains
Chicago	[illegible]
Clarke	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible]
Hobart	[illegible]
Wheeler	[illegible]
Valparaiso	[illegible]
Wanatah	[illegible]
Hanna	[illegible]
Davis	[illegible]
Hamlet	[illegible]
Grovertown	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]
Inwood	[illegible]
Bourbon	[illegible]
Etna Green	[illegible]
Warsaw	[illegible]
Pierceton	[illegible]
Larwill	[illegible]
Columbia City	[illegible]
Arcola	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]
Van Wert	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]
Bucyrus	[illegible]
Crestline	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]
Wooster	[illegible]
Massillon	[illegible]
Canton	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]
Pittsburgh	[illegible]

JOSEPH WOOD, General Manager,
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent,
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time. Perfect Comfort. Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

NICKEL PLATE.

SOLID THROUGH TRAINS Buffalo and Chicago

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPERS, SUPERB DINING CARS,

THROUGH SLEEPING CARS Between CHICAGO, NEW YORK and BOSTON,

BAGGAGE CHECKED TO DESTINATION

Tickets to all Points East or West at Lowest Rates.

AT CHICAGO the Depot of the Nickel Plate Road is located at Twelfth St. Viaduct, cor. Twelfth and Clark Sts., convenient by street car or elevated R. R. to any part of the city.

AT CLEVELAND all trains stop at Euclid Ave. and Pearl St., and at Main Passenger Station Broadway near Cross St.

AT BUFFALO trains run into Union Depot of the Erie Railway

For rates and other information consult nearest Ticket Agent, or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Sup't.
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office."

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

Each number containing in pamphlet form a new, fresh, popular and telling treatise on some branch of Christian evidences. Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. English, German, French, Swedish, Spanish, Bohemian. "One of the most important essays of modern times. I should say it had a wide circulation."—Lord Shaftesbury.	5 cts.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-building. Patterson.	10 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	10 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	10 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White.	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	10 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	10 cts.
19. The Separated Fallow, by H. L. H.	10 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word on Spread of Infidelity.	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Trial the Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism.	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current of present skepticism so well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Editions Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 27, 29, etc., 3 cts. single; 30 cts. a dozen; $2. per 100; $15. per 1000. Assorted if desired. Sent postpaid in the United States and Canada.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 15, 1893. NO. [illegible]

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
C. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALLEXEN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40 }

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous and the utter destruction of the wicked; and life only through Christ and [illegible]. Also a hearty belief [illegible] for the remission of sins, [illegible] Sabbath for [illegible].

Poetry.

God is Love.

God is love, that anthem olden
Sang the chorus-stars of Light,
In their spheres, aglow and golden,
Telling it to day and night,
Their great story—
God is love, and God is might.

And the listening earth rejoices
In that message from above,
With ten thousand, thousand voices
Telling back from hill and grove
Her glad story—
God is might, and God is love.

Original.

The Gospel According to Loukas, Chap. 11.

1. And it came to pass while he was in a certain place offering votive-prayer, that, when he ceased, a certain one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, Teach us to offer votive-prayer, even as also Joannes taught his disciples.

2. And he said unto them, Whenever ye offer votive-prayer, Say, Father, May thy name have been sanctified; May thy kingdom have come;

3. Give us our daily bread day by day;

4. And remit unto us our sins; For we are also remitting unto every one who owes us; And bring us not into trial.

5. And he said unto them, Who of you hath a friend, and should he go his way unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves; For a friend of mine hath come unto me from a journey, and I have nothing to place beside him,

7. And he from within would answer and say, Do not trouble me; Already my door hath been closed, and my children with me are in bed; I am unable to arise and give thee.

8. I say unto you, Even if he would not arise and give to him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity would he arise and give to him whatever he needs.

9. And I say unto you, Ask and it will have been given unto you; Seek and ye will find; Knock and it will be opened unto you.

10. For every one who asketh receiveth, and the one who seeketh findeth; and to the one who knocketh it is being opened.

11. And what father of you, should his son ask for a loaf of bread, would give him a stone? Or should he ask for a fish forsooth, would instead of a fish give him a serpent?

12. Or should he ask for an egg also, would give him a scorpion?

13. If then ye being wicked know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father from heaven give sanctified spirit to those who ask him?

14. And he was casting out a mute demon; and it came to pass when the demon had gone out, that the mute talked; and the crowds wondered.

15. But some of them said; In Beelzeboul the ruler of the demons, is he casting out the demons,

16. And others to make a test, sought a sign from out the heavens from him.

17. But he knowing their thoughts said unto them; Any kingdom divided against itself becometh a waste; and a house against a house falleth.

18. And if Satanas hath become divided against himself, how will his kingdom have stood? Because ye say that in Beelzeboul I am casting out the demons.

19. But if I in Beelzeboul am casting out the demons, in whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore will they be your judges.

20. But if I in God's finger am casting out the demons, surely the kingdom of God hath reached you.

21. Whenever the strong man is fully-armed and watching to guard his own court-yard, his possessions are in peace;

22. But when one stronger than he shall come and overcome him he will take away his armor in which he relied and divide his spoils.

23. The one who is not with me is against me; and the one who is not gathering together with me is scattering.

24. Whenever the unclean spirit hath gone out of the man, he goeth through places without water, seeking rest; and not finding it, he saith I will return into my house whence I went out;

25. And when he hath come he findeth it swept and put in order.

26. Then he goeth his way and taketh to himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and take up their abode there; and the last experiences of that man are worse than the first.

27. And it came to pass while he was saying these things, that a certain woman from out the multitude raised her voice and said unto him, Blessed-happy is the womb that carried thee, and the breasts which thou didst nurse.

28. But he said, Blessed-happy forsooth are those who hear the word of God and watch to guard it.

29. And of the multitudes who were crowding together unto him he began to say, this generation is a wicked generation. It seeketh a sign, and no sign will have been given it except the sign of Jonas.

30. For even as Jonas became a sign unto the Nineuites, so also will the Son of Man be to this generation.

31. A queen of the south will have been awakened in the judgment-trial in the midst of the men of this generation, and will condemn them; because she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and lo, something greater than Solomon is here.

32. Men of Nineua (Welcome to Ninus) will arise in the judgment-trial in the midst of this generation, and will condemn it, because they repented at the heralding of Jonas, and lo, a greater (heralding) than Jonas' is here.

33. And no one lighteth a lamp and putteth it in a concealed place, nor under the measure, but upon the lamp-stand, that those who are entering in may look at the light.

34. The lamp of the body is thine eye; Whenever thine eye is single (or normal) thy whole body also is illuminated; but whenever it is abnormal (lit. bad) thy whole body also is darkened.

35. See to it then that the light that is in thee be not darkness.

36. If then thy whole body be illuminated, having no part of it darkened, it will be all illuminated, as when the lamp illuminateth thee with its shining.

37. And when he had said it a Pharisee asked him to lunch with him; and he went in and reclined.

38. And when the Pharisee saw it he wondered that he was not first baptized before the lunch.

39. And the Lord said unto him; Now ye Pharisees are accustomed to cleanse the outside of the cup and trencher; but your inside is full of robbery and wickedness.

40. Thoughtless ones, did not the one who made the outside make also the inside?

41. Give the things that are inside though as an act of mercy, and all your things are clean.

42. But woe unto ye Pharisees, because ye are tithing the mint and the rue and every garden herb, and evading the judicial-way and the love of God. These things ought ye to have done, and not omitted those.

43. Woe unto you, ye Pharisees, because ye love the chief-seat in the synagogues and the greetings in the market-places.

44. Woe unto you, because ye are as it were the unseen memorial-tombs, and men walk over them and do not know it.

45. And a certain number of those versed in the law answered and said unto him, Teacher in saying these things ye are treating us also with contempt.

46. And he said, Woe unto you also, ye versed in the law, because ye are loading men with little burdens that are hard to carry, and ye yourselves do not touch the little burdens with one of your fingers.

47. Woe unto you, because ye are building the memorial-tombs of the prophets, and your fathers slew them.

48. Surely ye are witnesses to and showing your satisfaction with the deeds of your fathers, because they slew them and ye are doing the building.

49. Therefore the wisdom of God hath said also, I am sending unto them prophets and apostles and some of them will they slay and persecute,

50. That the blood of all the prophets that hath been poured out since a founding of a cosmos may have been required of this race.

51. From the blood of Abel to the blood of Zacharias who perished between the altar and the house: Yea, I say unto you it will have been required of this race.

52. Woe unto you ye versed in the law, because ye have taken away the key of comprehension. Ye have not entered in yourselves, and ye have prevented those who were entering in.

53. And when he had gone out of there, the Scribes and the Pharisees began to hold these (words) to them in a way to be feared and to question him about more things,

54. Lying in wait for him, seeking to ensnare something from out his mouth.

COMMENT.

Observe here that "the Lord's Prayer" so called is a votive-prayer and not a mere supplication.

"Bring us not into trial" instead of "Lead us not into temptation" R. V. A very important difference, as "God tempteth no one" we are told by "James" and he no doubt was familiar with this prayer, and this shows how the apostles understood and interpreted its meaning.

Observe that Sanctified (Holy) Spirit here is inclusive of "all good gifts." In other words as elsewhere stated in Scripture it is something capable of distribution as "there is one spirit but a diversity of gifts."

"Beelzeboul" means "Baal's-life-counsel."

"The strong man" here represents humanity possessed by Satan, and "the stronger than he" represents the Christ-man possessed by divine power.

"Places without water" here very suggestive. Is "the abyss" the place of captivity assigned to evil spirits, and is it a place of water instead of fire as commonly taught? I think so.

"The sign of Jonas." What was it? Jonas sent to Nineua with the message of the gospel and as a herald, was a type of Christ sent as a herald with the message of the gospel to the whole world. The whole story is a parable and must be so interpreted, even to his going for three days and three nights in the belly of the sea-monster to the abysmal depths of Hades to "eternal bonds and bars." These "bonds and bars" as I understand confined the evil-spirits waiting the judgment of "the great day." When they leave this place it is by permission and for a purpose explained in the Scriptures: And as Jonas was alive when he went here so we must reason that Christ was alive, and as three whole days and nights were consumed in the one case in the accomplishment of this divine purpose, and we are told that the same length of time was consumed by "the Son of Man" in the accomplishment of a similar purpose, we must reason that Christ "went and heralded to the spirits in prison" after his resurrection and before his ascension, as he was not dead and in the tomb three whole days. He died in the afternoon of one day, lay in the tomb the following day and was "awakened and arose" very early in the morning of the third day. The whole parable is wonderfully significant when understood, the reader will perceive.

"Something greater than Solomon" instead of "a greater than Solomon" R. V. not the same thought by any means.

"A greater (heralding) than Jonas'" instead of "A greater than Jonas." R. V.

"Putteth it in a concealed place" (or in concealment) instead of "in a cellar" R. V.

"Nor under the measure" instead of "under a bushel" R. V. That is, don't hide your light nor let your lamp shine by measure, but all it will.

"To lunch" instead of "to dine" R. V. It might possibly mean to breakfast but not to dine or to sup.

"Baptized" instead of "washed" R. V. This translation "will not wash."

"The judicial-way" instead of "judgment" R. V.

"This race" instead of "generation" R. V. As the word means "race" as well as "generation" in the sense in which we use the term, and this makes the prophecy true to fact.

"The key of comprehension" instead of "the key of knowledge" R. V. Comprehension is another word in Greek as well as English.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Immortal Book.—No. 2.

"Stablish thy word unto thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear." Psa. cxix. 38.

In my last article, I made reference to the catacombs of Rome, and the inscriptions found therein, which would be necessary to be destroyed, before this Precious Volume could be exterminated. Could the written inscriptions be effaced, the enemy would have to pay his attention to the pictorial representations found there.

The rock beneath the city is a soft volcanic rock. In this rock galleries, chambers, and corridors were cut by the hated and persecuted followers of Christ. They were used as a place of refuge from persecution, and for the burial of the dead. There are sixty of these catacombs. De Rossi estimates the length of these passages to be five hundred and eighty-seven geographical miles. Marchi says they extend eight or nine hundred miles under ground, and from fifty to seventy-five foot below the surface. De Rossi estimates that not less than three million eight hundred thirty-one thousand bodies have been laid away there. The leading facts contained in the blessed Word of God, are inscribed upon the walls of those dreary sepulchres. The names and memorials of martyrs, together with palms and crowns expressive of their faith and hope, are also found there. Among the pictorial representations are found the history of Adam and Eve, of Noah, of Abraham offering Isaac, of Joseph sold into Egypt, the story of Moses, also of Job, Jonah, Elijah, Daniel in the lion's den, in the furnace of fire, wise men of the East adoring the Savior, Jesus disputing with the doctors in the temple, baptism of Christ, miracle of loaves and fishes, Jesus at the well, healing the sick, resurrection of Lazarus, Christ riding into Jerusalem, his trial by Pilate, sower sowing the seed, the shepherd leading his flock, virgins going forth to meet the Lord, together with numerous pictorial representations of the leading doctrines of the gospel, stretching along those dreary galleries of the dead, long enough to reach from one end of Italy to the other. Hence, any one can see that a stupendous piece of work would have to be done in this one locality alone, before this wondrous Book could be destroyed.

WHO WAS THE AUTHOR OF THE GRAND OLD BOOK?

We read in this book expressions like these: "Thus saith the Lord God of hosts," "Hear ye the Word of the Lord." Now, it either is, or is not "the word of the Lord."

Reason clearly teaches that every effect must be produced by some adequate cause. It surely is one of the simplest axioms of reason like cause like effect. If the cause is weak, frail and erring, the effect will be just like the cause, it could not possibly be otherwise. The Bible is an effect of some cause. It could not make itself.

This Book is in reality a library of sixty-six books, written by some forty different men, stretching over a period of some fifteen hundred years. Hastings says:

"The authorship of this book is wonderful. Here are words written by kings, by emperors, by princes, by poets, by sages, by philosophers, by fishermen, by statesmen; by men learned in the wisdom of Egypt, educated in the schools of Babylon, trained up at the feet of rabbis in Jerusalem. It was written by men in exile, in the desert, in shepherds' tents, in "green pastures" and beside "still waters." Among its writers we find the tax-gatherer, the herdsman, the gatherer of sycamore fruit; we find poor men, rich men, statesmen, preachers, exiles, captains, legislators, judges; men of every grade and class are represented in this wonderful volume, which is in reality a library, filled with history, genealogy, ethnology, law, ethics, prophecy, poetry, eloquence, medicine, sanitary science, political economy, and perfect rules for the conduct of personal and social life."

These various writers did not profess to be giving their own thoughts when they wrote these books. For instance one says: "The word of the Lord came unto me," and he writes it down, and tells the people it is "the Word of the Lord," another says: "Hear ye the Word of the Lord," and he records it as the "Word of the Lord." Another says: "But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after men." Again, one of these writers speaking of the other writers says; "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Now, if the words of those writers were not the words revealed to them by God, then they were liars, deceivers, hypocrites, and the most stupendous frauds the world ever saw. As I stated before, the effect must be like the cause. It is impossible for men to gather figs from a thorn bush, you must gather your figs from a fig tree, as no other kind of tree will bear figs. If a man wants apples he does not cultivate appricott trees, expecting to get apples. Like produces like every time. Even so, a corrupt evil man can no more bring forth that which is true, good, noble and pure, any more than a good, pure truthful man can be a liar and a fraud. Now, if these men did not give us the "Word of the Lord," as they say they did, then they were liars, frauds, and false prophets, instead of being true prophets of the Lord.

The writers of this Blessed Book are of the same opinion, as is evidenced by the following selection from Matthew (vii. 15-18) one of these writers who it is claimed wrote as he was inspired by the Holy Spirit.

Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

Strange language, indeed, is the above selection, if the writer of it was conscious that he himself was a "false prophet." He concludes that all such prophets amounted to nothing more than "ravening wolves."

Another contributor to this wonderful Library says: "Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter? Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? Either a vine figs? So can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh." James iii. 11, 12.

It is impossible for an impure fountain to produce a pure stream. The stream must be exactly like the fountain. Nature teaches this, and the author of this Marvelous Work harmonize with the same sentiment. If the authors of this Book did not give "the Word of the Lord," then they were liars and frauds, and they being the fountain from whence it sprang, nothing good could possibly emanate from it, because the fountain was vile and corrupt, if they were "false prophets," "inwardly" "ravening wolves." But what are the facts? What is the influence it exerts upon those who follow its teachings? What kind of fruit does it yield? Remember, the stream must be just like the fountain. To illustrate this, I will quote from Hastings' "Inspiration of the Bible:"

"I conclude that this Book has in it the very breath of God, from the effect that it produces upon me. There are men who study philosophy, astronomy, geology, geography, and mathematics; but did you ever hear a man say, 'I was an outcast, a wretched inebriate, a disgrace to my race, and a nuisance in the world, until I began to study mathematics, and learned the multiplication table, and then turned my attention to geology, got me a little hammer, and knocked off the corners of the rocks and studied the formation of the earth, and since that time I have been as happy as the day is long; I feel like singing all the time; my soul is full of triumph and peace; and health and blessing have come to my desolate home once more?' Did you ever hear a man ascribe his redemption and salvation from intemperance and sin and vice to the multiplication table, or science of mathematics or geology? But I can bring you, not one man, or two, or ten, but men by the thousand who will tell you, 'I was wretched; I was lost; I broke my old mother's heart; I beggared my family; my wife was heart-stricken and dejected; my children fled from the sound of their father's footsteps; I was ruined, reckless, helpless, homeless, hopeless, until I heard the words of that Book!'"

Suppose, for example, all the good people of this town should try the Bible, say for a single year. Suppose you start to-night, and say, "We have heard about that Book, and now we will begin and practice its teachings just one year." What would be the result? There would be no lying, no stealing, no selling rum, no getting drunk, no tattling, no mischief-making, no gossiping, no vice nor debauchery. Every man would be a good man, every woman would be a good woman; every man would be a good husband, father, or brother; every woman a good wife, mother, or sister; every one in the community would be peaceable; there would be no brawls, no quarrels, no fights, no lawsuits; lawyers would almost starve to death; doctors would have light practice, and plenty of time to hoe in the garden; courts would be useless, jails and lock-ups empty, almshouses cleared out of their inmates, except a few old stagers left over from the last generation; taxes would be reduced, [illegible] would trouble no one; all would be well dressed and well cared for; and presently the news would go abroad, and we would hear in Boston, "What wonderful times they are having up in old Spencer. The people have all gone to living according to the Bible." The news would get into all the local papers, the Springfield papers, the Boston papers, the New York papers; the telegraph wires would be kept busy with the news; they would hear of it in Cleveland, in Cincinnati, in Chicago, in St. Louis, in New Bedford, and Fall River, and Portland; and the reporters would start off to investigate. One would be inquiring, "Are there any houses to let in Spencer? any to sell? any building lots? any farms for sale?" Capitalists would come here; some one from Boston would say, "I am going to move to Spencer; I am sick of the noise and hurry of the city, and I want a place where I can bring up my children, and not have them go to perdition;" there would be a general rush from all quarters to Spencer. It would raise the price of real estate twenty-five per cent in six months; taxes would come down, property would go up, and good people from far and near would want to move into town, and nobody who was worth having there would want to move out. And this would be the direct result of reading and obeying this Book. Now, if a book will do that for a community, what kind of a book is it? Is such a book the Lord's book or the devil's book? It seems to me that a book that will do such work as that must be inspired by the very breath of the Almighty."

The majesty of the Scriptures strikes one with admiration, the purity of its teachings affect the heart. It is simple, but yet sublime. From Genesis to Revelation it offers reward for uprightness, purity and truthfulness. It is not like the practice of bad men to produce such a high and ennobling code of morals as we have here presented.

W. H. WILSON.

The Deity's Purpose.

To the student of Holy Writ, the world and its elements, chaotic and confused from the standpoint of nature, are seen, when viewed from the beacon-tower of the divine revelation, with a definite plan and purpose running through the whole.

It is the intention of the Deity that the whole earth shall be filled with his glory. His purpose is to set up a kingdom, co-extensive with the world, surpassing in splendor all former dominions; and to this sublime consummation all things are tending.

To understand this mystery of the ages, veiled from the Gentile mind by alienation from the life of God, we must become as little children, content to unlearn the teachings of a corrupted theology, that so we may become wise in the things pertaining to the future age "the world to come whereof we speak"—as it is only by a knowledge of such that we can become possessed of its spirit, "and if any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of his."

In the ever-nearing future, the words recorded by the exiled seer of Patmos, shall be accomplished; "the mystery of the Deity shall be finished, as he has declared to his servants the prophets."

Change of Address.

On and after November 1st, 1893, my address will be Plymouth, Ind., instead of Macy, Ind. Correspondents please take notice.

L. E. CONNER.

[illegible] of the O. P. Association.
[illegible], Corresponding Editor.
PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 15, 1893.

☞ The address of any correspondent of this paper will be sent to any one wishing it on application.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The Christian Publishing Association will be held at Plymouth, Ind., on Nov. [illegible], 1893, at which time a Board of Directors is to be chosen for the coming year, and such other business transacted as may come before the Association.

[illegible] RAMSBACK, Pres.
A. R. [illegible], Secy.

THE anarchists in Spain have been doing deadly work with dynamite. 15 killed and many wounded by a bomb. •

SOME one has said, "When a man can do nothing else he can add his little rill to the great river of intercessory prayer." •

THE Presbyterian Liberalists ministers from all the larg cities have met in conference in Cleveland, Ohio,— and it is expected that there will be division before long. •

FOUR Golden Texts. 1. "Search the Scriptures", John v. 30. 2. "Every word of God is pure." Prov. xxx. 5. 3. "If any man speak let him speak as the oracles of God," 1 Peter iv. 2. 4. "In doctrine showing incorruptness." Titus ii. 7. •

"A ROMANIST is one who makes his church the ultimate authority in religion. A Rationalist is one who makes reason the ultimate authority in religion. A Christian is one who makes the word of God the sole and ultimate authority." •

WE sometimes hear people who ought to know better, say, "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," by way of accounting for trials they brought upon themselves, by the gratification of ambition or some other fleshly desire. Such people seldom do wrong; half of the troubles of life are charged to the theological Devil, and most of the rest to a mysterious Providence, while they themselves figure as martyrs. •

TERRIBLE calamities have occurred on the lakes, and the daily paper is but little more than a record of horrors. Murders for money, burglaries, highway robberies, are so on the increase that we are obliged to wonder how long at the present rate society could hold together? Tens of thousands in the large cities are out of employ, and are getting desperate as the winter approaches. As there are oceans of food in the land while they hunger their desperation can not be wondered at. Selfishness is enthroned, and no permanent [illegible] condition of things [illegible] kingdoms of this world are [illegible] of our Lord and his Anointed can be hoped for. Hail happy day,—soon may it come. •

IT seems from recent statistics that gambling, more than anything in the world, predisposes its victims to suicide. Men are every day losing their all in business ventures, bank failures, shrinkage of values, etc., but they seldom suicide,—but gambling seems to have a degenerating influence of its own upon the character, and weakens fortitude. There is a notorious gambling resort at Monoca in Europe known as the "Continental Hell," where one hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars are put upon its tables annually and the deaths from nervous excitement caused by the terrible strain and desperation induced by "bad luck" as it is called are fearful to contemplate, although great efforts are made to hush it up. Is it any wonder that this love of chance grows so prodigiously when the social system is saturated with it, even the religious societies foster it by grab-bagging, wheel of fortune and other schemes? •

THOMAS A. EDISON, the great inventor, gives his convictions in regard to the evidences of a Creator of the universe, in the following language:—"I tell you that no person can be brought into close contact with the mysteries of nature, or make a study of chemistry without being convinced that behind it all there is supreme intelligence. I am convinced of that, and I think that I could, perhaps I may, some time, demonstrate the existence of such intelligence through the operation of these mysterious laws with the certainty of a demonstration [illegible]." •

The [illegible] education was the great cure-all; but it has been tried long enough to find it wanting, indeed utterly unable to grapple with the evils of the times. In fact education and intelligence are employed in villainies more and more. These thoughts were induced by an article in the "Missionary Review" by A. J. Gordon of Boston, who in his usual vigorous style, shows that the only organized opposition to missionary labor in India had been effected by Hindoo graduates of "Christian universities." •

How supremely ridiculous it is to think the "good time" will ever come through human instrumentality. What is the use of looking for or expecting a righteous government by unrighteous men? Would a righteous government thrive at the expense of the tiller of the soil? The farmer raises corn at 10 cts. per bushel. From this four gallons of whiskey is distilled, and is retailed at $16. The government gets three dollars of this seven and a half times more than the farmer. The railroads get one dollar two and a half times what the farmer gets, the manufacturer gets four dollars, ten times what the farmer gets. So that the United States government, said to be the foremost, morally and intellectually, in the world, is a partner in this iniquitous business, with the full knowledge that the traffic is carried on to the hurt of millions, and the expense of hundreds of thousands of lives. •

"BELIEVE on the Lord Jesus Christ," is repeated thousands upon thousands of times, and to the question what shall I believe about him? the answer given is in substance this: "Believe that he died," for and then perhaps the emphasis is shifted to another word, thus, "Believe he died for you;" only believe that, and you will be "born again." By turning to the 16th of Acts, it will be seen that the injunction of the apostle to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ had to be amplified by further speaking unto him the word of the Lord, instructing the jailor what he must do to be saved; so the same thing has to be done now. Faith is not the simple thing it is represented at revival meetings so called, because we are told in the tenth of Romans that it comes by hearing the Word of God. To believe in Jesus one must know something about him;—about his person, his work, his gospel. When a person understands his own nature,—when he realizes his sinfulness and repents of it, when he perceives that death is the end of life without God,—when he understands and believes the blessed gospel of the Kingdom and desires to possess it,—when he perceives that eternal life is the gift of God through his Son, and he longs to stand accepted in his sight, we have only to tell him about the only name under heaven given among men, whereby they can be saved. Yes; the knowledge of him of necessity precedes faith in him and obedience to him; the first act being baptism into him for the forgiveness of sins." •

The Reviewer Reviewed.
No 3.

In resuming the examination of Reviewer's articles it is with a profound conviction that any theory, or system which ascribes to Christ, in whole, or in part, a nature incapable of death, makes void his sacrifice, and involves the idea that he was subjected to probation in order to regain something that he once possessed, by assuming human nature, instead of realizing the joy set before him, Heb. xii. 2; and also, that instead of manifesting the Eternal Father in flesh, he was in fact the manifestation of his pre-existent self. And our heartfelt prayer is that we may be able to show a more excellent way so plainly that all may rejoice together in it. Measures, not men, is still our motto.

The second article on the "Son of God," in No. 28 of RESTITUTION commences by saying, "Having shown that the Father is the First, and the Son is the Second person of the divine nature, it may not be a waste of time, perhaps, to glance at what several modern writers have said, concerning Christ." It says, "Having shown." Has this been shown? This is what was shown, "That the divine nature is sinless, incorruptible and immortal, and that the true God is the One Supreme and underived head of that nature. With him is the fountain of life, and he is the Former of all things. God is a Spirit, Ps. xxxvi. 7; Jer. ii. 13; John iv. 24." This is the truth, but where is it shown that the Son is the Second person of the divine nature? After a thorough search we find it said that "divine nature is incomprehensible and cannot be fully illustrated by resemblance drawn from the nature of man; yet, as man was created in the image of God, and we see a plurality of personal manifestations in the human nature, we are led to believe that there can be a plurality of personal manifestations in the divine nature." Was there any need of this reasoning and deduction when the Scriptures plainly teach that there are hosts of personalities possessing divine nature? Angels cannot die, therefore are incorruptible and immortal; and as the One Supreme God is the fountain of their life, are they not manifestations of God in Spirit? Plainly it requires the mortal nature to manifest God in flesh; and hence we see plainly why Jesus was made lower than the angels, besides for the suffering of death. We fail to see how a plurality of persons in divine nature proves the preexistence of Christ, or that he is the Second person of the divine nature, (a novel term,) seeing he was not perfected when he sent the message to Herod (Luke xiii. 31;) only perfected through his sufferings, Heb. ii. 10. Will preexistence advocates dare to say he was morally imperfect? If not, was it not his nature that was perfected by suffering? If so, was it not human, mortal? To say that he had two natures, one perfect and the other imperfect and expect us to believe it on say-so, is both assumption and presumption,—not intentional, of course.

In addition to this, it is said, "That Christ is the head of every man, and man the head of the woman, and God the head of Christ." Very true; but does that prove the preexistence of Christ or that he is the second person of the divine nature?

We beg to differ when it is said "it may not be a waste of time to glance at what modern writers have said. Why was it not waste of time when Reviewer presently threw out a column and a half of it himself after quoting it, because it was indecisive? From his standpoint, it may not be a waste of time. It was quoted to influence readers, although indecisive. We regret this course, especially as Dr. Thomas was commended to us in the No. for April 5, and now thrown out with Campbell and Clark.

It next says, "The Son testifies, I and My Father are one," John x. 30. I THINK this means one divinity or divine nature." Now we want our readers to watch closely, to see if anything is built upon this think so. We, personally, are intensely interested along here, because there is supposed to be a flaw in our title to eternal life on account of our belief concerning Christ. Certainly a flaw of that serious nature should be established without a think-so. Has Reviewer any right to think on so momentous an issue? Does not his being obliged to think show that God has nowhere said so? What value does he put on think-sos when writing on the Gospel of the Kingdom? I predict that what follows will be built upon this "I think this means one nature or divinity." and that it will be used as proof or authority. We will see.

The oneness of God and Christ is thought to consist of oneness of nature; if that be a mistake the whole fabric falls, it seems to us. The following is the reason he assigns for so thinking:—"For the Word was God before the human nature was created." True in the abstract, but what has that to do with Jesus of Nazareth, born of Mary? Has it ever been proved that Christ is called the Word in John i. 1? Never; unless the word of Campbell, Clark, Thomas, and a host of other fallible men be taken as proof. We reject what they say as this is a Bible question; and if the Bible cannot settle its own questions there is no prospect of their being settled, and [illegible] they cannot be. And we wish to say here, the time has almost passed for high-handed assertions; and men are expected to come down from high positions and reason out of the Scriptures with their fellows.

John i. 1 is supposed to be the very Gibraltar of pre-existence and that its advocates believe it just as it reads; it is also supposed that we do not believe it, because it does not suit us. We hold the opposite of these [illegible]. The words, "In the Beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God," is just what we believe without any emendation whatever; the words themselves [illegible] the ideas we hold. But to suit the preexistent theory, ideas [illegible] to read into them something like this: "In the Beginning was the preexistent Son, and the preexistent Son was with God, and the preexistent Son was God." We repeat that this is an unproven hypothesis of the wise and prudent ones, and their students build upon it instead of the Word of God.

It is assumed that the logos was a person; the capital W, helps that assumption to some extent, as it makes it appear to be a proper name. It has no business there. The word logos according to Donnegan, Clark, and Greenfield, means, "A word spoken;" the exegesis of a theory have set this primary meaning aside. We give additional definitions from the Highest authority known: Young says logos means, "word, speech, matter, reason;" and in keeping with this is Parkhurst, "A word, saying, speech, discourse, conversation, etc." and Liddle and Scott say it means "the word or outward form by which the inward thought is expressed and made known; also the inward thought or reason itself, so that the logos comprehends both the latin ratio, and oratio, also a saying, speaking, that which is spoken, a word in a fuller sense, dialogue, conversation, discussion, speaking or talking about a thing or person, saying, report, tale, story," as showing its use. And moreover, that "LOGOS NEVER MEANS A WORD IN THE GRAMMATICAL SENSE, AS A MERE NAME FOR A THING." Why has the learned Reviewer suppressed this? Is it not wrong, and cruel to the unlearned, to propagate a theory ostensibly based upon a passage of Scripture, when in fact the words employed by the Spirit have no such meaning?

Reference to other Scriptures show that God employs these words as they are defined by lexicographers. Again and again it is said in the first chapter of Genesis that God SAID, and in Ps. xxxiii. 6 9, it says, "By the Word (dabar Heb. equivalent to logos in Greek) of the Lord were the heavens made, and all the host of them." Does the "word" here mean a person? Remember, it is the same subject as that in John i. 1. If "word" in John i. 1 means a person the "word" in this passage means the same. Happily the Spirit settles it for us by saying, "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made;" and then explains that, by expressing it again in other words, "by the breath of his mouth;" and in v. 9, we read, "For he SPAKE and it was done; he commanded and it stood fast." We will not allow John to be opposed to the Psalmist without a protest when both speak of the same events. In connection with these Scriptures, Deut. vi. 4 should be read, "Hear, oh Israel, the Jehovah our God is ONE Jehovah;" and Jesus quotes this,—but leaves it for modern christendom to make it two or three; and Isaiah xlii. 8 says "I am the Jehovah: that is MY name, [not our name] and MY glory will I not give to another." He had no Son then: he was not yet begotten; and Is. xlv. 18, "For thus saith Jehovah that created the heavens. God HIMSELF that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it; He created it not in vain; he formed it to be inhabited. I am the Jehovah; and there is none else;" and he says 1 Cor. viii. 6, "To us there is but ONE God, the Father, out of whom are all things, and we in Him; and One Lord Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we through him; but this knowledge is not in all." If, then, all things were only once created, we have absolute proof that God the Father created them by speaking them into existence by the breath of his mouth, and not by a preexistent Son. And while Paul and his brethren had but one God, in the same sense Reviewer has two and a serious question for him, is, "Am I a brother of Paul and his brethren?" If it be held that all things are not of God the Father, and at the same time it be held that all things were made by Jesus Christ, does it not involve the absurd position that the Son created all things out of the Father? And if the Son created all things, we suppose we are expected to believe that he who created the heavenly orbs and stellar systems, whose vast proportions and distances and numbers are beyond the calculations of the greatest mathematicians and astronomers, is to be extended for his [illegible] and perfect obedience and death of ignominy, with this infinitesimal the merest atom-world, comparatively, for a thousand years; and that this supposed "Second person of the divine nature," offered prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears to the First Person of "The divine nature." Every attempt to sustain this theory shows more clearly that it is wrong, which nothing but faith in God's simple record of his Son will free from.

True, the "Modern Writers" were tossed aside but not till their work had been done. Reviewer now writes as his own, just what the "moderns" taught, and thus becomes a "modern" we think.

It is next said, "The Word that was God, tabernacled among us." This is another home-made Scripture, and shows that that old assumption is used as if proved, which we hold it is not. We will make another attempt to show this matter in its true light. Reviewer says the "Word that was God tabernacled among us." As there is no Scripture which says that, it is his assertion. Why did he not say the word was made FLESH and tabernacled among us? The 14th verse reads that way. Reviewer believes that a preexistent person whose name was "word," was made flesh. But although he teaches that, he does not believe it, cannot believe it, because he is arguing for a spiritual person after that spiritual person has been made flesh. It is painful to see what blindness tradition breeds, in opposition too, of the clear announcement that Jesus was begotten of God, not transmigrated. But then again, the remarks following show that he does not believe that the pre-existent Son was made flesh, for he has the flesh dying and the pre-existent Son surviving and raising the flesh. It is a relief to turn from this mysterious and far-fetched theory to the words of the Spirit in Acts ii. 22 and read, "ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, [not from the realms of glory] a MAN approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him, in the midst of you." Here is proof that God did those works in approval of Jesus of Nazareth—not in approval of a pre-existent Son; and no pre-existent Son did the work either. The God whom Peter says did the work is the God Jesus calls Father in John xiv., and whose very words he spake, and who dwelt in him, and did the works. It was his Father, not a pre-existent Son that dwelt in him. And verse 22 says, "Moses truly said unto the fathers, a prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me." Here his origin is divinely [illegible] it is painful to know believers in preexistence cannot believe this Scripture without a mental reservation. The Jews had no preexistent brethren. In Acts iii. 10 the Spirit in Peter anticipates this preexistent delusion by showing that the power by which they had healed the lame man was the name of Jesus of Nazareth, not of a pre-existent Son of God.

Reviewer often quotes Dr. Thomas, but, as we come to know more of the Doctor's writings on this subject, we are persuaded he fails to [illegible] that writer, and [illegible] does him injustice. In a word, when in Eureka Vol. 1, page [illegible] he plainly says, "In this [illegible] there is no D[illegible] he is styled the Logos". [illegible] without Theos the Logos could have no existence. This may be illustrated by the relation of reason or intelligence and speech to brain as affirmed in the proposition: no brain, no thought, reason nor intelligence. Call the brain Theos and thought, reason and understanding intelligently expressed Logos, and the relation and dependence of Theos and Logos, in John's use of the terms may be perceived. Brain flesh is the substratum or hypostasis that underlies thought, so Theos is the substance which constitutes the substratum of Logos. Theos is the substance [illegible] spirit, as it is written, Theos is spirit, and he who uttered the Word is declared to be himself both substance and spirit." We have too much respect for his ability to be able to believe that he could either believe or teach two or three persons in one Deity. Plainly, his statement, and its illustration in this quotation teach that the Word is the Spirit of God for God is Spirit, and the Word is God. If words mean anything he had no idea that either the Spirit or the Word was a person; and that therefore no reference is made to a person, till, as stated in the 14th verse, the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us. And, being sane, the only reasonable explanation, and charitable, is, that when he speaks of Christ the Word as laying the foundations of the earth he m[illegible] the Spirit which anointed Jesus and made him the Christ, which by the way, was to many a misleading [illegible].

No man has seen God at any time, but we have seen manifestations of him. He manifests himself now; not by spiritual beings as in the past, but by his power, and [illegible] expression of his mind or spirit in words communicated to his servants and written down. These are His witnesses. And when they appear to bear the man's [illegible] of personality it is only to assist our limited capacity. To really invest the preexistent Word with personality is to make him a witness of Himself; and to invest the Spirit of God with personality is also to make Him a witness of Himself, and so destroy the Almightiness of Him who says, "I, even I am He, and there is no God with me." Deut. xxxiii. 39. Either this, or it makes the One God three persons. If Jesus possessed two natures, did one of his natures thank the other? If Jesus were God would he need to be anointed? and who would anoint him? According to the Trinitarians, the First Person of the Trinity must have anointed the Second Person of the Trinity with the Third Person of the Trinity. If the Holy Spirit is a Person, in view of Luke i. 30-33 He is the Father of Jesus, evidently, and things are horribly mixed, for Jesus then would be sending his Father when he sent the Comforter.

In the love of the truth submitted. •

(To be Continued.)

"Parliament of Religions."

We have been asked why we made no report of the Great "Congress of Religions" held at Chicago during the World's Fair. It had not occurred to us as our province to give such a report, but having given our opinion privately, and then finding in the November number of The Faith, the following article by H. M. Barnett, of London, England, we are pleased to present it to our readers as our mind, better expressed than we can do.

"Can two walk together except they be agreed?" is the heart-searching question put to us by God, through the prophet Amos (iii.) And the hideous phenomenon, at the "World's Fair," Chicago, last month, termed the "Parliament of Religions," forsooth, may be well considered in the clear light of this Divinely luminous passage. For the implied reply in the negative to the above-cited God-inspired question, suggests a tremendous condemnation of this awfully misleading pan-sectarian or omni-heresiarch enterprise, which every simple-minded believer in Christ ought to abhor and utterly detest. In the following catalogue, Divinely-inspired evidence will, by God's grace, be adduced to prove that separation, not amalgamation by mutual recognition, is the Lord's way, as contradistinguished from the way of His enemy.

In God's account of His six-day work it has been remarked that separation preceded fructification out of the waters and the earth. God divided the light from the darkness, also the waters were gathered together to form seas, and the sediment to constitute land, and waters above were separated from waters below "the firmament." Only after this did the living creatures proceed, at God's call, out of seas and earth. In man's history, too, God hath separated Abram from his country and kindred; and later on twice described Joseph as him "who was separated from his brethren," the special blessing being represented as inseparably associated with this rigid separation. Of Israel it was Divinely announced, "The people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned with the nations." Nehemiah would not be persuaded to admit of any co-operation with the plausible, wily Samaritans. Paul, also, instead of recognizing other religions, branded them as demonish, saying, by God's inspiration, "The things that the Gentiles offer in sacrifice they offer to demons, and not to God, . . . Ye cannot be partakers of the table of Lord, and of the table of demons." And yet in this abominable Babel at Chicago, professing Christians and even American Adventists, have occupied the rostrum in turn with representatives of un-Christian and anti-Christian pseudo-religious systems such as the Brahmo-somaj, Shintoism, Buddhism, Confucianism, progressive (forsooth) Hinduism, Zoroastrianism, Mohammedanism, etc. What could be more dishonoring to God? And yet, another tainting system of false religion has not been specified above, which, nevertheless, was actually included, viz., Judaism, the rabbinical and anti-Christian religion which openly rejects Israel's Divinely-provided Messiah, the Christ of God, the Son of the Blessed.

Is not this "Parliament of Religions," a veritable Babylon—a remarkable sign of the ripening Apostasy of the times?

Well might the prelate, who occupies the See of Canterbury, utterly refuse to recognize this unhallowed amalgamation of incongruities. And the name of Benson will not fall in the estimation of any Christian Nonconformist (like myself,) on account of his refusal to give any recognition to this deadly compromise, this actual (if not intentional) betrayal of the cause of professed Christianity.

Conference Report.

Conference at East Plum River, convened as per appointment, Oct. 28, 1893.

The attendance was good and the best of interest was manifested throughout the meetings. Brother and Sister Woodward were with us and remained two weeks, preaching every night, and three sermons on Sundays. At Lanark two sermons, eight at East Plum River, and six at Union Church, sixteen sermons in all.

Brother and Sister Woodward were then called home by telegram on account of the sickness of Bro. Woodward's mother, which was a great disappointment to all as the interest was so good, and we feel sure that much good would have been done, and a number become obedient unto baptism. This interest was forwarded through the labors of Bro. D. M. Hudler, and Bro. N. H. Geiselman, and others.

There has been three additions since our last conference.

J. D. RENNER, Sec'y.

The half-sanctified saint asks "How much does the law exact?" The love-laden saint inquires "How much is it in my power to give." Jesus stopped not to inquire what was by arbitrary law demanded of him that he might escape condemnation, but moved by love divine, gave all to lift a sin-cursed world from misery and woe.

Poetry.

Not of This World.

[illegible]
[illegible]
And deadly hate [illegible]
His poison [illegible]
[illegible]
To struggle were in vain.

[illegible]
And peace [illegible]
[illegible]
While [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Though future [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
The Truth, the Life, the Way.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
When [illegible]

Original.

Hickory Grove Sermons.

No. 3.

A series of discourses delivered by A. J. Eychaner in the Gospel Tent at Hickory Grove, Story Co. Ia., Sept. 9-25, 1893.

Kind Friends: I am glad to see so many here again this evening. Your presence here is proof to me that you are interested in the question of death, and of the eternal life of promise. If there may during this discourse be said words which will help us along in our journey towards the divine life, or words which will cheer some sad heart, lifting it up out of darkness so that the day star of hope may be seen it will be well that we have come together.

We understand that the present life is a temporary life. The privilege of living forever was forfeited by transgression. The effect of that transgression was to end life in us: in other words the wages of sin is death. This explains why death is in the world. If there never had been any sin then would never have been any death. Man might always have eaten of the tree of life, but when man sinned he was denied the privilege of the only tree which could guard against death. But Christ hath abolished death and brought life and incorruption to light through the gospel. He has opened a channel which to those who are obedient will give them eternal life from which sin had shut them out.

There are then two roads or two destinies—death and life. These two roads lead to opposite destinies. Whatever we may say of life and death or as to what these words actually denote, we may rest assured they do not both denote the same thing. If the righteous gain eternal life by obedience then the wicked lose eternal life by disobedience. In the discussion of this subject theologians generally assume that the life promised by Jesus is a happy life, and then to contrast the adjective "happy" and say the life of the sinner must be an "unhappy" life, thus contrasting the adjective instead of the noun life. I call especial attention to this point as I believe here is where many honest minds are blinded by Satan to cover up his falsehood told first in Eden that man should "not surely die." The life promised by Jesus is never said to be a "happy" life or a life of bliss, or a life of glory, but the life of promise is said to be an "eternal life," an "everlasting life." It is never qualified by any adjective but those which denote duration. It is an endless life. It is an eternal life. It is a life everlasting. It is a life that can never cease, for is it not said by Jesus that they can die no more. Now make the contrast on the adjective of the Bible coupled with the noun life, and what have we. If the righteous gain life the sinner does not gain it. If the sinner does not gain life at all then how can we consistently contrast the word eternal. Eternal what? Life? No never. The text with which we started says, "He that hath not the Son hath not the life." 1 John v. 12. The punishment of the sinner is not set forth as eternal life any where in the Scriptures. Indeed life is the very thing that they lose. What profit says Jesus is it for a man to gain the whole world and lose his life (R. V. of Matt. xvi. 26. Again John says, "He that believeth not on the Son shall not see life." The sinner never will have eternal life of any kind. So the Scriptures never teach that he will have eternal life in misery, or that he shall spend an eternal life in torture, or an eternal life of pain. But the plain simple destiny marked out by Jesus for the sinner who walks in the broad road is Death not life. The broad road leads to death not eternal life in pain, as we have been taught by some. Life and death are set before all, not life in happiness and life in misery. Now let it be borne in mind that the Bible plainly declares that the eternal life and existence of the righteous will be a blissful state, yet the life promised is simply life without end. So carefully have the Bible writers guarded the life of promise that bliss or happiness or any of its synonyms are never used as adjectives. Such adjectives as these admit of contrast. A blissful life may suggest a life of sorrow: a happy life may suggest a life of pain or woe, but an eternal life—a life without end can only imply a life which will end, and that is death. Surely the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

In the classification made last evening I placed the Bible writers as among those who believed in the complete mortality of man. I believe that assignment to be correct. The Bible as a whole shows man to be mortal and on probation for immortality. A doctrine is not taught by an isolated text, or better it may be to say a doctrine is not satisfactorily proved from a solitary text, when the great mass of testimony is in the opposite direction. In Job iv. 17, we find a statement of man's mortality. Yet we could never receive that statement as final proof if the whole Bible taught that man is actually immortal. I receive the statement here in Job not because Eliphas said it or because it is found in the Bible merely, but because it accords with the Bible as a whole and with the whole range of human experience. That man is mortal is shown by the Law, the Prophets and the Psalms. That he is mortal, is shown by the gospels, Epistles and the visions which close the New Testament. The penalty of the law was death for the transgressor. The sacrifices showed that life was forfeited and made a remembrance once a year that men were sinners, and life atoned for life forfeited. The memorial of the passover taught the children of Israel that a death angel had passed over Egypt one dark dreadful night and had slain all the first-born of Egypt. There was death everywhere except among the obedient Israelites; and is not this a lesson to the sinner and the disobedient. Will not his doom be the same—death. The prophets have plainly written "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezek. xviii. 4, 20. The Psalms tell us that in death there is no remembrance of God, and those who go to the grave do not—can not give him thanks. Psa. vi. 4. That the wicked shall consume away into smoke, (Psa. xxxvii. 20), or be burned up root and branch. Malachi iv. 1. But glimpses of the future life are given there too by the lawgiver, prophet and poet. Isaiah says, Thy dead men shall live. David says, he shall be satisfied when he awakes in the likeness of Jesus. Daniel says many will awake to everlasting life—all these point to the future for the eternal life and all are equally positive that the present life is one forfeited by sin.

Open now your Bibles at Matt. vii. 13 and we read, "Enter ye in by the narrow gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction and many be they who enter thereby. For narrow is the gate and straightened the way that leadeth unto life, and few be they that find it." This text is a plain one and we need not wander far from its meaning. Destruction and life are set as the objective points of the two roads and gates. Those who reach life are not destroyed and those who are destroyed do not gain life. Here again is the simple story of Life or Death, Life for obedience, death for sin.

That the obedient alone will ever share in eternal life is evident from John vi. I will read, at the 51st verse Jesus says, "I am the living bread which came down out of heaven, if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever." Now upon the hypothesis that the sinner will live forever, Where is the difference between the man who eats of that bread (which is Christ) and the man who will not accept of it. If both the sinner and the saint are to live forever, then where is the force of the Master's teaching in this language? Be not deceived, my friends, there is a difference between the man who eats of that bread and the man who will not eat of it. The one who eats shall live forever, for Jesus says he gave his flesh for the life of the world. Verse 53. "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood ye have not life in yourselves." If this is so, how then can it be said that the sinner is immortal? The fact that eternal life will only be granted to the righteous through a resurrection or the new birth is repeated over and over that we may not be deceived by the doctrine of Satan who promises the sinner life. This doctrine strengthens the hand of the wicked and makes the righteous sad. "Because with lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad, and strengthened the hands of the wicked that he should not return from his wicked way by promising him life." Jesus in his teaching on this question has made clean cut and nice distinctions, so that we may not be led astray. His constant offer is eternal life, and as constant and clear is he that the righteous alone shall live forever. I read again, "He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life and I will raise him up at the last day." It would be impossible it seems to me to not understand his statement here. It seems plain that one who eats his flesh and drinks his blood alone has complied with the conditions of eternal life and will be raised up at the last day to share with Jesus that great gift of God—eternal life.

This too agrees with Paul in his letter to the brethren at Corinth. For the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed: for this incorruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality."

There is one other thought to which I invite attention, as bearing upon this question of mortality. It is a field rarely traversed by teachers, yet we shall find it rich in truth and profitable to investigate. John tells us, "For there are three who bear witness, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood, and the three agree in one." Agree about what? I answer they agree upon this question of life and death. The presence of the spirit in its baptism at Pentecost and elsewhere, and in its varied manifestations ever since is a proof of the living Christ, or better and more forcible still of the resurrected Christ. For says Peter at Pentecost, David was a prophet and knowing that God had sworn to him that from the fruit of his loins one should sit (forever) upon his throne, he foreseeing this spake of the resurrection of Christ, who has not seen corruption, for God has raised him from the dead. He therefore being exalted, has received of the Father the promised spirit and has shed forth this which ye now see and hear.

The presence of the spirit at Pentecost was proof that Jesus had been raised from the dead, for the disciples well remembered that greatest of all discourses which Jesus gave in that upper chamber in Jerusalem, and how he told them there that he was going away to the Father, and that how he would send the Spirit, and how that comforter would remain with them and he with them and be in them, and thus during his absence he would not leave them comfortless during his stay at the Father's right hand. Yes, they remembered all this, and the presence of the Spirit bore witness of a risen—resurrected Savior. He therefore was in hades—in death—was mortal—died, hence his testimony, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forever more, and have the keys of death."

But the especial testimony to which I referred lies in the last two witnesses in this text of John's, viz., in the water and in the blood. They stand as memorials. They are monumental witnesses. The memorial of baptism points with no uncertain finger to the death and burial of Jesus.

Says Paul, "know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" If Jesus never died then this statement is not true, and we could not imitate by this act a thing which did not occur! The apostle says that in baptism we are buried into death. We do not reach the point of "death" until completely buried. If we should stop when a few drops of water touch us or even when partially buried in the water the figure would not be complete, unless, indeed, only a part of Christ died. But the Apostle is very clear and definite; he says we are buried, completely and absolutely buried into death. Therefore, if our witness here agrees with the Spirit Jesus was completely, and wholly dead. And this same apostle says, "If Christ be not risen then is our preaching vain and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God, for we have testified of God that he raised up Christ." We see then how this witness "The water" testifies of the death of Christ for our sins and when we were baptized we said by that act, we believe that Jesus died and rose again according to the Scriptures.

We now examine briefly our last witness the Blood. This is that blood of which Jesus speaks when he says, except ye eat my flesh and drink my blood ye have no life in you. This memorial of the New Covenant in his blood shows that there was the death of the testator, otherwise the Covenant would be of no force at all. This was exemplified up there in that upper chamber in Jerusalem, referred to a little while ago. And to add to its solemnity they had just eaten the passover which symbolized the memorable night of deliverance from death and bondage. They were gathered around the table. Jesus tells them he must die, but that he will rise again. Taking a loaf he break it and said, this is my body, and this, as he blessed the cup and held it up before them is the new covenant in my blood. And then commanding them to do this in remembrance of him until he should return he said, "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death." Do you gather around that table to show his death and then believe that he did not die? Is it possible that the traditions of men will so blind men's eyes that they will eat that bread and drink of that cup not discerning the Lord's body? You may ask in what sense did Jesus die. I answer; in what sense did he not die? He died according to the Scriptures. He poured out his soul even unto death.

In whatever field of Bible study you push this question of life and death you find man to be mortal, waiting for the time when mortality shall be swallowed up of that eternal life promised in the gospel. To-morrow evening we will look into the realm of nature.

"Holy Bible, Book Divine,
Precious treasure thou art mine.
Mine to teach me whence I came,
Mine to show me what I am."

Editor Restitution:

Three Jews met in New York and observed the Sabbath.

Two of them left, traveling east and west respectively, circumnavigating the globe, and observing every seventh day.

Comparing notes in New York, each Jew was found on re-assembling, observing a different day.

Which of these Jews had the correct Sabbath?

1. If all three were correct, the precise space of time allotted to the Sabbath is immaterial.

2. If only one was correct and the observance of some particular twenty four hours is necessary to salvation as some seem to think, which of the two are accursed?

3. If two are condemned will it be for lack of an astronomical and mathematical education.

4. If the New York man was correct in what revelation is this assumption founded?

5. If the circumnavigating Jews were correct, then all Jews do not observe the same day of the week or Sabbath.

6. If the circumnavigating Jews were incorrect then Saturday cannot be the Sabbath at all places on the globe.

7. If the circumnavigating Jews were correct then the precise time of the Sabbath depends on the direction in which a man travels.

8. If all three Jews were correct then every day of the week must be the Sabbath in some portion of the globe.

8. If the Sabbath day be of importance then apparently it should be observed simultaneously in all parts of the globe.

10. If it be not necessary to keep the Sabbath day simultaneously in all parts of the globe, then apparently no particular twenty four hours has any advantage over the other.

11. Is there indubitable proof that the day observed by the Jews for their Sabbath, is in direct line of sequence (without alteration) from the time of Moses?

12. If there be no such proof why should it be assumed that the day they (quite possibly) incorrectly observe, is more consecrated than any other day set apart for the worship of God?

D. T. Baker.

Prayer.

All Christians of whatever name agree in prayer, and especially that form of prayer that the Lord taught his disciples; but we fear that many of those that repeat that prayer have not a faint idea of what it contains. Let us see what is contained in the second petition, "Thy Kingdom come," what is meant by this? Certainly not the Church, for it is in no sense a kingdom, but on the contrary it is represented as a body and bride. What then are we to understand this kingdom to be? Evidently that spoken of by Daniel, see chapter ii. 44. "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." How few realize that this is the real kingdom they are praying for.

The third petition declares "Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Should not the Christain people have faith to believe when they pray that petition that what is prayed for will eventually be realized sometime in the future, because it is the Lord's prayer: then the question forces itself upon us, what kind of a world will this be when this grand consummation takes place, will it not be heaven upon this earth? 1 Cor. xv. 26.

The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. This will be the restoration of all things that God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

How many of the so-called learned of this world that have been preaching the Gospel, that cannot see much of the Scripture in its true light; but the latest deliverance we have seen was that of the Divine Moderator of the late ecclesiastical body, when preaching a sermon before a large congregation, and the papers eulogized the discourse as very satisfactory to the people that heard it. His text was Heb. xii. 28, "Wherefore we receive a kingdom that cannot be moved." When we read the text we felt confident of getting something valuable on the coming kingdom, but, alas, we were shocked and astonished, when we read the first sentence, "Christ the King, and the soul the Kingdom." This for gross ignorance, is only equaled by that of some men trying to prove that the kingdom of God dwell in the hearts of those old wicked pharisees, that the Lord said were blind guides, hypocrites, whited wall, whited "sepulchres full of dead mens bones, and all uncleanness, and if the eye of this divine should strike our article we hope he will review his discourse somewhat severely. This shows that we have a large number of public teachers that are making havoc of some very important portions of Scripture.

L. Boyd.

Appointments.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Plymouth, Ind. commencing on Friday, Nov. 17, 1893, and continue over the following Sunday. The brethren of like precious faith are invited to come and be with us at this meeting. Let us heed the admonition to meet together and exhort one another that we may be built up and strengthened in the most Holy Faith, remembering that our salvation depends upon our own individual exertions.

J. F. Wagoner, Pres.
A. C. Roberts, Sec.

Selected.

Affairs Abroad.

Each country of Europe just now is taking its turn in occupying the attention of public opinion. Awhile ago all eyes were turned to France, whose Russian fetes were the cynosure of Europe. Then came the turn of Italy, whose financial embarassments caused much international excitement. Now it is Spain that all Europe is eagerly watching and whose situation both at home and abroad has suddenly become puzzling.

The preparations for the expedition for the relief of Melilla are proceeding slowly. There are already 20,000 soldiers at Melilla, but they are unable to force the Moors to raise the siege of that place, because the besiegers are on territory which belongs to the Sultan of Morocco. If the Spaniards go out of their fortification a distance of barely six miles they will be practically declaring war against the Sultan of Morocco and invading his territories, something which may prove dangerous from an international point of view. If they remain behind their fortifications the number of their enemies increases daily, while their ranks are being decimated by disease. In addition to all this the preparation for the Melilla expedition has revealed how defective is the military organization of Spain.

A crisis in Egypt has been staved off, the Khedive having been made to see that he must chose between Lord Cromer and Riaz Pacha. It is Hobson's choice, for he cannot dismiss Lord Cromer nor expel the English, and he can dismiss Riaz Pacha. That honest but narrow minister has perceived that he is but an earthen vessel, and that collision with iron can have but one result. He has yielded and promised to behave for the future.

Affairs on the Continent would in ordinary times be thought rather exciting. France, it is true, has contributed no great sensation. It is reposing after its Russian debauch. Still, M. Carnot, who is now said to have resolved on being his own successor, has made a Presidential visit to Maubeuge in his favorite character of freebooter. M. Tirard, twice Prime Minister and an able man, is dead. The present Prime Minister has tried to reconstruct his Ministry by squeezing out the Radicals, but M. Carnot thought it best that the Ministry which had appealed to the country should meet the Chamber which the country had elected, and M. Dupuy had to give way. Inasmuch, however, as the chamber is clearly moderate, the ministry will ultimately have to be moderate also. Moderation ought now to be in fashion, for while the miners' strike in the north of France has collapsed, in Spain things are much livelier. The Hidalgos are conducting their little war in Morocco, but have not yet driven back the tribes which swarm about Melilla. The Sultan of Morocco, fearing lest these guerilla outbreaks may serve as a pretext for war on himself, protests his good will and promises to keep the Riffs in order. The name of this tribe is perhaps shortened from Riff-Raff, yet Spain has called out 80,000 reserves, and being hard up for money, has opened a public subscription, its Finance Minister asking funds to support the honor of the Spanish arms.

It is impossible to ignore the increasing gravity of the signs of approaching trouble in Italy and Spain. Both nations are completely bankrupt. Both are in iminent danger of the overthrow of their present form of government and the establishment of a dictatorship. A grim alternative for Italy in the opinion of many of its own statesmen is revolution. No other escape from the difficulties has been suggested by friends or enemies of the present rulers. Help from abroad was the only resource, and the hope is gone. The last attempt to give it was made by Emperor William a few days ago when he recommended the purchase of the Italian rentes, and the semi-official press indorsed them as an investment. The storm of protest against such deception of the people quickly destroyed the effect of the suggestion.

The terms which France has dictated for the return to Italy of the silver currency which has been drained are most significant. Half the amount, or 46,000,000 francs, must be paid in gold and the balance in notes. Gold can only come from the innermost reserve of the war chest, for Italy has nothing left. There are other signs that France is pursuing a systematic financial campaign against its continental enemies. It has been openly declared this week that a relentless financial war will precede the inevitable military struggle.

Austria is already on a bad way and Germany's difficulties in Berlin during the last few weeks threaten to become worse. Paris is the only impregnable financial capital on the continent aside from neutral centers like Amsterdam. Its safety lies in the fact that it owes nothing while every other country is heavily involved. France therefore stands unrivaled to-day among continental powers in army, in navy, and in financial resources.
Clipping from Daily Paper.

The World's Unrest.

Europe is full of excitement and unrest. Not only are there wars and rumors of greater wars, but it seems almost as if the industrial world is about to fall into chaos. For a long time a million or so of miners in England have been on a strike, and a fuel famine has resulted which has closed many factories. Just as the news comes that it is about over, new disturbances break out in France, and troops are ordered out to overawe workingmen. The unrest extends to Belgium, Italy and Austria. In Austria and Spain there is a reign of terror in some parts, caused by dynamite plots of Anarchists. Spain has a quarrel with Morocco which has led to fighting and may lead to more, and the news of outrages perpetrated by the Matabeles, in South Africa, has for the time withdrawn attention in England from home rule. Chronic revolution seems to be manifesting itself in many parts of South America. There is a good deal going on in the world, and more history being made than most people are aware of. Christian Standard.

Try Try Again.

Sympathy with others is limited by our personal experiences. We cannot understand the sufferings, the losses, the trials, the fears, or the joys, of another, if we have never experienced the same thing ourselves. We can have pity for one who seems to be in an agony of pain, even though we have never been called to endure such pain ourselves; but only as we have experienced pain can we truly sympathize with one in pain. And so with every phase of human feeling. Can we wonder, then, that God permits us to have varied experiences of joy and sorrow, in order that we may in all sincerity "rejoice with them that rejoice," and "weep with them that weep?" There are trials from a sensitive nature that only one of like sensitiveness can really understand and appreciate; hence he whose extreme sensitiveness is a constant trial to him is qualified by that very sensitiveness to be a minister of sympathy and help to those who would otherwise be without a sympathetic helper. It is not always for our sakes, but often for the sake of others, that we are called to a life of trial or of unsatisfied longings.

Yesterday's words were bitter or flippant. Try again today.

Yesterday's moments were trifled away. Try again today.

Yesterday's songs were soulless and flat. Try again today.

Yesterday's service lacked fire and force. Try again today.

Yesterday's thoughts had too much of self. Try again today.

Yesterday's victories made us haughty and proud. Try again today.

Yesterday's failures made you gloomy and fretful. Try again today.

Yesterday's prayers were aimless and faithless. Try again today.

Yesterday's burdens were carried impatiently. Try again today.

Yesterday's charity was narrow and cramped. Try again today.

Yesterday's temptations were met in weakness. Try again today. -Epworth Herald.

[illegible]ignal.

Dear Restitution, brethren and sisters of the one faith and hope of the Gospel:

I feel lonely here in Kansas. I hear what the sects call the gospel, but the whole faith and hope of the gospel as contended for by the primitive saints and the Son of God I do not hear.

They claim to have what the gospel tells the believing children to seek for. Can we find a witness between the lids of the Bible to prove that man is immortal, or can be until the Son of God comes and gives it to his faithful children? Paul tells us in Rom. 2nd chapter, to "seek for glory, honor, immortality, eternal life." Paul in another place said, "why doth a man seek for that which he hath, but we seek for that which we have not." A man would be very foolish to seek for something he had in his possession.

Paul tells us in the 15th of 1st Cor., when the righteous will receive immortality and they then can sing the Victor's Song, "O, Death, where is thy sting? O, Grave where is thy victory?" How foolish it would sound to go to a protracted meeting where they have what they call revivals, and hear them shout this "Victor's Song." If they have what they claim they have they can sing this song, but either they or Paul are wrong. Dear brothers and sisters of the one faith let us take Paul's view of things and cast aside the opinion of men when they cannot prove from the Word of God.

They claim they are in the Kingdom. When Jesus was asked by Pilate in regard to the kingship, he replied, "My kingdom is not of this world." Paul in Acts 14, in confirming the souls of the disciples told them that through much tribulation they must enter the Kingdom of God. In the 15th of 1 Cor., it says, "flesh and blood cannot enter the Kingdom of God." It appears to me my brothers and sisters, that we are in the sound of the seventh angel, when these corrupt kingdoms that are ruled by mortal, corrupt man will become the kingdom of our Lord, and Christ. If we have the light and knowledge of the faith and hope of the gospel, we know when God's believing children will enter the kingdom, and when they will receive the reward God has promised them.

We find in 1 John iii, these words that should cheer us onward in the cause of the Master. O, blessed hope of being made like our Lord when he comes. Beloved now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. He ascended to the Father with a visible body, he will come visibly back to this sin cursed earth, remove the curse that was caused by the first Adam's disobedience, perform the oath he swore to the fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. O blessed hope of a kingdom to be set up on this earth under the whole heavens and to be extended from river to river and to the ends of the earth. God's Spirit when we reach this period will be poured out on all flesh. Nothing to hurt or make afraid in the whole earth. It will no more be said to fellow-man, "know the Lord, for they shall all know me from the least to the greatest." When he comes he will change his faithful ones from mortal to immortality. My dear brethren and sisters can we say we are prepared for the change, if not why not? O, let us be doing the will of our God that we may hear his voice, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Let us have our conversation in heaven from whence we look for the Lord Jesus who will if we are prepared, change these vile bodies of ours and fashion them like unto his glorious body. Let us strive to do God's will and wisely contend for the faith and hope once delivered to the saints. They have been lost by the traditions of men. Let us pray to our God in faith that we may grow in favor with him and in the light and knowedge of his word. I ask an interest in your prayers that my faith may fail not. I feel lonely. My companion fell asleep in Jesus the 14th of last December. I thank God that there is an awakening time coming when all they that have fallen asleep will be awakened when he comes. Let us be faithful to the end of this short life. When the Lord comes may we receive a crown.

Your brother in the one hope.

D. M. COWARDIN.

Suggestions to the Brethren in Kansas.

Brethren and friends, what are we doing for our Blessed Master, and his cause? Are we at work in the vineyard, or are we standing idle?

If we work, and work lawfully for the Master, he will reward us in due time, but if we persist in standing idle all the day long, then some worthy one will take our crown. Are we laboring and toiling hard early and late, day in and day out for the things of this world for the meat that perisheth, or are we working and living for the world to come, which is now in sight? Can we truly say with Brother Paul, "And the life that I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me?"

Brethren, the blessed cause of truth and duty, and the times in which we live demand of each and every one of us prompt action. We must all come up to the help of the Lord, and be ready to answer at roll call, or we will most certainly be dealt with as foolish virgins or deserters. There is no time now for idle strolling, what is done must be done speedily, for this life's drama, and this world's drama will soon be ended, our race run, our work done, and our King come, his reward with him, to give to every one as their work shall be.

I wish to call attention to our contingent fund which has started out well, but a few brethren and sisters are not sufficient to keep the good work going. Let me suggest in harmony with some others, that each brother and sister and friend to the good cause, give something to this fund to enable some good worthy worker to come over and help us, and to enable others to go when duty demands. This will be doing as we would wish to be done by. I would also suggest the propriety of using some of this little fund now, that it may increase and grow by use before the Master comes to call us all to account, but let each one be careful they do not run before they are called, as some are inclined to do.

I would also suggest and urge an extra effort on the part of one and all to attend our conferences and general meetings, and to come filled with the Spirit of the Master, to do some good and receive good in return. A service that requires some sacrifice is most pleasing to God. To stay at home and worry with the cares of this life all the time is not right in the sight of God. O, for a faith that shines more bright and clear. O, for a few more old-fashioned meetings when brethren could travel hundreds of miles to hear the truth proclaimed and have their Spiritual strength renewed.

T. E. ADAMS.

P. S. Will say to the brethren in southern Kansas and Oklahoma, that I expect to be (the Lord willing,) at Ashton, Sumner Co., Kan., the third Sunday in Nov., to assist Brother Oliver, in holding meetings for a week.

T. E. A.

The Difference Between a Righteous Man and a Christian.

A righteous man is one who honestly gives to all their just dues, and he also demands for himself all that the law of justice will give to him.

The Christian must show mercy, must forgive, and must do to, and for others in love, more than justice demands, and must bear injustice patiently, but do no injustice to others; and while he may ask for, yet not demand his legal rights, see Matt. xviii. 23-35, but "he must bless them that curse him, and pray for them that abuse him." all being the fruit of his love to Jesus, see Matt. v. 44-48.

Of all these Christian acts justice can take no account, for justice says, pay every cent you owe and demand every cent due you. The final results are that the righteous man shall receive no mercy, see James ii. 13. "He shall have judgment without mercy that hath showed no mercy. The righteous man's reward shall be that "he shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." Psl. xxxvii. 29, also Psl. xviii. 25-27.

While the promise to the humble Christian who has borne his cross, and walking under the law of love and mercy in obedience to our Lords commands, "he shall inherit all things, shall obtain mercy, and shall sit with me in my throne, and shall receive all that his heart desires, even all that God has prepared for him." Let every professing Christian beware of bringing himself under the law of Justice.

"For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you, but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Matt. vi 14-15.

HIRAM SHOEMAKER.

[illegible]

Nancy M. Williams was born Mar. 8, 1870, died Nov. 1, 1892.

The deceased was married Oct. 6, 1889 to W. C. Jenkins. Two children aged respectively one and three years are left with the husband to mourn the bitter loss of one whose place can never be filled. Sister Jenkins was a victim of that fell destroyer, consumption. Two years ago, she with her husband obeyed the Lord, being immersed by the writer into the all-saving name of the Anointed One. The last words uttered were expressive of the faith held so dear. The words were "I shall soon be at rest," and how truthful the statement, for like Job of old we all realize that "our rest shall be together in the dust." With calm peaceful trust in him who is the resurrection and the life, by her request the Holy Scriptures were read to smooth the pathway into the tomb.

A large number of sympathizing friends listened to words of comfort based upon the words, "I will show thee the path of life," after which she was laid to rest until Jesus comes.

J. F. WAGONER.

THE SPECIAL EVANGELIST FUND.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$198.75
"From a Friend."	1.00
Alice Quinn,	.25
Jennie Cox,	.25
Mrs. C. W. Russel,	5.00
S. Roxana Wince,	10.00

STATE EVANGELIST FUND.

We whose names are here unto subscribed, prompted by a love of truth, and prayerfully desiring the salvation of men, agree to pay the several amounts set against our names into the hands of the Indiana State Conference Treasurer L. B. Boggs, Argos, Indiana. The amounts to be paid in one year, dating from Nov. 14, 1892. Brethren help. Brother Geiselman is often called to do evangelistic work. He is worthy. Use your money for God. It may not be yours to use, when the coming year has gone by.

S. Roxana Wince	$10.00
J. L. Wince	20.00
Alfred B. Wince	5.00
Calvin Beagle,	25.00

Notice.

To the Brethren of Oklahoma:

Brother S. C. Oliver will commence a week's meeting near Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma, October 28th, in Bro. Albert Overholt's neighborhood. While he is in Oklahoma, if brethren at other points desire to have him speak for them, he will gladly devote some time to the work of spreading the good news of a soon coming kingdom and King. After Oct. 31st he can be addressed at Payne, Payne county, Oklahoma. Direct in care of Albert Overholt or brethren can meet him there and make arrangements for meetings.

L. A. CHAPLIN, Sec'y.

CONTINGENT FUND.

Dear Restitution:

Favorable response having been made to suggestions for [illegible] "[illegible]tingent Fund," the writer would suggest further that all calls to administer baptism be answered by the one nearest the candidate, as this will econo[illegible] the fund.

All who desire to contribute to the "Conting[illegible]," please send remittances to the RESTITUTION office, Ply[illegible] Ind., and receipts will be [illegible] and the fund disbursed as [illegible] expected. Publication [illegible] of donations as [illegible].

We whose [illegible] subscribed, ag[illegible] year 1893, the [illegible] the fund tha[illegible] ployed in ans[illegible] tize persons, [illegible] from the bre[illegible] secure the ser[illegible] of an [illegible] istrator.

Previously pu[illegible]	$27.00
"A friend."	2.00

EXPENDITURES.

Previously [illegible]

J. S. H[illegible] to go to [illegible]

J. F. Wagoner's direction [illegible]

P. O. ADDRESSES.

[illegible] requested to [illegible] pub[illegible] may have [illegible] here.

C. A. Saylor, Temple, Ariz[illegible]

Silas Hemm, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Sinclair[illegible], Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

H. Hewes, 13 Elm Grove, Ashton-on-Mersey, England.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Roch[illegible], Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.

J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.

J. T. Prince, Edison, Neb.

A. J. Eychaner's address is [illegible] brook, Iowa.

W. L. W[illegible], 22 [illegible] N[illegible] Bldg. K[illegible]

Kansas Evangelist Fund.

[illegible] that a [illegible] field. When [illegible] been appointed, [illegible] the [illegible] each [illegible] to spread the good news of the soon coming King, agree to pay the amounts set against our names.

Treasurer, Henry Barnard, Oxford, Kansas.

E. F. Randolph,	$1.00
H. L. Vickery,	10.00
A. J. Chaplin,	25.00
I. M. Vickery,	20.00
Nancy Barber,	10.00

The Thief on the Cross.

This is the title of a tract that needs no introduction, having been printed in this paper substantially as it appears in the tract. Written by M. Joblin. The design has been to issue this work as cheaply as possible, and as near cost as can be. It has 16 pages, and the price is placed at one cent each in quantities, the buyer to pay postage. The postage and wrapper on 100 cost about 20 cents, so that $1.20 pays for 100 postpaid. Single copy 5 cents, 25 copies 20 cents, 50 copies 60 cents. For any quantity above 25, at rate of 1 cent each with an additional charge of 20 cents per hundred for postage.

One Limited First-Class Fare with $2.00 additional for the Round Trip Harvest Excursions.

August 22nd, September 12th, and October 10th, 1893, the "Wisconsin Central Lines" will run low rate Harvest Excursions on above dates, to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. Tickets will be good twenty (20) days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges to points west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

For full information, address any of the Company's representatives, or Jas. C. Pond, Gen'l Pass. and Tkt. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their post-office, county and state, [illegible] and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Mar[illegible]

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post-office money order, express money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk [illegible] the risk of the sender.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors [illegible] copies for themselves.

In ordering a change of address give the [illegible] of the paper you have, and order it [illegible] are [illegible] that.

When desiring your address changed, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above, you will save us much annoyance, and your orders will be [illegible] promptly attended to.

BOOKS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

[illegible]

[illegible] contains 32 pages [illegible] will be sent to any address, postpaid for 25 cents [illegible] for $1.00. Free to those not able to pay. Send to this office for it or to the Author, [illegible] Saratoga, Cal.

The Christian Life [illegible]. The above is the title of a [illegible] from THE RESTITUTION [illegible] papers [illegible] good clear [illegible] is needed 25 [illegible] schools or [illegible] for [illegible] Special rates [illegible] who will act as [illegible] their neighbor[illegible].

[illegible] edition of this pamphlet [illegible] It is not [illegible] older [illegible] the subject [illegible] of Promise, and [illegible] the One Faith, [illegible] It was written [illegible] by the late [illegible] and it is truly [illegible] Many editions have been printed and distributed [illegible] the most effective missionary that can be handed out. Price 10cts. each. Send and get a supply to distribute.

The Scriptures Opened—Thoughts and Themes for Bible Students—Lectures and Miscellaneous Papers Exhibiting the Revealed Purpose [illegible] Concerning the Earth and Allied [illegible] What We Are, and What We May Be [illegible] the Nature, Extent, Epoch, and Method of [illegible] this Redemption, by Robert Ashcroft [illegible] of a book of 352 pages. This is a [illegible] of the public utterances and writings of the author while engaged as a [illegible] in England. It is [illegible] parts, [illegible] lectures and [illegible] dations of [illegible] that have struck me [illegible] forcibly [illegible] comments on particular texts that have called for thought while reading. This book is published by the author at Toronto, Canada, but may be ordered from Bro. J. O. Wanstrall, of Elizabeth, N. J., or from this office. Price $1.25.

Future Probation. By Wm. M. Moncrieff. We have received an invoice of this new book of 165 [illegible] written by William Allen Moncrieff, subject, "Future Probation; Is That Awaiting Any [illegible]?" [illegible] is a writer [illegible] to our readers, [illegible] Price [illegible] for [illegible] this office.

Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

[illegible] circulation of any scientific paper in the world. [illegible] illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

LIST OF CHURCHES

Services will be held at the Church of the Blessed Hope, 686 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O., every Sunday, at [illegible] Sunday school at [illegible] First-class [illegible]

[illegible] every Sunday [illegible] Bible study [illegible] at 1244 [illegible]

[illegible] Hope, [illegible]

[illegible] place of [illegible] Vanderbilt [illegible] South Avenue, every [illegible]

[illegible] Church [illegible], Ind., [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Paul R. [illegible]

[illegible] school [illegible] Hope of [illegible] are cordially invited [illegible] Brethren known to this church, or [illegible] properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the school house on top of the hill; take cars going [illegible] to school house, and [illegible] from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Hinck[illegible] Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10 a. m. for [illegible] Sunday school. Communion at 11, where prayers and exhortations are made to our [illegible] and perfect [illegible] All visitors address brother George Kniffe, [illegible], West Milton, O.

The Church of God at [illegible] meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. [illegible] break bread and [illegible] Wm. [illegible]

[illegible] Elders. J. J. Cady, [illegible]

[illegible] Mich. [illegible]

[illegible] Mich. [illegible]

[illegible] of God at Fisher, Mich., have [illegible] every [illegible] weeks.

[illegible] of God at Woodland, Mich., have regular preaching every four weeks. Elder Woodward and wife have charge of these four churches.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City

Direct Connections to and from all points in the U. S. and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

[illegible]

[illegible] except Sunday. *Daily.

No. 21, [illegible] arrives Bloomington at [illegible] making direct connection with C. & A. [illegible] train arriving Kansas City 8:25 next morning, connecting direct at Kansas City for Denver, San Francisco and all points west. Free reclining chair cars between Tipton and Missouri River for all passengers.

Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12 connect at Tipton with main line trains for Sandusky, Bloomington [illegible] all points east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. R. HUGHES, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

H. C. PARKER, Traf. Manager.
CHAS. F. DALY, Gen Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

VANDALIA TIME TABLE.

In effect Oct. 15, 1893.

TRAINS LEAVE FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 52, Ex. Sun.	12:26pm	For St. Joseph.
No. 54,	10:35pm	For South Bend.

TRAINS SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 51, Ex. Sun.	6:40am	For Terre Haute.
No. 53,	12:?? pm	"

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address F. H. [illegible], Plymouth, Indiana, or

J. M. CHESBROUGH,
Ass't. G'l. Pass. Agt.
St. Louis, Mo.

JUST TRY IT!

[illegible]STITUTION

[illegible] YEAR THREE MONTHS

—FOR ONLY—

Twenty-five Cents

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry. Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

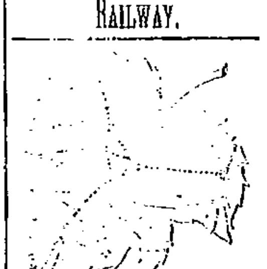
[illegible]

[illegible] E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent, PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

[illegible]

J. E. HANES, Agent,
Plymouth, Ind.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.



The Popular Route between Chicago and Dubuque, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, Waverly, Marshalltown, Des Moines, St. Joseph, and Kansas City. Connects at Terminals for all Points Northwest, West and Southwest. Fast Time, Perfect Comfort, Safe Transportation. F. H. Lord, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Chicago Ill.

NICKEL PLATE.

SOLID THROUGH TRAINS Buffalo and Chicago

PALACE BUFFET SLEEPING, SUPERB DINING CARS,

THROUGH SLEEPING CARS

Between CHICAGO, NEW YORK and BOSTON,

BAGGAGE CHECKED TO DESTINATION

Tickets to all Points East or West at Lowest Rates.

AT CHICAGO the Depot of the Nickel Plate Road is located at Twelfth St. Viaduct, cor. Twelfth and Clark Sts., convenient by street car or elevated R. R. to any part of the city.

AT CLEVELAND all trains stop at Euclid Ave. and Pearl St., and at Main Passenger Station Broadway near Cross St.

AT BUFFALO trains run into Union Depot of the Erie Railway.

For rates and other information consult nearest Ticket Agent, or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Sup't.
B. F. HORNER, Gen'l Pass. Agt.
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish the following tracts on Infidelity. Any one coming into contact with infidels will find great help with a supply of them. Send to this office.

ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY.

$1.00 FOR 12 NUMBERS.

[illegible] Christian [illegible] Edited by H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

1. The Inspiration of the Bible, H. L. H. [illegible]	6 cts.
2. Egypt in History and Prophecy,	15 cts.
3. Infidel Testimony to Truth of the Bible,	10 cts.
4. Testimony of Christ to Old Testament,	5 cts.
5. The Bible Triumphant,	25 cts.
6. Remarks on "Mistakes of Moses,"	5 cts.
7. Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers,	5 cts.
8. Corruptions of the New Testament,	15 cts.
9. Who Made the New Testament? H. L. H.	5 cts.
10. Scientific Star-Building, Patterson.	15 cts.
11. Geological Evolution, "	15 cts.
12. The Origin of Life, "	10 cts.
13. Darwinism, "	15 cts.
14. Number in Nature, by Edward White,	5 cts.
15. Atheism and Arithmetic, by H. L. H.	15 cts.
16. Israel's Messiah, by H. L. Hastings,	5 cts.
17. Israel's Greatest Prophet, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
18. The Wonderful Law, by H. L. H.	20 cts.
19. The Separated Nation, by H. L. H.	10 cts.
20. Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
21. A Warning Word [illegible]	5 cts.
22. Spiritual Manifestations, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
23. Spirit Workings, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
24. Paul for Spirits, by Wm. Ramsey.	5 cts.
25. The Mystery Solved, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
26. The Depths of Satan, by W. Ramsey.	5 cts.
27. Is the Bible a True Book? by H. L. H.	5 cts.
28. Trying the Spirits, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
29. Reaching the Masses, by H. L. Hastings.	5 cts.
30. Heathenism and Spiritualism, by H. L. H.	5 cts.
31. Primitive Christianity and Spiritualism,	5 cts.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current skepticism as well as these."—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Cheap Edition Without Covers.

Numbers 1, 4, 7, 20, 21, 22, 23, etc., 5 cts. single; 50 cts. [illegible] $2 per 100, $15 per 1000. Assorted [illegible] Sent [illegible] in the United States and Canada.

The Restitution.

Issued Weekly by
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher,
—FOR THE—
Christian Publishing Association.

Board of Directors:
[illegible] RAINSBARGER,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
GEORGE ALEEMAN,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

TERMS { One Year - - $1.50
Six Months - - .75
Three Months - .40

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

VOL. XLII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 22, 1893. NO. 44.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, as pre-requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Spirit of Error.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
Would come to God for rest and hope,
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] the deadly upas tree.

[illegible] to the truth,
[illegible]
They only answer [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] Father's will.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

—T. H.

Original.

The Immortal Book.

No. 2.

"Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." Psa. cxix. 18

In our last article we considered at some length the kind of men who wrote this Book. Truth is an essential requisite to goodness. Good men never lie. These writers preface their messages with: "Thus saith the Lord God. The word of the Lord came again unto me saying, thus saith the Lord God." Now, if these messages were not from God they were not good men, but deceivers and workers of iniquity. If these men were deceivers, they did what bad men do not generally do, predict and write their own doom, as for instance, "Fret not thyself because of evil doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the green grass, and wither as the green herb." "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. Ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet." Bad men are usually slow to write evil concerning themselves, but these men write: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." That means complete extinction of their being by the means of fire. Is it not, then, a, on the face of it, unreasonable to affirm that the Bible writers were bad men? Would they not have made it more favorable to their own passions and inclinations? Would they lay themselves under such severe moral restraint as the Bible enjoins, to obtain rewards that are all a farce which they must be if the Bible is but an emenation from the brains of lying impostors?

Would they sacrifice the pleasures of this life, sacrifice property, and every worldly interest, and live in destitution? Would they suffer persecution for a book that they knew was all fraud? Would they wander about in deserts and live in dens and caves of the earth, wearing sheep and goat skins for clothing? Would they suffer themselves to be whipped, scourged, bound in chains, mocked, imprisoned, and sawn in two, stoned, and slain by the sword, for what they were conscious was all a wicked forgery? Such a thing is perfectly inconceivable. Bad men never suffer such things for that which they know is a lie. This Book excludes all liars from the life to come.

This Holy Book as you will observe, bears upon its own face, incontrovertible evidence of its being a True Book

This Book is a library of sixty-six books written by some forty different writers, stretching over a period of some fifteen hundred years, and written from different localities. Hence you see these writers could have no collusion one with another. Yet, when these sixty-six books are brought together and bound in one volume there is a complete harmony running through all these sixty-six books, as though they had all been written at one time and by one man. The rope which belongs to the British navy, has a red thread running through every foot of it, so that if any of it is stolen, it can be identified. So with regard to this Marvelous Book, you may cut it into a thousand pieces and still find a thread in every piece, and that thread is Christ, under his various names and titles of office. As for sample: the Seed of the Woman, the Seed of Abraham, the Seed of David, the Son of David, the Branch, the King of kings, the Man of sorrows, the Prince of Peace, the Bread of Life, the Corner Stone, the Door, Emmanuel, Faithful Witness, High Priest, Good Shepherd, King of Israel, King of the Jews, Lamb of God, Law Giver, the Light, Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Lord of Glory, Morning Star, Nazarene, our Passover, Mediator, Prince of Life, Redeemer, Root of David, Savior, Shiloh, Word of God, the Truth, the Vine, Captain of our Salvation, Second Adam, Alpha and Omega, Bread of God, and others too numerous to mention. In fact, "to him give all the prophets witness." Beside these titles, the sacrifices and ceremonies of the Mosaic law, all foreshadow him. Around the Messianic golden thread are found entwined threads, which run through the entire library forming a golden cable, for sample the "covenants of promise," which began with the first book, and ended in the last one. How comes it that these golden threads start in the first book, and end in the last, when these books were written by men, many of whom never saw each other, and were scattering over a period of fifteen hundred years? Is this possible? Not with frail erring man, certainly. It is clearly evident that One Master Mind controlled the whole. Let forty men, living men in this age, write sixty books on Theology, and then bring them together and bind them all in one volume, and what a strange contradictory jumble you would have. They would be something like the speeches made at the "Parliament of Religions," held in Chicago, which I have in possession. A man would go crazy trying to find the way of life in them. But not so in the Scriptures. It declares the end from the beginning. On this point I will submit a quotation from "The Inspiration of the Bible" by Hastings.

"God's Word declares the end from the beginning It is not only the chart which guides each weary wanderer to his own eternal rest, but it is the record of the great plan and purpose of the Almighty concerning the world which he has made, and the church which he has redeemed. It unfolds God's everlasting purpose, as manifested in Jesus Christ; and if one will read three chapters at the beginning of the Bible and three at the end, he will be struck with the correspondence which exists.

